The attention of the medical officers to the wounded was, as I have always seen it, most exemplary.

I beg particularly to recommend to the Maj. gen. my act. brig. maj., Lieut. Maclachlin, adjt. of the By. art., whose services were placed at my disposal. His activity, zeal, and intelligence have assured me that he is a most valuable officer.

Also Lieut. Bonns, of the engs., act. asst. qr. mr. gen. of the 2nd brig., who rendered most zealous and efficient assistance.

The 1st tr. H.A. and No. 18 lt. fl. batt. having been withdrawn from my brig. early in the day, I am unable to say anything in regard to their services, which were rendered under the Maj. gen.'s own observation.

Jemadar Ishan Khan, with twenty sowars of Towana horse, made himself very useful to me.

No. 25 of 1858.

Camp before Gwalior, June 25, 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of Maj. gen. Roberts, comdg. Rajpootana F.F., that on the morning of the 17th inst. I marched, by Maj. gen. Sir H. Rose's order, from Antree through the pass to Kotah-ka-Serai, which lies between three and four miles south-east of Gwalior.

I had reconnoitred the pass the evening before, and occupied the difficult points by strong pickets and posts, so that had there been any enemy I should have been prepared.

I met with no opposition whatever, and reached Kotah-ka-Serai at half-past seven a.m. Upon my arrival I saw the enemy occupying the heights in front, and between me and Gwalior.

I had orders from Sir Hugh Rose to halt at Kotah-ka-Serai and communicate with him, but as the enemy appeared determined to attack me, and being also hampered with a large quantity of baggage, and Kotah-ka-Serai not being a secure position, I thought it best to take the initiative. I therefore collected my baggage in and near the fort of Kotah-ka-Serai, placing it under a tp. of H.M.'s 8th hussars, and a squad. of lancers, and as strong a guard of inf. as I could afford. I reconnoitred the ground in front, and found it to be most difficult, intersected with nullahs and impracticable for cav. About 1,500 yards from Kotah-ka-Serai, their guns were in position, and their line ran all under the hills across the road to Gwalior.

This I ascertained by advancing with my reconnoitring party to within about 400 or 500 yards, when they opened so heavy a fire upon us that we were obliged to retire, not, however, before I had made myself acquainted with the nature of the ground, and thus enabled myself to avoid being entangled in the nullahs above mentioned.

I advanced the H.A. and soon silenced their guns; after three or four rounds they began to retire, and I sent my inf. across the broken ground, giving the command of that branch to Lieut. col. Raines, comdg. H.M.'s 95th, (the senior inf. officer present,) with orders to follow up the enemy as far as he thought advisable. I have called upon Lieut. col. Raines to furnish me with a report, which I enclose, as I consider it gives a detailed and accurate account of the proceedings of the inf. part of the force from the time I gave him the order to advance up, to the time of occupying the heights above Gwalior. I have only to add that I cannot speak too highly of the steady and soldier-like conduct of both officers and men of the 10th N.I., who have given me the most prompt and ready assistance upon all occasions, and of officers and men of the 95th regt., who, though exhausted from fatigue and want of food, stormed the heights under a burning sun and a heavy fire.

In consequence of threatening movements of the enemy, as well as the unprotected position of the baggage, I was obliged to send back (to reinforce the troops already left at Kotah-ka-Serai) one tp. of H.M.'s 8th hussars, one div. H. A. and two comp. 10th N.I.

From the nature of the ground already described I was unable for some time to bring my cav. into action, and merely retained them as support and escort to the trps. H. A. under Lieut. col. Blake, but having advanced to the head of the pass, partially occupied the heights above the plain near the Phool Bagh and placed infantry to guard the entrance of the defile, and protect a retreat, I thought I might venture to advance with a squad. of the 8th hussars, and the two divisions of H. A. remaining at my disposal, and one tp. of the 1st lancers, sending back for the remaining tp. of the 1st lancers as a support.

I then ordered the squad. of hussars to charge to the front, which they did most gallantly, passing right through the enemy's camp, carrying everything before them.

Upon the return of the squad. both officers and men were so completely exhausted and prostrated from heat, fatigue, and great exertion they could scarcely sit on their saddles and were for the moment incapable of further exertion. This was a critical moment as the enemy were collecting both on the front and flanks, but the 95th had arrived near the guns, and the 8th hussars, in spite of their fatigue, formed to their front in line, and in order to show a greater front I formed them in single ranks. In the meantime, the remaining troop of the 1st lancers had arrived to support, as second line. I then retired the cav. by alternative troops, protected by the art., during which movement both arms showed the greatest steadiness and entered the ravines, under the protection of the inf. posted there. I then took up a position for the night on the heights, sending for my baggage, and placing it in tolerable security, in a sort of amphitheatre formed by a portion of the hills we occupied. I guarded both ends of the defile with strong pickets of inf., in strong positions formed by the ground, and also threw out strong pickets, both cav. and inf., towards the heights on our right; the left of our position was defended against any sudden assaults by a steep bank and a canal.

Having now finished my first day's proceedings, I have only to add the names of some officers, who gave me most valuable assistance.

Lieut. col. Hicks, comdg. details, who was most energetic and always in the front, both in reconnoitring and in the charge, and it was at his suggestion that I ordered the charge of the squad. of the 8th hussars through the enemy's camp, which, although venturous, succeeded well with the enemy we had to deal with.

Capt. Sir John Hill, acting as my brig. major, who, in spite of the intense heat and great fatigue, was always at my side, ready to give me assistance and carry out my instructions; also Capt. Bolton, act. qr. mr. gen. to the brig., who in addition to the performance of his own peculiar duties, which, under the circumstances, were arduous and trying in the extreme, gave me most efficient assistance. Lieut. Williams, sub asst. comr. gen. attached to the brig., who is always most active, energetic, and indefatigable in the discharge of his duties; but on this occasion, when the obtaining of any supplies were most difficult, in fact next to impossible, he never spared himself, in endeavouring to overcome difficulties.

Capt. MacMullen, 23rd Ben. inf., who volunteered to act as my A.D.C., gave me most valuable and efficient assistance.

Cornet Goldsworthy, H.M.'s 8th hussars, who also acted as my A.D.C., gave me most valuable assistance in carrying my orders under a burning sun, and over very difficult ground, and once at a most critical moment, viz.—when I required cav. support upon the return of the squadron of H.M.'s 8th hussars from their charge.

M. W. SMITH, Brigdr.,
Comdg. brig., Rajpootana F.F.

P.S.—I am much indebted to officers comdg. regiments for their services to me during the day.

Extracts from notes received from Brigdr. Smith, subsequent to the receipt of his report, dated June 25, detailing the operations of his Brig. on the June 17, 1858.

"Two comps. of the 10th N.I., advanced with the two comps. of the 95th regt., to attack the enemy's entrenchments on the 17th June."

"Col. De Salis wishes to mention the zeal and intelligence evinced by Maj. Chetwode when in command of a detached portion of the 8th hussars on the June."

"Lieut. Jenkins, 8th hussars, was also employed by me in conveying orders to bring up supports, which he executed to my satisfaction."

"While the inf. skirmishers were feeling their way through the pass leading to Gwalior their progress was checked for a time by the fire of two or three guns which the enemy had brought into the pass. Lieut. col. Blake, therefore, proposed taking a division of his guns into the heights on our right, which was accordingly done, and the result was most successful, by firing at low elevations, round shot and shrapnel were dropped on the enemy's guns near, obliging them to retire precipitately to another position, and by thus advancing and coming into action on every occasion of their making a stand, they were at length fairly driven out of the pass, which was then made clear for the advance of our force."

Camp Morar, near Gwalior, June 25, 1858.

SIR,—As commanding the F. F. from Jhansi, in conjunction with your division, I have the honor to bring to your notice the good service done by troops which you did me the honour to place under my command, on the evening of the 17th, on my personal report to you that a body of the enemy were collected at the gorge of the pass leading to the plain in the direction of the Phool Bagh.

2. Capt. Forster and Lieut. Morris, with a comp. of the 95th regt., crowned the hill on each side, and, with a shout, opened fire. The horsemen immediately broke from under the hill. The hussars, led by myself and Capt. Heneage, charged with one squad, overcame and slew numbers, captured two guns, and continued the charge right through the Phool Bagh cantonment, leaving bungaloes and camp equipage in our possession.

3. But we had advanced too far without any support, and on its arrival it was I believe reported that the hussars were not fit for a second immediate attack. Capt. Heneage was certainly quite black in the face and unable to speak, although on his horse. It was a gallant charge, and I am sure you will with pleasure report to the maj. gen. comdg. Central India F.F. the soldier-like conduct and good service done by Heneage, Forster and Morris with their men.

4. Since the capture of Gwalior it is well-known that in this charge the Queen of Jhansi, disguised as a man, was killed by a hussar, and the tree is shown where she was burnt.

THOMAS N. HICKS, Lieut. col.
Commanding art., Central India F.F., late comdg. F.F. from Jhansi.

From Lieut. col. Raines, H.M.'s 95th regt., com. the inf. To Brigdr. Smith, comdg. the column of the assault on the enemy's entrenched position before Kotah-ka-Seraf, and subsequent capture of the heights in rear, near Gwalior.

Camp before Gwalior, June 18, 1858.

SIR,—Agreeably to your order received about eight o'clock, A.M., on the banks of the stream near Kotah-ka-Seraf, I proceeded with two comps. of the 95th regt. in skirmishing order to attack the rebel entrenchments with supports, and the 10th regt. N.I. in echelon as a reserve. On nearing their breastwork they opened a brisk fire of musketry on both corps along the line, accompanied with round shot and shell, as fast as they could load their guns. Seeing our approach, many of them commenced to retire from their left, when the skirmishers from the 95th opened fire on them.

When within fifty yards of their works I ordered the skirmishers to advance at the double and charge, and on reaching their works I discovered their inf. retiring up the ravines towards the left and right, and taking away the guns to our left. Here we were stopped by a deep ditch with four feet of water, and the banks were so steep that it was with difficulty that the men got over in single file, and by the time that the skirmishers had ascended the opposite bank the entrenchment was completely abandoned; but we still found a small body, evidently their rear, extended, firing, and retiring through the ravines and up the hills in disorder. The skirmishers with the greatest eagerness pushed on, and succeeded in shooting several of them.

On gaining the heights in rear of the encampment, during which time a comp. of the 95th had swept round the base of the hill to the left, I observed that the enemy had guns about eight hundred or a thousand yards in front, on another hill about the same height, with inf. and a large proportion of cav. I sounded the halt and assembly, on which a fire of shrapnel was opened on the men. I then noticed on my immediate right, about five hundred yards off, and which I afterwards ascertained was the road to Gwalior, about a hundred of the Gwalior contingent cav., protected from our fire by a high embankment; and as I anticipated that they would endeavour to turn my right flank by a charge and thus cut me off from my reserve, I ordered the retire on the entrenchments, opening at the same time on them a sharp fire from the Enfields, and having our rear covered by a comp. of the 10th regt. in skirmishing order.

On reaching the entrenchment I found that Maj. Vials, who commanded the reserve, was attacking the Gwalior contingent cav. above alluded to with two comps. of the 95th, keeping them in check, and preventing them from advancing down the road, where they had brought a couple of 9 pdr. guns to bear on us. In the mean time another gun, of heavy metal, judging from the distance of its range (1,200 yards), was brought into position on a high hill to our extreme left front, when immediately afterwards two guns of the By. art. were placed to silence the fire, which considerably annoyed us.

Soon after this I received your orders to proceed up the road with the 10th in reserve, on our advancing, the Gwalior conting. cav., as well as the guns, retired. After advancing along the road for about a mile (with a deep nullah and a high embankment on our left, and the two comps. in skirmishing order in front, and covering the ridges to our right) and until the skirmishers had entered on the plain of the Phool Bagh, large bodies of the enemy's cav. were observed as if preparing for a charge, and in such force, as to imperil the safety of the skirmishers. However, (after being halted for an hour) I ordered the support up a hill, on cresting which I observed the Gwalior contingent in their red uniform slowly advancing in skirmishing order up a broad ravine to our right, and about two hundred yards in front of us. I immediately caused file firing in line to be opened on them, and on discovering our position they instantly retired with the utmost precipitation, when you, sir, directed the splendid charge of the 8th hussars in pursuit. I immediately proceeded to support and follow them to within a quarter of a mile of the cantonments, when by your orders I halted. A portion of the 10th N.I., during the advance supported the 95th, and a company from each corps was left to guard the narrow passes as we advanced.

During the halt, and whilst the cav. were engaged in sweeping through the cantonments, the enemy brought two guns into position on our left, one on our right, and two from the fort, opened fire on the 95th and a division of the H.A., immediately and close to us.

Having remained here for about half an hour you directed us to retire and take up a position on the heights in front of Gwalior for the night. We reached them about 7 P.M.

I have the greatest pleasure in bearing witness to the extreme endurance (especially of the 95th) and gallant conduct of both corps. They had been out the whole day without a meal under a burning sun, and had marched at 2 A.M. that morning from the previous encampment ground, a distance of ten miles, and although the list of casualties in my regiment actually occurring from the enemy's fire presents a small proportion of one man killed and one officer and four men wounded, I regret to say that eighty-four cases of coup-de-soleil occurred, one of which proved fatal on that day, exclusive of five officers dangerously, but not fatally attacked.

In conclusion, I beg respectfully to bring to your notice, the valuable assistance I received from Maj. Vials, Maj. Massey and Lieut. and Adj. Sexton who acted as my staff officer during the day; also from Lieut. Crealock who so ably headed his company, and assisted in the reconnaissance previous to the attack, and from Capt. Pelley, comdg. the 10th, who with his men greatly contributed and assisted towards our success in the action.

J. A. R. RAINES, Lieut. col., 95th regt.,
Comdg. the inf.

From Brigdr. gen. R. NAPIER, C.B., comdg. 2nd Brig. C.I. F.F., to the asst. adjt. gen. Central India F.F.

Camp Jowra-Alipore, June 21, 1858.

SIR,—I have to report that I received at quarter past five A.M. on the 20th June, orders to pursue the enemy, with the details shown below,* which marched within an hour and a half after receipt of order. The fort which had been reported in our possession, opened upon us, as we came within range, and obliged us to make a détour to reach the residency.

We arrived late in the evening at Sumowlee, having marched about twenty-five miles.

The enemy were reported to have 12,000 men and twenty-two guns, and to have marched from Sumowlee to Jowra-Alipore in the forenoon.

We were too tired to go beyond Sumowlee, the heat of the sun having been terrific; so we rested until four o'clock A.M. on the 22nd, then advanced on Jowra-Alipore, where we found the enemy strongly posted, with their right resting on Alipore, guns and inf. in the centre, and cav. on both flanks.

A rising ground hid our approach, and enabled me to reconnoitre their position in security, from a distance of 12,000 yards. They opened several guns on the reconnoitring party, disclosing the position of their artillery, which I had not previously been able to discover.

The ground was open to the enemy's left, and a careful examination with the telescope left me assured that there was nothing to check the advance of my artillery.

I directed Capt. Lightfoot to take up a position about 600 yards from the enemy's left flank, and enfilade their line, and to act afterwards as circumstances might dictate.

Our column of march was the most convenient formation for attack: Abbot's Hyderabad cav. in advance; Lightfoot's tr. of H.A., supported by Capt. Pretjohn's tr. of 14th lt. drags., and two trs. 3rd lt. cav., under Lieut. Dick, with a detach. of Meade's horse under Lieut. Burton in reserve. When the troops came into view of the enemy, after turning the shoulder of the rising ground, the whole were advanced at a gallop; and as soon as the art. had reached the flank of the enemy's position, the line was formed to the left, and the guns opened on the enemy at a distance of 600 yards.

After a few rounds the enemy's guns were silenced, and a rapid thinning and wavering of their ranks took place. Capt. Lightfoot limbered up and advanced at a gallop, and Capt. Abbott, with his Hyderabad cav., charged at the same moment.

The movement was instantaneously followed by the rest of the cav., and the whole of the little force swept through the enemy's batteries and camp, and past the villages into the open plain, driving before them and cutting down the rebels for several miles. Detachs. of the cav. charged a body of the fugitives on the right, and cut up many of them.

Wherever there was a body of the enemy collected in front, Lightfoot's guns opened and dispersed them. A party of their cav. made a move to our left rear, as if to cut off the baggage, but on perceiving a body of the Hyderabad cav., left to cover the road to the rear, and being themselves threatened by a party of the 3rd Lt. cav. from our left, they retreated rapidly out of sight.

We had now advanced about six miles from our first point of attack; the enemy were dispersed in every direction, throwing away their arms; twenty-five guns had been captured, and were lying broad-cast over the plain; men and horses were exhausted, and it was necessary to retrace our steps.

The villages in our rear were still full of the enemy, who were cutting up our camp followers, and firing on all who passed within range; two guns and a party of Abbott's cav. were sent to clear them out, which was effected by the fire of the guns, and by parties of dismounted cav., with their swords and carbines.

Besides the guns, a considerable quantity of ammunition and elephants, tents, carts, and baggage fell into our hands.

Never was the rout of an army more complete. It is difficult to estimate the number of the enemy killed, but I believe between 300 and 400. The villagers say 500, but the escape of many was facilitated by the villages into which our cav. could not follow them.

It is with great pleasure that I bring to your notice the excellent conduct of the troops of all arms under my command. Nothing could excel their cheerful endurance of the fatigue and the intense heat of the march.

Their good discipline has only been equalled by the courage with which they charged such a superior force.

Many occasions arose when it was necessary for detached parties to act against the enemy's inf., and they were invariably met with the promptest gallantry. Capt. Barrett's trp. of the 14th Lt. drags. arrived after the close of the action, and a party dismounted, and turned twenty of the enemy out of a garden, killing every man.

Private Novell, of H.M.'s 14th Lt. drags., charged alone into the village, and killed one of the enemy under a very heavy fire, for which act of gallantry I beg to recommend him for the Victoria Cross.

Dr. Mackenzie, of the 3rd Hyderabad cav., being interrupted in his attendance on the wounded, by the fire of a party of the enemy from behind a wall and ditch, called on Subadar Soojub Khan, 3rd B.L.C., to dislodge them. Their position was a difficult one, but the subadar, with one-half his party, with slung carbines and the other with drawn swords, gallantly led the charge, and succeeded in dislodging them, and killing every man.

I beg to recommend him for promotion to the "Order of Merit."

Trumpeter Charles Sappery, of Meade's horse, killed a standard bearer, and captured a standard. Naib Russaladar Kurreeni Sing, 1st troop, killed five of the enemy; Jemadar Jurtub Sing, Werdie Major, and Sowar Mahomed Bux (wounded) displayed great gallantry, and slew many of the enemy. I beg to recommend these men for the "Order of Merit."

The way in which the troops were led into action excited my admiration, more especially the superb manner in which Capt. Lightfoot took up his position on the flank of the enemy, and the dash with which he followed them when broken.

Capt. Abbott, comdg. Hyderabad cav., distinguished himself highly by his activity and intelligence generally, and the gallantry of his charge on the enemy's batteries.

Those experienced officers Capt. Pretjohn, H.M.'s 14th Lt. drags., and Lieut. Dick, 3rd Lt. cav., were charged with the duty of supporting the guns, which they performed to my entire satisfaction.

Lieut. Burlton, of Meade's horse, had the honour of leading the detach. of the corps for the first time into action, and acquitted himself creditably.

To Surg. Stewart, of H.M.'s 14th Lt. drags., and the medical officers of the force, I am much indebted for the attention to the sick and wounded.

It remains for me now to recommend most earnestly to your favourable notice my staff officers,

Capt. Todd, brig. maj., and Lieut. MacLachlin, act. asst. gr. mr. gen., I cannot speak too highly of their zeal and gallantry.

I beg to be pardoned if I have dwelt at too great length on the services performed by the men and officers of the force. The disposition of the enemy seemed very great. Certainly not less than four thousand men were drawn up in line, with a formidable artillery, to oppose us; and though the action was brief, many things occurred during a very short time, and the circumstances were such as to call for the exertions of every individual of the force.

I also opened a letter from Capt. Abbott, comdg. 3rd Hyderabad cav., bringing to notice several men of his regiment for distinguished conduct, and I beg most strongly to second his recommendation that they may receive the Order of British India.

R. NAPIER, brig. gen.,
Comdg. 2nd brig. Central India F.F.

List of officers and soldiers of the Central India F.F., and Brig. Smith's brig. of the Rajpootana F.F., the whole under the com. of Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, K.C.B., especially mentioned, and mentioned for gallant and good service in the operations before Gwalior from the 10th to the 19th of June, 1858, both days inclusive.

Colour Havildar Gunnoo Powar, Havildar Rumzad Khan, Private Blow Seerka, Private Goniajee Goura, wounded; Private Metadeen Moray ditto; Private Sen Ammee Aheer, ditto; Private Chota Sing, ditto. 25th B.N.I. (special mention). For gallant conduct in the storming of the fort of Gwalior.

Special mentions of officers who distinguished themselves in previous operations of the Central India F.F., but of whose service no written record was addressed to me, but whose statements as to their services are perfectly correct.

Lieut. Fox, Madras sappers and miners (special mention). Gallant conduct in killing eight men with his own hand in the general action of the Betwa.

Lieut. Arbutnot, R.A. (special mention). For being the officer, who gallantly accompanied voluntarily Lieut. col. Gall, when he reconnoitred closely the enemy's position, under a heavy fire, at Koonch.

Lieut. Frazer, staff officer of the Hyderabad Contingent (special mention). Gallantly killing three of the enemy at the general action of the Betwa, and unwearied zeal and good service during the whole of the campaign of the Central India F.F.

Lieut. Shakespeare, 2nd Madras cav. (special mention). Gallant and good service when voluntarily acting as my A.D.C. in actions with the enemy.

HUGH ROSE, Maj. gen., comdg.

Action at Kotah-ka-Serai, on the 17th June, under Brigdr. Smith, comdg. brig. Rajpootana F.F.

Brigdr. Smith (special mention). Good service in conducting the operations.

Lieut. col. Hicks, comdg. By. art. (special mention). Very gallant conduct in leading a most gallant charge of the squad. H.M.'s 8th hussars mentioned below.

Capt. Heneage, H.M.'s 8th hussars (special mention). Leading a daring and very gallant charge of a squad of his regt. through the enemy's camp and battery of field pieces, and bringing back two of the enemy's field pieces under a cross fire.

Capt. Poore, H.M.'s 8th hussars, special mention. Very gallant conduct on the same occasion, and unyielding resolution in remaining in the saddle under a burning sun several hours; and although so ill as to be fit for the sick report, bringing himself, the other officers being disabled by sickness, the brave squad in good order to his camp, under a heavy and cross fire from the enemy's guns.

Lieut. Reilly (killed by sun-stroke) and Lieut. and Adj. Harding, both of the 8th hussars (special mention). Good conduct on the same occasion.

Lieut. col. Raines, comdg. H.M.'s 95th regt. (special mention). Good service in assisting to take and hold the position of Kotah-ka-Serai.

Maj. Vials, H.M.'s 95th regt., Maj. Massey, and Lieut. and adj. Sexton (mention). Good service on the same occasion.

Capt. Pelley, comdg. 10th By. N.I. (mention). Good service on the same occasion.

Capt. Forster, H.M.'s 95th regt. (special mention). Good service in supporting with gallantry and ability the charge of the 8th hussars.

Capt. Sir T. Hill, actg. brig. maj., Capt. Mac-Mullen, late 23rd Ben. N.I., and Cornet Goldsworthy, H.M.'s 8th hussars (special mention). For the valuable and efficient assistance they gave on the same occasion.

Lieut. Maurice, H.M.'s 95th regt. (special mention). Good service on the same occasion.

Lieut. Williams, sub asst. comsry. gen. (special mention). Great energy and good service in obtaining supplies, when it was most difficult to do so.

Capt. Anderson, 1st B. Lancers (mention), wounded in the arm by a musket-ball, good service on the same day.

Asst. surg. Sherlock, H.M.'s 8th hussars, severely wounded by a spent ball (special mention). For rendering great assistance in bringing in the wounded under fire.

HUGH ROSE, Maj. gen., comdg.

P. S.—Brigdr. Smith requests that Maj. Chetwode, H.M.'s 8th hussars, may be mentioned for good service on June 17.

HUGH ROSE, Maj. gen. comdg.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA, with Mrs. Cotton and their son, and the Rev. T. H. Burn, returned to the Presidency on Tuesday evening, the 22nd February, from a tour of confirmations and examination of missionary schools. We have been furnished with the following list, giving the numbers confirmed by the Bishop during the past month:—

	In the English language	In the Bengali language
Barripore .. .. .	—	102
St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta	168	85
Barrackpore (incl. Serampore)	15	—
Chinsurah .. .. .	20	—
Crishnaugur (incl. Santipore)	—	63
Chapra .. .. .	—	33
Bollobpore .. .. .	—	65
Kappasdanga (incl. Ruttunpore)	—	107
Burdwan .. .. .	2	33
Total	205	488

The service in every place consisted of two hymns, the Litany the Confirmation Service, and two addresses from the Bishop—one before and one after the laying on of hands. At the Bengali confirmations, the Bishop read the service in Bengali, but gave his addresses in English, which were interpreted, sentence by sentence, by one of the missionaries present.

HOMICIDE.—An engineer of the G. I. P. Railway Company, at or near Asseerghur, is now in custody on a charge of having shot his servant dead with a revolver. It appears, that after having committed this crime, he endeavoured to make his escape to Bombay, but was captured by the district police.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, April 13, 1859.

THE RAJAH OF JAMKHUNDEE.

IN our last summary of news we expressed a doubt as to the justice of the treatment to which the Rajah of Jamkhundee had been subjected by the Bombay Government. This doubt has been entirely removed by a careful perusal of Mr. Lockett's very clear and satisfactory explanation of the proceedings of the British authorities. No unprejudiced person need any longer entertain the slightest apprehension as to the illegality of the young chief's arrest and lengthened confinement. He did not, indeed, break out into open rebellion, but only because he was arrested before his plans had reached maturity. Mr. Manson discovered abundant proofs of his active complicity in the disturbances that took place in the Southern Mahratta country. The most damning documents he placed in a box, the possession of which was evidently regarded as a great prize by the murderers of that unfortunate gentleman. This box was afterwards found at Nurgood, and the only papers that had been abstracted were those which implicated the Rajah of Jamkhundee. The investigation into his guilt had, therefore, to be instituted afresh; nor was it easy to obtain evidence in the midst of a disaffected population. That the Rajah had been actively engaged in secret preparations for war was placed beyond a doubt previous to his arrest, by the discovery of concealed ammunition and gun-carriages, all recently and clandestinely manufactured. The Rajah of Shorapore, too, ascribed his own defection to the incessant messages he received from the Jamkhundee chieftain; and the man who was executed for inciting the 29th regt. of Bombay Native Infantry to revolt, swore by his god and his goroo that he had been sent by him. That the Rajah's guilt would have been brought home to him by a public trial there is little reason to question, but the necessary evidence was barely collected when the Royal Proclamation released him from further confinement, and saved him from a worse fate. But, as Mr. Lockett observed, this pardon "would not prevent the Government from adopting such measures of precaution as had been resorted to, even in relation to chiefs who had been loyal to the British Government. All forts and strongholds in the Jamkhundee state are to be entirely dismantled and rendered untenable for military purposes at the chief's expense. He is to be interdicted from the erection of new forts. As a matter of course, all his guns and military stores of every description are forfeited, and he will be restricted to a limited number of troops to be fixed by the Political Commissioner, and he has been expressly informed that any unauthorised addition to the number of his troops, or any clandestine increase of his military stores, will subject him to the penalty of confiscation of his jagheer. On the other hand, a statement of the moneys disbursed from the Jamkhundee treasury will be laid before the young chief, and he will then be able to confirm or contradict the assertion that his friends have published for him in the public papers, viz., that he has been robbed of ten lacs of rupees."

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE NOT ALWAYS SAUCE FOR THE GANDER.

So long as rebellion was raging in India, and every mail that arrived in this country brought intelligence of fresh mutinies and disturbances, we not only abstained from harshly criticising the conduct of the Indian Government, but exerted ourselves to obtain for it a fair and kindly judgment from the tribunal of public opinion. The utmost allowance, we felt, should be made for the unexpected and wholly unprecedented position in which the Governor General was so suddenly placed; and on many points, indeed, we cordially supported the policy he pursued. The attitude assumed by the noble viscount seemed to us in every way worthy of a high-minded English nobleman. The temporary suspension of the liberty of the press appeared fully justified by the intemperate language too frequently adopted by the Calcutta journalists, whether native or European; nor were we disposed to find much fault with the Registration of Arms Act, when we remembered that it was through British merchants that the Caffre insurgents procured their fire-arms and munitions of war. The dignified equanimity, too, of the Governor General contrasted favourably with the excited demeanour of the Europeans in Calcutta—at one moment trembling in abject apprehension, and at the next breathing fire and fury against all classes of "black men." But after a while Lord Canning began to display symptoms of vacillation, and of fear of moral responsibility. It may be that he was unfortunate in the counsellors by whom he was surrounded, and he certainly derived little support from the sympathy of his own fellow-countrymen in India. The equal balance he strove at first to maintain between natives and Europeans inclined entirely in favour of the former, and the scale of the latter struck the beam. Of late this unjust and reprehensible partiality has been every day acquiring fresh strength, and demonstrating itself by the most offensive illustrations. With the exception of Mr. Boyle, not a single European, we believe, has received any substantial recognition of his services; while complimentary titles, dresses of honour, presents of money, and grants of land have been lavished with reckless munificence on almost every native not guilty of murder or robbery. Very recently the distinguished services of a European gentleman during the worst period of the rebellion were prominently brought before the notice of the Governor General, coupled with the fact that in consequence of the uncompromising spirit he had displayed, the extensive and valuable factories possessed by this gallant "man-at-arms" had been singled out for special and complete destruction. What was his lordship's answer to the application made to him—not by the sufferer himself—that one of the forfeited jagheers should be bestowed as an acknowledgment of services recognised in grateful terms by the highest local authorities? His lordship fully admitted that those services were of a character to merit some special mark of distinction, BUT—he did not think that he would have any estate to dispose of by the time he had given away all the jaghires he intended to confer upon natives! It is needless to remark that the gentleman in question is not a member of “the services.” In fact, he is only a European—nothing more than an English gentleman, who neglected his own private interests to strike bravely in defence of Englishmen and Englishwomen in distress, and to set an example of self-denial, fortitude, and heroism at a time when such an example was much wanted. And yet, why should he complain? Will he not, before the close of the present century, receive a non-military medal? A simple chaplet of leaves contented the Romans of old. Why, then, should not Englishmen think themselves amply repaid for endangering their lives, losing their property, and impoverishing their families, by the privilege of wearing a bronze medal on their breasts?

MISPLACED CLEMENCY.

THE clemency policy of Lord Canning, encouraged by the Home Government and the people of England, is beginning to bear its fruit. The last mail from Bombay brings us intelligence of the murder of two railway officials, Messrs. Evans and Linnell, who were out in tents near Eentowa, in the Banda district, marking out the Allahabad and Jubbulpore line. The Indian papers also state, as we remarked in our last issue, that bands of rebels or robbers continue to infest the Upper Provinces, and render life and property insecure, even in the neighbourhood of European stations. This is, undoubtedly, the result of the clemency policy, which, it cannot be too often repeated, is utterly thrown away upon Asiatics. Had we, at the commencement of the mutinies, struck a blow such as a Tamerlane, a Nadir Shah, or a Napoleon would have done, we should have had the whole of the disaffected portion of the people cowering at our feet, and much bloodshed and destruction of property would have been saved. But the Asiatic understands clemency and amnesties only as proofs of weakness and fear, and they continue to murder and plunder in order to gratify revenge and the love of acquisitiveness natural to all mankind, and with the latent hope that, with a mild and timid Government, they will escape the punishment due to their crimes. What is the spectacle at this moment presented to the people of India? Hundreds of murderers are coming in under the amnesty, and receive a full pardon for their past crimes. They will be enabled to travel from village to village, and whisper to the inhabitants, “We killed so many sahibs, ladies, and children; and here we are, pardoned, and free to go wherever we please.” The Nawab of Furuckabad, the notorious murderer of the ladies at Futtingurh, is being tried by a commission composed of British judges, and is allowed English counsel. The first move of the English counsel is, of course, a legal quibble. The wording of the charges of the prosecutor is informal; the allegiance of the prisoner to the Government is not established, nor has it been proved that the murdered parties were British subjects. All this is consonant to our ideas of justice, but it has a most damaging effect on the Asiatic mind.

In it they see only weakness and timidity, and are encouraged to commit fresh crimes, in the hope of escaping with impunity, either through a general amnesty, or the clever quibbles of cunning lawyers. It was not in this way that Thuggism was dealt with and rooted out of the land. A body of officers, under a superintendant, was appointed, with large powers to capture and execute all persons belonging to the Thuggee tribe or association, and, with the exception of a few who were necessarily admitted as king's evidence, every convicted Thug was hanged, and for years we have heard nothing of them,—indeed the very name is passing into oblivion. Until the same stern but necessary policy is adopted towards the hordes of murderers and robbers that are wandering over the land, we shall have many more cases of assassination and plunder and insecurity of property.

We hail with real pleasure the advent of Sir John Lawrence to the Council of India. The important and scarcely too much to be eulogised services he has performed in India, his great experience, and his admirable administration of the Punjab territories, will give him a preponderating influence in the councils of that body, and will enable him to propose measures, founded upon his own experience, which others would shrink from. Indeed, the governments of the Punjab and Bengal, including the North-West Provinces, are as different as the Governments of England and Timbuctoo. In Bengal and the North-West Provinces the finances are deranged, the old courts and regulations continue to oppress the people with their corruption and intolerable delays, murderers and robbers roam free through the land, the despoiled Europeans are languishing in poverty, without compensation for their losses or rewards for their military services, and general discontent pervades the country, except among criminals and traitors. In the Punjab, on the contrary, the mutiny was at once put down with a severe display of justice and power, the Europeans were compensated by fines levied on the treacherous cities and inhabitants, the confidence of capitalists in the Government—as shown by Sir John Lawrence's loan during the mutinies—unabated, the people are contented and prosperous, and speedy justice is dealt out to them by European Commissioners, unobstructed by the machinery of volumes of confused and conflicting regulations. The wise and vigorous counsels of the man who has done all this for the province under his direct rule, and who saved India when elsewhere all was vacillation and timidity, cannot fail to be of the utmost service to the Indian Council, and to the Government of this country in its administration of Indian affairs.

INDIAN MEDICAL ESTABLISHMENT.

Whereas, We have taken into Our consideration the recommendations of the Commissioners appointed by Our authority to inquire into the Regulations affecting the sanitary condition of Our Military Forces and the Medical treatment of the sick and wounded of Our Army; Our Will and Pleasure is, that, from and after the date of this Warrant, the following Rules shall be established for the future admission, promotion, and relative rank and allowances of the Medical Officers of Our Indian Military Forces, and that by these rules Our Governor General in Council, and the Governors in Council of Madras and Bombay, shall, respectively, be governed.

1. The grades of Medical Officers in Our Indian Military Forces shall be four in number, viz.:—

1. Inspector General of Hospitals.
2. Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals, 1st Class. Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals, 2nd Class.
3. Staff or Regimental Surgeon, who, after twenty years' service in India in any rank, shall be styled Surgeon Major.
4. Staff or Regimental Assistant Surgeon.

2. No Candidate shall be admitted to the competitive examination for a Commission in the Medical Department of Our Army who does not possess such a certificate or certificates as would qualify a Civilian to practise Medicine and Surgery.

3. No Assistant Surgeon shall be eligible for promotion to the rank of Surgeon until he shall have passed such examination as Our principal Secretary of State for India in Council may require, and shall have served in India with the Commission of Assistant Surgeon for five years, of which two shall have been passed in or with a Regiment.

4. A Surgeon, whether on the Staff or attached to Regiments, must have served ten years in India, of which two must have been passed, with the rank of Surgeon, in or with a Regiment, before he will be eligible for promotion to the rank of Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals.

5. A Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals must have served three years in India in the first or second grade of that rank before he shall be eligible for promotion to the rank of Inspector General.

In cases, however, of emergency, or when the good of the Service renders such alteration desirable, it shall be competent for the Governor General in Council to shorten the several periods of service above mentioned, in such manner as he shall deem fit and expedient.

6. Assistant Surgeons shall, as a general rule, be promoted to the rank of Surgeon in the order of their seniority in the Service, unless unfit for the discharge of their duties from physical or professional incompetence or misconduct. In cases of distinguished service, however, an Assistant Surgeon may be promoted by Brevet, without reference to seniority; and in such cases, with a view to insure the responsibility attaching to an appointment made out of the regular course of promotion, the recommendation in which the services of the Officer shall be detailed, shall be published in the General Orders of our Indian Military Forces, and in the Gazette in which his promotion appears.

7. All promotion from the rank of Surgeon to that of Deputy Inspector, and from the rank of Deputy Inspector to that of Inspector, shall be given by selection for ability and merit; and the grounds of such selection shall be stated to Us in writing, and recorded in the office of the Secretary of State for India in Council, the selection for the grades of Deputy Inspector being made from the whole rank of Surgeons, whether styled Surgeons or Surgeons Major.

8. With a view to maintain the efficiency of the service, all Medical Officers of the rank of Surgeon Major, Surgeon, or Assistant Surgeon, shall be placed on the Retired List when they shall have attained the age of fifty-five years, and all Inspectors General and Deputy Inspectors General when they shall have attained the age of sixty-five years.

9. The relative rank of the Medical Officers of our Indian Military Forces shall be as follows:—

* In substitution for the existing grades, viz.:—
Inspector General of Hospitals ...	...	for Director General	Medical Department.
Deputy Inspector General, 1st class ...	...	for Inspector Gen.
Ditto ditto 2d class ...	...	for Superintending	Surgeon.
Surgeon Major ...	...	for Senior Surgeon.
Staff or Regimental Surgeon	...	as at present.
Ditto ditto Assistant Surgeon	...

Staff or Regimental Assistant Surgeon as a Lieutenant, according to the date of his Commission; and after six years' service in India, as Captain, according to the date of the completion of such service.

Staff or Regimental Surgeon as Major, according to the date of his Commission; and Surgeon Major as Lieutenant Colonel, but junior of that rank.

Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals of the 2nd Class as Lieutenant Colonel, and Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals of the 1st Class as Colonel, according to the dates of their appointment respectively.*

Inspector General of Hospitals as Brigadier General, according to the date of his appointment; if with an army in the field, or after three years' service in India as Inspector General, as a Major General, from the date of his joining such army in the field, or according to the date of the completion of such service.

10. Such relative rank shall carry with it all precedence and advantages attaching to the rank with which it corresponds, (except as regards the presidency Courts-martial, where Our Will and Pleasure is, that the senior combatant Officer be always President) and shall regulate the choice of quarters, forage, and prize-money. But when a Medical Officer is serving with a Regiment or Detachment, the Officer commanding, though he be junior in rank to such Medical Officer, is entitled to a preference in the choice of quarters.

11. Medical Officers shall be entitled to all the allowances granted to our Indian Military Forces on account of wounds and injuries received in action, as combatant Officers holding the same relative ranks.

12. Their families shall, in like manner, be entitled to all the allowances granted, under existing regulations, to the families of combatant Officers holding the same relative ranks.

13. Medical Officers shall be held entitled to the same honours as other Officers of our Army of equal relative rank.†

14. A Medical Officer, retiring after a service in India of twenty-five years and upwards, may, if recommended for the same by the Head of his Department, receive a step of honorary rank, but without any consequent increase of pay.

15. Six of the most meritorious Medical Officers of the Army shall be named My Honorary Physicians, and six, My Honorary Surgeons.

Given at our Court at Windsor, this first day of February, 1859, in the Twenty-second year of our Reign.

By Her Majesty's Command,
STANLEY.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—APRIL 7.

EAST INDIA LOAN BILL.

On the motion for the second reading of the Indian Loan Bill,

Lord DERBY said that the House would look on this Bill as a grant on account which it was necessary to obtain before the dissolution of Parliament, but that a further sum of £5,000,000 would be required. In answer to various questions which had been put, he informed the House that a day of thanksgiving for our successes in India was about to be appointed, and that a vote of thanks was to be given to Lord Clyde and the officers and troops under his command. He explained, in answer to Lord ELLENBOROUGH, that the question of railway deposits was one not of revenue, but of account. He then proceeded to detail the steps which had been taken to reduce the enormous military expenditure. The number of Europeans of all arms in India was 112,000, to which a native army of about 320,000, inclusive of police, was joined. The native army at the present moment exceeded by 50,000 men the native army which existed before the mutiny. Orders had been sent out to reduce as far as possible the native troops, and to prohibit new levies. Out of the eighty-five regiments of Queen's troops ten were to be sent home; but this could not be done at once, as it would be attended with great expense, and would derange the estimates by increasing the expenditure for troops in this country. He would not express an opinion on the number of European troops necessary for a peace establishment, but if, as had been proposed, 80,000 Europeans and a native force of 200,000 were to be kept up, it would require an expenditure of at least £15,000,000 a year,—a sum which the revenue of India could not be expected to pay; and therefore a great reduction of those numbers would be necessary. He then passed to the question of a local European force, which should form, as it were, a link between the native troops and those of her Majesty sent from this country, and considered that it ought to bear a certain proportion to the troops of the line. The reductions which were about to be made would be a cessation of extensive field operations and extraordinary commands, a diminution of the native army and of the British troops in India. This would require great caution, and must not be done in too great haste, as it would be necessary for some time to keep a large force in India.

The Duke of ARGYLL looked with confidence to the restoration of the finances in India, our present difficulties having arisen from the extraordinary expenditure for military purposes. He protested against the connection between the Imperial and Indian treasuries, and rejected the doctrine of a virtual obligation of this country to pay Indian expenses. The holders of India stock had received, in proportion to the hazard they ran, a greater rate of interest, and he thought that an Imperial guarantee would only diminish that amount of care and circumspection which the Indian financiers were now bound to exercise. He entertained no doubt that the resources of India under a good Government and light taxation were sufficient after a time to provide for the happiness and welfare of its inhabitants. He thought that to provide for the difficulties of the Indian exchequer no new taxes ought to be imposed, as the taxes were quite heavy enough. A reduction of the salaries of civil servants and the employment of a higher class of natives and a very great reduction of our military forces might bring back the finances to the state in which they were in 1856-7, when the income was equal to the expenditure.

Lord ELLENBOROUGH entirely agreed with the Duke of Argyll on the question of guarantees, not so much as regarded England as for the injury it would inflict on India. In an exceptional case like this Loan Bill, however, it might be advisable to extend the protection of a guarantee. It had been stated that the sum of £40,000,000 had been guaranteed for railroads, and charged on the revenue of India. He protested against such a system as that, for it had saddled the Government of India with a dead loss of £8,000,000. All the present financial difficulties arose out of those railroads, and he trusted that the Government would put an end to the present state of things. He regretted that the Government, while they were about it, had not asked for more money, for in finance as in war, time was everything. He thought the Home Government had some reason to complain of a want of foresight in the management of the Indian finances, and in some measure the Governor General was responsible. After describing the way in which much of the recent debt had been incurred, he felt convinced that the only means to arrive at a satisfactory result was to reduce the native army, and he suggested that 10,000 persons should be struck off the roll. The European force, however, ought to be double what it was before the mutiny, and with such an increase of its numbers it could easily hold the country. It would be a dangerous experiment to discharge these 100,000 men at once, as the chances are that they would one and all become Pindarees, but their discharge should be spread over a period of four or five years. In the present crisis it would be unworthy of the country not to come forward. A revision of taxation, he hoped, would soon compel the wealthy native to pay those taxes from which he was now exempt, and which fell with all their weight on his poor brethren. In such a revision he hoped the taxes would be equalised, for the people of Bengal ought not to pay a greater salt-tax than those of Madras and Bombay. He reminded the House that a fund had been set apart by the Act of 1883 to accumulate, for the purpose of paying off the Indian stock; that fund had now reached the sum of £1,700,000, and he suggested that the British Government should guarantee interest upon that stock, and thereby they would at once set free the whole of that sum for the present exigency. The real difficulties of the case were to be met not merely by lightening taxation, but by good government, in order to render the people content, and so to dispense with the presence of a large military force.

Lord ALBEMARLE quoted a mass of figures to prove that the energies of the people of India were crushed beneath the weight of taxation, paying, as they do in Madras, at the rate of 16s. or 18s. in the pound. He deprecated the levying of Customs' duties on those hardly-taxed people, and proposed instead, an export duty on the staple commodities of India, as such taxes would be paid by the wealthy foreigner, and not by the rack-rented Hindoo.

After a short conversation between Lords DERBY, ELLENBOROUGH, and DONOUGHMORE, the subject was resumed by Lord MONTAGUE, who described Indian finances as in a state of chronic deficiency, a condition for which it was always difficult to find a remedy. He entertained no doubt as to the responsibility of this country to meet the wants of the Indian revenue.

The Bill was then read a second time, was committed, was read a third time, and passed.

THE INDIAN MUTINY RELIEF FUND.

The general committee for the relief of the sufferers by the Indian revolt have published a report relative to the affairs of the fund from the date of the last report—viz., the 3rd of February, 1858, to the close of that year. The business of the fund was placed under four committees—the general, the relief, the finance, and the ladies' committees. Having laid down a plan for administering relief, the committee state that in accordance therewith relief had been afforded from the commencement of the fund to December 31, 1858, in the following cases and to the amount specified:—Donations (military), £27,024. 1s. 9d.; loans (military), £1,533. 19s. 11d.; donations (civil classes), £8,613. 5s. 9d.; loans (civil classes), £1,877. 7s. 7d.—total, £42,048. 15s. The finance committee had continued to perform its duties with zeal; the ladies' committee had rendered valuable assistance, and had been indefatigable in their attention to the wants of the sufferers; the sum of £6,204. 17s. 4d. over and above expenses had been added to the available resources for the past year. The total amount of subscriptions, with interest and premium, was, on the 31st of December, £440,003. 10s. 3d., swelled afterwards by repayments of loans to £442,476. 10s. 1d. In addition to the subscriptions in the three kingdoms, subscriptions had been received from Australia, Africa, Brazil, California, China, Egypt, France, Falkland Island, Grenada, Greece, Holland, Ionian Islands, Java, Mexico, Malta, North American colonies, New Zealand, New South Wales, New Granada, Norway, Prince Edward's Island, Portugal, Prussia, Persia, Peru, Russia, South America, Sardinia, Spain, St. Helena, Turkey, Tunis, United States, and the West Indies. From the legislature of Victoria the committee had received a sum of £25,000, and from a "Lady in Belgravia" £850. The total expenditure up to Dec. 31, 1858, was £176,710. 7s., of which £127,286. 10s. 7d. had been sent out to India. The sum given to sufferers in Great Britain up to the same time was £42,048. 15s.—viz., to military classes (donations), £27,924. 1s. 9d.; ditto (loans), £4,538. 10s. 11d.; to civil classes (donations), £8,618. 5s. 2d.; ditto (loans), £1,877. 7s. 7d. Relief had been given to widows, and orphans, and other relatives of officers and soldiers; to wounded and disabled soldiers and sailors, to whom assistance was rendered until they could procure their own livelihood, and some of the allowances thus given were continued up to March 31; 544 orphan children of soldiers and sailors had received a weekly allowance, and some were provided for in different charitable institutions; of twenty-six orphans of officers some had been taken to be gratuitously educated at distinguished schools, and the rest had been taken care of by the committee. It appeared that the number of applicants had not diminished, as was anticipated, owing to various causes. The amount at the credit of the central fund in December, 1858, was £265,776. 2s. 9d., besides which there are other sums of uncertain amount due to the fund. The whole of the money possessed by the committee is invested in public securities. The committee deemed it their duty to represent what should be done with the funds at their disposal. They considered—First, The widows and orphans of civilians in the service of the Indian Government are, for the most part, already provided for, but relief would be granted in necessitous cases; secondly, as the pensions and allowances of widows and orphans of the Queen's army are on a lower scale than those in the Indian army, it had been thought right to place the widows and orphans on the same footing by allowances from the fund, to an amount that would not exceed the income of the widow or orphans of a captain in the Indian army killed in action; thirdly, to widows, orphans, or near relatives of missionaries, indigo planters, uncovenanted servants, and servants of railway companies, relief should be given according to their station or necessities; fourthly, soldiers' and sailors' widows and orphans being peculiarly entitled to consideration, allowances had been granted to them for a year, and it was intended to continue them at the same rate, or reduce them in accordance with the state of the fund. On December 31 there were 304 soldiers' and sailors' widows, and 544 children, in receipt of allowances; fifthly, to soldiers discharged owing to wounds or loss of health, occasioned by the mutiny, the committee contemplated the continuance of 6d. per day as an important addition to their means of support. The number of soldiers' and sailors' widows now receiving relief from the fund is 520 and 670, at about £20 per annum for each family; total outlay £10,400 per annum. The number of soldiers receiving 6d. per day had increased to 283, with an outlay of £2,582. 7s. 6d. The committee conclude their report with thanks to Mr. Alderman Finnis for presiding at their meetings, and for his able co-operation and counsel.

* Deputy Inspectors General of Hospitals of her Majesty's British forces of less than five years' service will have local rank as Colonel while serving in India, from the date of their arrival in that country, but without any consequent increase of pay.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE INDIAN MUTINY.—On Thursday was published, on the motion of Mr. Ayrton, M.P. for the Tower Hamlets, a return of the names or numbers of each regiment and corps in India which has mutinied, or manifested a disposition to mutiny, against its lawful commanders, since the 1st of January, 1857,—with other particulars. The melancholy details of this return, which might aptly be embodied not in a blue, but in a black book, fill a Parliamentary paper of seventy pages, which those more particularly interested in the matter may procure for the small outlay of 9d. The mutinous regiments included the following corps, viz.:—In the Presidency of Bengal division, the 19th, 32nd, 34th, 63rd, and 73rd native infantry, the 11th irregular cavalry, and the 1st Assam light infantry battalions; in the Dinapore division, the 7th, 8th, 17th, 37th, and 40th native infantry, the 5th irregular cavalry, the Loodianah regiment, and the Ramghur light infantry battalions; in the Meerut division, the 3rd and 6th companies of the 8th battalion of artillery, the 9th, 44th, 54th, and 67th native infantry; in the Saugor district, both wings of the 1st light cavalry, the 23rd and 31st, 50th and 52nd native infantry, the 42nd light infantry, and the 3rd irregular cavalry; in the Sirhind division, the 6th light cavalry, the 3rd, 5th, 33rd, 36th, and 60th, and 61st native infantry, the Humanah light infantry battalion, and the 4th irregular cavalry; in the Lahore division, the 8th, 9th, and 10th light cavalry, and the 46th, 10th, 26th, 45th, 49th, 57th, and 69th native infantry; in the Peshawar division, the 5th light cavalry, the 14th, 24th, 27th, 39th, 51st, 55th, 58th, and 64th native infantry, and the 9th and 10th irregular cavalry; at Musseerabad, the 2nd company, 7th battalion of artillery, the 15th and 30th native infantry; and at Neemuch, the 72nd native infantry. In the Benares district, the 17th regiment of native infantry at Azimghur is specially stigmatised. The 37th regiment is also included in the return from this district. Other mutinous regiments were the 3rd and 6th companies of the 8th battalion of artillery, the 9th native infantry; No. 8 company of the 44th native infantry, the 50th, 67th, 3rd, 33rd, 61st, and 36th native infantry, the 4th Bengal irregular cavalry, the 8th light cavalry, the 16th native infantry Grenadiers, the 5th and 9th light cavalry; and no end of other regiments of native infantry. The return relative to the Bombay army fills but a few pages; the mutinous regiments were the 3rd and 5th companies of the 4th battalion artillery (Golundause), the 2nd regiment light cavalry, the 2nd regiment native infantry Grenadiers, a detachment of the 12th native infantry, and the 21st and 27th native infantry. The Guzerat irregular horse mutinied last July, but the rising was speedily suppressed.

THE NEW ACT ON THE EAST INDIA LOAN.—On Saturday the new Act to enable the Secretary of State in Council of India to raise money in the United Kingdom for the service of the Government of India was printed. This Act passed the House of Lords on Thursday, and on Friday received the Royal assent in order to be despatched with the mail to India on Monday. There are twelve concisely worded sections in the Act, the preamble of which declares that in consequence of the recent disturbances in India it is expedient that the Secretary of State in Council of India should be enabled to raise money in the United Kingdom on the credit of the revenue of India. The Secretary of State in Council of India is empowered to raise any sum not exceeding £7,000,000 under this statute. The money may be raised on bonds under the hands of three members of the Council of India, countersigned by the Secretary or the Under Secretary. When the money is not borrowed on bonds, debentures may be issued, which are to be paid off at par and the interest half-yearly at the Treasury of the Secretary of State in Council in London. There is power given to raise money for the repayment of the principal moneys. "All bonds and debentures to be issued under this Act, and the principal moneys and interest thereby secured, shall be charged on and payable out of the revenue of India in like manner as other liabilities incurred on account of the Government of the said territories." The forgery of debentures is to be punishable as forgery of East India Bonds. Returns of money raised under this Act are to be laid before Parliament. The Act is not to prejudice or affect any power of raising or borrowing money vested in the Secretary of State in Council at the time of the passing of the same.

DEATH OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL SIR JOSEPH THACKWELL, G.C.B. AND K.H.—We regret to learn by telegraph that Lieutenant general Sir Joseph Thackwell, G.C.B., died suddenly on Friday, at Aghada-hall, his seat in County Cork, from disease of the heart. The gallant officer, who had greatly distinguished himself, was fourth son of the late Mr. John Thackwell, of Rye-court, Worcestershire. He entered the army in April, 1800, and during his career of nearly sixty years had gained the highest distinction in the service, particularly in the East Indies. Sir Joseph's services in the Peninsula are thus recorded by "Hart":—

"Served the campaign in Galicia and Leon under Sir John Moore, and was engaged in several skirmishes, and present at the battle of Corunna; served the campaigns of 1813 and 1814 in the Peninsula, including the battles of Vittoria, the Pyrenees, in front of Pampeluna, the 27th, 28th, 29th, and 30th July; blockade of Pampeluna from the 18th to the 31st of October, when it surrendered; battle of Orthes, affair of Tarbes, and battle of Toulouse, besides many affairs of advanced guards, outposts, &c. Served also the campaign of 1815, including the action at Quatre Bras, the retreat on the following day, and battle of Waterloo. Commanded the cavalry division of the army of the Indus during the Afghanistan campaign; was present at the storm and capture of Ghuznee, and commanded the 2nd column of the army on its march from Cabul to Bengal."

He commanded the cavalry division of the army of Gwalior throughout the Mahratta war in 1843; and commanded the cavalry division at the action at Maharajpore, on the 29th December of that year. Sir Joseph greatly distinguished himself in the operations against the sikhs in the campaigns of 1846 and 1849, for which eminent services he received the thanks of Parliament and the East India Company, and was rewarded in the last mentioned year by her Majesty nominating him a Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, the gallant general having formerly for his military services been made a Companion and Knight of that Order. During his honourable career in the service he had been several times wounded. At Vittoria he was severely contused on the right shoulder, and at Waterloo he was so badly wounded that he had to have his left arm amputated, and had two horses shot under him. On his return to England from the East Indies he was appointed Inspector general of cavalry in succession to his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge. In 1834 he was made a knight of the Hanoverian Order, had received the silver war medal and three clasps for his services in the Peninsula, a medal for Sobraon, where he commanded the cavalry; and medal and clasps for the last Punjab campaign, also the empty honour of the Douranee Order for services in Afghanistan. In November, 1849, he was appointed Colonel of the 16th (the Queen's) regiment of light dragoons (lancers), which becomes at the disposal of the Horse Guards by his lamented decease. He was an intimate friend of the late General Havelock, and of Lord Clyde, Sir Harry Smith, Lord Gough, and other noble and gallant veterans of the army. His commissions bore date as follows:—Cornet, 22nd of April, 1800; lieutenant, 13th June, 1801; captain, 9th of April, 1807; major, 18th of June, 1815; lieutenant colonel, 21st of June, 1817; colonel, 10th of January, 1837; major general, 9th of November, 1846; and lieutenant general, 20th of June, 1854.

HER MAJESTY'S LEVEE.—The following were among the presentations to the Queen at the levee held at St. James's-palace, on the 6th inst. In the case of those presentations by the Secretary of State for India, to prevent repetition the names of the officers presented only are given:—Lieut. Addison, on promotion, by Colonel the Marquis of Donegal; Lieut. J. Aldridge, on return from India, by Lieut. col. Sir W. Verner; Lieut. col. Anderson, C.B., on promotion and return from India, by H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge; Lieut. B. T. Ashe, by the Secretary of State for India; Lieut. V. C. Bertie, on return from active service in India; Capt. Bishop, on return from India, by Lord George Lennox; Capt. G. P. Blake, on return from Lucknow, by Major General Peel; Capt. C. G. Blane, on prom. and return from India, by Major General Lord Rokeby; Major General J. T. Boileau, on prom. and return from India; Lieut. H. Brackenbury, on return from service in India, by col. C. Bingham; Lieut. G. W. H. Bussell, on return from India, by the Quartermaster General; Lieut. H. Clerk, on return from India; Lieut. A. Cumming; Capt. Currie, on return from India, by the Secretary of State for India; Col. D'Aguillar, on return from India, and on promotion, by H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge; Dr. J. R. L. Dickson, physician to H.M.'s Legation at the Court of Persia; Lieut. H. Doveton, on appointment to H.M.'s Indian Engineers; Major General Dupuis, on his return from India, by H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge; Lieut. S. De Burgh Edwardes, on promotion; Capt.

JEREMIE'S SEDATIVE SOLUTION

(The Recipe of which has recently become the property of Messrs. SAVORY and MOORE) has long been celebrated in India as an invaluable ANTI-CHOLERAIC and ANTI-SPASMODIC MEDICINE. Official Reports of Military Medical Officers, and private ones from Civilians of the highest rank, afford abundant proof of the importance with which it is still regarded in that country.

During the recent visitations of Cholera to the United Kingdom, JEREMIE'S OPIATE acquired considerable popularity as affording speedy relief in the early stages of the disease, and effectually arresting its progress. In all cases where the use of a sedative is indicated, JEREMIE'S SOLUTION may be safely and advantageously administered. The fact that its exhibition is not followed by those distressing symptoms which more or less characterize other preparations of Opium, warrants the preference which is accorded to it by so large a number of the Medical Profession.

Copy of a letter addressed to Messrs. SAVORY and MOORE by the lady of an eminent official personage in India, during the last outbreak of Cholera:—

"Be so good as to send me six bottles of your JEREMIE'S DROPS. I wish to promote the use of this Medicine at these times, because my own personal experience of it gave me such unlimited confidence in its success. I am told by the doctors now, that sulphuric acid is the great remedy for Cholera; I am not acquainted with this remedy, but the JEREMIE'S DROPS I used every day during a period of ten years in Calcutta, and every one knows that the form of Cholera in Bengal is very deadly. I have given it alike to all patients, whether European or Native, and as I had an establishment of my own of sixty-three male servants, and distributed to them and to all their families, as well as to all the poor around, my experience has been large. During this whole period of ten years I only lost one patient, a poor Native, who bathed in my tank after being seized with cholera. One varies the dose of from five to forty drops, according to the strength of the disease. The chief care is to repeat it in small doses after each purging or vomiting. After cramp and collapse have come on, I have recovered my patient by a forty-drop dose. I have always seen this remedy used by the first medical men in Calcutta. I also used mustard poultices largely to calves of legs, soles of feet, and stomach."

N.B.—A compound of a deleterious character is imposed upon the public as JEREMIE'S SOLUTION OF OPIUM, by means of falsified labels, wrappers, and bottles. Purchasers are therefore cautioned that the Government Stamp on every genuine bottle contains the names and address of the proprietors,

CONDY'S PATENT FLUID;
OR, NATURAL DISINFECTANT,

Not only deodorizes but disinfects perfectly, and destroys for ever the cause of infection, is not poisonous, may be used to purify water, evolves no noxious or unpleasant gas, cannot be mistaken for any other fluid, thereby preventing death and disease, gives health, pure air, and fresh water, and is therefore the best, safest, cheapest, and most pleasant disinfectant ever introduced.

This fluid has been examined and reported upon by the Board of Health and all the most eminent medical men and chemists of the day, in all cases in the most satisfactory manner possible.

The public are recommended to use this fluid, properly diluted for use, frequently and habitually in the bath, and as a means of instantly lowering the temperature and purifying the air of apartments, tents, &c.; also for bilge-water, stables, musty casks, sick rooms, close places, &c., as it has numerous advantages and can be used with certain immediate success and perfect safety.

Sold in Quart Bottles 4s., Pints 2s., Half-pints 1s., and in bulk 10s. per gallon.

Free by rail on receipt of P.O.O. Colonial and Foreign Orders must contain a remittance or reference.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for
Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.

"Auckland, N. Z., Nov. 19, 1858.
"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

THE following SPLENDID SHIPS, belonging to Messrs. GREEN, of Blackwall, built expressly for the India Trade, will be despatched punctually from Gravesend at the undermentioned dates. Each Ship carries an experienced Surgeon.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH, New

Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygeian agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygeian system of medicine introduced by James Morison, the Hygeist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

Ease.—For the cure of burns, scalds, wounds, and ulcers, this justly celebrated Ointment stands unrivalled. Its balsamic virtues, immediately on application, lull the pain and soothe, protect the exposed nerves from the air, and give to the vessels the vigour necessary to heal the sore, and confers on the blood a purity which permits it only to lay down healthy flesh in place of that destroyed. Holloway's Pills, simultaneously taken, much assist the Ointment's purifying and soothing power. Together, these medicines act like a charm. Travellers embarking for unwholesome climates, where pestiferous airs are constantly producing fever, should provide themselves with these remedies, which will assuredly save them nights of watching and days of pain.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS

PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

This publication stands on quite a different ground from the other monthlies, and affects no rivalry with them. We beg to add our own recommendation to those it has already received. Though the conductors disclaim the idea of filling any vacuum, they certainly do so. They evidently also possess good information, and deal with most of their topics in a serious and searching spirit.—Press, March 5, 1859.

If it proves to be, what from the first number seems likely, a publication appealing more to the higher class of readers, whose wants are at present only supplied by the Quarterly Reviews, its chances of success will certainly be very considerable. There is no conceivable reason why articles written by and addressed to thoughtful men should only make their appearance four times in the twelvemonth, but, on the contrary, every reason to suppose that a monthly collection of such would meet with a ready and extensive sale. The purely political articles are on "Indian Finance" and "Parliament and the People," the last, especially, very ably written.—Globe, March 2, 1859.

First of all, let us bid welcome to the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," published by Messrs. Allen and Co., of 7, Leadenhall-street. It is sought to establish a sort of English "Revue des deux Mondes." This design is strictly carried out.—Literary Gazette, March 5, 1859.

Its articles, which are of a thoroughly miscellaneous character, are promising enough.—John Bull, March 5, 1859.

It is a new monthly magazine, that brings itself modestly into the world without any flaming announcement of the wonders it intends to do. . . . We are very glad to see in the first number a quality which gives it a full title to existence, viz., good sense, as opposed to the ordinary affectation of omniscience, superciliousness, or an unflagging vis comica. . . . We welcome any novelty in literature which promises to be sensible, well-informed, and gentlemanlike. There are several articles of merit in this number. That on "Literature and Life" is perhaps the best. Its remarks on Mr. B. Hope's notion of making literature a profession are perfectly sound. The very clever and much-wanted article against the silliness of our present Christmas pieces for the stage should be read by all who fancy they like going to see such things. The article on "Parliamentary Reform" we have had occasion to notice elsewhere; that on "Indian Finance" deserves attention; and that on "Hallam" is sure to get it without deserving it so much.—Spectator, March 5, 1859.

The first number of a new monthly publication, the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," deserves a cordial welcome. Professedly based upon the plan of the "Revue des deux Mondes," it exhibits much of the scholarly spirit, the freedom and independence of thought, and the thorough geniality of tone, which mark its distinguished prototype. The opening article on "Literature and Life" is remarkable, hitting the case to a nicety, taking the middle course between the reckless Mohockism of Bohemia, and the affected kid-glove refinement of the Saturday Review. All the articles are excellent; but I would specially point out a well-deserved attack on "Christmas Pieces," a biographical notice of "Hallam," and a review of Owen Meredith's "Wanderer."—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, March 5, 1859.

The best brief notion we can give of the publication is to say that it promises to become to the English reader what the Revue des deux Mondes is to the French, with an indefinitely wider latitude of topics and freedom of opinion. The soundness of its judgment on the question of Parliamentary Reform is displayed in the ablest and most thoroughly constitutional article that has yet appeared in any of our periodicals on the subject—an article which acquires additional value from the fact that it foreshadowed the whole of the scheme of the Government two days before the Reform Bill was brought forward. Let us have at least one English periodical, written with integrity and good taste, to which we may confidently look for fearless and honest opinions. The "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" promises to realise those expectations, and we heartily wish it the success which it deserves.—Home News, March 3, 1859.

It may with truth be said of it (the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW"), that the opening number promises well. There is a good healthy, manly tone about it (no small thing), and literary ability of no common order. We heartily wish it success.—Overland Mail, March 3, 1859.

The "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" seems to combine, in an eminent degree, the amusement of the monthlies and the grave literature of the quarterly reviews. We regret that we cannot devote more space to the work, for we could not praise it more than its merits deserve.—Bath and Cheltenham Gazette.

The papers are well written.—Patriot.

All the articles are written in an unaffected, free, and genuine style, on subjects of general current interest, not of common place material. The article on "Henry Hallam" is made truly interesting.—National Standard.

At the SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING, held on the 25th November, 1858, it was shown that on the 30th June last,—

The Number of Policies in Force was..... 6,088

The Amount Insured was..... £2,551,136. 6s. 6d.

The Annual Income was nearly..... £120,000

The New Policies issued during the last five years are as follows:—

5,411 Policies for £2,599,658, yielding £110,624 in Premiums, showing an average yearly amount of new business of more than HALF-A-MILLION STERLING.

The Society has paid claims on 1,062 policies, assuring £426,044 since its establishment in 1841.

Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at as moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.

Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European Life in that Colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on the lives of military officers holding civil appointments, for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the Assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.

Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

Policies issued free of stamp duty, and every charge but the premiums.

In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency. Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE learn by the Bombay Mail of the 26th March, that the conduct of Sir Jung Bahadoor, G.C.B., is not altogether free from suspicion. According to well accredited rumours, the Nepaulese troops have not yet taken the field, though a small detachment may have been sent to scour a certain jungle in which none of the rebels were secreted. The extradition of the fugitives, as his Excellency is well aware, would render him an object of execration throughout Hindostan; nor can it be expected that he should personally entertain any feelings of animosity against the enemies of the usurping Power. As mediator between the rebel chiefs and the British Government, he occupies a position which gives him great importance in the eyes of the natives generally. It will be said and be believed that the British troops, after a hundred victories in the field, feared to enter the territories of Nepal; and that the Sircar, at the demand of the ruler of that country, had accorded life and liberty to its most determined enemies.

Concerning Tantia Topce the usual rumours are afloat. He is here, there, everywhere, but in the hands of the pursuers. It is said that having quarrelled with Feroze Shah and the Rao, he had proceeded to Perone, and joined Maun Sing. Two chiefs, however, have surrendered themselves—Abdool Salar Jung, styled Nawab of Jaulna, and the Kamonah Nawab, Rheim Ali Khan, who is reported to have delivered himself up to the Bikaner Rajah.

The trial of the Nawab of Furruckabad has terminated in the conviction of the miscreant. After a patient and impartial trial he has been found guilty of the massacre of a large party of Europeans, men, women, and children, and also of several loyal natives. Sentence of death has accordingly been passed upon him,—subject to the confirmation of the Governor General, but it is impossible that even Lord Canning should find any ground for mercy in the case of such an atrocious and unmitigated ruffian. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Batten for the calm dignity with which he presided at this important trial.

The appointment of Mr. Montgomery to the Lieut. Governorship of the Punjab has made room in the Calcutta Council for Sir Robert Hamilton, to whom a farewell entertainment has been offered at Indore by his Highness the Maharajah Soobah Bahadoor.

Lord Clyde was at Mynporee on the 16th March, and was expected at Agra on the 22nd, en route to Simla.

In the Deccan the Rohillas have again been creating disturbances, and are said to have plundered Chowrassee, a town distant two marches from Hyderabad. At the last-named city an attempt has been made upon the life of the Nizam's Minister, Salar Jung, the steady friend of the English Government. The Resident Colonel Davidson, having presented in Durbar a despatch from the Governor General to the Nizam, was proceeding to his carriage accompanied by the Dewan, and attended by Capt. Thornhill and Lieut. Fraser. These gentlemen had scarcely issued from the court-yard when a sowar aimed his carbine at the Minister, but missed fire. He then drew his sword and dashed forward to cut him down, and would have succeeded in doing so had not a follower of Salar Jung thrown himself before his master and received the blow upon his hand, which was severed in two. The next moment the assassin was cut to pieces by the guard.

Great excitement appears to prevail at Bombay on the subject of the new customs' tariff, by which duties on imported goods are raised from 50 to 400 per cent. An influential meeting of the mercantile community was accordingly held, and Lord Elphinstone was earnestly entreated to suspend the operation of the measure until importers could take steps to reduce the heavy losses that must otherwise fall upon them. His lordship replied that he had no power to grant the required suspension, but that he had already telegraphed to Calcutta on the subject. The answer was unfavourable. The merchants then held a second meeting, and agreed upon forwarding to the Secretary of State for India a memorial, a copy of which we give elsewhere.

In reply to various inquiries we beg to state that the Gwalior despatches appeared in our last issue, and that the Calpee despatches will probably be given in our next number.

We regret to hear that Mr. Loftus T. Wigram, Q.C., has been compelled by ill health to tender the resignation of his appointment as Standing Counsel to the Secretary of State for India in Council. We trust, however, that the claims of Mr. Henry Melvill to succeed him will not be overlooked in the proper quarter.

Colonel Sykes has been unanimously elected Chairman of the East India Company,—still a post of some honour, though "shorn of its beams."

A requisition to Lord Stanley to allow his name to be put forward as a candidate for the City of London has already received the signatures of the most respectable firms of every shade of political opinions. The compliment must be very gratifying to his lordship, and the more so that he may feel conscious that it is not unmerited.

CENTRAL INDIA.

The rebels are scattered in three parties—one with Feroze Shah, not far from Bursad, on the Agra and Bombay road; another with the Rao Sahib, in the Shahghur district; and the third with Tantia Topee, who is said to be at present in the Chumbul and Parone jungle. Maun Singh is near him. The following rebels have surrendered:—Dithun Lall, Bheema Naik, Abdool Sutar Khan, styled "Nawab of Powrah," and Nawab Khan of Danmia; the latter has given himself up to the Rajah of Bikaner.

NIZAM'S DOMINIONS.—HYDERABAD.

An attempt was made by a Hindostanee, armed with a carbine, on the life of the Resident when returning from the Durbar, on the 15th instant (March). The ball wounded one of the ministers who was walking with Colonel Davidson. The assassin was immediately cut down. The Resident believes that there were no accomplices in the attempt.

On the 11th January there were 1,526 convicts, who were distributed as follows:—On Ross Island, 1,124; on Vepir Island, 222; on Chatham Island, 180. Out of the whole number 207 were sick in hospital, and since December 75 have died.

EPIGRAPH ON BRIGADIER NICHOLSON'S TOMB AT DELHI.—

This is the Grave
JOHN NICHOLSON,
Bravest of the Brave, who entered the Army of the H.E.I.C.

in 1839,
and served in four great Wars—
Afghanistan, 1841-42;
Sutlej, 1845-46;
Punjab, 1848-49;
Hindustan, 1857.

In the first he was an Ensign,
In the last a Brigadier-General and Companion of the Bath, in all a Hero.

Rare gifts marked him for great things in Peace and War.

He had an iron mind and frame, a terrible courage, an indomitable will; yet was he gentle exceedingly, most loving, most kind; in all he thought and did unselfish, earnest, plain, and true; indeed, a most noble man. In public affairs he was the pupil of and worthy of his master.

Few took a greater share in either the conquest or government of the Punjab; perhaps none so great in both. To the last he was in that province a tower of strength. His form seemed made for an army or a people to behold, his heart to meet the crisis of an empire. Soldier and civilian he was the type of the conquering race.

Most fitly
in the great Siege of Delhi he led the first column of attack, and carried the main breach, dealing a death-blow to the greatest danger that ever threatened British India.

Most mournfully,
Most gloriously,
In the moment of victory,
he fell,
mortally wounded, and died on the 23rd of September, 1857;

yet only 35!

BENGAL.

SENTENCE ON THE NAWAB OF FURRUCKABAD.

Sentence was this day, March 15th, passed on that notorious criminal, Tufuzool Hosain Khan, ex-Nawab Raees of Furruckabad. The Court assembled precisely at noon. An anxious crowd of natives, deeply yet silently excited, had occupied every approach long before that hour. Very many of the civil and military officials, and other residents of the station, were also present in court. The President, having ordered the prisoner to be placed at the bar, proceeded, amidst profound silence, to pass sentence upon him. The Court unanimously found him guilty of the following crimes:—

"On the first count Guilty, that is to say, that he being a person owing allegiance to the British Government, did rebel and wage war against the said Government from the month of June to the end of December, 1857, and was a principal leader and instigator in revolt in the Furruckabad district, one of the centres of rebellion during the above period.

"On the second count, in the first instance, guilty of being an accessory after the fact to the murder of forty Europeans, or thereabouts, on the Manpoor Kuttree, or sand-bank in the River Ganges, on or about the 4th of July, 1857; in the second instance, guilty of being accessory before and after the fact to the murder of twenty-two persons, or thereabouts, being European, East Indian, and native Christians, men, women, and children, on the Futtelghurh parade ground, on or about the 23rd of July, 1857; in the third instance, guilty of being accessory before and after the fact to the murder of Kaley Khan, a loyal sepooy of the 10th regiment native infantry, at Furruckabad, on or about the 29th of July, 1857; in the fourth instance, guilty of being accessory before and after the fact, to the murder of two loyal Sikhs, names unknown, at Furruckabad, on or about the 29th of July, 1857.

"This Court having found the prisoner guilty as above do sentence him, Tufuzool Hosain Khan, to be hanged by the neck till he be dead; and do further adjudge that all his property, of whatever description, be confiscated. But in obedience to the orders of Government appointing this commission, the execution of this sentence is suspended until the receipt of further orders."

Signed by President and Members.

The following address was then delivered to the prisoner by the President of the Commission:—

"PRISONER AT THE BAR.

"Your trial has lasted one month, and the fullest investigation that was possible has been made as to your guilt or innocence. You have been defended by an able English gentleman, who, relying on your own statements, has taken the greatest pains to prove you innocent of the heinous crimes with the commission of which you were charged; and he has also endeavoured to procure your release by every argument of a legal and technical nature which he thought would assist your cause. Nevertheless, we three Judges, sitting calmly and deliberately to hear the case for and against you, have unanimously decided that you are guilty. In arriving at this judgment, do not for an instant believe that we have given implicit belief to every word uttered by every witness for the prosecution, or that we have not allowed all the weight that it was worth to the evidence for the defence.

"You yourself have never attempted to deny the facts, i.e. the occurrence of those dreadful crimes which have conferred an historical infamy on Futtighurh and Furruckabad, and which have led to your being brought to the bar of justice. And now, prisoner at the bar, consider what are the crimes with the commission of which we, your judges, have convicted you. For what crimes, I repeat, is it that, as far as we are concerned, we have condemned you to suffer death?

"Her Majesty the Queen's gracious amnesty has saved you from that extreme punishment for the crime of being a principal leader and instigator in treason and rebellion which you so ungratefully committed. But if you had committed only that offence, you would have had to pass the remainder of your life in a miserable exile. But you stand at that bar convicted, first, of being accessory after the fact to a wholesale massacre of English gentlemen, ladies, and children, with most of whom you had been living on terms of intimacy; that is, in the language of the law, you received, comforted, and assisted the perpetrators of this massacre, and not only that, but honoured and rewarded some amongst them.

"Secondly, you stand convicted of being both accessory before and after the fact, to the cold blooded slaughter of twenty-two Christians, including amongst them women and children, who were killed for no other cause than that they were Christians; that is, you not only received, comforted, and assisted the perpetrators of this crime, but you previously procured, counselled, commanded, and abetted those who took away those unhappy victims from your own door. And as if this were not enough, you have been convicted of this same double crime in regard to three poor natives (and there is reason to believe that others perished in a similar manner), whose only fault was, that one was faithful to his salt, and that the others were carrying English letters.

"And what is your excuse for all these crimes? What? but that you were afraid of losing your wretched life (which after all has been forfeited), at the hands of the mutinous soldiery, and that you were a puppet in the hands of their leaders, some of whom were of your own kith and lineage. Even if it were true, that you occupied this position, what a degraded one it was; how much of cowardice it showed in the descendant and representative of a family and race, hitherto well known in Hindoostan for courage and manly qualities! But it is quite impossible to believe that this plea of duress is true, even if there had not been produced ample and trustworthy evidence to refute it.

"You were able to save the lives of Christians, and you twice did save such, once to appease the anger of Heaven, when you were sick and thought yourself dying, and once to gratify your own feelings and inclinations. You were not a close prisoner, and you did exercise all the powers of a ruler in this territory, and in their exercise you committed the awful crimes which I have enumerated. If for the innocent blood that is crying to us from this river and this land, we did not sentence you to suffer a death, which is mercy itself to the cruel death inflicted under your sanction on so many victims, we should fail in our duty both to God and man.

"It is for the Government, which is our master and your master, to decide finally on your fate. You may rely on the whole of your pleas of defence being submitted to that authority. In the meanwhile, I implore you to repent of your crimes, and to make your peace with that God whose laws you have so ruthlessly violated."

The prisoner having been found guilty of the murder of English women and children, it may be hoped that even that great obstruction, Major Barrow's complimentary letter to him, may be held as not availing to save him from punishment, or to cancel the terms of the Amnesty of her Majesty the Queen of "the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and its dependencies," though under it the prisoner cannot be punished in any way for the murder of coloured adherents of our Christian Government, in the days of its direct need. We trust the Oude authorities, who are also compromised in this matter, will repudiate this monstrously unequal doctrine.

The prisoner was not able wholly to maintain his unconcerned demeanour. Just as the enumeration of the fearful crimes, of which the sentence of the Court convicted him, approached to a close, a change passed over his countenance, and his looks became downcast. Soon he controlled his features, and recovered the usual expression of his face, except that he continued to cast down his eyes. The sentence of death by hanging did not produce any further outward and visible sign. We need not add that no emotions of remorse were manifested.

The president's remarks to the prisoner, at the close of which it was observed that the waters of the Ganges flowing in front, and the ground the audience stood upon, cried out for the punishment of the atrocities of which the prisoner had been found guilty, could not fail to make an impression on those that heard them.

The prisoner has been placed, for securer custody, under an European guard in Fort Futtelghurh.—Delhi Gazette.

THE NEW CUSTOMS' BILL.

Bill to alter the Duties of Customs on goods imported or exported by sea.

I. From and after the passing of this Act so much of Schedules A and B annexed to Act XIV. of 1836, so much of Schedules A and B annexed to Act VI. of 1844, so much of the Schedule annexed to Act IX. of 1845, so much of Schedules A and B annexed to Act I of 1862, and so much of Sections II., III., and IV., Act XXX. of 1854, as prescribe the rates of duty to be charged on goods imported into or exported from any port in India by sea—are repealed.

II. From and after the passing of this Act all the provisions now in force of the above-mentioned Acts which have reference to the duties of Customs now charged and leviable on goods imported into or exported from any port in India by sea, shall be taken to have reference to the duties of Customs prescribed in the Schedules annexed to this Act; provided that nothing in this Act shall authorise the levy of duties of sea customs at any free port, or be deemed to affect the provisions of Acts VI. and VII. of 1848.

III. Nothing in this Act shall apply to the articles of salt or opium, or to teak timber exported from the Arracan, Pegu, Martaban, and Tenasserim Provinces.

IV. And whereas contracts or agreements may have been made for the sale or delivery of goods on which increased or additional duties are imposed by this Act, and which contracts or agreements may have been made without reference to such increased duties, and thereby the several contractors may be materially affected; it is therefore further enacted that if any person shall, by virtue of any contract entered into before the passing of this Act, be bound to deliver, at any time after the passing of this Act, goods hereby made liable to an increased or additional rate of duty, and shall, upon the importation or exportation of any goods which he may deliver on performance of such contract, pay a rate of duty higher than that which was imposed by law on such goods at the time when the contract was entered into, every such person is hereby authorised and empowered to add to the price of such goods a sum equal to the difference of the duty paid under this Act and the duty which would have been payable under the laws in force when the contract was entered into, and shall have the same remedy for the recovery of such sum as if the same had been part of the price agreed upon.

V. This Act shall take effect on and after the 12th day of March, 1859.

Operation of Act.

LAW AND ORDER IN BENGAL.

We alluded some weeks since to a judgment given by the Sudder Court in the case of the Telineparah zemindars. Two landholders were convicted of abducting a witness, and concealing him for a period of fourteen months. The Sessions Judge recommended a heavy term of imprisonment, but the Sudder Court considering that the offence had been committed to shield delinquent's servant, reduced the sentence to three years' confinement. Since then the full report of this case has appeared, and it illustrates so thoroughly the defects of our system, that we are tempted to give the narrative in full.

The zemindars of Telineparah and the villagers of Nurna, both in Zillah Hooghly, it appears, were at variance. The landlords were anxious to make a settlement, based upon measurements made with a line differing by twenty-five per cent. from the standard measure. The ryots objected, demanded the collector's measurements, and, finally, it would appear, resisted the zemindar's agents. In any other country such a dispute would have been settled in a week. If the ryots had been tenants-at-will they would have submitted to the measurement, or lost their land. If leaseholders, they would have stood by their lease, and left the landlord to his remedy at law. In Bengal, however, the ryots being neither tenants nor proprietors were bound to pay only the customary rate per beegah, and the measurement of that beegah became a matter of vital importance. So, at least, it appeared to the bailiffs of the estate, who resolved to nip the spirit of resistance in the bud. On the night of the 8th of June, the village was entered by armed men, and three houses broken open. In one the invaders plundered the women of their ornaments, broke the caste of one of the female members of the family, and carried off its head, Petumber Bural. On the following day, the son of the man thus outraged petitioned the magistrate, detailing the affair, and the legal proceedings commenced.

The first step in any other country would have been to ascertain the fact of abduction, and then search for the person abducted. Whatever else might have been concealed or misrepresented the disappearance of a householder was a visible fact susceptible of proof. The Gomashas, however, as usual, met the charge by a counterecharge of burglary, and all the petitions were "referred" for the darogah's report. He reported a fortnight afterwards in favour of plaintiff's petition, remarked with melancholy naivete, that the villagers seemed "much cast down," and suggested that ryots and zemindars should alike be bound over to keep the peace. Meanwhile the Gomashas had instituted four suits for imaginary arrears of rent against Petumber Bural and his fellow villagers. Moreover, they affirmed that the whole affair was an invention of the ryots; that they were not only innocent but injured; that they were the victims of a combination; and that no attack had ever been made upon the village. The magistrate, involved in a maze of perjury, at last did—what? Arrest the zemindars? Arrest the principal ryots? Hunt for the abducted man? "He," says the judge, "shelved the case," and took recognizances from both ryots and zemindars. The abduction was left unsettled, and a quiet villager permitted to disappear, though his family and his fellow-villagers alike asserted their belief that he had been murdered. This quiescence continued for fourteen months, during the whole of which period the unfortunate victim, guilty at the utmost of objecting to a false standard of measurement, was detained in prison.

We must, however, follow his footsteps for a few months. After his seizure, the clubmen who held him wished to carry him to one of the Gomashas' houses. Petumber, perhaps from mere temper, perhaps from too clear an acquaintance with the secrets of the house, declared that he would rather be killed upon the spot. "To this," says Petumber, in his narrative, it was replied, "if you are murdered, it is only to a zemindar a matter of a fine of Rs. 2,000 or Rs. 5,000, or two years', or five years' imprisonment. That as for them, when they took zemindarry service, they did so putting one foot in jail and the other in their master's service."

There is the whole history of Bengalee life in a sentence. The clubmen then mildly remarked, that as he "would not go as a gentleman, he must go as he could," and struck him with swords and clubs till he fell down, bleeding and senseless, and was carried to the house of one Bonomalee. Bonomalee was a man of fine sensibilities. He suggested that it was inconvenient to him to have a murdered man's body in his house, and that he should be carried to a neighbour's, "where there were no females," and where, of course, murdered individuals would be acceptable. That little objection to a murder, not for itself, but because it would be disagreeable to the ladies, is a fine trait of native feeling. Had we ventured on such an assertion it would have been denounced as a new instance of European brutality and misrepresentation. By this time Petumber had recovered, but was still unable to sit, upon which one of the Gomashas threatened him with the torture which killed Edward the Second, and finally carried him off to the zemindars.

Arrived there, the head of the house suavely asked if he had had any dinner, and sent him on to a native doctor, who demanded Rs. 7 a month for keeping him, and transferred him to Seebclunder's, where "he was placed in the furthest of the twenty-six rooms, in which there were chandeliers, glass, lamps, &c.," and, in fact, all the appurtenances of European luxury and enlightened Babooism. Finally, Petumber was carried to the zemindar's house, where he was kept one entire year, chiefly in an outhouse, but when the magistrate approached the place for snipe shooting, in a privy, always half-starved and neglected, till he wasted away from wounds, confinement, and want of food. At last one of his fellow-sufferers in the attack on the village, finding, as he says, that the magistrate would do nothing, traced him step by step to Telineparah, stirred up the magistrate, and seized Petumber just as the clubmen were dragging him from his den. The rescued man prosecuted, the Sudder found the zemindars guilty, and sentenced the elder to imprisonment for three years, and a fine of Rs. 3,000.

The sentence is wholly inadequate to the offence; but it is not to comment on the Sudder that we have drawn up a narrative of the case, but as an illustration of that personal security which we are so apt to assert follows our rule. What could Mahrattas have done which was not done to Petumber—which is not done to others every day in every zillah of Bengal? It may be argued that Mahrattas would not be punished; but the whole drift of the evidence is to prove that punishment was in this case a mere matter of chance. Nobody expected it. The Gomashitas avowed that murder was a mere question of rupees, that they lived in habitual expectation of imprisonment for crime. The clubmen cut Petumber down, not from animosity or for love of gain, but simply because it was more convenient to carry a dead body than a living man. The doctor to whose house he was first sent objected, say the witnesses, not to the imprisonment, but to the house-rent offered by the zemindars. The magistrate was blinded by perjuries till he did nothing, and but for the quiet, steady "vindictiveness," or love of justice to a fellow-sufferer, Petumber would have died in prison. Whether he should or should not be regarded by all from first to last, by zemindars, bailiffs, dependants, and clubmen, simply as a matter of chance and convenience. We have no remedy to suggest for such a state of affairs. It is years since we lost hope for the poor of Bengal, but if this be government, what, in the name of Him who will one day demand an account at our hands, is anarchy?—Friend of India.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION.

Some time ago an amusing article appeared in the Friend of India entitled "Yeh Outdone," the object of which was to ridicule the description of questions which candidates for employment under the Madras Government were expected to answer, in order to prove their fitness for the lowest offices. The two first questions quoted by the Friend were the following:—

"1. From whom did England get its name? Explain the word Heptarchy? Of what did the Saxon Heptarchy consist? Under whom, and at what date did the Heptarchy become a single State? Mention the leading circumstances that have made Alfred's reign memorable, giving the date of its commencement and its close?"

"2. State what you know about the Witangemote, the Bretwada, Adrian's Wall, the Titheing, the Danelgold, the Domsday-book, the Curfew, Peter's Pence?"

We have had an opportunity of seeing a list of the questions proposed by the Director of Public Instruction in the Punjab to a candidate for employment under that Presidency, and we think the following one bears a strong family resemblance to the offspring of the Madras examiner:—

"Give a sketch of the history of the Anglo-Saxons from the time of Egbert, A.D. 800, to the time of William the Conqueror, A.D. 1066, military and political, explaining particularly the nature of the Courts of Jurisdiction called Hallmote, Hundredmote or Folkmote, Thinemote, and the Council of the Witangemote."

If a candidate was well up in the history of the period, and at the same time skilful in expressing himself in writing, the required sketch ought to be worthy of publication, but we doubt very much if any person on the spur of the moment, and without books for reference at his elbow, could answer the question with anything like accuracy or fulness; indeed, unless he had known beforehand the nature of the question, and had "mugged up" for the purpose.

Another of the Punjab questions requires the candidate to mention the date of accession of the different Sovereigns of the house of Plantagenet, as if any one carried dates in his head, as Arabs do in a basket. "Give a sketch," next say the examination papers, "of the causes which led to the American Revolution, and its history to the end of the war!" The examiner, in making this request of the unhappy individual before him, must really have supposed him equal to Knickerbocker, who wrote a "History of New York from the Creation of the World up to the Present Time." A history of the Punjab is also required from "The Death of Runjeet Sing to the Annexation of the Province to the British Government," which is rather easier to give than the American history, but still, although one may remember the more prominent events, yet anything like correctness, even in them, cannot be given from memory. Perhaps, however, the examiner does not expect the true version of national affairs, considering the expression "to lie like history," a compliment to historians, which the candidates would do well to deserve also.

The questions in geography are easy enough, but what is the use of a man stuffing his head with knowledge which he himself can never rely upon without appealing to an atlas. "Draw a map of England, showing the situation of the counties, course of the rivers, &c.," demands the examiner, who, that being done, orders his victim to draw a similar map of India. The examiner then wants to be told the boundaries of the Russian territories, with the names of cities, seaports, rivers, and other particulars, which every educated man knows pretty well, though he would not be sure he was right without the map.

The examiner is evidently not strong in arithmetic, seeing that the sums set to the candidates were such as a boy of ten could answer with ease. "What decimal of a rupee is one anna?" is a question not much harder to answer than the one propounded in the following story, told by the London Spectator:—

"In one case we know, a young lad, clever enough, indeed, but very timid and tremulous, was told to attend the next morning at ten to be examined in arithmetic by an old chief clerk, 'a great arithmetician,' like Michael Cassio or De Morgan. Trembling with fear, the young candidate entered next day the gruff presence of the terrible examiner. 'Sit down, sir,' roared out a voice of thunder. Then, after a painful pause—'Now, sir, attention; I shall examine you in arithmetic.' 'Shall I not have pen and paper?' 'No, sir,' thundered out the tyrant voice. 'Attention! how much are two and two?' Paralyzed by the voice and the sudden question, the youth stared, and then gasped out quite seriously, 'Four, sir.' 'Quite right, sir,' roared out the examiner, slapping him on the back; 'you'll do, sir,' and the old humourist walked out of the room. This ended the examination in arithmetic."

Observing that the Punjab examiner has put a question respecting the cause of eclipses, reminds us of another story we picked up somewhere, which we shall relate, and so end this rambling article. A candidate, upon leaving the room in which he had just undergone an examination in astronomy, was asked how he had succeeded, "Oh, capitally!" said he, "they only put two questions, and I answered both correctly. I was first asked if I could calculate an eclipse, and I said, 'no, I couldn't.' They then asked me if I knew what a parallax was, and I replied, 'no, I didn't.'"—Mofussilite, Feb. 15.

MR. ROBERT LEECH, attorney of the supreme Court, Bombay, will shortly retire from his professional pursuits, and proceed home.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LUCKNOW, March 7.—A little before the outbreak at Lucknow a person by the name of Graham, an old pensioned ex-lieutenant of the service of the ex-King of Oude, was, while crossing a street, assailed by a ruffian, who, after firing a shot and missing his object, attacked him sword in hand, and after inflicting sundry cuts and slashes, and one or two deep gashes, left his victim for dead, under the impression, no doubt, that "dead men tell no tales." But what was his surprise, subsequent to the lapse of some months, when peace and order were restored in the city, to find that old Graham had as it were risen from his grave, to have him committed for an attempt at murder. The culprit was accordingly tried on the charge, convicted, and was executed a few days ago. Another villain, under similar circumstances, has been condemned to pay the last penalty of the law for having aided and abetted in the murder of an old man by the name of Frances. His son escaped a like fate by the merest chance, and survived many dangers and difficulties to be instrumental in bringing the scoundrel to justice, which he had hitherto contrived to elude. Loonee Sing, an influential and opulent talookdar, who, under certain culpable circumstances, and for some mercenary considerations, consigned Captain Orr and others to the dreadful fate that subsequently awaited them, has just undergone his trial, and has been sentenced to transportation for life. He is a decrepid old wretch, and during his trial was allowed to lie in a recumbent posture on a carpet, as he was too weak and ill to sit up. A similar sentence has been passed on that clever miscreant Fuzul Huq.—Delhi Gazette.

INDIA GENERAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY. —We have received the last half-yearly report of the India General Steam Navigation Company, and must congratulate the proprietors on their prosperity. A dividend equal to 150 or 160 per cent. per annum has been declared, and there appears to be no prospect of any sudden decrease in these golden returns. The Company, we perceive, have already shipped two flats from England, and there will be two steamers more sent out this month. These enormous profits suggest the starting of a new company, which, no doubt, would pay at least twenty per cent. to the shareholders. It is incredible that such a mine of wealth should have been hitherto so much neglected; surely there is capital and enterprise in Calcutta sufficient for two or three such companies, provided they were once fairly started.—Phanix.

THUNDER-STORM.—The thunder-storms during Wednesday last, and on the night of Friday have, we are given to understand, been attended with the loss of three persons. One died on the first-mentioned day, and two on the latter. The last were killed at Fouzdaare Balakhana, and the corpses were carried to the Medical College Hospital. This year the thunder-storms have set in earlier than usual, and the one on Wednesday could hardly be expected to have occurred in the early part of March. The showers, however, have greatly cooled the temperature of the atmosphere, and have made the weather more pleasant and agreeable. The iron balustrade in the verandah of a house in the Esplanade has been torn down by the electric fluid, and a rajmistry, working on the repairs of the house, was killed on the spot. One of the bamboos used in the scaffolding was quite shattered, though the current did not seem to have touched the pole, merely passing it on its course. On Saturday last, we had a shower, too, accompanied with hail, and the weather seems altogether to have altered since; we may now expect the rapid approach of the hot season.—Phanix, March 3.

THE ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.—The receipts of the Electric Telegraph for the month of January are as follows:—Service messages, Rs. 34,000; other messages, Rs. 30,000; total, 64,000.

THE HON. ROBERT MONTGOMERY received charge of the Government of the Punjab and its dependencies on the 25th February, from the Hon. Sir John Lawrence, Bart., G.C.B.

BARRACKPORE, March 5.—On the night of the 3rd Lady Canning was "at home." The good people of Calcutta are more given to be sociable since her ladyship has come down to set the example; the only failure at drawing people together seems to be in the case of Mr. Farquharson, who has had the mortification to perform again to a beggarly set of empty benches. The Post-office that you abuse so steadily has credit for one virtue at least, and that a grand one, honesty, which should cover a multitude of sins. What do you say to a soldier taking a letter to post, on the outside of which he had ingeniously sewn the postage in the shape of four pice. This I assure you is a fact, and happened on the 2nd March, 1859!—Delhi Gazette.

THE RAJAH OF MUTTOWLEE.—The decision of the court on the trial of Loonee Sing, Rajah of Muttowlee, one of the great barons of Oudh, has been published. He was charged with having been a leader of revolt during the rebellion of 1857-58, his conduct being aggravated by his ill-treatment and treacherous betrayal into the hands of the rebel Durbar of the late Captain Patrick Orr, wife and child; also of the late Miss Madeline Jackson, Sir Mountstuart Jackson, little Sophie Christian, Lieut. G. J. H. Burnes, and Sergeant Major A. Morton, of whom all, excepting Mrs. Orr and child, and Miss Jackson (little Sophie Christian having died), were barbarously murdered at Lucknow, on or about the 16th November, 1858. Loonee Sing has been convicted, on the most conclusive proof of his guilt, and sentenced to transportation beyond seas for the natural term of his life, and to confiscation of the whole of his property.

A BATTLE FOR PRECEDENCE.—After all, it seems by no means quite certain that Allahabad will be the permanent capital of the North Western Provinces, as the supreme Government has directed the Lieut. Governor to suspend all works on public buildings, whether intended for military or civil purposes, and to refrain from taking any other steps towards the construction of the new station, until such time as the Secretary of State for India, to whom the matter has been referred, shall have given his sanction to the removal of the seat of Government from Agra. There can be no doubt that, in every point of view, the geographical position of Agra renders it more peculiarly fit to be the capital of Upper India than Allahabad can lay any claim to. The only argument we ever heard advanced in favour of the latter place is that, being situated on the banks of the Ganges, it can, at certain seasons of the year, maintain water communication with Calcutta. But of what use is that to the Provinces? and why should Allahabad be made the capital because its residents can get up their beer and wine from Calcutta with greater facility and less cost than we can? If Lord Ellenborough is consulted by Lord Stanley (as seems probable, from the nomination of his protégé, Colonel Durand, to the Indian Council), there can be no doubt his lordship will strenuously advocate the superiority of Agra, seeing that it was he who originally selected that city for the seat of government.—Englishman.

ENGINEERS' RETIRING FUND.—At a meeting of engineers at Lahore, February 28, 1859, Resolved, That the present schedule of quotas in the Retiring Fund is on an unsatisfactory basis. Proposed, That the bonus be raised by a fixed percentage on the aggregate pay and allowances received by the members of the corps for the six months previous to the date on which the bonus due six months later is adjudged. 2nd, That the percentage be now fixed once for all at the rate which would produce Company's Rs. 80,000 for senior lieut. col., which it is calculated would be about two-thirds of a month's pay for each step. 3rd, That on the dates of adjudging the bonus, each officer be required to send in an account of his receipts for the previous six months, either direct, or through the head of his department, if an engineer officer. (Signed) E. Ommanney, C. W. Hutchinson, J. H. Dyas, Ralph Young, James Crofton, H. W. Gulliver, and J. G. Medley.

THE CORPS OF DELHI PIONEERS, now at Lucknow, will be broken up from the 31st March.

THE INDUS ROUTE.—The following information regarding the Bombay, Indus, and Punjab route, may be acceptable to many of your (Delhi Gazette) readers, both proceeding to, and returning from, England. The upward route, as occupying most time, and requiring most preparation, shall be treated of. On arriving at Bombay, passengers should immediately inquire for the Kurrachee steamer, which leaves twenty-four hours after the arrival of the English mail. They should provide themselves with bedding, and candles; a goat for milk in case of children, and a servant. The voyage from Bombay to Kurrachee occupies from three to four days. There are an hotel, and an excellent "traveller's bungalow" at the latter place; and numerous carriages for hire, of a superior description to those usually found in India. Kurrachee is a wonderfully barren, dusty place; rain falls there for about twenty-four hours in the twelve months, and the atmosphere is proportionably dry and parching. The dates of departure of the river steamers either from Kurrachee or from Mooltan are in the highest degree uncertain; there is a government agent at each place, who affords all the information in his power. The voyage to Mooltan, for a steamer and flat, provided they do not get a-ground, occupies twenty or twenty-two days, the downward voyage about half that time; the distance to the Kookiwaree mouth of the Indus is about 100 miles, but it is usual, the first night, to proceed only as far as the entrance of the harbour, called Munora point. At certain seasons the steamers do not descend below Kotree, opposite Hyderabad, and the head quarters of the Indus flotilla; in which case the journey from Kurrachee to that place, or vice versa, from Kotree to Kurrachee, must be performed by land. All passengers must provide their own bedding, beer, and wine; candles for the cabin, and milch-goats for children. The rules concerning luggage and servants are very liberal. The first-class charges for the whole distance are Rs. 200 for a cabin, Rs. 150 for a saloon berth, and Rs. 100 for a deck passage, and Rs. 4 per diem for the table. The steamers usually start about sunrise, and make fast about sundown. Good shooting is to be obtained on either bank. The scenery is flat and tame, save at Sukkur, with its island fort of Bukkur, and sister town Roree on the opposite bank, famous for its Suttea, or tomb of seven virgins, an idea most probably taken from the Pleiades. The channels of the Indus seem intricate and uncertain, and the frequent groundings cause vexatious delays. The steamers, the new ones especially, are too big for the work, the Laurence and Frere, &c., are failures, and, by some mistake in their construction, draw one foot more water than was designed. From Mooltan to Lahore travellers must proceed over one of the worst roads in India, in palankeens or dhoolys tied on trucks (called bandh-garees) and drawn by a pair of horses, or carried by bearers; who must be procured from Lahore. Gentlemen not apprehensive of dislocation can travel by the mail-cart. The distance is a little over 200 miles. The staging bungalows are 40 miles apart, and there are fortified Serases at shorter intervals, each provided with a good corner-room for European travellers, an admirable provision of the Punjab Government, and well worthy of imitation throughout India.

SEPREE, March 13.—We have had plenty of troops passing through here within the last few days. The 61st came in yesterday morning, en route for home, we believe. They halt to-day, and proceed onwards to-morrow morning. This is only the third halt they have had since they left Delhi. The light company of the 78th arrived in Keranchies yesterday afternoon, and after a few hours' halt started in the evening southward also. No. 3 and 4 companies of the 3rd Bombays, under Captain Ryder, along with two squadrons of the 14th dragoons, and some of Meade's horse, with about 300 N.I., went out about a fortnight ago, to look after Maun Sing, the late rebel chief of Sepree. They were upwards of 100 miles south, in the jungle. They did not come across anything in the shape of rebels. The two companies of the 3rd Bombays returned into the station, on their road to Jhansi, to join head-quarters. A tent's crew of the 14th came in here, a day or two ago, with a few elephants, from Napier's column, en route to Gwalior with their charge. We have here now left about seventy men of the royal artillery, under Captain Field; and a detachment of 100 men of the 3rd Bengal Europeans, under command of Captain Ryder, who do the duty of the mud fort, or entrenched camp, situated on a height to the right of the Bombay road. They relieved a detachment of the 95th.

THE PAGODA TREE.—The Mafussilite thus notices the income, past and prospective, of Mr. Peacock, the new chief justice of Calcutta:—"This gentleman became law member of the Supreme Council in April, 1852, on a salary of Rs. 8,360 per mensem, so that he has drawn from the country since that period seven lakhs. The pay of chief justice is Rs. 9,450-6 a month, so that if he fills that situation for five years he will draw upwards of four lakhs more, and then be entitled to a retiring pension of £1,500 per annum for the remainder of his life."

COL. G. LAWRENCE, Governor-General's Agent for the Rajpootana States, is obliged to leave India, owing to the state of his health. His place is to be filled, temporarily, by Major Eden, Political Agent at Jeypore. The valuable services rendered by Major Eden during the late crisis in public affairs are not likely to be forgotten, in the event of a permanent vacancy occurring in the department to which he belongs.

A POLITE LETTER-WRITER.—The following is a verbatim translation of a letter to the ex-Nawab of Furruckabad:—"Nawab Sahib gracious to your sincere friends, Nawab Tufuzool Hosain Khan Sahib, may God preserve him. Next to the longing for an interview let it be apparent to your exalted understanding that your English letter addressed to Moonshee Deebe Pershad has passed under the Huzoor's observation. The proclamation of her Majesty the Queen, whose kingdom may God perpetuate, must have passed before your sublime observation. If you (áp) have not been personally concerned in the homicide of the English people please present yourself with your connections without hesitation: the Government has forgiven the offence of all, except those who have been personally concerned in the crime of killing English people. You should confer the honour of a visit in conjunction with Moonshee Fuzul Ullee—finis. Written 6th January, 1859, on the part of Major Barrow Sahib Buhadur, Special Commissioner in the Oude territory. (Here follows English signature.) (P. S.)—And please not to deign (furmáie) any notice of the expiry of the term, for whereas the proclamation had not as yet passed under your observation, when it came to your notice you deigned to comply with it (ta'meel Furmaée)—finis. It may, therefore, be said that the proclamation has been complied with on your part.—Finis. (Not signed.)

BAREILLY, March 13.—Not much news. Khan Bahadoor reported in Ryreeghur jungles again, and trouble anticipated during the hot weather. Col. Smyth sent express yesterday. Gen. Walpole gone to Bijnore to inspect levies, and is ordered to make especial reports on efficiency, &c. The Rohilkund horse was inspected by Gen. Walpole on Friday; their quickness and steadiness was much admired. This regiment does their commanding officer, Capt. Crossman, infinite credit; the dress appointments and general appearance are quite first-rate, and they are certainly better drilled and mounted than any of the old irregular regiments. The chaplain has been ordered to go to Moradabad once every month. The 93rd highlanders passed through en route to Subathoo. It is a fine regiment. Brig. Troup has left for Mooltan, but we hear that his destination is Allahabad.

No. 1 LIGHT FIELD BATTERY is to be re-organized and completed. The 2nd company 4th battalion artillery is to be attached to the 1st light field battery, which will be stationed at Meerut.

CAMP NOWGONG, March 14.—Nowgong is again being made into a station. One year and fourteen months ago the sepoys here mutinied, drove their officers away, burnt the station, knocked down the tombstones, and in twenty-four hours left the place a heap of ruins. The Government buildings luckily escaped, which are now being converted into barracks for 300 H.M.'s 97th, who arrived here a few days ago, and who, together with Cadell's Battery 4th M.L.C., 300 19th M.N.I. and a company of Madras sappers and miners, will garrison the place. The sappers and miners are capital little fellows; they work away at the barracks in first-rate style, each man doing in six hours what would take a coolie six days to do. The other troop here are looking out anxiously for their orders to move. The two guns go to Banda; the rawah contingent, made into the nagode military police, goes to Myheer, and the 1st M.N.I. to Saugor. We hear nothing of the rebels now, which I fancy is partly attributable to our having no magistrate with us.

THE AFFAIR AT RAWUL PINDEE.—A letter bearing the seal of one of the native officers of the 18th I. C., and the name of another to the address of the Subadar Major of the 58th N. I., was put in the post office, and reached its address. It was however evidently intended to catch the eye of the Post-office people, with a view to its reaching the authorities, and not the addressee, as the names of the sender were conspicuously written outside the envelope. The forgery was immediately detected, though the motive was not at first so easily discovered. The 18th I. C. was paraded, and it was fully explained to the men, that the forgery being glaring the matter was treated by the authorities with the contempt it deserved, and therefore that the malicious object of the writer was little likely to be gained, but at the same time it was desirable that the scoundrel should be discovered, and that the native officers had in a body offered Rs. 1,000 for his conviction. Shortly after parade a sowar, who had been frequently employed as post-office orderly, and as a writer under the Woodee major, shot himself, and among his papers was found the impression of a seal, the facsimile of that used on the letter sent to the subadar major of the 58th N. I. The object was subsequently discovered, for there were a number of forged cheques in the Woodee major's name which had been issued by the deceased sowar. The object was to get the native officers into trouble, and thus render the detection of the forgeries unlikely; but seeing that he had failed, and that his letter was treated with contempt, while he had committed himself by the use of the forged seal, the writer at once destroyed himself. No offer of the assistance of the 2nd I. C. was made in the letter, nor were the 2nd I. C. alluded to; nor were there any letters written to various people with a view to getting their regiments to rise, found among the papers, as you (Delhi Gazette) were informed.

THE OPIUM DISTRICTS.—We have letters from several of the opium districts, all of which state that the damage to the crops from the late bad weather has been most serious; in some places it has been estimated at from 25 to 50 per cent. Under the most favourable circumstances, the out-turn cannot be estimated at more than about 6,000 chests of Benares, and 23,000 to 25,000 of Patna.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE BANK.—The smallest of our joint-stockeries appears to be the most steadily prosperous. We have noticed from year to year the progress of the Uncovenanted Service Bank, and have now before us the managers' report to the 31st of last December. This institution commenced business in 1846, with a paid-up capital of Company's Rs. 6,537. It has now Company's Rs. 8,05,000, which is just sixteen times the original amount, besides paying dividends of twelve and sometimes fourteen per cent. and accumulating a reserve fund of Company's Rs. 13,502. The managers propose moving their establishment to Allahabad, the new capital of the North-Western Provinces. Let us hope that it will do as well there as it has done at Agra.

TANTIA TOPEE, according to the latest intelligence from the north-west, is lurking in the ravines of the Chumbul. The Mofussilite suspects that he has retired into private life, in the "bosom of his family, deep in a forest dell, or over the hills and far away, where no thoroughfare exists."

OPIUM PROFITS.—It is stated that from the proceeds of the opium sale at Calcutta, during the year 1858, the Government has realised a net profit of upwards of 867 lacs of rupees.

LIQUIDIOUS DISTINCTION.—It appears that some of the loyal talookdars in Oude will be allowed to retain arms. District officers have recommended such exemption to the commissioner, besides ordnance pieces of less than 4-pounder calibre for salutes.

BRIGADIER HORSFORD'S COLUMN.—A letter from Oude, trans-Gogra, to the New Times, under date March 9, mentions that Brigadier Horsford was at Toolseepoor, or rather in the hills above. The force on the banks of the Raptée broke up a week ago. Gordon's Sikhs and Hodson's horse had passed from Bhinja to Toolseepoor with the brigadier, leaving the Kumaon battalion near Bhinja. The 5th Punjabees were at Baraitch with the 1st battalion rifle brigade and Moir's troop H. A.

THE BEGUM.—The Delhi Gazette has learnt that the Begum Huzrut Mahal contrived to have an interview with a Ghoorka sirdar with the view of making terms. The rebels, however, declined the offered terms, and preferred retaining their arms to giving them up. Six regiments of Ghoorkas are pressing on them, but fighting does not as yet appear to form any portion of the Ghoorka leaders' scheme.

THE INDIAN MINTS.—The value of the silver coined at the Calcutta mint in January, 1859, was Rs. 23,88,987; at Madras, Rs. 6,50,000; and at Bombay, Rs. 1,98,000.

THE OUDE FUGITIVES.—The Delhi Gazette has heard native reports from Azimghur, to the effect that the rebels have left Nepal, and are making for the rich and fertile districts of Tirhoot and Chumparun. They even go so far as to say that our arms have met with a reverse somewhere in those regions. Another account states that the rebels who were in Nepal, opposite Chumparun, have re-crossed the Gunduk at Tribanee, and when last heard of, were sixteen miles on the road to Bootwal (Betaul in the maps) in Nepal, nearly due north of Goruckpore. They are said to be 40,000 strong, camp followers of every description included. On the rebels moving westward, a portion of Kelly's force, under Colonel Simpson, was sent across the Gunduk to Nichloul, in the north of Goruckpore, while the rest of the force changed ground to Bugaha (Boggah in the maps), on the left bank of the Gunduk, south-west of Ramnugur. It is said that Jung Bahadur never attacked the rebels, having with his troops remained at Etounda, south-west of Katmandoo, negotiating.

DELHI CUSTOMS.—The amount of customs realised in the Delhi district during February, 1859, shows an increase of Rs. 72,702 on the same month in the previous year.

SHEIK EMAMOODEEN, a very wealthy noble, once Governor of Cashmere, and subsequently of the Jullundur Doab, died at Lahore on the 8th of March.

THE SHORAPORE RANEES.—According to a Calcutta journal Government has approved of the allowance of Co.'s Rs. 26,800 annually to the Ranees of Shorapore.

CHOTA NAGPORE.—The Hurkaru has been informed that matters are getting quiet in the vicinity of Chybassah, in Chota Nagpore. The wife of the Bur-Cowar, the brother of the refractory Rajah of Porahat, and a few other women of rank, have been arrested. Cowar Brojonauth Sing (the ex-Rajah's brother) has offered to surrender himself to the commissioner of Chota Nagpore, who has sent to bring him down to his camp at Chuckerdepore, about eighteen miles from Chybassah. The commissioner has also sent the loyal Rajah of Mourbhunge (the father-in-law of the ex-Rajah of Porahat) to bring his son-in-law, who is still hiding himself in the jungles.

PROGRESS OF DISARMAMENT.—It is interesting to trace the progress made in demofishing forts, and disarming the population in the various districts of Oude. In the week ending 12th Feb., 72 forts were destroyed, and 258 under demolition, making a total up to that time of 756 levelled with the ground. At Lucknow the work had been entirely completed, and 68 of the 72 forts were destroyed in Fyzabad. In the same week 22 cannons (of which 17 were in Baraitch) 5,103 fire-arms, 16,142 swords, and 2,470 spears were taken, making with those of previous weeks a grand total of 6,11,090 arms surrendered up to that date. In the same week the number of sepoys (mutineers and leave men) who surrendered in all Oude was 216, making with former returns a total of 5,905. We have the other side of the picture in the return of collections, amounting to Rs. 1,15,903-7-2, or with previous totals, Rs. 47,87,811-7-9. Such is the result of a vigorous civil administration, in a non-regulation province. In Allahabad the disarming has not been so thorough. Thirty thousand stand of arms are expected from a population of seventy thousand. Friend of India, March 10.

BANDA.—The magistrate of Banda has reported that a part of his district is now infested by the rebels under Furzund Ali, and has applied that the Banda police, now at Jolum, may be again placed at his disposal.

COLONEL RAMSAY. We learn from the Mofussilite, that Lieutenant colonel Ramsay arrived at Khatmandoo on the 21st February, and assumed charge of his functions as Resident at the Court of Nepal. It is to be hoped that the ill-feeling which Sir Jung Bahadur entertains towards the gallant colonel may not induce that chief to be lukewarm in our cause, and prevent him from taking active steps towards capturing the Nana and Begum, or driving them out of the kingdom.

MR. G. O. WRAY has been appointed to succeed Mr. King as a judge of the Small Cause Court.

EDUCATIONAL RUMOURS.—It is rumoured that the Sanskrit College will shortly be abolished, and that a separate class will be opened in the Presidency College for the study of the language by the under graduates. This will be a wise movement on the part of Government, and we (Hurkaru) hope that it will be followed by the closing of the Calcutta Madrassa, and the establishing of an Arabic class in connection with the Presidency College.

COL. MAXWELL, of engineers, at present at Gwalior, is likely to succeed Colonel Houghton as superintending engineer, second circle, Punjab.

CAPTAIN H. A. PRINSEP, of the 3rd European Regiment, has been appointed Private Secretary and A. D. C. to the Honourable the Lieutenant Governor, North-Western Provinces.

DACOITY AND ROBBERY.—A most daring dacoity and robbery were perpetrated last Sunday night at Cautpady, the Vellore railway station, distant about four miles from the cantonment, by a gang of about 150 persons. They attacked the house of Mr. Paton, and carried off, it is said, about Rs. 50,000. One hundred of the rascals, supplied well with stones, formed themselves into a ring, whilst the remainder were sent in to seize the treasure. A peon, who made some resistance, was wounded, but so well were their plans laid, that the whole of the money was carried off in a few minutes. The collector, Mr. Sullivan, has gone out to investigate the business. This is the second robbery that has been successfully accomplished near Vellore at the expense of the railway, but the booty on the first occasion was only Rs. 3,000, when Mr. Webster was attacked and nearly killed. The large amount of treasure now lost only arrived at Cautpady on Friday night or Saturday morning, and this leads to the suspicion that some persons at Madras must have given notice of its intended despatch, for otherwise 150 ill-disposed men could hardly have been collected so soon together. Their information, too, must have been good, for the fusiliers had only just left, and a wing of the 48th N.I. did not arrive at Vellore until Monday morning. Should any more information transpire regarding this audacious robbery, our readers may depend upon its being duly placed before them.—Spectator, March 11th.

MADRAS CIVIL ORPHAN ASYLUMS.—There are at present 120 European and East-Indian children in these asylums, where they are clothed, fed, and educated. Orphans from all parts of the Presidency not eligible for admission into the military orphan asylums are admissible into these institutions. Funds are urgently required to meet existing wants, as well as to enable the directors to increase the number of children, there being sufficient accommodation for at least 200 orphans, and also to introduce various improvements with a view to render the institutions as useful and efficient as possible in every point of view.

THE DECCAN.—We regret to learn from a letter from Hyderabad, dated March 16, that Col. Davidson, the resident at the court of his Highness the Nizam, and his Highness's minister, had been fired at by a fanatic Decannee Mussulman, but fortunately they escaped injury. At the time of the occurrence Col. Davidson was walking hand in hand with Salar Jung, the Nizam's minister, after having left the Durbar, where he had presented a khurreeta to the Nizam from the Governor General. Having missed them with the pistol, the miscreant drew his sword upon them, but he was instantly cut down and killed by some of the attendants. The attack was made whilst Salar Jung was leading the resident to his elephant, which was in a court-yard at the entrance to the palace where the durbar was held. The name of the assassin was Jehangeer Ali. We also learn from the same letter that on the night of the 12th the Arabs of the city of Hyderabad had assembled in a body, in a most excited and tumultuous manner, at the house of Abdool bin Ali, their principal jemadar, in consequence of their having heard that British troops had arrived at the residency for the purpose of attacking them; and it is said that the jemadar went so far as to throw out pickets all round the Arab quarter. It appears that Feroze Jung, the son of Ulle Oolla Khan, told them that our troops had arrived at the residency, and that they had already entered the Minister's Barrah Durree, which is within the city walls, close by one of the principal gates. Ulle Oollah Khan is said to be a good man otherwise, but he and his two sons are disaffected towards the English, and should therefore be removed from Hyderabad to a distance, where they could do no mischief. The prevailing excitement amongst the Arabs had greatly abated after they ascertained that the report of our troops having entered the city was false.—Poona Observer.

THE SHANARS.—The Shanars who contend for the decent clothing do not rank equally with the Chogars and Thiers. The latter purchase by an immense sum the epithet of Shanars, to whom they are what the Nairs are to the Brahmans. Their person and goods cannot be neared and handled by the Chogars and Thiers without contracting a ceremonial pollution. On the other hand, the Nairs do not form the "higher class," nor are the Shanars any way inferior, if not superior, to them. The privileges of the wedding ceremonies to which the Shanars are entitled, exceed by far those of the Nairs, and the obsequies performed by these contending parties draw a broad line of distinction between them, sufficiently countenancing the superiority of the Shanars to these boasting Sudras. These points of distinction on ceremonial privileges are too familiar to need any detail. Again, the Shanars are the officiating priests of the Nairs. They purify their houses. A Sudra woman, after delivery, or after becoming marriageable, is unfit for public appearance unless clad with a garment cleansed by the washerman of the Shanars. Where is the superiority of the Sudra then? A Sudra infant, the very moment it is born from the mother's womb, cries for jagery (the first food of all Hindoos), which is boiled in the Shanar's pot, and only in his: where is the boasting then? Any Sudra woman, touched by a Pulaya in the months of January, February, and March, is reckoned an out-caste, or a pulayee, and unfit to enter into her parents' or husband's house, and becomes the undisputed property of the toucher. At this crisis, if the unhappy woman be touched by a Shanar, she is immediately absolved, and considered pure and free. Is the Shanar then inferior to the Sudra? Let the Sirkar honestly produce all the documents containing the privileges of the Shanars, and the first glance will at once settle the matter, and the golden coin, evidently called "The Shanar's Cash," will complete the Shanar's exalted state. Finally, let an equal number of Sudras and Shanars be brought to a literary examination, and a due estimate made of their respective standing in the scale of being.—Correspondent to the Cochin Courier.

RAJAH OF VIZIANAGRAM.—A very handsome ring has been sent to Mr. Reade by Lord Harris, for presentation to the Rajah of Vizianagram, in commemoration of his lordship's visit to these parts in April last. The design is said to be elegant and suitable, and the Rajah, no doubt, will preserve the ring as a treasured heirloom.

THE ROHILLAS AND ARABS have plundered Chowrassee, a town at the distance of two days' journey from Hyderabad. A force has been sent from Jaulnah in pursuit of them.

SECOND THOUGHTS.—Mr. W. E. Jellicoe, who resigned the Civil Service, in order to devote himself to Missionary labours, has been appointed an Uncovenanted Deputy Collector and Magistrate of the first class.

BOMBAY.

MEMORIAL FOR THE SUSPENSION OF THE NEW TARIFF.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY IN COUNCIL.

The respectful Memorial of the undersigned, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of the Mercantile Community of Bombay, in general meeting assembled,

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH,—That at a meeting of the mercantile community of Bombay, held in the Town Hall on Tuesday, the 15th instant, your memorialist was requested to express to your lordship in council the deep feeling of concern with which the sudden and immediate levy of greatly enhanced duties on imports and exports, especially the former, under telegraphic instructions from Calcutta, is regarded by the commercial public. The right of the Government of India to increase such duties is not denied, but it is maintained that those whose interests are affected by such increase have in common justice a right to such previous notice of the measure contemplated as may enable them to avoid the serious hardship and loss which the sudden demand for double, triple, or quadruple duties on goods bought, shipped, sold, and even landed on the faith of a long-established tariff, must occasion.

Your memorialist need not enter on a detailed description of the various ways in which the immediate enforcement of the instructions received from the Government of India will unjustly, as your memorialist and those whom he represents believe, entail hardship and loss on members of the mercantile community, and which he and they feel assured must be as obvious to your lordship in council as to them. It will suffice to allude to the case of the many who, having sold consignment of goods now actually in the harbour, or on their way to this port, taking the then existing tariff as an element in their calculations, find themselves deprived of their fair profits, and probably subjected to a heavy loss. Under these circumstances, your memorialist, on behalf of the mercantile community of Bombay, respectfully prays that your lordship in council will suspend the enforcement of the enhanced tariff within this Presidency for such length of time as may enable shippers and merchants to avoid its otherwise unjust and injurious operation; or should this not be within your lordship's competence, then pending the result of a reference to the Government of India at Calcutta.

And your memorialist will ever pray, &c.

(Signed) R. RYMER.

Bombay Chamber of Commerce,
Bombay, 15th March, 1859.

THE GOVERNOR'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—Although I am at all times most anxious to attend to the representations of the mercantile community in matters affecting their interests, I regret that upon the present occasion it is not within the competence of this Government to accede to either of the requests contained in the Memorial which has been addressed to me by the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce.

The immediate levy of the new duties has been expressly ordered by the Government of India, and even if their orders had left me any discretion upon this point, it is obvious that the suspension of the new tariff in one presidency, while it is enforced in the others, would furnish more reasonable grounds of complaint than its sudden application to the whole of India.

It is, therefore, impossible to suspend the levy of the new rates pending a reference to Calcutta, but I have so far anticipated the wishes of the mercantile community, as to address the Government of India by telegraph, recommending that goods shipped previous to the receipt of the notification at the place of shipment shall be subject to the old rates of duty.

The following memorial has been addressed to the local government by the consuls of Bombay on the subject of the late notification :—

Bombay, 18th March, 1859.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE GOVERNOR IN COUNCIL, BOMBAY.

MY LORD,—We, the undersigned consuls, consular agents, and vice-consuls, duly accredited by the various powers we represent, to the Government of her Majesty established in this Presidency, beg respectfully to memorialize your lordship in council upon the subject of the late notification, announcing so sudden and important changes in the rates of import and export duties to be henceforth levied in this port.

We beg respectfully to represent that from the extensive nature of these changes, and the greatly-enhanced rates of duty to be levied, it is impossible to foretell at present to what extent the foreign trade of the presidency will be affected thereby, but we have ascertained that their operation will be most disastrous to the subjects of many of the States we represent, if they are at once carried out in their integrity.

We are satisfied that your lordship in council will regard the fact as presenting sufficient apology for our respectful prayer, that your lordship will be pleased to recommend that the notification may be suspended, with a view to save the interests, so deeply compromised thereby; and—we have the honour to be, your lordship's most obedient servants.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE LORD STANLEY, HER MAJESTY'S PRINCIPAL SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

The respectful Memorial of the undersigned Mercantile Inhabitants of Bombay

SHOWETH,—That on the 14th of March instant, the mercantile community of Bombay were taken by surprise by the publication of a Government Gazette Extraordinary, notifying that in accordance with instructions received from the Supreme Government of India, a new scale of customs duties largely increased would come into immediate operation—in effect, be enforced on the very day of the issue of the notification.

Your lordship will of course have been furnished direct from the seat of Government with a copy of the bill, embodying these alterations, which has passed the Supreme Council and become law.

Your lordship will have observed that the duties upon British manufactures are so largely increased, that in some instances, as in the case of piece goods, they are doubled, in others quadrupled.

The effect of this unlooked for and peremptory change is utterly to damage all transactions entered upon under the tariff now abolished. A very large proportion of the piece goods now in transitu from England is sold to arrive, deliverable, that is, duty and all expenses paid, to the purchaser, at a price fixed at the time of contract.

In order to provide against the obvious injustice of the importer being called upon to pay the extra duty now claimed, the Governor General has introduced a clause in the new act, providing that the purchaser shall pay the extra duty :—

And whereas contracts or agreements may have been made for the sale or delivery of goods, on which increased or additional duties are imposed by this Act, and which contracts or agreements may have been made without reference to such increased duties, and thereby the several contractors may be materially affected; it is therefore further enacted that if any person shall by virtue of any contract entered into before the passing of this Act, be bound to deliver, at any time after the passing of this Act, goods hereby made liable to an increased or additional rate of duty, and shall upon the importation or exportation of any goods which he may deliver on performance of such contract, pay a rate of duty higher than that which was imposed by law on such goods at the time when the contract was entered into, every such person is hereby authorized and empowered to add to the price of such goods, a sum equal to the difference of the duty paid under this Act, and the duty which would have been payable under the laws in force when the contract was entered into, and shall have the same remedy for the recovery of such sum as if the same had been part of the price agreed upon.

Your memorialists are not aware whether this arbitrary provision can be enforced by action in the supreme court, but they respectfully submit that retrospective legislation of this nature is opposed to the constitution of the laws of England.

By removing the onus of the new levy, moreover, from the importing merchant, and placing it upon the purchaser of the goods, an equally flagrant injustice would be committed. The trade in piece goods is carried on by the native dealers on the narrowest margin of profits, passing through innumerable hands until the supplies reach the consumer. To follow the exact duty through all the subdivisions of resale would be impossible, and hence we believe that the impost would practically fall upon those who had to pay it to the Customs, viz. the importers.

In the case of goods not yet arrived, the importer must necessarily be burdened with the additional cost represented by the new duty, and which could not be contemplated at the time of entering upon his purchases.

Your memorialist would further urge the extreme impolicy of placing further imposts upon the trade in British manufactures. The existing high prices of cotton, which are too likely to be maintained, have already caused a considerable enhancement in the price of cotton goods to the native consumers, the great bulk of whom consist of the indigent labouring classes, already taxed so heavily. The proposed extra duty must of course eventually fall upon them, and a check upon the progress of a trade so invaluable to England, so important likewise for her shipping interests, must, we think, eventually ensue. At present, with the addition of the extra 5 per cent. duty, cotton piece goods cannot be sold at a profit; and the profits upon this trade, upon an average of years, are so extremely small, that of all others it is least capable of sustaining the weight of further taxation.

Your memorialists would venture to call to your lordship's recollection, that a large proportion of the piece goods imported into India have been manufactured out of Indian-grown cotton. Already competition in this great field of industry has commenced in India, and factories for the manufacture both of goods and yarns have been constructed, and are in course of construction. England has to oppose superior skill and continuous improvements of machinery to the cheap labour and cheap cotton grown on the spot in India. The result has yet to be seen; but, with the heavy burden of 10 per cent. duty imposed upon her productions, it is not difficult to foretell what the result must be.

Your memorialists, well acquainted with this particular branch of trade, would also venture here to reiterate that its average profits are extremely small. A contrary impression appears to prevail with the Supreme Government, owing to the fact that in the early part of the present year, very remunerative prices were realised, and a large extension of import has taken place. In the year 1854-55, however, very ruinous losses were experienced in the Indian markets, owing to the heavy excess of imports; and it is principally to the reaction, consequent upon subsequent diminished supplies, that we owe the extension of trade in the present year.

Your memorialists beg to refer your lordship to the following paragraph from the address of his lordship the Governor General to the Legislative Council in introducing this bill :—

An exception had been made in favour of cotton yarn. That was only a half-manufactured article, but it was an article which tended to the promotion of native industry; the trade in it had not yet taken so full a hold as the fully manufactured article to which he had just adverted, and he thought that the Government would act wisely in fixing the duty upon it at no higher figure than 5 per cent.

These remarks appear to have been made under a misapprehension of the facts. The imports of yarn must diminish, as English manufactured goods enter more extensively into native consumption. Moreover, the manufacture of yarns upon the spot is progressing fast, and English spun yarns, subject to an import duty of 5 per cent., will be unable to compete with them.

With respect to the largely-increased duties on groceries, oilman's stores, provisions, hams, cheeses, apparel, &c., your memorialists will contend themselves with remarking, that owing to the great influx of European troops consequent upon the mutiny in India, the prices of supplies of all description, labour, &c., have been so enormously enhanced that English residents generally are now placed under a scale of expenditure quite disproportionate to their means. It is proposed to press upon them still more heavily. Your memorialists would venture to hope that the impolicy and injustice of such a step will be apparent to your lordship.

In conclusion, your memorialists would venture respectfully to express a hope that the commercial policy of her Majesty's Government in India will not be inaugurated by a departure from those principles of free trade which are now recognised in England as the basis of commercial prosperity. They would respectfully urge upon your lordship that if left to its free development, aided by those improvements in internal communication, which are contemplated by the Government, over which your lordship presides, a great extension to the import trade of India may confidently be anticipated. With no less confidence do your memorialists look forward to a vast development of the capabilities of India in the growth of produce of every description.

Upon the wealth resulting from commerce and industry, left as far as possible unburdened, your memorialists would suggest that a system of direct taxation should be carried out. They would strongly urge upon the notice of your lordship (although somewhat foreign to the purport of this memorial) that under the present system of taxation in India, the imposts bear heavily upon the producing classes, and let the rich man go free. Upon the extensive classes of wealthy natives engaged in mercantile pursuits who have acquired their possessions, and are protected in the enjoyment of them under British supremacy, taxation scarcely falls. We would advocate taxes which would fall with equal weight upon the moneyed classes of European and natives.

As a mercantile body, liable to be primarily affected by such an impost, your memorialists do not hesitate to recommend the imposition of a revised Stamp Act, extended in its application to bills of exchange and cheques. A succession tax also suggests itself to your memorialists as desirable and easy of collection.

Influenced by the above considerations, your memorialists respectfully pray that your lordship will be pleased to issue instructions to the Supreme Government of India to annul the new Customs Act, which is the subject of this memorial, and to order the refund of all additional duties which may have been collected under its authority in the interim.

CURRENTS IN THE ARABIAN SEA.—The steamer Duarka, now a total wreck on the Kattiwar coast, is the fourth that has been lost in the same neighbourhood, at nearly the same season, within the past twenty years. In February, 1839, the Hon. Company's steamer Semiramis ran ashore in a fog near Dwarka, broke her back, and was rendered unserviceable. In November, 1851, the Bombay Steam Navigation Company's steamer Surat, on her way to Kurrachee, was last seen off Dwarka, and never heard of more. On the 1st March, 1854, the steamer Bombay, belonging to the same Company, ran ashore in the same neighbourhood, but, though severely damaged, was eventually got off. Now we have the Duarka a total wreck. The key to this curious series of disasters seems to be given in the history of the voyage of the bottle-log thrown from on board the Honourable Company's steamer Semiramis on the 11th May, 1853, in lat. 23-48 N., long. 65-50 E., and picked up on the 23rd of the same month in lat. 23-50 N., long. 69-38 E. This bottle had in eleven days travelled two miles north, and two hundred miles east, showing a current towards the shore of twenty miles a day. Supremely important as the matter appears to be, it secured no further inquiry. Steamers have, since 1855, been passing weekly from Bombay to Kurrachee, or vice versa. Not one of them, we believe, has ever taken the trouble to throw a bottle overboard daily, that the experiences of a dozen of these not very rare or costly utensils every voyage might have cleared up a most important point in hydrography, and saved a ship. Some seven years since Lieutenant Maury offered to have a wind and current chart of the Arabian Sea constructed at the expense of the United States, if he received a moderate amount of co-operation here. The shipping interests of those days handed the matter over to Government—it saved trouble; and so we still await our maps.—Bombay Gazette.

MR. T. L. JENKINS, master in equity, has obtained leave to proceed home by the present mail. During his temporary absence his duties will be conducted by Mr. G. Taylor and Mr. E. Yardley, barristers-at-law, the former acting as master in equity, registrar and taxing master, and the latter as examiner in insolvency.

A PRESENT TO THE GOVERNOR.—Major General Roberts has presented to Lord Elphinstone a brass gun, being one of those captured at Kotah. It is being fitted up with a carved black wood carriage-limber at the gun-carriage manufactory, Colaba.

NEW ATTORNEYS.—Mr. J. C. Mullaly, attitled clerk to Messrs. Arthur and Sangster, attorneys, has been examined and found qualified for admission to practise as an attorney and solicitor in the supreme court. The examination was conducted by Mr. Jenkins, master in equity; Mr. Pollock, clerk of the Crown; and Mr. Compton, prothonotary. He was sworn in on the 14th March in the supreme court. Mr. Cumroodeen Tyebjee, son of the Borah merchant, Tyebjee Bhoymeeah, was sworn in on the 15th March as an attorney, solicitor, and proctor, of the supreme court of judicature at Bombay.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We have to announce the melancholy fact that Captain Duncan Stephenson, of the 14th By. N.I., serving in Malwa, was killed by the accidental discharge of his revolver on the morning of the 20th Feb. He was in the act of removing one of the screws belonging to the pistol, which was out of order, when it went off, the ball entering just below the heart, and lodging in the back below the left shoulder. Medical assistance was instantly rendered, and the ball extracted, but in a hour and a half he ceased to live.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—A detachment of H.M.'s various regiments, under the command of Lieut. Clay, arrived in Bombay on the 17th March by H.M.'s steamer Semiramis from Calcutta. The men landed and proceeded to Poona by rail the same day. The head quarters of H.M.'s 86th regiment and 2nd grenadier regiment N.I. arrived in Bombay on the 21st, the former by rail from Gwalior via Malligaum, and the latter by country craft from Ahmedabad, via Cambay. The head quarters of the 1st grenadier N.I. left Bombay on the 25th by H.M.'s steamer Semiramis for Kurrachee, and the other wing will leave soon after the arrival at the Presidency of the left wing of the 2nd grenadier N.I. The following is the distribution of the troops forming the field force, recently under the command of Major General Sir Hugh Rose, G.C.B., which so effectually subdued the Rohillas within the Nizam's territories:—Detail of 11th company royal engineers—to Poona. Head quarters Bombay sappers and miners—to Poona. The 4th (Gaye's) troop of horse artillery—to Poona. Half of No. 2 reserve company Bombay artillery, with No. 18 light field battery, attached—to Ahmednuggur. Half of No. 1 company 4th battalion artillery—to Bombay. No. 6 light field battery, Golundauze—to Ahmednuggur. Head quarter wing of the 3rd dragoon guards—to Mhow. Head quarter wing of the 18th royal Irish regiment—to Sholapore and Beejapore. The left wing of the 18th royal Irish is thus distributed:—1 company at Nassick, 1 company at Malligaum, 1 company at Asseerghur, and 2 companies at Adjunta. The detachments of H.M.'s 57th regiment at Asseerghur, Adjunta, and Tulligaum will join head quarters at Ahmednuggur. Head quarter wing 3rd Bombay N.I., to join the left wing at Malligaum. 5th regiment Madras L.C.—to Kulladghee. 26th regiment Bombay N.I.—to Mhow.

SINGULAR FRAUD.—It appears that among the lot of silver bullion brought by the Pekin on the 10th inst., from China, one of the bars belonging to the Oriental Bank Corporation has turned out at the mint to be lead!

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, accompanied by his personal staff, proceeded to Mahabeshwar on Wednesday, the 16th March. It is believed that his Excellency will return to the Presidency to receive the 78th highlanders upon their arrival from Bareilly.

SANITARIUM.—The invalid and convalescent will be happy to learn that a sanitarium for officers will shortly be erected at Ghizree. The quarters are so arranged as to answer for both families and single gentlemen. Those who have had the opportunity of a residence at Clifton can testify to the benefits which a sanitarium there will afford to the suffering and indisposed.

MAJOR GENERAL SIR HUGH ROSE, G.C.B., returned to Poona on the morning of Saturday, March 12, from Jaulna, via Ahmednuggur. The officers of the 6th Inniskilling dragoons have invited the brigade and general staff to meet Sir Hugh at dinner, at Kirkee, on March 16. The gallant general, who, we hear, will proceed shortly to Mahabeshwar, there to repose on his laurels during the hot weather, unless again aroused by war's alarms, had the troops out on March 15 in brigade order, and put them through several manoeuvres, which were, of course, all executed a-plomb.

SIND PROMOTIONS.—Our deputy collector in charge of treasury is to be appointed to the railway magistracy, in room of Mr. Cole, who is to take charge of the customs on the departure to England of Mr. P. M. Dalzell, proceeding on sick leave. Mr. Ingle, the assistant to the commissioner, is to succeed Mr. Maher. The selection is in every respect a judicious one, and Mr. Ingle's accustomed quiet and unobtrusive manners will secure him the esteem and regard of all with whom he will have to deal. The office establishment which he supervised will lose a kind, generous friend and supporter.

MR. A. SANGSTER, solicitor, has been appointed by the Chief Justice, Sir M. R. Sausse, Deputy Clerk of the Crown.

GEN. BLOOD.—We are extremely sorry to relate that a serious accident occurred to Gen. Blood, commanding the Scinde division, a few evenings back. The general was taking his evening drive, in company with Capt. Vincent, the paymaster: on arriving at the junction of the McLeod road with the Bunder road the wheel of the buggy caught one of the railway sleepers—the horse shied and bolted off the road into the ditch. The horse, a new and valuable one, was killed instantaneously, Gen. Blood's right arm was broken in two places, and Capt. Vincent bruised. The general, we believe, is doing well.—Indian, March 5.

THE LAUNCH OF THE "ESKUNDERSHAW."—This splendid specimen of naval architecture, constructed for the Imaum of Muscat, by Cursetjee Rustomjee Wadia, under the immediate supervision of Captain Mahomed Bin Hamees, of his highness' navy, was launched on Saturday the 19th March, from the Mazagon Dockyard. The preparations for the reception of the ladies and gentlemen invited by Captain Hamees, to witness the interesting ceremony, were on a scale of magnificence seldom surpassed. The élite of Bombay society—European and native—honoured the occasion with their presence, and were received at the entrance of a spacious pavilion erected for their accommodation, by the noble host, who most worthily represented his august master. The honour of "christening" the corvette having been undertaken by Miss Wellesley, the daughter of Commodore Wellesley, Commander in Chief, Indian Navy, at the hour appointed, the visitors, preceded by Miss Wellesley, attended by Commodore Wellesley and Captain Hamees, repaired to the canopy facing the dock. The corvette, which carried the colour of its country, was gaily decorated, and elicited the admiration of the naval gentlemen who inspected her. Everything having been pronounced in readiness for the interesting event, Miss Wellesley stepped forward, and gracefully performed her duty, by naming the vessel the Eskundershaw, at the same time breaking upon her the bottle in token of the "christening." Immediately afterwards the corvette was seen to glide slowly and majestically down the slip into her element, amidst a thunder of cheers from the multitude congregated; and which was reverberated by the saluting battery announcing the conclusion of the ceremony by a royal salute. The company then returned to the refreshment room, where they partook of every delicacy of the season.

MR. P. G. GRANT has arrived in Bombay, from Scotland, to take charge of the General Assembly's Institution in Agiary-lane. Since the departure of the Rev. Mr. Sherrieff, the Institution has been without a European instructor.

A CONVERT TO ROMANISM.—On Sunday morning, the 20th of March, the Rev. John Jervis White Jervis, M.A., of Trinity College, Dublin, and late a Protestant Chaplain of the Church of England in India, for thirteen years on the Bombay presidency, was received into the Church of Rome. The ceremony took place in the Fort Chapel, named "Our Lady of Mount Carmel," and was performed by Bishop Canoz, assisted by the Vicar General and the Chaplain of the Fort.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Our Cabul advices are from the 19th to the 27th February:—

On the 19th, the Ameer summoned the head people of Khyber, and held a long conversation with them in private till noon. On the 20th, a regiment of Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan arrived from Cabul, and was encamped on the banks of the river. On the 22nd, the Dost entertained Sirdars Sultan Mahomed Khan and Peer Mahomed Khan and their sons at dinner. On the 23rd, the Ameer summoned Yar Mahomed Khan, son of the late Secunder Khan, ruler of Sungo Khel, and told him that the people of Sungo Khel say that he collects Rs. 8,000 annually from them, and pays only 4,000 to the Ameer. Yar Mahomed Khan replied that they charged him falsely, and that he gives in the treasury as much as he receives from them. On the 24th, Shah Luteef Sahebzada, resident of Lughman, represented that Surwur Khan, son of Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan, had forcibly taken from him his fort and country. Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan replied that his son had purchased the fort and country from the Sahebzada's brother's wife. The Ameer ordered the case to be decided by Shurreh. This day it rained heavily at Jellalabad.—Lahore Chronicle.

SIAM.

By advices from Bangkok, we learn that Senor Guimarez, the Governor of Macao, arrived at Bangkok on the 21st Jan., in a Portuguese man-of-war, as Plenipotentiary for the King of Portugal, for the purpose of negotiating a new Treaty with Siam. He was received with the same honours that were shown to the English and French Plenipotentiaries in 1855 and 1856. The Treaty, which is similar to that concluded with France, was signed on the 10th Feb. Trade at Bangkok was brisk. The low rates of freight stimulate the demand for produce, and all the principal articles are selling at high prices. This will probably have the effect of increasing the productions of the country.

An Omission.

No. 142 of 1859.

With reference to the G. O. No. 654, dated Allahabad, the 18th Jan., 1859, the Rt. Hon. the Gov. Gen. of India in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the Dep. Adj. Gen. of the Army No. 4, of the 24th Jan., 1859:—

No. 4.

From the Dep. Adj. gen. of the Army to the Sec. to the Govt. of India, Mil. Depart.

SIR,—I have the honour, by desire of the C. in C., to state for the information of H. E. the Rt. Hon. the Viceroy and Gov. Gen. in Council, that Lord Clyde regrets to find he omitted in his despatch of the 7th inst. to mention the name of Brigdr. F. Rowcroft, c.b., of the Ben. inf., amongst those commanders who have rendered good service in the Oude campaign.

2. The C. in C. would feel much obliged by the insertion in that despatch of the name of Brigdr. Rowcroft, c.b., between those of the late Col. Berkeley, c.b., and Brigdr. Hersford, c.b.

H. W. NORMAN, Maj.,
Dep. Adj. gen. of the Army.

Return of 64th Foot and the Belooch Battalion.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Allahabad, Feb. 28.

H.M.'s 64th Foot and the Belooch Battalion are about to return to presidency of Bombay, from whence they came to assist in the restoration of order after the outbreak of mutiny and insurrection in that of Bengal.

2. The services of both these corps have been admirable. The C. in C. is happy in being able to congratulate them on the termination of the campaigns of the last year and half, in which they have alike rendered signal service to the State, and won great honour for themselves.

3. H.M.'s 64th came round from Persia, where they had served under Sir James Outram, to be among the first of those who, under the lamented Sir Henry Havelock, forced their way from Allahabad to Cawnpore in 1857. They were afterwards at the various engagements at that place, the operations in the Doab, and in the campaign of Rohilcund.

4. The Belooch Battalion took part in the siege of Delhi, in the campaign of Rohilcund, and in that of Oude, for the reduction of the province.

5. Both regiments have been frequently engaged.

6. The C. in C. wishes them a hearty farewell.

Midshipmen in the Indian Navy.

Bombay Castle, 12th March, 1859.

No. 37 of 1859.—The right honourable the Governor in Council is pleased to direct that the following despatch from the honourable the Court of Directors, dated 11th August, 1858, No. 44, conveying instructions for the regulation of the promotion of midshipmen of the Indian navy to the rank of lieutenant and of mate, be published for general information:—

* With regimental pay and allowance.

"Paragraph 1.—Under the regulation of the Indian navy, a midshipman cannot be allowed the rank of commission of lieutenant, or even of mate, before he shall have completed five years of service, and until he, moreover, shall have passed the 'final examination for the commission of lieutenant,' not only in seamanship but in gunnery, and in the more abstruse studies, as prescribed by those regulations.

"2. You consider it necessary, however, for the prevention of unjust supercession, that some rule should be laid down to govern the grant of such rank and commissions in cases where, in consequence of any midshipman having been ordered on public service from the Presidency, or from Butcher's Island, where the gunnery is taught, or in consequence of his prolonged absence under medical certificate, the course of study requisite for him to pass through has been interrupted and it has been impossible for the midshipman (without any fault on his part) to pass such 'final examination' at the proper time.

"3. We have accordingly considered the subject, and we direct, that in the case of a midshipman who, at the termination of his five years, when he should go up for examination, shall be absent in consequence of having been ordered away from his studies 'on public service,' the date of his quitting study be particularly noted, that he be required to resume study immediately on his return from such public service; and that when he shall have passed the 'final examination' prescribed by the regulations, the number of months or days, which shall have elapsed between the date of his return to study and the date of his passing, be added to the date or time when he was ordered away, so that the midshipman may be considered as having passed his 'final examination' for superior rank and commission on the date arrived at by such addition to the time when his study was interrupted. For example, a midshipman, whose five years would expire on the 1st July, 1858, may have been ordered from his study of gunnery at Butcher's Island on the public service on the 1st June, 1858; on return he may resume study on the 6th October, 1858, he may pass his final examination on the 17th November, 1858, thus occupying one month and eleven days, which must be added to the 1st June, 1858, when he was ordered away, and will give a date of passing the 'final examination' equivalent to the 11th August, 1858.

"4. The case of a midshipman, who may be prevented by sickness or bodily infirmity from passing his final examination in due time must be dealt with on the same principle, provided that the absence or inability of the midshipman shall have been occasioned solely by ill-health, duly certified for the whole period of his absence or inability.

"In accordance with the foregoing instructions, the case of each officer concerned has been separately considered, and it is found that the following is the correct order in which the mates should stand upon the list:—

- |                         |                      |

| 30. C. P. Georges.      | 60. G. L. Bonham.    |

Consequent upon the above revision of the list of mates, the following adjustment of rank takes effect among the junior lieutenants, but this adjustment is to be understood as affecting rank only, and to have no effect upon pay either already drawn, or that might be claimed as arrears:—

T. C. Carpendale, date of commission July 3, 1856, v. Grieve, prom.

J. H. Trollope, date of commission Oct. 28, 1856, v. Campbell, dec.

P. W. Fendall, date of commission Jan. 2, 1857, v. Cook, struck off the list.

H. H. Davis, date of commission Jan. 26, 1857, v. Manners, prom.

W. Collingwood, date of commission March 8, 1857, v. Stevens, dec.

C. B. Templer, date of commission March 17, 1857, v. Foulerton, prom.
 B. Bardin, date of commission June 18, 1857, v. Rushton, dec.
 F. Handley, date of commission Aug. 31, 1857, v. Anderson, resigned.
 A. D. Bellin, date of commission Oct. 13, 1857, v. Barker, retired.
 A. W. Still, date of commission Nov. 28, 1857, v. Lithgow, resigned.
 M. P. Tozer, date of commission Dec. 11, 1857, v. Dickson, dec.
 A. J. Clark, date of commission Jan. 17, 1857, v. Adams, prom.
 E. R. May, date of commission Feb. 1, 1858, v. Tronson, prom.
 J. M. Philbrick, date of commission March 3, 1858, v. Leeds, prom.
 W. F. Yates, date of commission March 8, 1858, v. Crane, dec.
 R. G. Hurlock, date of commission Aug. 21, 1858, v. Butt, prom.
 H. M. Chester, date of commission Nov. 18, 1858, v. Hopkins, prom.

The commissions of the following officers are cancelled, viz:—

W. J. Crockett, and W. H. J. Harris, but these officers will remain on the list as supernumerary lieuts., ranking junior to all other lieuts., until prom. in their proper place, as they stand in the foregoing list of mates.

The position of Lieut. Davis is next below Lieut. Tozer, and next above Lieut. A. J. Clark, in consequence of the loss of rank awarded by the sentence of a court-martial, as announced in G. O. No. 152, dated Aug. 14, 1858.

The Victoria Cross.

WAR OFFICE, APRIL 12.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to confirm the grant of the decoration of the Victoria Cross to the undermentioned officer and private of Her Majesty's army, which decoration has been provisionally conferred upon them by the Commander in Chief in India, in accordance with the rules laid down in Her Majesty's warrant instituting the same, on account of acts of bravery performed by them during the operations under his personal command, as recorded against their names, viz:—

23rd Regt.—Lieutenant (now Captain) Thomas Bernard Hackett; date of act of bravery, Nov. 18, 1857.—For daring gallantry at Secunderabagh, Lucknow, on the 18th Nov., 1857, in having with others rescued a corporal of the 23rd regt., who was lying wounded and exposed to very heavy fire. Also, for conspicuous bravery, in having, under a heavy fire, ascended the roof, and cut down the thatch of a bungalow, to prevent its being set on fire. This was a most important service at the time.

23rd Regt.—Private George Monger; date of act of bravery, Nov. 18th, 1857.—For daring gallantry at Secunderabagh, Lucknow, on the 18th of Nov., 1857, in having volunteered to accompany Lieut. Hackett, whom he assisted in bringing in a corporal of the 23rd regt., who was lying wounded in an exposed position.

Her Majesty has also been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned officers and soldiers of her Majesty's army and Indian military forces, whose claims to the same have been submitted for her Majesty's approval, on account of acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names, viz:—

78th Regt.—Colour sergeant Stewart M'Pherson; date of act of bravery, Sept. 26, 1857.—For daring gallantry in the Lucknow Residency on the 26th Sept., 1857, in having rescued, at great personal risk, a wounded private of his company, who was lying in a most exposed situation, under a heavy fire. Colour sergeant M'Pherson was also distinguished on many occasions by his coolness in gallantry in action.

64th Regt.—Drummer Thomas Flinn: date of act of bravery, Nov. 28, 1857.—For conspicuous gallantry in the charge on the enemy's guns on Nov. 28, 1857, when, being himself wounded, he engaged in a hand-to-hand encounter two of the rebel artillerymen.

Bengal Horse Art.—Captain George Alexander Renny; date of act of bravery, Sept. 16, 1857.—Lieut.-col. Farquhar, commanding the 1st Belooch regt., reports that he was in com. of the troops stationed in the Delhi magazine, after its capture on the 16th of Sept., 1857. Early in the forenoon of that day, a vigorous attack was made on the post by the enemy, and was kept up with great violence for some time, without the slightest chance of success. Under cover of a heavy cross fire from the high houses on the right flank of the magazine, and from Selimghur and the palace, the enemy advanced to the high wall of the magazine, and endeavoured to set fire to a thatched roof. The roof was partially set fire to, which was extinguished on the spot by a sepoy of the Belooch batt., a soldier of the 61st regt. having in vain attempted to do so. The roof having been again set on fire, Capt. Renny with great gallantry mounted to the top of the wall of the magazine, and hung several shells with lighted fuzes over into the midst of the enemy, which had an almost immediate effect, as the attack at once became feeble at that point, and soon after ceased there.

Bengal Army (Unattached).—Ensign (now Lieut.) Patrick Roddy; date of act of bravery, Sept. 27, 1858.—Major General Sir James Hope Grant, K.C.B., Commanding Oude Force, bears testimony to the gallant conduct of Lieut. Roddy on several occasions. One instance is particularly mentioned. On the return from Kuthirga of the Kuppurthulla Contingent, on the 27th of September, 1858, this officer, when engaged with the enemy, charged a rebel (armed with a percussion musket) whom the cavalry were afraid to approach, as each time they attempted to do so the rebel knelt and covered his assaulant; this, however, did not deter Lieut. Roddy, who went boldly in, and when within six yards the rebel fired, killing Lieut. Roddy's horse, and before he could get disengaged from the horse the rebel attempted to cut him down. Lieut. Roddy seized the rebel until he could get at his sword, when he ran the man through the body. The rebel turned out to be a subadar of the late 8th native infantry, a powerful man, and a most determined character.

INDIA-OFFICE, April 16.—The Queen has been pleased to appoint Lieut. col. Sir H. C. Rawlinson, K.C.B., to be H.M.'s Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Shah of Persia.

CAPTAIN RIVERS, of the Bombay Engineers, is likely, it is said, to succeed Colonel Waugh as Surveyor General of India, on that officer's retirement, which is expected to take place shortly. Captain Rivers was for many years employed as an assistant in the grand trigonometrical survey of India.

HONORARY RANK.—The Governor General has conferred the official rank of Lieut. colonel on Major S. W. Williams, of the 29th Regiment N.I., as Commissioner of Military Police and Military Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THURSDAY, April 21, 1859.

INDIAN ARTILLERY.

THE Indian Artillery have reason to be grateful to the Times. They probably owe their future existence to the generous advocacy of that all-potent journal. Had the Horse Guards been permitted to carry out its intention of sending twelve batteries of Royal Artillery to India, the last page would already have been written that chronicled the achievements of the Bengal Artillery. Second to none throughout the world, that splendid branch of the military service of India would soon have been effaced from the Army List. The sentence had been pronounced; its doom was sealed; and already the Horse Guards was gloating over the patronage it had so coolly appropriated. At the critical moment, when all seemed lost, the Times stepped forward, and interposing its ægis, secured a future career for that brilliant and hitherto most efficient corps.

It is now, therefore, worth while to consider the oft-mooted question whether the two services—the Indian and the Royal—shall be amalgamated or assimilated. That there should be any difference of opinion on this subject must appear strange to all who have given it a serious thought. In the first place, it is notorious that the regiment of Royal Artillery is already overgrown, and that previous to the Crimean war all chance of promotion was checked by the seniority system. At present, indeed, the latter remark is no longer applicable; but, on the other hand, the consequence of the rapid promotion that has taken place since 1855 would be, in the event of the amalgamation of the two corps, to supersede Bengal captains of thirty years' standing by junior lieutenant-colonels of less than twenty years' standing. And the Bengal is not the only regiment of Indian Artillery; there are two others—the Madras and the Bombay. These services, it must also be remembered, have their own military funds, pay, pensions, and furlough regulations, which were a matter of contract with them when they first donned the uniform of their respective corps.

There can be no doubt, however, that the artillery of all three Presidencies, but especially of Bengal, demands a large and immediate augmentation. Since 1843 there has been no increase whatever, although in that interval the provinces of Scinde, the Punjab, Pegu, and Oude have been annexed. A fourth regiment, that of the Punjab, should long since have been added, and the sooner this increase is made the better will it be for the efficiency of the other corps, at present so terribly overworked. Not only are these regiments numerically weak, but they are deficient in officers, many of whom are necessarily detached for staff duties, and a few as political agents. More officers, therefore, are wanted for the existing regiments, as well as an entirely new and additional corps.

Amalgamation is clearly as unadvisable as it would be unjust, nor would it answer even for the three Indian regiments. But there is no reason why all the services should not be assimilated in drill and discipline. On this head some valuable suggestions have been made by a correspondent of an Indian journal, who evidently writes with a full knowledge of the real facts of the case. First, then, he objects to the Bengal system of using a pole, by which "each wheel horse, besides carrying sixteen or seventeen stone on his back, is bored down on his neck with four stone more," and thus in descending a steep hill is compelled to gallop, at the risk of breaking his rider's neck. Of the superiority of shafts over poles he gives the following illustrations, "one on smooth level ground, the other in and out of a deep ravine":—

"When the 'Army of the Indus' was at Cabool, Lord Keane frequently discussed this subject. He induced the brigadier of artillery to have a trial on the race-course; accordingly, four hundred yards were marked out, and flags placed at each hundred yards; a Bengal and a Bombay troop were paraded. They were ordered to advance and retire, firing two rounds at every hundred yards; in advancing, the Bombay troop beat the Bengal troop hollow, but in retiring the Bengal troop gained again, still the Bombay troop won the match easily. The reason the Bengal troop gained in retiring was, that when it unlimbered, the limber never reversed, but remained facing to the rear and close to the trail of the gun, which was dangerous. The Bombay troop always reversed as usual, and fronted the same way as the gun. Now for the ravine. In leaving 'Gilhatee Giljee' there was a very deep ravine, and a long steep road leading into it and up the other side. The Bengal troop crossed first, and immediately the gun got on the descent, the pole naturally, as I have stated before, bored on the horses' necks, so that they had little or no power over the gun, the consequence was that they one and all went off at a gallop frightful to look at, down to the bottom of the ravine, and up the other side whilst the impetus lasted. This at an end, the horses stood still, and H.M.'s 13th Light Infantry were obliged to push every gun up; had one horse tripped and fallen, all six drivers might have been killed. The Bombay troop, driving postillion and shafts, drove down and up, at a steady walk, without any one putting a hand to the gun."

The same military critic condemns the metal nave of the Madras Artillery, and protests against the Royal Horse Artillery system of having two classes of men in a troop—drivers and gunners:—

"The most extraordinary thing is," he goes on to say, "that these unfortunate drivers are not armed, and therefore can be cut up at leisure, having nothing to defend themselves with. But I maintain drivers and gunners should be one, no distinction, every man a gunner and every man a driver, and what argument can they bring forward for this distinction? But suppose a dozen of these drivers are picked off whilst they sit as marks on their horses, there is no one to replace them,—the gunners are not taught to drive, it is no part of their duty. Then I say the troop is only half armed. The very essence of a troop should be, no distinction, the aptness of all to be ready and drilled to every duty and armed alike."

There are other points to which this writer alludes, such as the position of the detachments on the left, the telling off particular men for limber men, the position of the officer commanding the half battery on the left instead of in front of the centre gun, the superiority of the helmet to the Busby, and other matters connected with dress. But the gist of his remarks is contained in four propositions, which he insists should at once be introduced throughout the three Presidencies; namely, the detachment system, postillion driving, the shaft instead of the pole, and the wooden nave. Whether or not these points are conceded, the idea of amalgamating the Home and Indian Services is to be earnestly deprecated as unjust to the latter, disadvantageous in point of discipline to the former, and expensive to the country through the necessity of reliefs.

MADRAS EDUCATIONAL REPORT, 1857-58.

THE Madras papers contain an interesting analysis of Mr. Arbuthnot's Annual Report on Education in that Presidency, furnished by the Government. From this clear and able paper it appears that at the Madras University, incorporated on the 5th September, 1857, of the four Faculties of Art, Law, Medicine, and Civil Engineering, that of Art alone has been brought into operation. Two examinations for matriculation have been held, and of 120 candidates 54 passed, 38 of these going up from Government schools. One examination has also been held for the degree of Bachelor, which was conferred upon the two candidates who presented themselves, both of whom had received their education at the American Mission School at Jaffna. From their names—Charles Winslow and Daniel Carroll—it is evident that they were not natives in the ordinary acceptance of the word, though native blood may possibly flow in their veins.

The Madras Senate, differing from that at Calcutta, have decided on excluding Mechanics and Natural History from the entrance examination. With regard to that for the B.A. degree, they have resolved that each candidate should be examined in Languages, History, Mathematics, and Moral Philosophy, and—at his option—in either the Physical Sciences or Logic. The Calcutta scheme has also been modified as to the period required to intervene between the entrance examination and that for B.A. This interval has been reduced from four to three years: and, further, visa voce examinations have been introduced, the historical subjects for the M.A. examination have been confined within narrower bounds, and honours are henceforth to be conferred solely on those entitled to the M.A. degree. In Civil Engineering two degrees are to be given—the higher one corresponding with the sole degree obtainable at Calcutta; the other being simply the addition of the special requirements of a Civil Engineer to the ordinary B.A. standard.

The Presidency College is spoken of in terms of praise. There are 280 students on the rolls, who are represented as having made very satisfactory progress, especially in the department of Mathematics. With natives, however, the difficulty is not so much in teaching them the principles of exact science, as in making them understand how to apply them in practice.

It is satisfactory to learn that the Normal School can boast of 496 pupils, being an increase of 149 during the previous year. The Primary School of the Presidency College, it appears, has been divided into a Model School and a Practising School for the benefit of the real Normal students, fifty-one in number.

Of the four Provincial Schools, three are described as being all that can be desired, especially that at Combaconum, in the Tanjore district. The Rajahmundry School, however, has made such little progress, that it is intended to reduce it to the grade of a Zillah School. The attendance, on the whole, was not unsatisfactory, there having been 822 scholars against 755 in the preceding year.

The Zillah Schools, six in number since the establishment of one at Cuddapah, can only show an aggregate attendance of 859 against 803 in 1856-57. A marked falling off, it is observed, has occurred at the Salem and Madura schools in consequence of the admission of a low-caste boy. The decline of the latter school is, however, partly attributed to the little interest evinced by the principal civil officers of the district. This fact is another illustration of the common remark that education is not yet valued in India for itself, but only as a means of flattering the superior authorities.

Next below the Zillah come the Talook schools, 62 of which were in operation at the date of Mr. Arbuthnot's report, being an increase of 12 during the previous twelve months. In these schools instruction is imparted in the vernacular tongue, English being taught merely as a language—in the second class for one hour each day, in the third and fourth for an hour and a half, and in the fifth for two hours. In the Northern Circars alone are these schools regarded with suspicion, but even there the feeling of distrust is gradually giving way, through the enlightened support of the Rajah of Vizianagram.

In the joint-rent villages in the Delta of the Godavery there are ninety-two schools on the Hulkabunda system, attended by 2,000 scholars. In the hill tracts there are two classes of village schools—those among the Khonds, and those among the Badagas on the Neilgherry Hills. Of a similar character is that established among the Yanadies near Pulicat, in the low country near the sea. The schools among the Khonds, we are told, "were first established in 1850-51 by the agent of Ganjam in the hill tracts of Orissa in connection with the measures undertaken for the suppression of human sacrifices and with the object of civilising the barbarous tribes inhabiting the hill tracts. The first master was a man who had been set aside by the Khonds as a Meriah, or victim for sacrifice, and rescued from that fate by the agent in 1857. Nothing could exceed the aversion with which these savages regarded the first establishment of the schools. On the approach of the inspector to their villages they would conceal their children, and then gravely assert that there happened to be none but adults in that particular Mootah. Considerable improvement has now manifested itself. The chiefs, from whom the greatest opposition was experienced, are most earnest in promoting education, which has advanced so far that 289 lads are now numbered on the rolls, a result to which the earnest labours of Captain MacDonald, late assistant agent and now inspector of schools, have very materially contributed."

In Tinnevely the village schools, founded by the Church Missionary and Gospel Societies, number 2,054 pupils, of whom 398 are girls. According to Mr. Arbuthnot, "this is the most successful effort for the improvement of indigenous education which has yet been made in India."

Previous to the close of the official year 1857-58, the amount of the Grant-in-aid Fund at the disposal of the Madras Government did not exceed 25,000 rupees, but since then the Supreme Government has sanctioned the annual outlay of 65,000 rupees on educational purposes throughout that Presidency.

The Professional Institutions are four in number—the Civil Engineering College, the School of Industrial Arts, the Medical College, and the Primary Medical School. The last-named institution was only opened in 1857-58, but at once gave promise of future utility. In conclusion we need only adopt the summary of the Government analysis:—

The aggregate attendance at all schools, Government or under Government inspection, is 18,927. This gives an increase of 2,414 pupils over the returns of 1856-57. The increase in the number of Government schools, viz., one Zillah and twelve Talook schools, has been noticed. The number of private schools under inspection has not materially increased, the whole of the Grant-in-aid Fund having been allotted at the commencement of the year. The total expenditure has been Rupees 4,07,454-10-1 made up of the following items:—

THE ENGLISH IN INDIA.

THE leading journal is not fortunate in its "Own Correspondent" in India. However well qualified Mr. Russell may have been to record the doings in the Crimea, he is at present clearly out of his element. With a most superficial knowledge of the people of India, and no friendly feeling to the English in that country, who have, in the local papers, repeatedly exposed his presumption and his ignorance, he jumps to the most erroneous conclusions regarding the acts and feelings of the natives, and represents the English in the darkest colours his pen can portray. If his pictures are faithfully drawn, what are we to think of our future prospects in India, and the permanency of our rule? According to Mr. Russell, the sympathies of the 180,000,000 of people are against us; because wherever our armies march "they withhold from us information which they well know to be the most valuable means of insuring success." Again, he says, "the antagonism between the declarations of our rulers, the public promises and State professions, and the acts of individuals of the ruling race, have already brought our national reputation into disrepute." Our treatment of the Hindoo he fancifully compares to our having "seized upon a half-educated, superstitious, haughty, and sensual Norman of the twelfth century, and insisted on dressing him in the clothes of the nineteenth. We have stopped Front de Bœuf from roasting his Jew, we have sent him to school, taken away his armour, pulled down his castle, put an Albert coat, Wellington boots, and Dalhousie waistcoat on him, and then have wondered that the 'ungrateful' monster has sought to tear his garments, to beat his school-master, and to kill his generous benefactor. He, in fact, does not believe we mean him well, because he has observed that while we were saying it was all for his good, that we were just and equitable, that his castle was merely removed as a nuisance, and that his armour was taken away because it hurt him, certain understrappers of ours were making faces at him, calling him names, stealing his jewels, searching his wardrobes, and plundering his Jew." Again, on every side of him he sees nothing but decay, the decay of "towns, villages, and public works, of monuments, temples, tombs, tanks, reservoirs, and serais." "The iron road and the iron wire pass over crumbling cities, by prostrate monuments, and deserted villages." If all this be true, is it to be wondered at that the people made a desperate effort to get rid of our rule by annihilating us? And if it be true, with what face shall we appoint a day of thanksgiving for the issue of events that will perpetuate so deplorable a state of things? for Mr. Russell asserts that the decay spoken of he at first attributed to the ravages of war, but closer observation, and more extended researches, led him to the conclusion that it is a condition of India independent of the mutiny and its results. Happily we are able to prove, on the testimony of a gentleman who has had large experience in India, and who served for many months during the mutinies, that the picture of Mr. Russell is as incorrect as it is malicious.

The people of India, in the mutinous districts, undoubtedly withheld information from our columns, but a regard for their own safety compelled them to do so. The rebels punished with the most cruel severity those natives who assisted us in any way. The cossids, or carriers of letters, of the Feringhees, were mutilated or blown away from guns whenever they were discovered, and the police or natives who continued to serve the Government were massacred by the rebels whenever an opportunity offered. The only safety for the landholders and villagers was a determined neutrality. And it is to be observed, that if they withheld information from us, they acted in the same manner, generally speaking, towards our enemies. Many instances of surprises, followed by the most disastrous consequences, occurred to the rebels in consequence of want of information. We shall mention two. The Mhow and Indore mutineers on the 10th Oct., 1857, marched and attacked our camp at Agra, under the very walls of Agra, thinking they had only the 3rd Europeans and the Agra militia to deal with. They fell upon Colonel Greathed's column, of whose presence they were wholly ignorant. They were attacked, defeated, pursued, and slaughtered for ten miles, losing all their guns, fifteen in number, standing camp, treasure, &c., and as a disciplined force they were annihilated. The same happened with the Futtelghur mutineers, who attacked Sir Thomas Seaton's column at Gungeree, imagining it to be a small body of men, with Mr. Sapte, the magistrate of Boolundshuhur. It is needless to say they paid dearly for their ignorance. More instances could be stated if space permitted. During the height of the mutinies the Agra volunteers held the whole district of Allyghur, a district containing nearly half a million of inhabitants. Could this have been done had the sympathies of the people been against them? Our informant says that when he marched with the columns the people everywhere brought into camp abundant supplies. Information they did not give, because they could not justify such an act to the rebels in the event of being discovered, but the sale of provisions they could excuse by saying that they could not resist the power of the army. It is abundantly evident if the sympathies of the people had been everywhere against us, as

Mr. Russell avers, we could not have reconquered Hindostan.

With regard to the decay of "towns, villages, public works, monuments, temples, tombs, tanks, reservoirs, and serais," our informant saw no such decay. The native cities, such as Cawnpore, Allahabad, Futteghur, Allyghur, &c., in the very heart of the mutinous districts, were untouched. Their temples, tombs, &c., were carefully protected. At Agra, where it was necessary to throw down some native houses abutting on the fort, the owners were as scrupulously paid as the owners of a property in England through which a railroad is made. Native oriental towns always exhibit some symptoms of decay, as Mr. Russell may see in Cairo or Constantinople, but that there was any especial decay arising from our neglect our informant most solemnly denies.

With the general accusation that the acts of individuals of the ruling race have been antagonistic to the declarations of our rulers, to public promises, and state professions, and have brought our national reputation into disrepute, we cannot deal, as Mr. Russell does not condescend to specify them; nor can we answer the general charge, that while we were saying we were doing everything for the good of the Hindoo, "certain understrappers of ours were making faces at him, stealing his jewels, searching his wardrobes, plundering him, &c." No doubt there may have been isolated cases of a violation of public promises and state professions by individuals, and probably there may have been cases of plunder, but that these things were carried to such an extent as to bring our national reputation into disrepute, or alienate the people as a body from us, we believe to be as great a calumny as ever was penned, even by the Times' correspondent.

Mr. Russell's sweeping assertions are not, however, confined to the old resident English in India; he attacks the whole army, including that large portion recently sent to India. On the faith of his representations, the Times, a short time ago, lectured the officers on their ungentlemanly behaviour at parties or festivals given by princes, rajahs, and wealthy natives. These natives, according to the Times, whenever they intended to give a festival, anxiously inquired if the Commander-in-Chief would be present, in order to protect them from insult and their property from destruction. Such statements, if they appeared in the Indian papers, would be treated with contempt, or would be quoted as fresh examples of their baseness and mendacity; but, coming from "Our Correspondent," they are paraded in the columns of the Times as sad and indisputable truths, requiring the loudest denunciation and most severe reprobation. That exceptional cases of individual snobbishness and vulgarity may occasionally have occurred is by no means impossible, but certainly not to an extent that would justify the assumption that such are the ordinary practices of the English in India.

DIRECT CADETS.—The following gentlemen having obtained nominations passed the required examination for Direct Cadets on the 5th inst:—G. F. Bryant, P. Boyd, J. H. Campbell, H. W. Cockerell, H. Coghan, St. J. E. Daubeny, C. H. P. Ducat, T. G. Hunter, T. W. Inglis, V. E. Law, T. D. Mander, E. A. Moraub, R. Morton, E. D. Smith, J. E. Wallace.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—APRIL 14.

VOTE OF THANKS.

LORD DERBY, in moving that a vote of thanks be given to the Governor General of India, the Commander in Chief, and the other officers civil and military, and to the non-commissioned officers and men, both European and native, of the Indian Army, said he rejoiced to inform the House that the rebellion was completely crushed; and the time had now come to thank those who, under Providence, had contributed to this result. The first person to whom he would propose a vote of thanks was the Governor General, Lord Canning. After recounting the manifold difficulties which Lord Canning had encountered and overcome, he eulogised in the highest terms the ability and energy which he had displayed during the late emergency. Calm, persistent, and resolute, Lord Canning had pursued a course in which he had shown the spirit of an English gentleman combined with the sagacity of a profound statesman. In consideration of his distinguished services, her Majesty had conferred on Lord Canning the dignity of a British Earl. Lord Derby proceeded to explain why the names of Sir Patrick Grant and of the Governor of Madras had been omitted, and then went on to eulogise the services of Lord Elphinstone, the Governor of Bombay, as only second to those of Lord Canning. He expressed his admiration of the courage, dauntless resolution, and firmness with which Sir J. Lawrence had suppressed revolt in a newly-conquered country, and had sent assistance to the Central Government. To Mr. Frere, Mr. Robert Montgomery, and Sir R. Hamilton, for their administration of extensive provinces and their conciliatory policy, he also thought the thanks of the House were due. In passing to the second resolution, he paid a touching tribute to the memory of Sir W. Peel, and lamented the premature loss of Colonel Jacob and Major Hodson. Turning to the more grateful task of thanking those who survived, he said of Lord Clyde, that he was cool and cautious in coming to his determination, always eager to spare his men, but reckless of his own life and labours; slow in his plans, but sagacious in combination, he knew when to strike, and those whom he met felt he knew how to strike. After sketching the principal features of the campaign, he recounted briefly and eulogistically, the services of Major General Mansfield, the chief of the staff, of Sir J. Outram, Sir T. H. Franks, Sir A. Wilson, Sir R. Napier, Sir E. Lugard, Sir Hope Grant, Brigadier General Walpole, Sir Hugh Rose, Major General Roberts, Major General Whitlock, and Sir J. Michel. He also called on the House for a vote of thanks to the officers and men of the Indian army, with whom he joined the names of the seamen and marines. In conclusion, he again congratulated the House on the restoration of tranquillity, and declared that in Oude alone we had captured and destroyed 1,000 forts, and that 480 cannon and a million stand of arms had been taken. As far as military operations were concerned, we had accomplished our task, but a far more formidable one awaited us. It was now our duty to subjugate the hearts and affections, as well as the persons, of the people of India, to restore them the blessings of good government, to seek their moral and social progress, to develop the resources of the country, to administer justice fairly and temperately, and to satisfy the natives that it is not only their fate but their interest to remain true to their allegiance.

LORD GRANVILLE expressed the satisfaction which Lord Derby's full and accurate statement had afforded him. With singular pleasure he had heard the just and accurate compliment to the Governor General of India, a compliment which buried in oblivion all the former discussions on Lord Canning's conduct in the late terrible crisis. The conduct of the Governor of Bombay, Lord Elphinstone, was beyond all praise in the fearlessness with which he had assumed the heavy responsibility of denuding himself of troops in order to supply the more pressing exigencies of other parts of India. After high praise of the Commander in Chief and his lieutenants, whose names had become household words in every cottage, he expressed his regret that it was impossible, from the precedents of the House, to include the names of those whom death had removed in the present motion. He, of course, alluded to such names as Havelock, Neill, Peel, and Henry Lawrence. He considered that the sanguine views which he had ever held as to the suppression of the rebellion had been confirmed by the statement of Lord Derby as to the tranquillity of India. And, if such was the case, it was now our duty to look to the social improvement of the country which had been reconquered by our efforts. He cordially supported the motion of Lord Derby.

The Duke of CAMBRIDGE, though it would be almost invidious where all had done so well to bring particular names prominently forward, could not help thinking that the various brigadiers at the head of small columns had deserved well of their country; and could not forbear expressing the high sense which he entertained of the services of Brigadiers Jones, Walpole, Horsford, Barker, Shower, Hope, and many others. It would be superfluous and preposterous for him to sing the praises of Lord Clyde, whose deeds were known not only in this country but over the whole continent. Never had a campaign carried on by small moveable columns been so ably conducted. He expressed a high opinion of the abilities of Sir W. Mansfield, the determination of Sir Hugh Rose, and Sir J. Michel. The native troops, as well as the Europeans, had nobly done their duty, nor could he pass over in silence the efficiency of the commissariat. In speaking of the very great services of Sir John Lawrence, he could not omit the name of Sir Sidney Cotton, of whom he spoke most favourably. In reducing the number of troops in India he trusted there would be no undue haste, but that due care would be taken for the exigencies of the public service.

LORD ELLENBOROUGH protested against the clubbing together the name of the Governor General of India with those of his subordinates, although they might be even governors of provinces. As the whole responsibility is with the Governor General if he fail, so he should have his full meed of praise if he succeed; and it was his opinion that the merits of the Governor General should be specified in a distinct vote. He found the same objection with the military vote, and thought that a distinction should have been made between Lord Clyde and his lieutenants. His object in addressing the House was to call attention to the merits of the troops, for the generals could not have done what they had done with troops of inferior merit. In the highest terms he praised the qualities of the British soldiers, and declared that he knew of no war in which troops had displayed so much perseverance, pertinacity, and fortitude under sufferings and unparalleled difficulties. In such a time as the present he thanked God we had such troops, and wished that 10,000 of them were at present at Aldershot. In such a case the Foreign Secretary might speak with less anxiety. Expatiating on the art of war, and the appliances of science for warlike purposes which these troops had learnt, and which perhaps they might have to teach to European armies, he said that their battles were battles of giants, not armed with brute force, but as if they had stolen fire from Heaven. He begged the House to remember that these noble troops were our countrymen, upon whom we might have to depend for the safety of the country.

LORD GOUGH and Lord ALBEMARLE both cordially agreed to the motion.

LORD DERBY asked permission to insert in the resolution the names of the Naval Brigade and Capt. Sotheby. In reply to Lord ELLENBOROUGH, he stated at first he had intended to pursue the course of giving a distinct vote of thanks to Lord Canning and to Lord Clyde, but that he had been guided by the precedent of last year. He assured him that he had no intention to depreciate the bravery and discipline of the gallant troops who had so nobly done their duty.

The motion was then agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—APRIL 14TH.

VOTE OF THANKS.

LORD STANLEY rose to move the thanks of the House to Lord Canning, Lord Elphinstone, Sir J. L. M. Lawrence, Sir R. N. C. Hamilton, Mr. Frère, and Mr. Montgomery for their ability in the employment of the resources at their disposal for the re-establishment of peace in India; to Lord Clyde, Sir J. Outram, Sir H. Rose, Maj. General Roberts, Major General Whitlock, Maj. Gen. Sir A. Wilson, Major General Sir J. H. Grant, Major General Sir W. R. Mansfield, Major General Sir T. H. Franks, Major General Sir E. Lugard, Major General Sir J. Michel, Brigadier General Walpole, and Brigadier General Sir R. Napier, for the eminent skill, courage, and perseverance displayed by them during the military operations; and to the other gallant officers of her Majesty's Army and Navy, and of her Indian forces, for their intrepidity, zeal, and endurance; and that the House highly approved and acknowledged the valour, self-devotion, and brilliant services of the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers, both European and native, who have taken part in the suppression of the recent disturbances in India. He prefaced the motion by remarking that, order having been restored in India, and British ascendancy completely re-established at the cost of many thousand English lives, the augmentation of the debt and burdens of India, and under extraordinary difficulties, leaving the impression upon the Asiatic mind of the unconquerable energy and indomitable perseverance of the British soldier deeper than at any former period, it was not premature to offer the thanks of that House to those by whose skill and courage this state of things had been brought about. He then proceeded to notice the services and the merits of the prominent actors in the two years' struggle, paying a warm tribute to Lord Canning, whose labour, anxiety, and responsibility, in the most difficult circumstances, he observed, had been great, and whose policy, whatever differences of opinion might exist on isolated points, as a whole, had been temperate, humane, and wise. He explained the reasons why Lord Harris, the Governor of Madras, had been omitted from the vote, the omission being no slight offered to him, and bestowing a passing eulogium upon the late Sir Henry Lawrence he reviewed the military operations. He gave unqualified praise to Lord Clyde, to whom, he said, not a single mistake or error in judgment had been attributed, and whose appointment to the chief command in India was an honour to the Ministry that had selected him, and he brought out into strong relief the most conspicuous incidents in the services of the general officers named in the vote, and some of their most striking exploits. After briefly explaining the principle upon which the names had been selected, which had been necessarily that sanctioned by precedent, to the exclusion of some he would otherwise have gladly included,—mentioning the name of Sir Patrick Grant,—he called upon the House to recognise the services of the dead, and he pronounced a touching panegyric upon two of the fallen—Major Hodson, of the Guides, and Sir William Peel.

LORD PALMERSTON, in seconding the motion, said, he could add nothing to the glowing and heartfelt tribute which Lord Stanley had bestowed upon the distinguished men, civil, military and naval, named in the vote; but he asked permission to join in that tribute; and he drew the attention of the House to the conduct of the great number of civilians scattered over India, who had been exposed to the greatest perils, and whose heroic acts had, he said, been an honour to the country to which they belonged.

After a few remarks by Sir DE LACY EVANS,

LORD J. RUSSELL observed that, in the aggregate, there never had been a greater service performed than by the civil and military officers, who had met an unprecedented danger with complete success, a success more wonderful than our former triumphs in India.

Mr. V. SMITH warmly eulogised the conduct and services of Lord Canning, Lord Elphinstone, Sir John Lawrence, the late Sir Henry Lawrence, and Mr. Frère.

Colonel NORTH said he had intended to move, as an amendment to the vote, to add the name of Sir Patrick Grant, but, not wishing to disturb unanimity, he abandoned his design.

Mr. KINNAIRD thought that in a case of this kind precedent ought not to be strictly adhered to.

Mr. W. VANSITTART noticed with commendation the conduct of the present Pasha of Egypt.

Sir W. CORDINGTON spoke in vindication of Major General Johnston and Major General Windham, upon whom blame, he said, had been unjustly thrown.

Colonel SYKES wished that there had been specific mention in the vote of the native troops of Madras and Bombay, composed of high-caste men, whose fidelity and loyalty to the British Government had been conspicuous.

The motion was agreed to nem con.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—APRIL 15.

EDUCATION IN INDIA.

THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, in calling the attention of the House to a letter from Lord Ellenborough to the Chairman and Deputy-Chairman of the East India Company, dated the 28th of April, 1858, explained that the document in question was a letter of advice, as it might be called, to the Directors of the East India Company to rescind the policy pursued in regard to education since the year 1854. The despatch issued in 1854, on which that policy was based, recommended grants in aid as the least aggressive and cheapest mode of furthering education in India. According to the regulations then laid down both missionary and secular schools were supplied by grants in aid, which was the only chance of extending education without offending the religious prejudices of the people. He contradicted the assertion in the letter, that these grants violated the principle of neutrality; for the question was not whether the aid of Government should be extended to missionary schools, but whether, when Government supported other schools, missionary schools should be excluded. That would not be equality, but a direct violation of that principle of neutrality on which these grants were made. Such a measure would be most injurious to the natives, for the education given by the missionary schools was much better than that of the secular schools,—was almost entirely secular. He considered that if the grants were withdrawn from those schools, they would be withdrawn from the best schools in India. He could not deny that the expenses of those schools had increased, but he did not think that £200,000 was too great a sum to expend for education over all India, and he trusted that retrenchment in our Indian expenses would not begin there. By extending education we should strengthen our power in India, for the natives would perceive that their interests, more than ours, were bound up in preserving their connection with this country. He moved that an humble address be presented to her Majesty for a copy of the regulations and conditions under which grants in aid of schools are afforded by the Government of India; also, return of the number of schools which have received such grants, distinguishing those which are under native management and those which are conducted by Europeans; and of the amount of such grants in each case.

LORD ELLENBOROUGH would not make himself ancillary to getting up a debate on Indian education. The letter in question had never been acted on, or even submitted to the Court of Directors; it only contained his private opinion on educational matters in India. His letter, besides, had reference only to Berar, not to the whole of India, where different opinions and feelings were entertained in different parts. It was in that district that the revolt had been most difficult to suppress, because it was there that the greatest fears had existed about their religion. He had never objected to the grants in aid; still, he thought that nothing would more tend to tranquillise India than that Government should not aid the missionary schools, as it was necessary to fix in the native mind that neither covertly nor openly should their religion be undermined.

THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH thought that we could not better enter upon good government in India than by extending Christianity. If the principle of neutrality were carried out it would be only proscribing the religion we ourselves profess.

LORD DERBY explained the steps taken by the Secretary for India to ascertain the present condition of education in that country since the regulations of 1854, and how far those regulations were connected with the revolt, and what effects the grants in aid had produced. The operation of the policy of 1854 had been very different in different parts, and the probable cause of that was that alarm for their religion had been excited in the minds of the natives in one place, but not in another. He informed the Duke of Argyll and Lord Ellenborough that a despatch on this subject had been sent to India. The Government of India, in that despatch, were ordered to make no alterations in existing practices without instructions from home, and were asked for additional information on that question. He would suggest to the Duke of Argyll that he should move for the document, as it contained all the information on the subject, instead of the papers stated in the terms of the motion.

THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, in accordance with the suggestion of Lord Derby, modified his motion, which was then agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—APRIL 15.

INDIA.

IN REPLY to various questions, LORD STANLEY said he was not yet furnished with the official details regarding the transactions at Travancore, and declined to give any opinion upon an hypothetical statement of the case. He said the Government, after considering the subject, did not mean to extend to the retired field officers of the Indian artillery and engineers the privilege enjoyed by those of the royal artillery and engineers of not being superseded in rank by their brother officers who remain on the effective strength of their corps. With respect to the Indian tariff, the only copy he had received was a draught of the Act before it had passed the Legislative Council; and as to whether the Government of India, in the alteration of the duties, acted on their own responsibility, he said he understood that the Legislative Council had the power of altering the tariff without authority from this country.

H.M.'S TROOPS IN INDIA.

IN ANSWER to Sir G. LEWIS, General PEARL stated that the number of troops on the Indian establishment was, he believed, seventy-two regiments of infantry and twelve of cavalry; that there was no wish to impose upon the Indian Government more troops than they desired, and he was ready to receive as many as they could dispense with. So far from wishing to impose upon the Indian Government more troops, the difficulty had been to find the number they required.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STOPPAGE OF WHITE AND CO.'S BANK, HAY-MARKET.—It incidentally came out at the last examination of Mortimer and Marshall, at Bow-street, on Monday last, on the charge of having conspired to sell a commission in the army, that the bank of Messrs. White and Co., of the Hay-market, with which the prisoners banked, had stopped payment and was closed. The books of the concern were stated to be in the hands of the official assignee of the Court of Bankruptcy. Messrs. White and Co. were known as East-India army agents as well as bankers. The prisoners Mortimer and Marshall were committed for trial after their final examination.

THE EAST-INDIA COMPANY.—At a meeting of the Court of Directors of the East-India Company, held at the India-house, on the 13th inst., Colonel W. H. Sykes, M.P., was unanimously elected chairman for the year ensuing.

BOOKS.

The History of the Application of the Roman Alphabet to the Languages of India.
Edited by Monier Williams, M.A. London: Longman and Co.

Mr. Monier Williams entertains a charmingly simple notion of the duties of an editor. Certain papers were entrusted to him for publication by Sir Charles Trevelyan on his departure for Madras, and these he has arranged in chronological order, but without taking any further trouble about them. "Even the errors of orthography, which," as he naively remarks, "I might have corrected with little trouble, have been allowed to stand. . . . I have acted on the principle that even inaccuracies of scholarship, when regarded as historical, become interesting and instructive." A convenient excuse truly for shirking the ordinary functions of an editor; but in what sense, then, does he mean that this "history," as he calls a series of letters, has been "edited" by himself? However, our business is not with Mr. Monier Williams, but with the merits of the question so long, so earnestly, and hitherto so ineffectually agitated by Sir Charles Trevelyan and his friends.

That it is very desirable that all peoples and nations of the earth should make use of one common set of symbolical characters to represent human speech is a point at once conceded. We even go further, and heartily wish that they would also be content to speak one common language, and that that language should be our own. It is no doubt a grand and fascinating idea that two hundred millions of human beings should be prevailed upon to lay aside the alphabets familiar to their ancestors through a hundred generations, and adopt that acquired by their conquerors a few hundred years ago. For printing purposes, too, it may be admitted that the Roman character is less costly than the more elaborate symbols of Oriental literature; nor need we deny that the absence of capital letters among the latter is decidedly an inconvenience. The introduction of the Romanised system of Hindustani would likewise be very acceptable to the lazier portion of the European community, and to the easy-going school who derive interest and instruction from the "inaccuracies of scholarship." What may be the other advantages expected to result from such a radical innovation we are still at a loss to discover.

In the first place, it is acknowledged by the most enthusiastic Romanisers that several generations must elapse before their system could become general or popular. Now, before that period could arrive, it is just possible that the English language and literature will have become familiar to almost every native of India at all raised above the peasantry. Instead of wasting time and energy in the retrogressive effort to facilitate the use of the Eastern tongues and their barren literature, it would surely be more in harmony with the spirit of the age to invite both Hindoos and Mahomedans to make themselves acquainted with the fruitful learning of the West. The Romanisers appear to imagine that this will immediately follow upon the introduction of their favourite characters,—a theory quite unsupported by actual experience. For instance, a modern German may be as well versed in the Roman character as in his own, and yet be totally ignorant of any other tongue. Every school boy, too, learns the alphabet of ancient Greece; but how few ever become familiar with the Greek historians or dramatists? In like manner, it will be found that the mere substitution of the Roman character for Persian, Deva Nagari, or Arabic, will promote only in an infinitesimal degree the study of European literature.

Besides, so far as pronunciation is concerned, the substitution of the Roman character will be rather an obstacle than otherwise. A fixed and unchangeable sound, say the innovators, shall be given to the vowels; but what will be the consequence when the students come to apply this standard to English, French, or Italian? Dr. Duff and Mr. Williams laugh to scorn the idea that there is any connection between the Roman alphabet and English orthography. And so far they are perfectly right; but what becomes, then, of the argument that the use of the Roman character will so greatly facilitate the acquisition of English? They, or their friends, admit that the natives would under any circumstances continue to learn the ancient characters of the land, and thus the case would stand exactly as it does at present. Those who wish to acquire English will do so whether they use a different or a similar character in writing their own language. Certainly the slight effort required for mastering the Roman alphabet will never deter any one from making the attempt.

"It is but little," says Mr. Williams, "that the advocates of the Roman alphabet solicit. All they ask of the Government of India is, that their system shall be allowed fair play and perfect toleration." But what, then, is the meaning of the turgid phrases that precede this reasonable request. "Let all," he says, "who desire the welfare of the people of India join heart and hand in this good cause, without waiting for the Government to take the lead. It is the glory of England that, unlike other great empires, its Government is moved by the community, and not the community by the Government. Though the Queen be supreme, the will of the majority rules the land. Public opinion, therefore, must be brought to bear on the executive, ere that power can accord the weight of its sanction to the introduction of changes. But let the public will once be unmistakably expressed, and the executive authority must bend to its decision."

Who would imagine all this pompous declamation had reference to the introduction of a new form of symbols into India? It is, we presume, to be made a hustings' cry, and every candidate for election must be asked if he will vote for the Romanised alphabet. In order to secure "fair and perfect toleration" for the crotchets of Sir Charles Trevelyan and a handful of admirers, "the will of the majority" is to be "brought to bear on the executive," and then, "though the Queen be supreme," the Calcutta School-book Society will be able to dispose of such interesting works in the "Urdu Roman," as "Little Louis," and "Little Anna," and "The Narrative of the Man that killed his Neighbour," which at present load their shelves and absorb their capital. A fitting anti-climax to such nonsensical bombast.

ALLEN'S

MAPS OF INDIA & CHINA.

MAP of INDIA; showing the British Territories subdivided into Collectorates, and the position and boundary of each Native State; chiefly compiled from Trigonometrical Surveys, executed by order of the Honourable Court of Directors of the East India Company. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 6 in. high; 5 ft. 8 in. wide. £2; or, on cloth, in a case, £2. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, £3. 3s.

The object kept in view in compiling this map has been to render it available to the greatest possible extent for popular use. For this purpose the names of all stations, civil and military, are inserted, as well as those of all towns and places of note likely to be looked for. To make clear the subdivisions of the whole of the country, both British and native, the limits of the various districts and collectorates, with their names, are distinctly indicated. The railways and telegraphs are laid down, and the trunk roads conspicuously coloured. The newly-acquired district in Burmah is included. To avoid, however, the confusion consequent upon over-crowding, and make the map clear and easy for reference, the names of many small villages, and places of no present importance, have been omitted, and thus a very wide measure of comprehensiveness has been attained, while needless diffusiveness has been avoided.

A GENERAL MAP of INDIA; compiled chiefly from Surveys executed by order of the Honourable East India Company, with the railways and telegraphs. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 3 in. wide; 5 ft. 4 in. high. £2; or, on cloth, in a case, £2. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, £3. 3s.

MAP of the ROUTES in INDIA; with Tables of Distances between the principal Towns and Military Stations. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

In this map are given the whole of the military and civil stations, together with the principal towns, the villages being omitted, so as to make the stations more prominent. The colouring defines the boundaries of the three Presidencies, and shows also the railways and telegraphs.

MAP of INDIA and CHINA, BURMAH, SIAM, the MALAY PENINSULA, and the EMPIRE of ANAM. On two sheets—Size, 4 ft. 3 in. wide; 3 ft. 4 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £1. 5s.

MAP of the PUNJAB and SIKH TERRITORY. On one sheet, 5s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 6s.

MAP of AFFGHANISTAN, and the ADJACENT COUNTRIES. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

MAP of CHINA, from the most Authentic Sources of Information. One large sheet—Size, 2 ft. 7 in. wide; 2 ft. 2 in. high. 8s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 11s.

MAP of the BURMAN EMPIRE, showing the Annexed District of Pegu. One sheet, 3s. 6d.; or, on cloth, in a case, 5s.

A MAP of the WESTERN PROVINCES of HINDOOSTAN, the PUNJAB, CABOOL, SINDE, BHAHULPORE, &c., including all the States between Candahar and Allahabad. On four sheets—Size, 4 ft. 4 in. wide; 4 ft. 2 in. high. 30s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £2; rollers, and varnished, £2. 10s.

MAP of ARABIA, from all the most recent Authorities, by order of the Court of Directors of the East India Company. Size, 3 ft. 3 in. high; 4 ft. 3 in. wide. On cloth, in a case, £1. 6s.

HAND-BOOK to the MAPS of INDIA, giving the Latitude and Longitude of all places of note. By Major H. V. STEPHEN, late of Bengal Army Revenue Survey Department. In 18mo, bound, price 5s.

MAP of INDIA; from the most recent Authorities, showing the railways and telegraphs. On two sheets—Size, 2 ft. 10 in. wide; 3 ft. 3 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £1s. 1s.

MAP of the STEAM COMMUNICATION and OVERLAND ROUTES between ENGLAND, INDIA, CHINA, and AUSTRALIA. In a case, 14s.; on rollers, and varnished, 18s.

their Political and Commercial Importance considered in connection with Improved Means of Communication. Illustrated by Statistical Tables and Maps.

By W. P. ANDREW, F.R.G.S., Chairman of the Scinde and Punjab Railways, and Indus Steam Flotilla; Author of "Indian Railways as connected with the Power and Stability of the British Empire in the East," &c., &c., &c.

"The Indus and its Provinces" is really as interesting to the general reader as it is essential to the merchant, the trader, the politician, and the historian.—Morning Chronicle, May 27, 1858.

"Not contented to repose on his laurels as the early advocate for the construction of Railways in India, Mr. Andrew has steadily persevered in developing his original idea, and now, after twelve years of incessant application, we find him concentrating his energies on the improvement of land and river communication in Scinde and the Punjab, though with ulterior views, extending far beyond the immediate benefit of those Provinces."—Allen's Indian Mail, June 13, 1858.

BANKERS.

Messrs. Martin and Co., 68, Lombard-street.
The National Bank, 13, Old Broad-street.

The Company founded under the above title is intended to supply the mercantile and trading community with additional facilities to those that are at present afforded them by existing establishments for the discount of bills.

It is well known that the channels now in existence for the discount of bills, including those of the class known as trade bills, are inadequate to the growing trade and commerce of the country. The Directors fully expect that, under prudent and skilful management, a dividend of from ten to twelve per cent. on the paid-up capital will be realised the first year; and the offers of support and business which are promised to this Company justify the Directors in entertaining these expectations.

It must be admitted by all who have given any attention to the progress of the different banking institutions now in existence, that their large dividends (yearly increasing) are mainly produced by the discounting of bills. To show that this Company will be highly remunerative to the Shareholders, a tabular statement is annexed of the dividends declared at the last half-yearly meetings by the undermentioned banks, and also the present market prices of the respective shares; and there exists every probability that the Mercantile Discount Company will rival in success any of the undermentioned establishments. When the fact is considered that the present is the lowest price money has been at for very many years, and that, consequently, profits are less easily earned, it remains incontestable that the slightest advance in the value of money will tend still further to augment the dividends, and, consequently, enhance the value of these shares.

Yielding an average on the above of 15½ per cent. dividend, and of 10½ per cent. on the paid-up capital.

The Directors have it in contemplation to establish agencies in Liverpool and Manchester, as the prospects of a profitable business may warrant them in so doing.

The capital of the Mercantile Discount Company will be £200,000, in 4,000 shares of £50 each, on which £25 per share will be at once paid, making the paid-up capital £100,000.

The usual business of discount houses will be carried on, including the discounting of good trade bills.

Money will be received on deposit from the public, interest on which will be allowed, regulated by the rates of the day, of which notice will from time to time be given.

The Company will not open any drawing accounts with their customers.

Each application for shares must be accompanied by a payment to one of the bankers, named within, of £5 per share on the number applied for, or a remittance of the same amount to the secretary direct (according to the convenience of the applicant). Should no allotment be made to the applicant, the money thus paid will be returned, free of charge; if an allotment be made less than the number applied for, the amount paid will be applied towards the payment of the deposit on such number of shares as are allotted.

The Directors reserve to themselves the right of allotting the shares in such numbers and to such persons as they may think desirable; and on any occasion when it may be necessary to make a choice of business (other qualifications being equal), a preference will invariably be given to the shareholders of this Company.

Applications for shares to be forwarded to the Secretary at the temporary offices of the Company, 80, Lombard-street, London (on the form attached hereto), of whom, or of the brokers, or solicitors, prospectuses may be had.
London, April 14, 1859.

JEREMIE'S SEDATIVE SOLUTION

(The Recipe of which has recently become the property of Messrs. SAVORY and MOORE) has long been celebrated in India as an invaluable ANTI-CHOLERAIC and ANTI-SPASMODIC MEDICINE.

Official Reports of Military Medical Officers, and private ones from Civilians of the highest rank, afford abundant proof of the importance with which it is still regarded in that country.

During the recent visitations of Cholera to the United Kingdom, JEREMIE'S OPIATE acquired considerable popularity as affording speedy relief in the early stages of the disease, and effectually arresting its progress. In all cases where the use of a sedative is indicated, JEREMIE'S SOLUTION may be safely and advantageously administered. The fact that its exhibition is not followed by those distressing symptoms which more or less characterise other preparations of Opium, warrants the preference which is accorded to it by so large a number of the Medical Profession.

Copy of a letter addressed to Messrs. SAVORY and MOORE by the lady of an eminent official personage in India, during the last outbreak of Cholera:—

"Be so good as to send me six bottles of your JEREMIE'S DROPS. I wish to promote the use of this Medicine at these times, because my own personal experience of it gives me such unlimited confidence in its success. I am told by the doctors now, that sulphuric acid is the great remedy for Cholera; I am not acquainted with this remedy, but the JEREMIE'S DROPS I used every day during a period of ten years in Calcutta, and every one knows that the form of Cholera in Bengal is very deadly. I have given it alike to all patients, whether European or Native, and as I had an establishment of my own of sixty-three male servants, and distributed to them and to all their families, as well as to all the poor around, my experience has been large. During this whole period of ten years I only lost one patient, a poor Native, who bathed in my tank after being seized with cholera. One varies the dose of from five to forty drops, according to the strength of the disease. The chief care is to repeat it in small doses after each purging or vomiting. After cramp and collapse have come on, I have recovered my patient by a forty-drop dose. I have always seen this remedy used by the first medical men in Calcutta. I also used mustard poultices largely to calves of legs, soles of feet, and stomach."

N.B.—A compound of a deleterious character is imposed upon the public as JEREMIE'S SOLUTION OF OPIUM, by means of falsified labels, wrappers, and bottles. Purchasers are therefore cautioned that the Government Stamp on every genuine bottle contains the names and address of the proprietors,

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.

"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT. WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 300 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so harmful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 6d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 6d.

Post office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each. Postage, 6d.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH, New Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease.

This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygienic agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygienic system of medicine introduced by James Morison, the Hygienist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

Appearance.—By the first sight are most things judged, and partially or prejudice for the object is formed at once. In the human body disease is always pitiable; but some cutaneous diseases are almost repulsive. Whatever their nature, duration, or intractability, they are invariably cured by the conjoint use of Holloway's purifying remedies—which, acting on the blood, reach the most distant vessels in the body, thoroughly cleanse them, displacing all disease, and restoring softness and elasticity to the skin, and a perfectly clear and healthy complexion. These inestimable medicaments are the safest and best preparations extant for cleansing, beautifying, and preserving the skin. They are, at all times, perfectly harmless, and their purifying effects are always permanent.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unobtainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

This publication stands on quite a different ground from the other monthlies, and affects no rivalry with them. We beg to add our own recommendation to those it has already received. Though the conductors disclaim the idea of filling any vacuum, they certainly do so. They evidently also possess good information, and deal with most of their topics in a serious and searching spirit.—Press, March 5, 1859.

If it proves to be, what from the first number seems likely, a publication appealing more to the higher class of readers, whose wants are at present only supplied by the Quarterly Reviews, its chances of success will certainly be very considerable. There is no conceivable reason why articles written by and addressed to thoughtful men should only make their appearance four times in the twelvemonth, but, on the contrary, every reason to suppose that a monthly collection of such would meet with a ready and extensive sale. The purely political articles are on "Indian Finance" and "Parliament and the People," the last, especially, very ably written.—Globe, March 2, 1859.

First of all, let us bid welcome to the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," published by Messrs. Allen and Co., of 7, Leadenhall-street. It is sought to establish a sort of English "Revue des deux Mondes." This design is strictly carried out.—Literary Gazette, March 5, 1859.

Its articles, which are of a thoroughly miscellaneous character, are promising enough.—John Bull, March 5, 1859.

It is a new monthly magazine, that brings itself modestly into the world without any flaming announcement of the wonders it intends to do. . . . We are very glad to see in the first number a quality which gives it a full title to existence, viz., good sense, as opposed to the ordinary affectation of omniscience, superciliousness, or an unflagging vis comica. . . . We welcome any novelty in literature which promises to be sensible, well-informed, and gentlemanlike. There are several articles of merit in this number. That on "Literature and Life" is perhaps the best. Its remarks on Mr. B. Hope's notion of making literature a profession are perfectly sound. The very clever and much-wanted article against the silliness of our present Christmas pieces for the stage should be read by all who fancy they like going to see such things. The article on "Parliamentary Reform" we have had occasion to notice elsewhere; that on "Indian Finance" deserves attention; and that on "Hallam" is sure to get it without deserving it so much.—Spectator, March 5, 1859.

The first number of a new monthly publication, the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," deserves a cordial welcome. Professionally based upon the plan of the "Revue des deux Mondes," it exhibits much of the scholarly spirit, the freedom and independence of thought, and the thorough geniality of tone, which mark its distinguished prototype. The opening article on "Literature and Life" is remarkable, hitting the case to a nicety, taking the middle course between the reckless Mohockism of Bohemia, and the affected kid-glove refinement of the Saturday Review. All the articles are excellent; but I would specially point out a well-deserved attack on "Christmas Pieces," a biographical notice of "Hallam," and a review of Owen Meredith's "Wanderer."—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, March 5, 1859.

The best brief notion we can give of the publication is to say that it promises to become to the English reader what the Revue des deux Mondes is to the French, with an indefinitely wider latitude of topics and freedom of opinion. The soundness of its judgment on the question of Parliamentary Reform is displayed in the ablest and most thoroughly constitutional article that has yet appeared in any of our periodicals on the subject—an article which acquires additional value from the fact that it foreshadowed the whole of the scheme of the Government two days before the Reform Bill was brought forward. Let us have at least one English periodical, written with integrity and good taste, to which we may confidently look for fearless and honest opinions. The "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" promises to realise those expectations, and we heartily wish it the success which it deserves.—Home News, March 3, 1859.

It may with truth be said of it (the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW"), that the opening number promises well. There is a good healthy, manly tone about it (no small thing), and literary ability of no common order. We heartily wish it success.—Overland Mail, March 3, 1859.

The "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" seems to combine, in an eminent degree, the amusement of the monthlies and the grave literature of the quarterly reviews. We regret that we cannot devote more space to the work, for we could not praise it more than its merits deserve.—Bath and Cheltenham Gazette.

The papers are well written.—Patriot.

All the articles are written in an unaffected, free, and genuine style, on subjects of general current interest, not of common-place material. The article on "Henry Hallam" is made truly interesting.—National Standard.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL ARTICLE EVER KNOWN IN THE GROWTH AND IMPROVEMENT OF THE HUMAN HAIR IS

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL, proved beyond question by its results for more than Half a Century past, and when other specifics have failed. It prevents Hair from falling off or turning grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandruff, and makes it beautifully soft, pliable, and glossy. In the growth of the Beard, Whiskers, and Mustachios, it is unfailing in its stimulative operation. For CHILDREN it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR. Its invaluable properties have obtained the Patronage of Royalty, the Nobility, and the Aristocracy throughout Europe; while its introduction into the Nursery of Royalty, and the high esteem in which it is universally held, with numerous Testimonials constantly received of its efficacy, afford the best and surest proofs of its merits.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.; Family Bottles (equal to four small), 10s. 6d.; and double that size, 21s.

CAUTION.—On the Wrapper of each Bottle are the words, "ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL," &c., in white letters, and their Signature, "A. ROWLAND AND SONS," in Red Ink. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, London, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

TEETH

WITHOUT SPRINGS.

110, REGENT-STREET, AND 33, LUDGATE-HILL, Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans.

In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots; the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, wholesome, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accounted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, and may be had gratis, for stamped envelope.

The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores decayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OBSERVE THE NUMBERS.

PREPARED WHITE GUTTA PERCHA ENAMEL, the best Stopping for Decayed Teeth or Toothache, 1s. 6d. per box, obtainable through any Chemist in town or country, or direct Twenty Stamps.

"Messrs. G.'s improvements in Dentistry are really important, and will well repay a visit to their establishments."—Sunday Times, Sept. 6th, 1858.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 13th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta Mail of the 23rd March brings the unwelcome intelligence that the Rao Sahib is again in the field at the head of two thousand horsemen. It is evident, however, that his power of doing mischief is very limited, and that a predatory flight is the only course left open to him. Of the other rebel leaders in Central India we have no further information of a reliable nature.

On the Oude frontier, Brigadier Horsford is keeping a sharp look-out for the insurgents who have fled into the Nepaulese territories. It is said that the Nana Sahib is hovering about the confines of the Tirhoot district, and that a detachment of Europeans are on the watch to receive him; but these rumours are by no means well founded.

Sir James Colville and Mr. W. H. Russell, the Times' "Special Correspondent," are mentioned as about to leave Calcutta in the Nemesis. Mr. Russell's departure is hailed with a shout of delight by the Indian Press, who, having welcomed the coming, are now delighted to speed the parting, guest. Perhaps on the plains of Northern Italy that gentleman may enjoy an opportunity of retrieving the brilliant reputation he has so recklessly damaged by his letters on public men and measures in India.

The arrival of Sir Charles Trevelyan at Madras furnishes legitimate subject for rejoicing to all classes in that Presidency. Such great things are anticipated of the new governor that he will find it no easy matter to justify the expectations that have been formed of his administration. Now that Lord Harris is about to leave them the European residents are suddenly seized with a warm admiration of his abilities as a governor and his virtues as a man, and are presenting to him all sorts of fine speeches and addresses. His lordship visits Calcutta, at Lord Canning's pressing invitation, previous to turning his back for ever on the shores of Hindostan.

The degree of Bachelor of Arts of the University of Madras has been conferred on seven native students of the Presidency College, while Mr. Flynn, "an East Indian gentleman," has achieved the distinction of Bachelor of Medicine.

The chief topic of conversation, however, both at Calcutta and Madras, is the new Customs' tariff. In the latter city the European merchants held a meeting, at which a representative Government was unanimously voted to be the one thing needful, and with which they could no longer dispense. The mercantile community of Calcutta are more practical, if less advanced in their notions of self-importance, and content themselves with protesting against the measure as "a departure from sound commercial policy." They further express their opinion that "a comprehensive scheme of taxation should be carried out, and that a succession-duty, income and property taxes, will be the fairest way of raising revenue to meet the enormously-increased expenditure." It is certainly rather hard that the Europeans should be made to suffer for the delinquencies of the natives, while the latter are petted and rewarded for doubtful services, and exempted from contributing their full proportion to the exigencies of the State.

The China Mail of the 15th March furnishes but little matter of interest to record. Lord Elgin, having left Canton on the 5th, had arrived at Galle, where he awaited his brother, the Hon. Mr. Bruce, the new ambassador plenipotentiary to the Court of Peking. Sir Michael Seymour was to leave Hong Kong on the 18th or 19th, deeply and universally regretted.

A temporal emperor has been crowned at Japan as successor to the late imperial suicide.

We trust that we shall not be thought egotistical if we draw the attention of our readers to Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co.'s forthcoming republication, in a collected form, of the late Sir Henry Lawrence's admirable essays on political and military questions connected with the history and administration of India. We may likewise mention that the May number of the Universal Review will contain two articles of great interest for Anglo-Indians—the one on the "Resources of India and its Colonization," the other on "The Last of the Moguls."

GOVERNMENT MESSAGES.

To JAMES COSMO MELVILL, Esq., India-office, London, from R. SIMSON, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, dated Calcutta, March 22.

OUDE.

Since the date of my last message the rebels, under the Begum and Ram Singh, have recrossed the river Gunduck, and have marched westward through the Nepaul Terai. On the 16th of March about 200 rebels, supposed to be an advanced party, entered the Toolseepore territory. The main body, with the chiefs, were said to be at Bootwul, about twenty-five miles east of the Toolseepore boundary. They are believed to number about 5,000, including women and children. Brigadier Kelly was to have been at Lotun, thirty-six miles from Bootwul, on the 18th inst.

The province of Oude continues tranquil; the disarming of the country and the demolition of the forts progress satisfactorily.

CENTRAL INDIA AND RAJPOOTANA.

Information has been received from Chundeyree that the Rao Sahib, with 2,000 cavalry, arrived in the Chundeyree district on the 13th inst. Arrangements had been made for pursuing him. Overtures of surrender had been received both from the Rao and Feroze Shah, who are both said to be anxious to come in.

Tantia Topee, when last heard of, was threading the jungles on the Chumbul, under the assumed name of Rao Singh.

REWAH AND BUNDELCUND.

On the 4th of March Brigadier Fordyce (?) attacked the rebels under Ferozund Allee and Runmust Singh; 102 of them were killed, and the regimental colours of the 30th N.I., with seventy muskets and rifles, besides numerous matchlocks and swords, were taken. On our side three Sikhs were killed, and one officer and sixteen men wounded. After this defeat Runmust Singh, with the remainder of his party, crossed the Kijnoor range, and on the 19th of March were thirty miles west of Singrowlee, in the Mirzapore district.

FLAX FROM INDIA.—A joint-stock company is in course of formation, for the purpose of procuring a supply of flax from India. This step is to obviate the evils in the linen trade, from the extreme fluctuations in the supply of the raw material. Flax has hitherto been obtained from Ireland and the Continent of Europe. In Ireland people are so reluctant to cultivate it, that no dependence can be placed upon them; while on the Continent they are now such large consumers, that they can spare for us but a very small surplus. Attention is therefore directed to India, the Punjab, it is said, being capable of affording an unlimited supply, of a good marketable quality, which can be shipped from Kurrachee at a cost of less than £25 per ton, such flax being worth, under ordinary circumstances, £45 per ton in the English market, thus leaving a large profit, exclusive of the value of the seed. The company is promoted by various leading persons in the linen trade in Belfast, Dundee, and Leeds, and also by several Members of Parliament. The proposed capital is £100,000, with limited liability, and operations are to be commenced immediately, by sending out to the Punjab a competent agent with a supply of the best seed and machinery, and also with the means to purchase flax from the zemindars, and send it home for disposal.

THE PESHAWUR EURASIAN BATTALION.—The Lahore Chronicle gives the strength of the Peshawur Eurasian Battalion. "Its strength is one captain, four sergeants, four corporals, and ninety eight privates, but it will be joined here by six privates from the Citadel, and one from Mooltan, as well as by its commandant, Captain J. Woods, of H. M.'s 81st regiment, and its adjutant, Lieutenant C. H. Griffin, of H. M.'s 98th regiment, who has been on a fruitless recruiting expedition to Bombay." The success of the effort to recruit in Calcutta was trifling.

BENGAL.

THE HONORARY MAGISTRATES.

We have been led, though by no fault of our own, into an injustice towards the Government of India. The circular dismissing the honorary magistrates, as published in the Englishman, contains these words:—

"The Hon. the President in Council has been pleased to sanction the establishment proposed for honorary magistrates in Behar, with a special allowance to the gentlemen employed in Shahabad for a further period of one year; whilst his Honour in Council expresses his doubts of the necessity of retaining honorary magistrates in Bengal, and desires that the question of reducing their establishments may be taken up as soon as possible."

"The Lieutenant Governor desires therefore to convey to each honorary magistrate his warm acknowledgments and thanks for the services which have been thus rendered, and at the same time to intimate to him that from the 1st March his functions as an honorary magistrate in Bengal must cease, and his establishment should be paid up and discharged from that date."

That statement, with an eulogium on the magistrates, undoubtedly leaves the impression that their dismissal was the act of the Government of India.

That Government, however, resists this interpretation of its wishes. The magistrates had been applied for only as a temporary measure, and the only order issued by the Supreme Government was in the financial department, and contained a doubt whether it was necessary to continue the experiment, and a suggestion as to the reduction of their establishments. The dismissal of the magistrates en masse, and so suddenly, was not the policy or the wish of the Governor General, who, it is said, considered that those gentlemen had done good service at a most critical period. Indeed, it seems doubtful whether, if the remark of the financial department had not been thus misunderstood, the experiment would not have been continued.—Friend of India.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL'S DEFENCE.

The necessity of an increase in the tariff is patent to all who understand the present position of the finances. The wisdom of the detailed changes proposed may be allowed without much hesitation. The Governor General, however, not content with proving that new taxes are unavoidable, attempts to prove that they could not have been avoided. The fault, he says, is not his. The revenue was in a sound position in 1857. It was the mutinies, and they alone, which caused the catastrophe. Since May, 1857, it has been necessary to import 52 regiments of infantry, 9 regiments of cavalry, and 38 companies of artillery and engineers. To keep this army up to its strength, 20,000 recruits have been forwarded to Bengal alone. The purchase of 70,000 stand of arms, of 5,000 horses, and 186,000 rounds of shot and shell has involved an enormous outlay. Prices of every description have risen rapidly, sometimes to 300 per cent. on their ordinary value. The expenditure on the commissariat has been doubled, and the deficit in the single year 1858-59 will, he fears, be at least thirteen hundred lakhs of rupees (£13,000,000). In short, the mutinies and the Europeans have done it all. The expenditure is all necessary, there has been no waste, no want of careful watching. A stranger reading the speech might imagine that the European army was the sole one in India, that the finances had no strain upon them beyond that produced by the heavy but temporary charges of a war. Not a word is said of the old native army, still drawing extra batta in stations under the viceroy's windows; of that gigantic native force which no adjutant general can enumerate, and no auditor attempt to restrain;

of the wild expenditure on staff appointments; of the mismanagement of the money market, in itself involving a charge of lakhs of rupees a year.

How stands the fact? The new army which has been raised by the Governor General himself, which now exceeds the sepoy army by one third in numbers, which is as unnecessary as it is dangerous, costs in pay alone, according to the Government Gazette, two millions sterling a year, or double the proceeds of the tariff. Suppose one-half the number, or 70,000 men, had been raised, as the wisest men in India advised, would not the revenue have been relieved to that extent? For nearly two years thirty regiments of the revolted army were still kept up, disarmed, sullen, and useful only to paralyse the increasing European force. Their cost, by the Governor General's own statement, was £750,000 a year. Suppose, instead of leaving them to divide the Europeans into petty brigades, the Bengal army had been officially annihilated in January, and the sepoys marched with European sabres behind and before them into Oude. We might have had 30,000 more ruffians in the field against us, but they would have served only to increase the slaughter. We should have saved not only their cost, or the whole amount of taxation now imposed on Europeans, but the expense of the hundreds of staff appointments created to find employment for the officers of the army. Who, again, will tell us the total expense incurred in the protraction of the campaign, an expense owing entirely to the impolicy which, by exempting the sepoys from execution, confounded them with the masses of the people? Had the order gone forth in September, 1857, to spare the people and slay every sepoy, the war would have ended in February, and a quarter of a million (?) lives would have been saved. As it was, a false pity for men, all of whom, when not murderers, were mutineers, placed them and the people on the same footing, enabled the leaders to levy new armies, and protracted the war into a third campaign. We are not blind to the expense of the European army. Northerners, fighting in a tropical climate sixteen thousand miles from home, must always be expensive. But, supposing seventy thousand new troops to have landed, their expense for two years, on the very largest estimate, cannot have been more than fourteen millions, a hundred pounds a-year a man. That is the deficit of one year, about a third of the sum the mutinies will have cost by May, 1859. Had the Government of India been composed of statesmen, had they at once recognised the fact that an armed native is only a possible foe, had they dissolved every native force except the Sikh, and left the war to Englishmen and Punjabees, the financial crisis would be already past, and the danger already reduced to manageable proportions. As it is, we believe with Lord Canning that the empire is not exhausted, but it is only because she can lean on the boundless strength of England.

So again with the loan operations. The empire is borrowing money at about one per cent. more than would have been necessary had her rulers been financiers. It is easy to assign this and that cause for failure, mutinies, ancient blunders, panics, we know not what. But the test of statesmanship is success, and the financial department has not been successful. Failures, however brilliant, are still useless. All the wit in the world will not make a soldier who loses every battle a great general. All the science in the world will not make a great financier of a man who can get no money. The department has failed, and the penalty of blunders is borne, as usual, by those whose advice would have prevented them.

While, then, we admit the necessity of increasing the taxes, and accept the device adopted as wise and just, we still submit that the necessity has been caused by the weakness and want of policy of the existing administration.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.—The third examination for entrance into the University, which closes to-day (March 17), seems to have called forth an increased number of candidates. In 1857, 244 were examined, in 1858, 464, and on the present occasion there are as many as 708, and this notwithstanding the confusion of the past year, and the partial cloud over all educational operations. The minimum age fixed for entrance candidates is sixteen years, but the average age of those who have on this and the preceding occasions gone up is nearly nineteen. Either the standard is too high, or unsuited to the present state of education in the lower schools and colleges. There are one or two cases of candidates of twenty-seven, not a few of twenty-five, and a large proportion of twenty. We shall reserve further remark until the whole of the questions and the results have been made public, and merely furnish an analysis of the list, comprising the 708 candidates for academic distinction in its lowest form. The number of aspiring "diggorydars" will not, we believe, exceed thirty. As to creed we have the following:—Muslims, 17. Christians—Europeans, 5; East Indians, 27; Natives, 5; total, 37. Hindoos, 654. As to the one language in which, in addition to English, all are examined—Hindee, 1; Persian, 2; Sanskrit, 8; Oriya, 9; Latin, 25; Oordoo, 27; Bengali, 636. It will be seen that Arabic has not a solitary representative, while Persian has only two, and Sanskrit but eight. As to the districts to which the candidates belong, they stretch from Ceylon on the south-east to Ajmere on the north-west. Ajmere, 5; Benares, 6; Behar (Patna), 7; Ceylon, 8; Orissa (Cuttack), 9; Bengal, 673. These results may be considered as, on the whole, correct. Even though a very small percentage of such of the 708 as pass, continue their studies for the arts degrees, the influence exercised by the University on the lower education is very wide. It is as yet in its infancy. It has yet to gain a reputation.—Friend of India.

SIMLAH.—The Commander in Chief is on his way to Simlah with his staff. If this movement were absolutely essential to health, we should be the last to grudge Lord Clyde any needful relaxation. But if it be not, if the move has been adopted only as the pleasantest of two alternatives, we must be permitted to record it with extreme regret. Parliament is now sitting, and the reorganization of the Indian army cannot be much longer delayed. By August final orders ought to have arrived, and the presence of the Commander in Chief with the Governor General will be almost indispensable. Nothing can be effected without Lord Clyde's opinion, and every reference will involve a delay of twenty days, besides an interminable correspondence. Travelling in August involves sometimes a positive risk of life, and we may be sure the staff who avoid the plains in the heat will not be anxious to seek them in the rains. The delays in this matter already have been almost unendurable, and to postpone the reform when sanctioned, in order that the two controlling authorities may live twelve hundred miles apart, is as repugnant to justice as to policy. From the day it was leased Simlah has been the Capua of the Indian empire.—Friend of India.

PURNEAH, March 9.—This is a most curious season for our Indigo prospects. Generally speaking, rain in February is a sure sign of a favourable season; but this year we have had such a succession of rain, fog, mist, dew, and winds from all points of the compass, that more harm than good has been done. We sowed high lands with the first showers in the greatest glee, when down came more rain and caked it all, thereby putting us to great expense in re-sowings, besides throwing back the sowings of the low lands, which are so wet that they can neither be ploughed nor sown. Many with the first rain began to look forward to the manufacturing with high hopes; but we should not whistle till we are out of the wood, as the saying is. For my part, I expect we shall have too much rain during the whole season.

TWO OF A TRADE, &c.—The Hurkaru states that the investigations at the Chandney Native Hospital, to which we alluded in our last, have resulted in the resignation of Mr. Foy. Mr. Foy, it appears, was accused of neglecting the hospital to cultivate private practice. In revenge he accused Dr. Webb of falsifying the hospital returns in order to deceive the public. A strict investigation was ordered, and, as might have been expected, Dr. Webb exonerated of all but carelessness. He had carefully prepared the case book, which therefore accorded with fact, but he signed another return drawn up by other people, and which it seems was inaccurate. So far from trying to falsify cases he had introduced a new and very elaborate record. The Committee of the Hospital have sentenced him to reside in the building, a hard sentence on a man in great practice, and who has not the option of resigning.

LUCKNOW AS IT IS.—The Lucknow Herald draws at great length a picture of the city as it now is. The Residency is a heap of ruins, the church is levelled with the ground, tombs erected over many of those who fell during the siege (over Fulton and Banks, but not Sir Henry Lawrence), the iron and stone bridges that span the Goomtee are much shattered; the Emambarrah is filled with soldiers; the Taboor Buksh turned into mission premises; the damage at the Martinière, where the rebels stalled their cattle, partially repaired; the Kaiser Bagh, where habitable, tenanted by officers; the mosque of Sahadut Ali is a Protestant church; a cenotaph marks the spot where Jackson and Orr were shot; the Chutter Munzil is changed into public offices, the Motee Melhal taken possession of by the commissariat department, and a Muckburah made a reading-room. Fine streets have been opened out through the city and along the Goomtee, the latter forming the "Strand." The new cantonments are to extend between the Dilkoosha and Alum Bagh, a new church is being built, and impregnable fortifications are rising fast. On the whole, Lucknow bids fair to rival Allahabad.

A REBEL'S CAREER.—Kootub Shah was a vernacular teacher in the Bareilly College, on a salary of from forty to fifty rupees a month. Thrown out of employ by the mutiny there, he offered his services to Khan Bahadoor Khan. He was appointed his "Printer in Ordinary," and entered on his duties, by selling the College library by auction in the College compound. Kootub's name appeared prominently at the head of all his master's general orders, and of his proclamation regarding the extermination of the English. On the Khan's fall, Kootub fled to Meerut, and obtained an appointment in one of the new levies. But "murder will out;" he was betrayed, and now awaits his trial.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.—The Delhi Gazette states that during last year the E. I. Railway carried 10,88,697 passengers (121 miles open), the Bombay Railway 6,70,210 (88½ miles open), and the Madras Railway 1,72,985 (81 miles open). The number of casualties on the E. I. Railway during this period was only one passenger, seven railway operatives, and two trespassers. How different this from the English railways! Though natives have, in ordinary cases, a predilection for getting in the way, they are too wide awake and too timid to do so near the railway line. Accidents ought to be impossible at the slow pace at which our trains go.

CAPTAIN SAVARY.—Those to whom Captain Savary, an old Company's officer on the invalid establishment, long resident in Oude, was known, will be sorry to learn that most conclusive proof of his brutal murder by the rebels, during the siege of Lucknow, has been obtained by the authorities. He was literally dragged out of his house in the city into the streets, and there cruelly butchered. This is testified to by the people residing in the same neighbourhood, who witnessed the tragic scene. Perhaps it is not generally known that Savary had become almost naturalized to the country. He had for years thrown off his Englishman's garb, and adopted the entire native dress.

LOI DES SUSPECTS.—The Meerut correspondent of the Urduo Guide states that all the inhabitants of Delhi who have removed to that place, have been summoned by the magistrate to attend daily in twentys at the Cutcherry, that all particulars regarding them, both at Delhi and Meerut, may be taken down. Of the forty thus entered in two days, ten were suspects.

WHO IS FEROZE SHAH?—Feroze Shah is the son of Mirza Nazim, and his wife Abadee Begum. Mirza Nazim was grandson of Shah Alum, whom the British Government released from the clutches of the Mahrattas in 1803. Abadee Begum was the daughter of Mirza Mungoo, cousin of Akbar Shah, who was King of Delhi, and who was succeeded by Bahadoor Shah, the late rebel king. Mirza Nazim died, and his widow (renowned for her wit and beauty) married Mirza Eliebuksh, by whom Feroze Shah was educated, and who is a good scholar and a red-hot bigot. In 1855 the Begum and her son went to Mecca, returning to Bombay just after the mutiny broke out. They left Bombay in company, and, after joining the Mhow mutineers, came to Gwalior. Feroze Shah marched with the rebel force that was defeated at Agra on the 10th October, 1857; his mother separated from him at Dholepore, and came to Delhi; she at present resides at Nizamooddeen, a shrine seven miles south of this city. Feroze Shah after the defeat at Agra returned to Gwalior, and with the rebel Gwalior contingents marched to Calpee, then to Cawnpore, Lucknow, Rohilkund, &c. Feroze Shah is a man of reserved character, and was fonder of literature than the usual debauchees of the Sulateens, whose excesses made them despised even in the profligate city of Delhi.—New Times.

TWO SIDES TO A QUESTION.—We (Friend of India) have received a copy of a work "The Mutinies and the People, or Statements of Native Fidelity exhibited during the Outbreak of 1857-58; by a Hindoo." The writer holds that the whole career of the Brahmin mutineers throughout the rebellion affords "some of the most remarkable instances of humanity, hospitality, and religiousness that have ever occurred;" that "it was not the love of power, love of sovereignty, love of revenge, or of extermination which actuated the Brahmin sepoys, but of God and of their peculiar mode of his worship." He believes that "all the resources of Great Britain" would not have availed to crush the rebellion, "had not the mass of the people rendered the most active and unflinching aid to the cause of order." The most remarkable thing in the compilation is the number of natives rewarded for acts of loyalty. Few faithful sepoys seem to have been unnoticed.

TIRHOOT, March 12.—After a whole world of alarms and confusions, something definite dawned at last. It was known to all that predatory bands of the rebels were prowling in the Nepal Terai for some time, guided, of course, by the miscreant Nana, and the Lucknow amazon. Their number, estimated by rumour, ranged from six to seven thousand; but they were fugitive vagrants, seeking a home, but finding none. In the egregious folly of their hearts they imagined that Jung Bahadoor would assist them; but they now lament hopes crossed, and expectations vanished. They crossed the Gunduck, and entered the Chumparun district; they were out in their calculations there. Kelly's horse, the sowars from Patna, and a strong detachment of H.M.'s 19th, were sent up to deal liberally with them. They, on their part, did not choose to appreciate our liberality, but depended more on their heels. We hear to-day that they have recrossed the Gunduck and gone into the Goruckpore district.

MOULMEIN.—From the Martaban and Tenasserim Directory we learn that Moulmein contains three hundred European and East Indian inhabitants, and about 43,000 natives, that it has a neat wooden church, military buildings, and court-houses, and twenty-five miles of macadamised road. During the last twenty-eight years 140 vessels have been built in her dockyards, and the arrivals of ships in 1858 exceeded those of 1851 by 113.

BRITISH PLUCK.—The Mofussilite gives another instance of that British pluck which has so frequently been manifested in the rebellion. Mr. John Thornton is assistant superintendent in Rajpootana, and in civil charge of Hoshungabad. Hearing that a large body of rebels had attacked Futtehpoor, he resolved to pursue them at the head of a small body of police, directing another detachment to follow. He came up with the rebels at Marhiaded, captured their baggage, and continued the pursuit, till they, taking heart at the smallness of his force, turned round upon him. From behind the rocks they poured in a deadly fire upon the few police. Thornton seeing that the expected detachment did not come up, and being shot himself in the right elbow-joint, determined, not on retreating, but on forcing a passage through them to Juttah Shunker, which he wished to protect. He succeeded, taking three rebels prisoners, and killing and wounding a great number.

CALCUTTA AUCTION COMPANY.—At the half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Calcutta Auction Company limited, a dividend of ten per cent. was declared. The sales of the half year ending December last amounted to nearly nine and a-half lakhs. They now average about two lakhs a month. The collections are at the rate of Rs. 6,000 a day. The whole sum divisible on a paid-up capital of Rs. 1,98,380, is Rs. 12,238, which would give twenty per cent., but owing to the impossibility of avoiding bad debts, the shareholders reserved a dividend of ten per cent., the remainder being paid towards the formation of a reserve fund. The share list shows 264 proprietors, holding 5,135 shares.

THE PUNJAB.—A plot was recently discovered in Lahore, which seems to have been somewhat carefully concealed. The movers were Cheyt Singh, colonel of an old Sikh regiment, and Boodh Singh, a religious devotee. Seditious papers were found in their houses, and a sort of mystical prophecy, believed to have been very widely circulated. It is written, or pretends to be written, by a Sikh of Jubbulpore, and predicts that in 1863 the followers of Christ will be destroyed, the Sikhs will keep Englishwomen in their houses, and the Khalsa will gain supreme power. It is well to know that a prophecy of that kind is in circulation. Cheyt Singh and Boodh Singh have been sentenced to five years in the Andamans, and the plot, such as it was, seems to have been among the people rather than the soldiery. The Sikhs, however, are a nation, and the blind confidence which is once more growing on us is not without its dangers.

POLICE N.W. PROVINCES.—The commissioner of military police in the North-Western Provinces, some time back reported to Government that great difficulty is experienced in procuring qualified officers to fill the posts of adjutants of police, and suggested that the appointments may be reserved, as a general rule, for the sons of officers of the army, not, however, excluding other gentlemen who may show aptitude for the duties, or choose to qualify themselves for the work. He remarked also on the qualifications requisite for an adjutant, who must undergo an examination, and proposed that half-yearly committees be held at divisional head-quarters of every circle, composed of three officers, for the purpose of examining such candidates. The Government has directed the commissioner to draft a notification for approval, stating briefly the intentions of Government in regard to the opening offered in the police, the periodical examinations, the constitution of the examination committees, the subjects which the examination committees will embrace, the dates on which they will take place, and inviting all candidates on certain fixed dates to send in their applications, together with testimonials of character, to the military secretary.—Englishman.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, Staff, and the Belooch Battalion, left Cawnpore on the 9th March, en route to Simla, via Agra.

MR. A. GROTE, Commissioner of Nuddea, will be appointed Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, on the transfer of Mr. Cecil Beadon to the Foreign Department.

The alteration in the tariff has had no influence on the produce of the country as yet.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, March 22).—The dullness noted in our last report continued up to the middle of the past fortnight, when the addition to the import duties caused considerable excitement in our market; some speculation ensued, and prices advanced considerably. Cotton Piece Goods have been very eagerly inquired for, and the market is very nearly out of stock. Towards the end of last week the continued dullness of White Mule Twist has been succeeded by a very active demand, and decidedly higher prices have been paid. The alteration of the tariff and a brisk demand for actual consumption, particularly for Piece Goods, together have resulted in establishing an advance in prices equal to, if not more than the rise of the duty. Metals.—Since our last issue the addition made to the duties on imports has considerably affected this market, and holders have added the full amount of the extra duties to their prices, but this has not yet been submitted to by purchasers; and we note the market as dull, though we quote prices Rs. 3 higher on Copper, and 2 to 3 as. on Iron.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD HARRIS.—On the afternoon of Tuesday, the 22nd March, a farewell address was presented to Lord Harris. The presentation took place in the Banqueting-hall, and it is said that about three hundred ladies and gentlemen were present. Major general Craigie, who read the address, in the course of the few introductory remarks made by him, mentioned the fact that he had known personally four generations of his lordship's family; first, his lordship's grandfather, the hero of Seringapatam; second, his lordship's father, with whom the gallant general had served in Holland; next, his lordship, and lastly, his two children. The address notices the reforms introduced by Lord Harris in the revenue administration of the Presidency, namely the reduction of the assessment and the commencement of the revenue survey; the new system of Mofussil police; the interest evinced in the cause of education; and the opening of the general and district exhibitions, and his lordship's hospitality. In the course of his reply Lord Harris alluded to all these topics, complimented the officers of Government on the zeal and ability with which they had discharged their various functions, and concluded by acceding with pleasure and gratification to the request of those who had signed the address, namely, that his lordship would sit for his portrait, the original to be placed in the Banqueting-hall, and a duplicate to be presented to his lordship.—Athenaeum.

USURY.—The Madras journals state that since the abolition of the usury laws the courts have been compelled to issue decrees on bonds at 255 per cent. The law in that presidency is considered unwise. There is one usury law, the only one we believe enforced by the common law, which has always seemed to us just. No decree for interest should cover a sum greater than the principal.

SIR CHARLES TREVELYAN, the new Governor, reached Madras on the 28th March. He landed at the lighthouse under a salute of nineteen guns, and was received at that place by the body guard with the garrison band drawn up in review order. His Excellency then proceeded to the Government-office, where he was received by a guard of honour, consisting of a complete company of H.M.'s 44th, the regimental colour and band. The guard of honour remained until his Excellency had taken his seat in Council, which event was notified to the public by a salute of nineteen guns. Gentlemen of the civil and military services met Sir Charles on the beach, and accompanied him to the Government-office, where he was received by the members of council. Immediately after the swearing in, Sir Charles proceeded to Government-house, escorted by the body-guard, and there he was received by another guard of honour, composed of 100 men of the flank companies of the 25th M.N.I., with regimental colour and band.

THE NEW TARIFF.—As soon as it was known in Madras that the duties were to come into immediate operation, those merchants who had goods in bond cleared them; but although the order that the increased rates were to be at once collected did not reach Madras until the 23rd of March, all goods passed after the 12th are declared liable to the enhanced rates! A meeting on the requisition of the leading merchants was called by the sheriff, to protest against this despotic mode of procedure. It took place on the 25th, at Patheappah's Hall. A resolution was carried condemning the precipitancy with which the Act had been passed, and the injustice which it would thereby occasion to the trade of India. Another resolution, proposed by Mr. Branson and seconded by Mr. Norton (both members of the Madras bar), to the effect that a petition should be presented to the Crown praying for representative government, was unanimously carried. Messrs. Branson, Norton, Nelson, Vans Agnew, and Norfor were appointed a committee to draw up the petition.—Athenaeum.

AN IMPARTIAL CRITIC.—Lord Stanley has forwarded to the Madras Government "a graduated series of elementary reading books compiled by Mr. Charles Baker," with a view to ascertain if they are "free from any matter that would make their introduction inexpedient into Government schools." Mr. Baker thinks the generality of the Easy Reading Books used by the Committee of Council in England are not acceptable in India, "inasmuch as they do not preserve that neutrality in religious matters which has been called for by many influential natives," and that his own work, "The Circle of Knowledge," is free from those objections which have been raised against the Irish School Books and the series of Chambers, McCulloch and others. If Chambers is too religious, what must Mr. Baker be?

THE ISLAND OF PERIM.

The fortifications on the island of Perim, regarding which so much was lately written in the French journals, turn out to be neither batteries, ravelins, nor counterscarps; the only erection on the island of Perim being, according to Captain Playfair, a lighthouse, which is not yet finished. Perim is situated in the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, a mile and a half from the Arabian, and eleven miles from the African coast. The formation is purely volcanic, and consists of long, low, and gradually sloping ranges of hills, surrounding an excellent and capacious harbour, about a mile and a half in length, half a mile in breadth, and with a varying depth of from four to six fathoms in the best anchorages. The hills have formerly been intersected with bays and indentures, which in the course of time have been filled up with coral and sand, and are now low plains, scantily covered with salsola, sea lavender, wild mignonette, and other plants which delight in a salt sandy soil. These plains occupy about one-fourth of the island, and occur principally on the north side. The rocks, which are all igneous, are nowhere exposed, save where they dip perpendicularly into the sea; they are covered with a layer of volcanic mud, of from two to six feet in depth, above which is another layer of loose boulders, or masses of black vesicular lava, in some places so thickly set as to resemble a rude pavement. The highest point of the island is 245 feet above the level of the sea. All endeavours to procure water upon it have failed, and but a scanty supply is procurable from the adjacent coasts. Water-tanks have been constructed, which are chiefly supplied from Aden, and it is proposed to erect reservoirs to collect the rain, as well as a condensing apparatus. Perim has never been permanently occupied by any nation save the British. Albuquerque landed upon it in 1513 on his return from the Red Sea, and, having erected a high cross on an eminence, called the island Vera Cruz, it was again occupied for a short time by the pirates who frequented the mouth of the Red Sea, and who amassed considerable booty by plundering the native vessels engaged in the Indian trade. They formed a project of settling here, and erecting strong fortifications; but having with much labour dug through the solid rock to a depth of fifteen fathoms, in a fruitless search for water, they abandoned their design, and removed to Mary's Island, on the east side of Madagascar. In 1799 it was taken possession of by the East India Company, and a force under Lieut. colonel Murray was sent from Bombay to garrison it, with the view of preventing the French troops, then engaged in the occupation of Egypt, from proceeding to India, to effect a junction with Tippoo Sultan; but it was found untenable as a military position, and the straits were too broad to be commanded by any batteries on the shore; the troops were accordingly withdrawn. It will from this be perceived the value England attaches to Perim as a military outpost. But, setting this point aside, we have a perfect right to do with the island as we please. As has been before mentioned, in consequence of the invasion of Egypt by the French, the English Government despatched, in A.D. 1799, a naval force from Great Britain, under the command of Admiral Blanket, to cruise in the Red Sea; and at the same time orders were sent to Bombay, directing the government of that presidency to secure and fortify the island of Perim, situated between the two points which include the straits of Babel-Mandeb, to endeavour to command the channel, so as to prevent all communication, on the part of the enemy, with the Indian Ocean by way of the Red Sea. Accordingly, in the month of April, a detachment of 300 European and native troops, exclusive of followers, under the command of Lieutenant colonel Murray, who was appointed Political Commissioner for the Red Sea, proceeded to execute this service, and on the 3rd of May, the island of Perim, not being claimed by and not being considered as justly pertaining to any government, was formally taken possession of on behalf of the East India Company. From that period till the 1st of September the troops continued in possession of it, but finding, after every practicable exertion had been used, that the island yielded no fresh water, and that the straits could not be commanded by batteries on the shore, Lieut. col. Murray determined to withdraw his detachment, for which he had a strong inducement in the proffered kind offices of the sultan of Aden, who offered to receive them as long as they might choose to remain in his dominions. At this port the troops landed, and were accommodated till the change of the monsoon, in the following March, in a manner exceeding their expectations, and with a cordiality never before experienced in this inhospitable part of Arabia. From that time until some few years ago Perim never occupied the attention of the Indian Government. In consequence, however, of increasing steam navigation in the Red Sea, the attention of the Indian Government has frequently been directed to the necessity of a lighthouse, to facilitate the navigation of the Straits; Perim was, consequently, re-occupied in the beginning of 1857, and a number of labourers sent to commence the work which is now in the course of construction.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

CEYLON.

Colombo, March 29, 1859.—The most interesting topic of discussion during the last fortnight has been the pearl fishery at Aripo, which was visited by His Excellency the Governor. The total result up to date shows that for the ten days' fishing £17,660 have been realised.

During the last fortnight eight vessels have sailed with coffee from Ceylon. The proportions of coffee exported being 200,156 cwts. plantation, and 137,307 cwts. native, making a total of 343,463. Six of the above vessels are bound for London, having on board 37,863 cwts. plantation, and 5,779 cwts. of native; one to Liverpool with 3,201 cwts. plantation, and 477 cwts. native; and the other vessel to Melbourne with 2,039 cwts. plantation and 974 cwts. native. Our total exports since 1st October, 1858, to date are 206,856 cwts. plantation, and 137,307 cwts. native, total, 343,463 cwts.

The Earl of Elgin and Kincardine arrived at Galle in H.M.'s steamer Furious, from China, on the 21st, and came to Colombo on the 26th. His Lordship proceeds to Kandy to-day, where he intends remaining a few days, and then returns to Galle to meet his brother, the Honourable Mr. Bruce, expected by next mail.

His Excellency Sir Henry Ward, after visiting the pearl fishery at Aripo, arrived in Colombo on Saturday last, where pressing business is likely to detain him for some days.—Ceylon Overland Observer.

COFFEE PLANTING.—The Ceylon Examiner gives some interesting statistics, showing the increase of coffee planting in Ceylon. Within the last twenty years the exports have increased tenfold, amounting now to 602,000 cwts., valued at one and a half million sterling. There are 24 planting districts, 404 plantations, and 80,950 acres in cultivation, employing 128,200 labourers. Each plantation is managed by a European superintendent or assistant, and the profit obtained has led to the cultivation of coffee by natives, to the value during the last year of £378,606. There are 2,290 acres of coconut plantation, and 15,000 of cinnamon. A planting "Gazetteer" has just been issued, containing full information as to the estates. To supply the Malabar coolies employed, a rice trade has sprung up between the sea-board and the hills. When the railway is completed, and with such a Governor as Sir Henry Ward, the trade of Ceylon will be immensely developed.

THE CEYLON BRANCH OF THE ASIATIC SOCIETY has resolved, aided by Government, to establish a central museum and library for the whole island, at Colombo, and with a view to collect additional objects and information has circulated "heads of inquiry on such subjects as Agriculture, Trade, Natural Products, Antiquities, Natural Objects, Raw Products, and Manufactures." The Government allow all papers and objects intended for the society to be carried by the "tappal" when practicable. We trust that the effort made by the Calcutta Society to place the whole of their collections under the Supreme Government as the nucleus of an imperial museum will be successful. They might well imitate the Ceylon Branch Society.

SINGAPORE.

THE DUTCH AS COLONISTS.—A Java correspondent of the Singapore Free Press, noticing the Dutch expedition to Boni, exposes the follies and evils of their colonial administration. The press is fettered, projected railways are not executed, telegraphs were made so badly that they last for but two years, money has been disbursed from the treasury for the erection of lighthouses that are still wanting, the fleet is useless, the harbour of Samarang, represented as the finest in the islands, is uncared for, and public works are quite unknown, and the policy so fanatical that tumults and religious outbursts are continually taking place. Yet Java yields three millions annually to Holland. If the British had but kept Java when they had it, what a different state of things would be presented now! The Dutch show some inclination to accommodate themselves to progress by proposing to the States General that from 1864 an alteration in the tariff should take place. Cotton manufactures of Netherlands origin, which at present are admitted at an ad valorem duty of 9½ per cent., and others at 17 per cent., will gradually be reduced, until, in 1870, the duty on all, of whatever origin, will be 6 per cent.

THE BONI EXPEDITION.—The accounts from Boni state that considerable opposition was offered by the bugis to the landing of the Dutch troops at Badjoa on the 12th February. The bugis attacked with both infantry and cavalry, and were only driven back after a loss of 30 men and 11 horses, amongst the first being two chiefs, judging from their dress and arms. The loss of the Dutch amounted to one native sailor killed and a native soldier slightly wounded. On the 17th a reconnaissance was made in the direction of Boni, and on the 19th an engagement took place on the Chinrana. On this occasion the loss of the Dutch was 12 killed and 21 wounded; amongst the former was Lieutenant Schelfhout of the infantry, and amongst the wounded Lieutenant Vander Heyde, of the cavalry, and the marine officer Gravenhorst. In the reconnaissance the commander of the expedition, Major general Steinmetz, received a severe wound in the left arm, and it was feared that amputation would be necessary. He has been obliged to give over the command of the expedition to Colonel Waleson and return to Java.—Singapore Free Press.

THE AMOUNT OF BULLION exported this day per steamer Orissa to Bombay, is £10,000 in gold, and £278,070 in silver. £142,000 of the above silver is sent by Government.

CASH BALANCES.—The following statement of the cash balance in the Government Treasuries in India for the first, second, and third quarters of the official year 1858-59 has been published for general information:—

Date.	Amount of Balance.
On 31st July, 1858....	Co.'s Rs. 12,64,57,299
On 31st Oct., 1858....	" 9,78,86,641
On 31st Jan., 1859....	" 10,48,45,343

HURDEO BUKSH, whose kindness to Mr. Edwards and the Probyns is so well known, received a Khelut and Sunud from Mr. Montgomery ere he left Oude, with the title of rajah, and a jaghire worth Rs. 15,000 a year.

CAPT. G. DELANE will be appointed to act as Superintendent of the Mysore Princes, vice Maj. C. V. Bowie, who, it is said, intends to proceed on furlough to Europe.

H.M.'s 10th Regiment.

Fort William, March 18.—No. 360.—Her Majesty's 10th regiment of foot is about to embark for England.

H.E. the Governor General in Council cannot allow this regiment to pass through Calcutta without thanking the officers and men for all the good service which they have rendered in the last two eventful years; first in the outbreaks of Benares and Dinapore; next a part of the column under their former commander, Brigr. gen. Franks; and more lately in the harassing operations conducted by Brigr. gen. Sir E. Lugard and Brigr. Douglas on either bank of the Ganges.

The Governor General in Council desires in taking leave of the 10th regt. to place on record his cordial appreciation of their valuable services.

The regt. will be saluted by the guns of Fort William on leaving Calcutta.

H.M.'s 32nd Regt.

Fort William, March 18.—No. 861.—The serv. of H.M.'s 32nd L.I., which formed a part of the heroic garr. of Lucknow, and which is now about to leave India, claim a special acknowledgment fr. H. E. the Gov. Gen. in Council.

The Gov. Gen. in Council thanks the 32nd regt. for all that they have done and endured.

H. E. congratulates officers and men on their return home after a long and distinguished career in India, and bids them heartily farewell.

A salute will be fired from Fort William before the departure of the regt.

Leave of Absence to Officers of H.M.'s Regiments.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Calcutta, March 12.

Allahabad, March 3.—No. 41.—In consequence of the increased facilities of communication, leave of absence on private affairs to England for officers of H.M.'s forces will, in future, be limited, except in very special cases, to eighteen months, from the date of leaving their regiments or stations; at the expiration of which period officers will be expected to be actually present with their regiments or departments, as no leave in extension for the purpose of enabling them to join from the port of disembarkation will, in future, be granted.

Orders confirmed:—

By the officer comd. at Mooltan:—

The Compassionate Fund.

Fort William, March 18.—No. 856.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 1,267 of 1857, the following paragraphs of a military letter from the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 45, dated 9th ult., are published:—

* Para. 1.—By the military despatches No. 152 of 1857 and No. 227 of 1858, the late Court of Directors of the East India Company extended to the widows of officers who might fall by the hands of mutineers the benefit of the regulations under which the families of officers killed in action with the enemy become entitled to pensions and gratuities.

"2. The time was now happily arrived when the necessity for these extended rules has nearly ceased to exist, and H.M.'s Government have accordingly decided to rescind the rules established by the despatches above referred from and after the date of your receiving this despatch, after which date no claims to the benefits of the Compassionate Fund will be admitted, except under the old regulations."

The despatch of the Secretary of State having been received on the 15th inst., the above decision will take effect from that date.

The Calpee Despatch.

H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the depy. adj. gen. of the army of the 2nd inst., forwarding a despatch from Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, K.C.B., detailing the operations attending the capture of Calpee on the 24th May, 1858. The report was only received by Govt. in the maily. depart. on the 8th inst.

In publishing it the Gov. gen. in Council desires to take the opportunity of thanking Sir Hugh Rose, and the officers and men engaged in the operations, for the complete success with which these were attended.

From the Depy. adj. gen. of the Army to the Sec. to the Govt. of India, Mily. Depart.

Sir,—In continuation of my letter dated the 19th ult., I have now the honour, by desire of H.E. the C. in C., to forward for submission to H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. in Council, a despatch from Maj. gen. Sir H. Rose, K.C.B., detailing the operations attending the capture of Calpee, dated the 22nd June last, but which has only now reached hd. qrs.

H. W. NORMAN, Maj.,
Depty. adj. gen. of the army.

Hd. qrs., Camp Lucknow,
2nd Feb., 1859.

From Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, K.C.B., comdg. F.D.A. and F.F., to Maj. gen. Sir William Mansfield, K.C.B., Chief of the Staff of the Army in India.

Dated Gwalior, 22nd June, 1858.

Sir,—In reporting to you, for the information of the C. in C. in India, my operations against Calpee, it is my duty in justice to the unvarying devotion and discipline of the troops under my command, to state the new and very serious difficulties which beset them after leaving Jhansi. They had to contend, not only against the rebel army, fighting as usual with all the advantages on their side of very superior numbers and knowledge of the ground, but they had to encounter also a new antagonist, a Bengal sun, at its maximum of heat. This formidable ally of the rebel cause was more dangerous than the rebels themselves; its summer blaze made havoc amongst troops, especially Europeans, who, already exhausted by months of over-fatigue and want of sleep, by continued night-watchings and night-marchings, were often exposed to its rays, manœuvring or fighting as at Koonch, from sunrise to sunset.

At Koonch, the thermometer was 115; before Calpee, 118 in the shade; and on the march to Gwalior, it burst in an officer's tent at 113.

H.M.'s 71st highland L.I., less injured than any other corps to the sun, because just arrived in India, suffered the most from it. Besides the twelve men of a weak wing of this regiment killed in their ranks by the sun at Koonch, a great many more had to go into the field hospital sick from sun-stroke, and the whole wing was more or less affected by it.

The number of officers and men on the sick list, all of whom had to be carried on the march in dhoolies, increased with each day's operations, and in proportion as I was deprived of fighting-men, the difficulties of taking care of the sick and transporting them in continued marches increased. Whilst my force suffered so much from sun-stroke, they were deprived in a great measure of its antidote, water. Between Jhansi and Calpee we found no streams; all was well water; the wells, which are neither numerous nor abundant, being of extraordinary depth: as we approached the Jumna, which increased the difficulties of obtaining water.

Forage also was as scant as water.

The scarcity of these two essentials hurt the efficiency of the cavalry and the transport at the very time that they were both urgently required—the first against the rebel cavalry, whose numbers and organisation made them unusually enterprising; and the latter for the numerous and daily-increasing sick.

The scarcity of water had another disadvantage: it prevented concentration of my force when the strength of the enemy and my difficulties rendered it necessary for a rapid advance against Calpee.

The Enfield rifles had made up a good deal for my inferiority in numbers; that advantage, however, no longer now existed. The heat and other causes had had such an effect on the ammunition of the rifles, that their loading became difficult, and their fire uncertain. The men lost confidence in their arms.

The above were some of the military disadvantages of my position. They were increased by political causes.

The inhabitants of the valley of the Jumna were the most disaffected my force had yet met with. They had been under rebel rule, and had never felt the influence of British power since the commencement of the insurrection. Every village had its one or two Mahratta Pundits, who had most successful propaganda in favour of Nana Sahib as Peishwa. The villagers did good service to the rebels by betraying to them our daks and movements, as well as some carts, when their drivers, on account of the exhausted state of their cattle, could not keep their place in the column, or sought water at a distance from the road.

The rebels had another great source of strength. They fought their best because they were defending Calpee, their best fortified stronghold in Central and Western India, and only arsenal full of warlike stores and ammunition. Calpee, on the right bank of the Jumna, in the hands of the rebels, prevented the concentration of the British armies of the west with those of the east of India; exposed to attack from the line of the Jumna, the army engaged in operations against the insurgents on the Doab, the line of the Ganges, Oude, and Rohilcund, and so long as Calpee was rebel, so long had the enemy in their power to say that the east and west of India might be British, but that the pivot of its centre was theirs.

Whilst so many drawbacks weakened me, the enemy, physically speaking, was unusually strong. They were under three leaders of considerable influence, Rao Sahib, a nephew of Nana Sahib, the Nawab of Banda, and the Ranees of Jhansi. The high descent of the Ranees, her unbounded liberality to her troops and retainers, and her fortitude, which no reverses could shake, rendered her an influential and dangerous adversary. The rebel army was composed of the Gwalior contingent, the finest men, best drilled and organised native troops of all arms in India; other mutinous Bengal inf. regts., such as the 52nd; rebel cav. from Kotah, and a chosen band of Valaitees, the whole reinforced by the force of all arms of the Nawab of Banda, comprising a great deal of mutinous Bengal cav., of which the 5th irreg., dressed in their red uniforms, formed part. All the sepoy regts. kept up carefully their English equipment and organisation; the words of command for drill, grand rounds, &c., were given as we could hear at night, in English.

The numerous difficulties of my situation above recited were rendered more grave by a series of accidents which occurred in the 2nd brig., over which I had no control, and which embarrassed my operations.

I wished to follow up the enemy and attack them as rapidly as possible, whilst still suffering under their reverse at Koonch. For this purpose I marched from Koonch immediately after the actions with the 1st brig., directing the 2nd brig. to follow me at one day's interval, on account of the scarcity of water and forage on the line of march.

A result of this advance was my occupation of the village and strong fort of Hurdowi, one march from Koonch, which the enemy had abandoned in their retreat, and the surrender of its chief, one of the most influential adherents of Nana Sahib.

But a further rapid movement to the front was prevented by Brigdr. Stewart's reporting to me from Koonch that he had been unable to march from that place as I had directed, in consequence of a storm of rain having rendered the tents too heavy for transport. The brig. was delayed three days at Koonch.

Other practical plans of mine were frustrated by similar obstacles.

My original instructions were to take Calpee. I was subsequently directed to make my appearance on some point of the right bank of the Jumna, to effect a communication with Lieut. col. Maxwell, comdg. a column of the Bengal army, who was ordered to co-operate with me against Calpee from the left bank of the Jumna, for the purpose of receiving from him a supply of ammunition for the siege of Calpee, to make good the large amount which my force had expended in the sieges of Chanderey and Jhansi.

I had written Col. Maxwell that I would be on the Jumna, a few miles below Calpee, on the 14th of May: this letter never reached him. The communications with this officer and the left bank of the Jumna were hazardous, and were only effected by spies, in disguise, who conveyed our letters in the heels or soles of their sandals, or in quills in their mouths.

The information which I had collected on the road, and a reconnaissance made by Lieut. Col. Gall, H.M.'s 14th lt. drags., with his usual skill, confirmed all I had the honour to state in my report of the action at Koonch, as to the enemy's elaborate lines of defences for the protection of Calpee, on the main road from Koonch to that fortress.

I could not have concentrated a force, on account of the want of water, against this defence. I determined, therefore, to turn them, to break off to the right, from the high road from Oraye to Calpee, march to the Jumna, to the village of Golowlee, about six miles below Calpee, effect a communication from thence with Lieut. Col. Maxwell, and then, my right resting on the Jumna, and covered by the flank fire of Col. Maxwell's batteries and riflemen from the other bank of the Jumna, advance up its right bank against Calpee. The fort of Calpee, and the part of the town facing my advance, to be well shelled before the attack.

The Jumna is fordable at Golowlee; it stands in the nullahs running down to the Jumna, just outside the dangerous labyrinth of ravines which surrounded Calpee.

My march to Golowlee was, with the exception of a few bad and unbridged nullahs, over a table land, from which, during the monsoon, the waters shed into the ravines.

To mislead the enemy, and mark this movement, I directed the 2nd brig. to close up to Oraye from Koonch, and following the high road to Calpee, take up a position at the village of Banda. This plan was foiled by the brigade's losing its way, and, instead of going to Banda, making a double march, and following me to Sucallee. Their long exposure to the sun in this protracted march caused a great many casualties, and the general prostration of the brigade—Brigdr. Stewart, and the whole of his staff, forming part of the sick list.

It was important to keep the appointment I had made with Col. Maxwell, to be on the Jumna, on the 14th inst. But the 2nd brig. could not, on account of its sickness, co-operate with me; and it would have been hazardous to go too far away from it, weak as it was, especially as the enemy, aware, as I learnt, of the sickness in my camp, and of our difficulties, had concentrated all their cav., with inf. and guns, from their bivouacs in the villages round Calpee, for the purpose of unceasingly harassing my force, in its separated state, by making attacks, feigned and real—falling on parties going for water, wood, grass, &c.; part of their tactics being to force my troops to be exposed, at the hottest time of the day, in large numbers to the sun, which they knew was fatal to Europeans.

In giving assistance to my 2nd brig., I had to be careful that I did not reduce the 1st by too much exposure to sun to the same state of inefficiency.

To meet all these obligations and difficulties, I delayed one day at Etowa, to give a rest to the 2nd brig. at Sucallee, and detaching all my com-riage for the sick to their assistance, and calling off the attention of the enemy from them, by a diversion in an opposite direction. Lieut. col. Campbell, who had succeeded Brigdr. Stewart in the command of the 2nd brig., brought it up to the 1st on the night of the 14th inst., without molestation.

A few hours afterwards, I marched with the 1st brig. and Maj. Orr's force for Golowlee, which I reached with no other opposition than an attack on the baggage by the rebel cavalry, concealed in a ravine; they were put to flight by a troop of the 14th, which, in anticipation of an ambuscade, I had sent to reinforce the rear guard. In this march we crossed the high road from Jullapoor to Calpee. I directed Maj. Orr to drive in a strong picket of the enemy of all arms, posted on this road between us and Calpee; halt afterwards on the road; cover the march of my rear guard to Golowlee; and then encamp at the village of Tehree, near the road, for the purpose of watching it, keeping up my communication with the 2nd brig., and assisting it in its march during the night of the 15th to Diapoor, a village near Tehree.

On my arrival at Golowlee I despatched two of the Hyderabad cav. across the Jumna to Lieut. col. Maxwell, who was about thirty miles off, on the other side of it, requesting him to move up to the river immediately.

I also ordered two Pontoon rafts, which I had brought with great trouble from Poona, to be floated by sun-set on the Jumna, for communication with Lieut. col. Maxwell and transport of the ammunition for my force. The rebels had destroyed or taken to Calpee all the boats on the river.

One of the most important of my instructions was now carried out. My force had marched from Bombay to Jumna, and had effected a union with the Bengal army; the immediate result of which was a combined operation of Bengal and Bombay troops against Calpee.

The advanced guard and centre of the 2nd brig. reached Diapoor on the morning of the 16th, without opposition; but its rear guard, under Maj. Forbes, which I strongly reinforced, had hardly left Etowa, when it was vigorously attacked by about 1,000 or 1,200 cav., besides infantry and guns. The enclosed report from Maj. Forbes shows how successfully he repulsed, aided by Maj. Orr, the enemy, with loss; and brought safely the long and helpless line of baggage, over difficult ground, to the camp at Diapoor. I beg to mention specially Maj. Forbes for this good service. Having received at Golowlee a report that Maj. Forbes was hard-pressed, and hearing a heavy cannonade in his direction, I marched with the troops detailed in the margin,* to his assistance. The urgency of the case alone made me undertake this operation, as I foresaw that the suffocating heat of the sun must strike down a large portion of my force. I galloped on, and found that Maj. Forbes had reached Diapoor; but that the enemy, baffled in their attempt to cut off the rear guard, had taken ground to the left, and reinforced by three or four battalions from Calpee, who were now swarming out of the ravines, was preparing, firing heavily, to storm the village of Mutha, which Lieut. col. Campbell had judiciously occupied from Diapoor, for which I beg to make special mention of him, for if the enemy were in possession of Mutha, the camp at Diapoor would no longer have been tenable. A large body of cav., deployed across the road from Etowa to Mutha, were approaching in support of the inf. The officer comg. in Mutha felt himself so hard-pressed that he had given orders for evacuating it. The enemy were pressing forwards. I immediately gave orders to the troops who were retiring to re-occupy the village, and hold it at any price, ordering up in their support, at a trot, the half tr. H.A., and the half of No. 4 lt. fd. batt., a tr. of the 14th and the 3rd Hyderabad cav., with two companies of Hyderabad inf., and the 25th By. N.I.

Capt. Lightfoot placed the art. skilfully on the left of Mutha. The accurate fire of their shrapnel and round-shot broke the rebel cav., and drove them from their position in support of the inf., who still held the deep and twisting ravines in front of Mutha. I directed Capt. Douglas, B.A., comg. art. Hyderabad contingent, to post four 6-pdrs. on the right of Mutha, and shrapnel just over the heads of the rebels in the ravines. This he did with his usual skill and devotion, under a heavy fire of the enemy's riflemen, so effectually, that the rebels, who were suffering from the admirable fire of H.M.'s 71st, who still had some of the better sort of ammunition, retired from their ambuscades, the main body down the ravines, a few across country to Calpee, the 71st making killing practice at the latter at 700 or 800 yards. I did not pursue, because fresh exertion in the sun, and in most difficult ground, would have been fatal to men the greater part of whom had been marching all night, and engaged all day in fearful heat. My game was a waiting one, and I abstained carefully from playing that of my adversary, which was to disorganise and prostrate my force by continued exposure to sun. I never yielded an inch to the enemy's attacks; but, on the other hand, husbanded the strength and health of my men for one great combat for Calpee. As it was, the intense heat made havoc amongst my troops, officers as well as men. Upwards of 200 out of less than 400 men of the 25th By. N.I. fell out of the ranks on the line of march, struck by sun. This gallant regiment suffered as much as Europeans from sun, the constitutions of the men having been weakened by scurvy. Capt. Wood, Asst. adjt. gen., fell, struck, it was feared, mortally, by sun stroke. He recovered partially, and, with the unyielding resolution which characterised the conduct of the force, resumed his duties under fire. Having provided for the protection of Mutha, I returned with the detachments of the 1st brig. to Golowlee.

The enemy, the same day, in order either to prevent me from giving support to the 2nd brig., or hoping to beat the 1st brig., weakened by the reinforcements which I took from it, reinforced strongly their lines of outposts in the ravines, and supporting them with guns and masses, at a distance menaced and kept up a heavy fire on my position at Golowlee, from the Jumna to the village of Tehree, against which latter place they advanced with a thick chain of skirmishers.

Brigdr. Stuart, comdg. the 1st brig. at Golowlee, and Capt. Hare, comdg. at Tehree, met the attack with vigour. The former answered the enemy's cannonade so effectually with his mortars and guns that they retired. Capt. Hare repulsed the enemy's advance, and, following them up, took a tope of trees in advance of his position, in which they had concentrated a force. I beg to make special mention of both these officers for their conduct on this occasion.

The enemy having shown signs of fortifying a high ridge opposite my right front, about half way between Golowlee and Calpee, I had a batt. of two 8-inch mortars constructed in front of my right, which shelled with good effect the ridge and the ravines near it.

The next day, the 17th inst., after noon, the enemy again attacked the 2nd brig. at Diapoor, and was repulsed with loss.

Col. Maxwell, leaving his column to march to a position opposite Calpee, came on to me at Golowlee, when I communicated to him my plan of attack, and gave him the requisite directions. Part of his column had been detached from him, but was expected back.

I have already had the honour to state the outline of my plan of attack. Its details were as follows:—

Col. Maxwell was to construct, on the opposite bank of the Jumna, mortar batteries; one to shell vigorously the Fort of Calpee, and blow up, if possible, the powder magazines in it, destroying also the defences of the fort facing my position at Golowlee; another to shell the part of the town fronting the same way, so as to prevent the enemy from holding these localities in force when I attacked them; another mortar battery to be placed lower down the Jumna, and opposite the village of Rehree. Rehree stands on the edge of the small sandy plain bordered by the Jumna, which is situated between the bell of ravines and Calpee. The enemy had a force and a battery in Rehree for the purpose of sweeping off my right column of attack, when it debouched from the ravines against Calpee, and preventing its occupying the "Sandy Plain," which was an important point for me, because, once in possession of it, my right flank resting on the Jumna, I could bring up all my artillery through the pass through the ravines, and concentrate from the "Sandy Plain" a vertical and horizontal fire on the part of Calpee which I wished to attack. I wished Rehree, the ravines and ground about it, to be destroyed, and made untenable by fire from the opposite bank.

These batteries were to shell their "objects" for sixteen or twenty hours before and during the advance against Calpee.

Riflemen and field guns were to be stationed opposite the "Sandy Plain" on the other, the left bank of the Jumna, and clear its right bank, and the "Sandy Plain" of the enemy.

I hoped to beat the rebel army in one decisive action. I felt certain that if I routed them they would not, with the fate of Jhansi and Sohaie before their eyes, have the heart to shut themselves up in the fort, and become the victims of an investment. At the same time, it was evident that to take by storm such tremendous ground, if well defended, as the ravines surrounding Calpee, every yard of which was a dangerous obstacle and an ambush, was no ordinary operation, particularly under the various difficulties of my situation, previously enumerated.

Whilst, with my right, the 1st brig., I attacked Calpee by its left, I intended to make a strong feint against the right of the enemy, to be converted into a real attack, if feasible, with my left, the 2nd brig., along the Jullapoor and Calpee road; Maj. Orr's force in Tehree keeping up the communication between the two brigades, and assisting both, as required.

Fresh difficulties compelled me to modify this plan. Some few days must elapse before the mortar batteries on the left, the opposite bank of the Jumna, could be ready. The wells of the villages where the Hyderabad F.F. and the 2nd brig. were stationed began to fail. The sick from sun-stroke could not have the water which was necessary for their treatment; troop horses and baggage animals died from drought. My left, the 2nd brig., was exposed, sickly as it was, to constant attack. Concentration and abundance of water were the only remedies for these fresh embarrassments. On the morning of the 19th I brought the 2nd brig. and Hyderabad F.F. from Diapoor and Tehree to my camp on the Jumna.

The enemy continued their tactics of harassing unceasingly my troops, and forcing them into the sun; large bodies of cavalry hanging on my position, retiring when attacked, but ready to fall on escorts, which I was obliged to send to a distance for forage, the want of which was the cause of serious losses.

Out of thirty-six men of the 14th lt. drags., forming part of one forage escort, seventeen were brought back to the camp in dhoolies, after only two hours' exposure to sun.

This prostration of more than half a body of men by sun, after two hours' mere marching, and a similar amount of sun sickness in the 25th By. N.I. on the march to Mutha, give a correct estimate of the sanitary state of my force before Calpee; that state was dangerous. The prostration of the whole force had become a matter of arithmetical calculation. So many hours sun laid low so many men. I had, weakened by every sort of difficulty, to conquer the greatest stake in the campaign, against the greatest odds; half of my troops sickly; every man of them ailing, to say nothing of a very numerous and daily increasing sick list, crowded into tents, where the thermometer stood 118° in the shade. To compare small things to great, myself and my force were suffering under two evils, which have overcome the greatest armies, under the most successful generals, sickness and climate.

This view of the case was borne out by an official letter which I received at this time from Dr. Arnott, superintending surg., a gentleman who is distinguished by his cool and correct judgment.

The object of Dr. Arnott's letter was to make known to me the critical state of the health of the Central India F.F. Dr. Arnott showed that the great proportion of it, officers as well as men, beginning with my personal and divisional staff, were ill; that the health of all was so weakened by the continual hardship and over-fatigues of an arduous campaign, that it was fast succumbing under the sun; finally, that if the operations against Calpee were to be protracted, the whole force might be prostrated.

I knew this and a good deal more. I knew that from the commencement my force had been engaged in operations on a scale, for which, according to military rules, and in former times in India, three or four times their number were considered necessary.

In a quiet garrison to be on guard every other day is held to be too much for a soldier's health; but my men for months had been making the strongest physical exertions, with broken sleep, or no sleep at all, watching the camp in unknown and hostile districts, against surprise, half the night, and marching the other half to avoid sun; then often all day, without a rest, fighting, or on the rear guard, or on reconnaissances, or escorts, under a burning sun. The fewness of numbers of my force did not allow of the reliefs which, according to the rules of the service, are considered indispensable, even in peace.

In my long march from the west to the centre of India, the hardships of the service were not lightened by good roads. On the contrary, country tracks and unbridged nullahs, with very few exceptions, were my communications. The consequence of this was, that one deep nullah, often detaining the baggage, guns, and rear guard for hours, the transport and troops employed were exposed to all the bad effects of a protracted march in the sun. Bad roads and an unorganised system of transport and supply were also the cause that the rations, notwithstanding the best endeavours of the commissariat, were at times in arrears, and that the troops, on those occasions, performed hard duties, or fought all day on insufficient nourishment.

The evil of the numerical strength of the force being far too small for the extent of its operations (the Government was unable to complete it to the strength intended, on account of the necessities of the times), was increased subsequently by that strength being constantly diminished by casualties in the field, and by a large and daily-increasing sick list. The details of recruits who joined me did not make good these vacancies; and it became necessary to weaken still more my F.F., at a time when every man of it was urgently required, by leaving a garrison at Jhansi, consisting of a wing of the 3rd Eurs., six companies of the 24th By. N.I., half a batt. of 9-pdrs., and a proportionate amount of cav., under Lieut. col. Liddell, one of my best superior officers.

I beg leave to apologise for the length of these details. But it is right that H.E. the C. in C. should know the reasons in their fullest extent which compelled me to reinforce myself with part of Lieut. col. Maxwell's force; that H.E. should know also what the troops whom I had the honour to command bore for the cause of their Queen and country, and how they bore it. I have the satisfaction to report that these noble soldiers, whose successes were never chequered by a reverse, with a discipline which was as enduring as their courage, never proffered one complaint. They fell in their ranks struck down by sun, and exhausted by fatigue; but they would not increase the anxieties of their general, or belie their devotion by a complaint. No matter how great their exhaustion, or how deep their short sleep, they always sprang to my call to arms with the heartiest good will. To think of yielding or retreating would have been ignominy.

All felt that physical strength might fail, but that the spirit and discipline of British soldiers never could. They were often too ill to march, but their devotion made them fight. It is almost superfluous to add that troops animated by so high a sense of duty were sober, orderly, and most respectful to their officers. There was less crime in my camp than in garrison.

When I speak of springing to their arms I ought to make special mention of H.M.'s 14th lt. dragns., for the admirable order and celerity with which their in-lying and out-lying pickets mounted on the frequent occasions when I turned them out on alarms, or sudden attacks of the enemy. Their videttes and patrols also were always watchful and intelligent.

My first and most important instructions were to take Calpee. There were two ways of doing so—either by one decisive action, or a protracted operation.

In either case I required reinforcements. The fight for Calpee was sure to be an obstinate, perhaps a desperate struggle. I should have compromised the whole spirit of my most important instructions, and the success of the British cause in India, if I had attempted that struggle with a force whose health was such as I have described it, and had neglected to reinforce it with a portion of the gallant troops who, fresh and unimpaired in vigour, were only separated from me by the Jumna.

A check before Calpee in the advanced state of the hot season, and the rains close at hand, would have resuscitated rebellion throughout India, compromised the safety of Cawnpore, exposed to a flank or rear attack the extensive line of operations of H.E. the C. in C. in India, and lit the torch of rebellion in the Deccan and the Southern Mahrattas, full of ill-disposed Arabs and Rohillas, and partisans of Nana Sahib as Peishwa.

Under the influence of these important considerations, I directed Lieut. col. Maxwell to send across the Jumna to my camp the reinforcements detailed in the enclosed report from that officer; they arrived at my head quarters at Golowlee on the night of the 20th inst.

The agent of the Gov. gen. for Central India, who in his official capacity accompanied my force, was of opinion that the peculiar circumstances justified my bringing the reinforcements across the Jumna. I was relieved, therefore, from any political objection to the step. The result proved its necessity. A day or two after the arrival of the reinforcements in my camp, the camel corps, the principal reinforcements, saved by their timely aid my right—the key of my position—from a disaster, in a desperate and general attack on it, on the 23rd of May; and that success was followed by a conquering advance of my whole line from the Jumna to my extreme left, the total rout of the enemy, and the capture next day of Calpee, with all its artillery and rich arsenal.

On the morning of the 20th I made a reconnaissance on the left bank of the Jumna, and selected a position for a battery of 8-inch mortars at the village of Russulpore, to batter the village of Rehree, &c., as already stated.

On the 22nd inst., this baty. was ready, as well as one of four 10-inch mortars opposite the fort, and another of two 8-inch mortars opposite the town and cutcherry, in which latter place Rao Sahib, the Nawab of Banda and the Ranees of Jhansi were reported to be stationed, with a large body of inf. and guns. A division of 9-pdr. guns, and a company of H.M.'s 88th, were stationed at Russulpore against Rehree and the "Sandy Plain," on the opposite bank.

The enemy were now exposed to my attack of their left flank from Golowlee, and to a cross vertical and horizontal fire into the same flank, and their rear from the outer side of the Jumna.

I had hardly returned to camp on the 20th before the enemy again advanced, covered by a very thick chain of skirmishers, through the ravines, and attacked with much determination my right flank. The pickets were immediately reinforced by four companies of the 86th, two companies of the 25th By. N. I., and three 9-pdrs.

The reinforcements had not joined me; and the mortar batteries on the other side of the Jumna were not ready to cover my advance. The heat was at its maximum; and I fixed the 23rd inst. for the general attack of the enemy's positions and of Calpee. I did not, therefore, play the game of my adversary, by allowing myself to be drawn into a general action under disadvantageous circumstances, but directed the pickets merely to maintain their ground, which they did steadily and gallantly, under the able command of Maj. Stewart, H.M.'s 86th regt., until the enemy were beaten back.

The casualties in this day's martial affair were four officers, and forty rank and file. Lieut. Jerome, 86th, severely wounded, and Lieut. Forbes, 25th By. N. I., struck down by the sun, led their companies with the same high military spirit for which they have been specially mentioned on former occasions.

On the 21st inst. I received information that the rebel army intended to make a general attack on my position at Golowlee, at 8 A.M. the next day; that they had sworn a religious oath on the waters of the Jumna, a sacred river, that they would drive my force into the Jumna and destroy it, or die, and that afterwards they would move southwards against Gen. Whitlock; that large quantities of opium had been issued to the troops for the purpose of making them fight desperately.

The positions occupied by my force were as follows:—

The right flank, facing the left of Calpee, rested on the ravines running down to the Jumna; in these ravines stood the village of Soorowlee, and Golowlee. Both these villages were connected and held by strong pickets and prevented my right being turned.

Half of the 1st brig., my right flank, was encamped perpendicularly to the Jumna, facing the belt of ravines, and the left front of Calpee, on the table land immediately outside the belt.

The remainder of the 1st brig. facing the continuation of the belt of ravines, which took a sweep outward, and the 2nd brig. and Hyderabad F.F., facing the table-land or plain stretching from Golowlee across the road from Calpee to Jullalpoor, were thrown back "en potence." This ground was adapted to the movements of artillery and cavalry.

My whole front was guarded by strong out-posts, with advanced sentries in the ravines and pickets.

On the morning of the 22nd I made the following disposition of my troops to resist the expected attack.

The pickets on the right front of H.M.'s 86th regt. and 3rd Eur. were reinforced by the remainder of the 86th in skirmishing order; their right resting on the Jumna. In support were three guns of No. 4 lt. f. batt., one tr. of H.M.'s 14th lt. dragns., a troop of the 3rd By. lt. cav., and four companies of the 25th By. N. I. the whole under the command of Brigdr. Stuart.

The pickets of the right centre were supported by the other half of No. 4 lt. f. batt., the remainder of the 25th By. N. I., with the 21st compy. R.E., the whole under Lieut. col. Robertson.

My left centre, facing the plain and the village of Tehree, was guarded by No. 1. By. tr. H.A., supported by two troops of H.M.'s 14th lt. dragns.

The siege guns, two 18-pdrs., one 24-pdr. and two 8-inch howtzrs., each of their flanks guarded by detachments of the 3rd Eur., formed the centre, supported by the wing of H.M.'s 71st, one squad. of the 14th, a tr. of the 3rd lt. cav., and Capt. Field's, R.A., 9-pdrs.

The left was formed by the camel corps and No. 18 lt. fd. batt., supported by a detach. of the Sikh corps, the Hyderabad F.F. covering my extreme left.

Two companies of H.M.'s 88th, whose strength, although they had only been two or three days in my camp, was already much weakened by sun casualties, and four companies of the 25th By. N. I., were left in the camp for its protection.

Shortly after eight o'clock A.M., on the 22nd of May, the enemy, who continued their tactics of forcing my troops to fight in the heat of the day, were reported, by continued messages from my videttes and outposts, to be advancing in great force from Calpee, and its environs towards the belt of ravines on my right, and along the Jullalpoor and Calpee road against my left.

They manœuvred so skilfully that they got under cover of broken ground into the ravines, without being perceived on the right; and Brig. Stuart reported to me as I was posting the siege guns that my right was no longer threatened.

The enemy's right, consisting of 1,300 or 1,400 cav., supported by several battalions of inf. and H.A. 9-pdrs., continuing their advance along the Jullalpoor road, brought their left shoulders up, when opposite the village of Tehree, in front of my centre, from whence they reinforced strongly their pickets in the ravines opposite my right centre, and deploying their guns and cavalry to the right menaced to out-flank and turn my right. I still felt the conviction that the enemy's real object of attack was my right; and that this ostentatious display of force against my left, and the perfect stillness in the deep ravines on my right, were ruses to mislead me and induce me to weaken my right by sending reinforcements from it to my left, when they would have attacked with all their energy my right, endeavoured to take the mortar battery and the camp, their right falling at the same time on my left, and cutting me off in combination with their left from the Jumna.

Whilst, therefore, I protected my left against a feint which might become a serious attack, I did not take a man away from my right, and endeavoured to catch the enemy in their own trap. I reinforced the pickets on the left, in the first instance, with a squad. of the 14th Lt. drag., under Lieut. col. Gall, and 3rd Hyderabad cav., under Capt. Abbott, and afterwards directed these troops to retire slowly before the enemy, obliquely across my front, in order to conceal my heavy guns, and draw the rebel cav. into their fire. Capt. Abbott was directed, after having completed this movement, to place his regt. perpendicularly to my front, in order to be able to charge, with all his horse, the right flank of the advancing cav. The manœuvre succeeded partially. The rebel horse were enticed into the fire of the siege guns, which caused confusion and numerous casualties amongst them, killing, amongst others, the commanding officer of the 5th Bengal irregls. But the mutinous cav. adhered to their system of never allowing the British cav. to close with them, and kept carefully out of the way of the Hyderabad horse.

To discover the enemy, who, I felt assured, were concealed in the ravines in front of my right, I had ordered a company of the 3rd Furs. to be pushed some hundred yards forward in front of my outposts, into this network of ambushes. The 3rd Eur., after advancing some distance, found the rebel host crouched in their lair, and started them for it. In an instant a serious and general engagement began along the whole line from the Jumna to the village of Tehree. The belt of ravines in front of my position becoming enveloped in smoke and fire, the sepoys rose out of their hiding places in thick chains of skirmishers, advancing and firing heavily, followed by large supports and columns en masse at a distance. All my guns opened on the advance of the rebels, and the supports closed up to their threatened fronts.

I was watching the determined attack on the centre of my position, from the left wing of the village of Tehree, and at the same time their movements towards my right and left, when I heard a slackening of our fire on the right. I instantly sent an inquiry to Brigdr. Stuart whether he would wish to be reinforced by half of the camel corps. He replied that he should be very glad to have them. Directly afterwards Brigdr. Stuart's fire became fainter and fainter, and that of the enemy heavier. I understood that my right, the key of my whole position, was in danger, and instantly proceeded myself to its assistance with the whole of the camel corps at their best pace. On the way I met an orderly coming to me at full speed from Brigdr. Stuart, asking for further reinforcement. I knew that they were required, for the enemy's fire now came from within our position. The camel corps, under Maj. Ross, having reached the foot of the rising ground, on which were the mortar battery and the three 9-pdrs., and dismounted, and went up the rise in line at the double in perfect order.

The situation of Brigdr. Stuart's position was very critical, volleys of musketry, which killed or wounded every horse of my staff but one, were coming over the crest of the rising ground from the sepoy troops, who had debouched, and were debouching, in great numbers from the vallies leading into the ravines, and were advancing rapidly, firing heavily with yells of triumph, their faces distorted by opium and fury, across a small piece of level ground against the mortar battery and guns, to which they were close. The guns had ceased firing. Brigdr. Stuart was on foot at the guns, ordering the few artillerymen, who served them, to draw swords and defend their guns; his lines of defence had been driven in, the men having been struck down to the ground by sun-stroke, where they lay, and the fire of the rest rendered insufficient by the defective ammunition of their rifles. Without halting on the crest I charged down it with the camel corps the dense lines of the mutineers, who were ten times superior to us in number, the gallant soldiers of H.M.'s rifle brig. and H.M.'s 80th regt. giving one of those cheers which all over the world have been the heralds of British successes. The rebels wavered, turned and fled, pursued by the camel corps, with all their energy, through the ravines, where numbers of them were bayoneted or killed by musketry fire.

I ordered up rapidly the half of No. 4 Lt. f. batt. from the mortar battery to the front of a knoll in the ravines, from whence they fired grape at the nearest rebels, and round shot at the more distant masses, which, following the example of their front line, had also made a precipitate retreat.

The men of the camel corps fell so fast and thick, struck by sun, in their violent pursuit of the enemy, up and down the steep sides of the rocky ravines, which reflected back the burning rays of the sun, that the whole of them would have been prostrated if I had not called them off, which I did after they had driven the enemy over, and taken the commanding ridge between my position and Calpee.

In this, as well as in the previous operations since Koonch, sun-stroke caused sudden death, delirium, and hysterical fits of crying and laughing.

The very important service rendered on this occasion by Maj. Ross, comdg. the camel corps, requires that I should make special mention of the ability and resolute gallantry with which he led his brave corps. This very promising officer is perfectly qualified to turn to the best account all the vast advantages of fleet or mounted infantry.

Lieut. Buckley, of the same corps, attracted my attention by the spirit with which his party attacked and bayoneted rebels, for which I beg to mention him specially.

Lieut. col. Louth, comdg. on the extreme right, on the Jumna, relieved from pressure by the success of the camel corps, and reinforced by one of its companies, moved forward through the ravines, and by a skilful manœuvre cut off and surrounded a considerable body of rebel sepoys, who had advanced too far. Part were killed on the banks of the Jumna, the rest were driven into the river, where they were shot or drowned. I beg to mention specially Lieut. col. Louth, for the good service he did on this occasion: he is a good and gallant officer, who always leads his regiment to success. He is well seconded by his admirable soldiers, whom I cannot eulogise more highly than by saying that they do credit to Ireland.

The enemy, simultaneously with their attack on my right, had advanced with equal vigour against my right centre, guarded by part of the 25th By.N.L., who, despite almost gallant resistance, were driven back by overpowering numbers, which afforded an opportunity to Lieut. Edwards, comdg. the 21st comp. of R.E., which I had placed in support of the 25th, to charge with his company most successfully the very superior force of the rebels, routing them with loss, and pursuing them till out of reach. I beg to mention, specially, Lieut. Edwards, for his prompt resolution on this occasion; he is an enterprising and promising officer. The 21st comp. fight as well in the field as they work in the trenches, and are worthy of their distinguished corps.

The remainder of the 25th, guarding my left centre, under Lieut. col. Robertson, held their ground steadfastly; the rebel sepoys, advancing close up to the 25th and firing, halted and addressed them bitter reproaches, couched in the most revolting language, for their unshaken fidelity to the English. The 25th answered the maledictions of the mutineers in a manner worthy of their reputation and English discipline—a volley, a cheer, and a charge with the bayonet.

My whole line was now advancing and driving the enemy from their positions. I have already spoken of the triumphant advance of the right, and left centre. The left centre was equally successful under Lieut. col. Robertson, who, following up his spirited charge, dashed through the ravines with the 25th after the rebels, came up with the rear of them near the village of Tehree, bayoneted them, and continued the pursuit beyond the village till his men, unable to go any longer, fell exhausted.

The whole of my infantry on the left now brought their left shoulders forward, and, covered by Capt. Lightfoot's trp. of H.A., three guns of No. 4 light f. batt., and the whole of the cavalry I had, reinforced the cavalry on the left with all the cavalry from the right, and made a converging attack on the enemy's right and the village of Tehree. The enemy broke and fled, pursued for some miles by the H.A. and cavalry. Their exhaustion, and ground broken by ravines, stopped the pursuit, which cost the enemy dear. The rebels were so completely beaten and disheartened that broken parties of them did not retire on Calpee, but were seen flying across the ravines in a westerly direction towards Jaloun.

Col. Wetherall, whose state of health qualified him for the sick list, although his devotion, like that of so many more of the force, kept him out of it, was struck by the sun in the pursuit three or four miles from camp, and brought back to it on a litter.

The complete defeat and serious loss which the enemy had sustained this day, despite their having displayed tactics and an energy of attack which I had not previously witnessed in them, convinced me that an immediate advance to Calpee, which I had some days back fixed for the next day, the 23rd inst., would, with the prestige of this day's victory, make me master of it at once. I, therefore, only gave the troops the time which was indispensable for their rest after the long day's combat in the sun, and, dividing my force into two columns of attack, marched the next morning, long before break of day, against Calpee, according to my original plan of attack: one column, the right under Brigdr. Stuart, through the ravines, their right resting on the Jumna; the others the left column, under myself, along the Jullalpoor and Calpee road.

I left my numerous sick, Parks, and baggage, in camp, which was struck under Capt. Hare.

The mortar batteries on the other side of the Jumna had, according to my orders, opened their fire the day before, the 22nd; and during the fight I was glad to see the shells dropping with great precision into the fort, the town, and all about the village of Tehree.

When my column had marched from camp, across the plain, in front of my left, and reached the Jullalpoor and Calpee road, I brought their left shoulders forward, and taking the road for the direction of my centre, covered my advance against Calpee with the camel corps, under Maj. Ross, supported by the Hyderabad cavalry.

From the road I dispatched a staff officer with a party of cavalry to effect a communication with Brigdr. Stewart's left.

My column descended into deep ravines, and mounted their steep banks, formidable almost impregnable—positions, which the enemy had totally abandoned, panic-struck by the previous day's defeat.

Faint firing on the right announced faint opposition to the advance of Brigdr. Stewart.

After marching some distance along the road, the enemy opened a fire on our advance from a secret battery in a ravine, at a great distance and elevation. Maj. Ross made a rapid flank march across the ravines to cut it off. But a few rounds from Capt. Ommaney's R.A. guns, which he had brought rapidly up, considerably in advance of the column, caused the battery to make off through the ravines. All of their guns were afterwards taken by the pursuing cavalry.

Shortly afterwards I got into communication with the right of Brigdr. Stuart's brig., and by ten o'clock A.M. both my brigades were masters of the fort and town of Calpee.

My prediction had come to pass that the rebels would make one desperate struggle for Calpee outside its walls; and that if they were defeated, they would not make a stand within them. The hard fought fight of the day before on the banks of the Jumna had given us Calpee.

Whilst my force was involved in the labyrinth of ravines, the enemy could be observed moving off to the N.W. from Calpee in large bodies, with elephants.

Once clear of the ravines, I instantly directed Lieut. col. (then Maj.) Gall, H.M.'s 14th Lt. drags., to pursue the enemy as closely and as far as he could, with horse artillery and cavalry. I have the honour to enclose a copy of this officer's report of his very successful pursuit of the enemy, for which I beg to mention him specially. His column took the whole of the guns with which their main body retreated from Calpee, and six caparisoned elephants. The Hydrabad cav. and scouts brought in more guns, which detached parties of the rebels had abandoned in their wild flight; so that every piece of field artillery which the enemy had was taken. The pursuing cav. made great havoc of the rebel sepoys, the Scinde valaitees, and the mercenaries of the Nawab of Banda, till neither horse nor man could go further.

The rebels, broken completely by Lieut. col. Gall's column, fled in the utmost disorder, in twos and threes across the country, throwing away their arms, accoutrements, and even their clothes, to enable them to run faster. This low and altered state of morale of the rebels must be attributed to the loss of their last hope, Calpee, after their great effort to overthrow its assailants; to their continued defeats, without one success; and, lastly, to the dejection which ensued in the excitement caused by the large quantities of opium which they had swallowed for the purpose of quickening their resolution in the action of the day before.

Besides the captured guns above mentioned, all the artillery in the fort, including a fine English 18-pdr. gun, fell into our hands, as well as twenty-seven silk embroidered standards of the Gwalior contingent, bearing Scindiah's device, a cross and a serpent round it; and one of the Kotah contingent, also three cannon and mortar foundries, which had been constructed in the town and fort; a very complete and extensive subterranean arsenal, containing 60,000 pounds English powder; every description of warlike stores and ammunition; numerous boxes of new and old English muskets; quantities of English shot and shell, of which there were also piles outside the arsenal in the fort; engineering tools of every description; boxes of brass, shells of native manufacture, of the same sort as those frequently used against us; topographical and surveying instruments; quantities of English stationery, &c., &c. The brass shells cause a worse wound than the iron, but do not burst into so many pieces as they do.

The commissary of ordnance estimates the value of this arsenal at £20,000 or £30,000.

Upon information furnished by Lieut. col. Gall, it was clear that the principal part of the rebels had retreated by the Jaloun road; and Sir R. Hamilton was of opinion that they would make to the north for the Sheer Ghat, a ford across the Jumna, or another ford higher up the river. Col. Riddell, with a movable column, was guarding the former ford. It was of vital importance to make a fresh pursuit of the enemy, in order either to catch him between Col. Riddell's and my fire, to meet him if he turned, or to ascertain the real line of his flight. Notwithstanding, therefore, the exhausted state of my force, I detached without delay Lieut. col. Robertson with a pursuing column, of which the strength is detailed in the margin* along the Jaloun road. To overtake the enemy was hopeless, because, firstly, they had a start, and were not encumbered, like our troops, with baggage, tents, and commissariat or even the usual kit of rebels, which they had thrown away; secondly, their cavalry and infantry were in as good as mine were in bad condition; thirdly, my European cavalry, riding eighteen stone could not catch Indian cavalry riding ten or at most eleven stone.

The rebels had also adopted a mode of retreat which facilitated escape. They separated, and in ones and twos, took short cuts across the country, meeting at a distant and given point.

The operations of the pursuing column, which again called into action Lieut. col. Robertson's energy and intelligence, will be detailed in my report of the operations against Gwalior.

Besides the officers specially mentioned in this report, and in the report of the officers under my orders, all of which I beg fully to confirm for distinct acts of distinguished conduct before Calpee, I beg leave to enclose two lists of other officers, specially mentioned, for generally important, or useful service, under most trying circumstances, in the operations before Calpee.

The conduct of the C.I.E.F. in the general action of the Jumna, was characterised by the ardent and unyielding courage, the devotion and exemplary discipline, which they had shown throughout the campaign. And all of us witnessed, with admiration, the skill and noble courage with which the troops of the Bengal Army, under Lieut. col. Maxwell, fought by our side, and contributed so largely to the success of the operations. I beg most respectfully to recommend these gallant soldiers, those of the Bengal, as well as those of the Bombay army, one and all, to the most favourable consideration of H. E. the C. in C. They had to contend, under a deadly sun, and in most difficult ground, with a desperate foe, greatly their superior in numbers. They fought till they dropped or conquered. The fort and town of Calpee exhibited proofs of the high service of Capt. Blunt and Turnbull, of the Bengal army and engineers, and of their officers and men stationed in the batteries on the other side of the Jumna. The shells had fallen almost as I could have wished, and caused a destruction which, no doubt, influenced a good deal the rebels in their determination to abandon the fort and town.

I was placed by the C. in C. in India, during H. E.'s absence in Rohilkund, under the direct orders of the Gov. gen.; and it is a grateful duty to me to state that my force and myself are under the greatest obligations to his lordship for the liberal and excellent arrangements which he caused to be made for furnishing us with supplies; and for the practical sympathy which led his lordship, overwhelmed as he must have been by important affairs, to give immediate attention to all my applications in favour of the troops, even for the smallest items of medical comforts.

I am equally indebted to Lord Elphinstone and the By. Govt., and to H. E. Sir Henry Somerset, for doing all that was possible to render my column efficient, from the time it started till it was hundreds of miles distant from Bombay; proofs of their constant and efficacious care for the welfare of the force reaching it on the banks of the Jumna.

The Bombay and Indore bullock train which Lord Elphinstone created and organised, with laudable promptitude, shortened the great distance between my original base, Bombay and Central India, and assisted my operations essentially. I beg to make special mention of Maj. Kane, 15th regt. B.N.I., director of the train, for the great energy and intelligence with which he developed and turned to the best account the resources of this newly-raised military transport.

Sir R. Hamilton, agent of the gov. gen. for Central India, who, in his official capacity, accompanied my force throughout the campaign, rendered very important service in obtaining supplies for the troops, and intelligence for myself respecting the plans and movements of the enemy. Sir R. Hamilton, whose knowledge of the roads and country is very great, gave me the first news as to the formation of the so-called Peishwa's army, intended to establish the Peishwa's rule in the ancient Peishwahate, and of their rapid and determined advance against me to relieve Jhansi. Sir R. Hamilton showed great sympathy for the sick and wounded, and spared no trouble to alleviate, by all the means in his power, their sufferings.

So much of the success of the operations is due to the portion of the Hyderabad Contingent, which formed part of my force, that I ought not to fail to express my best thanks to Col. Davidson, resident at Hyderabad, for the proof of confidence he placed in me, by putting at my disposal troops whose organization in the three arms, light equipment, knowledge of the Indian language and country, combined with their high military qualities, enabled them to act as the wings of my operations.

I am much indebted for their good will and assistance to Maj. Rickards, political agent for Bhopal, who was wounded when spiritedly accompanying the charge of Capt. Need, of H.M.'s 14th Lt. drags. at the Betwa; Maj. Western, deputy comsdr. of the Saugor district; Capt. Keatinge, officg. polit. agent for Western Malwa, dangerously wounded, when very gallantly leading the storming party at Chundayree, having previously reconnoitred the ground and the breach; Capt. Pinkney, comsdr. of the Jhansi and Jaloun districts, specially mentioned by me for gallantry in the pursuit after the storming of the Mudunpore Passes, his horse killed; Capt. Terman, deputy comsdr. of Jaloun, and Capt. Maclean, deputy comsdr. of Jhansi.

Sir R. Hamilton and these officers of the C. S. were, at different times, voluntarily under fire. On these occasions their bearing was that of English gentlemen. I venture to hope that, under these circumstances, the C. in C. in India may be pleased to bring to the notice of the Gov. gen. and Viceroy my favourable opinion of the conduct of these gentlemen.

Brigdrs. Sage and Wheler, comdg. at different times at Saugor, Capt. Ogilvie, asst. comsry. gen., and Capt. Nicholl, comsry. of ordnance, all of the Bengal Service, were of very great assistance to the force in giving me elephants, two 6-pdr. guns, with which I completed the 1st trp. By. H.A., other warlike stores, all they had, and supplies.

I hope that H. E. the C. in C. in India will do me the favour to represent to the Gov. gen. the great obligations I am under to the Ranees of Bhopal. H.H. displayed the very best feeling towards the English and British interests; she did so courageously in the worst times, when the natives in her part of the world thought that rebellion must triumph. H.H. gave me two 9 pdr. guns, and a 24-pdr. howtzw., with the gunners belonging to them, very good artillerymen, when I marched through Bhopal, which enabled me to complete No. 18 Lt. f. batt. H.H. was indefatigable in obtaining supplies for my force, when it was very much in want of them.

So great and varied were the difficulties with which the Central India field force had to contend, all of which I have not thought it necessary to detail, that having stated so fully the obligations I am under to human aid, I should not do justice to my own feelings; nor I am sure to those of the generous spirits whom I led, were I not to say how large a share of our gratitude for preservation and success is due to the signal mercy of Heaven.

I beg to apologise for the length of this report: it would have been more convenient for me to have written a short one. But justice to the troops would not allow me to curtail the details of either their deeds or of their sufferings.

In excuse of the very tardy arrival of this report, for which I am solely to blame, and for which I beg to offer my respectful apologies to the C. in C. in India, I must adduce a circumstance the which I should not otherwise have alluded to. I had three attacks of sun during the assault and capture of Koonch; one in the action at Mutha, and a fifth in the general action at the Jumna. As the remedies to enable me to rise again, ride and retain the command in the field, which I never left, were necessarily strong, and as my determination to exercise the command till Calpee was taken did not allow of my taking the rest or following the treatment necessary for the cure of sun-sickness, and as the heat of the sun increased instead of diminishing, and the duties of the command daily became more onerous, all my staff sick, or ailing, my health and strength suffered so much that all I could do with great difficulty was to command; and that I was totally unable, although I attempted it, to compose despatches, which were to describe the remarkable operations before Calpee, and do justice to the signal merits of the troops engaged.

Before marching against Gwalior, I had a very strong medical certificate in my possession, recommending my immediate departure from Central India. A sense of duty made me remain in it, and command the expedition against Gwalior. On the march to that place the heat rose to 130 degs. in the shade. The same cause as before prevented me from making reports of the operations, except in telegrams; after the taking of Gwalior I made forced marches to reach quickly the good climate of the Deccan. The papers relating to the Calpee and Gwalior operations were unfortunately left with my heavy baggage, which, on account of the heavy rain, great distance, and want of roads, the whole country being a swamp, did not arrive at Poona till after the monsoon.

These were the causes of the delay in transmitting Calpee and Gwalior reports. I most sincerely regret that anything should have retarded the publication of the records of so much heroism. But I trust that the very detailed lists already transmitted to the officers and men who distinguished themselves before Calpee and Gwalior, and in the campaign generally, and which I drew up with the utmost care, and the most anxious solicitude, that the merits of each individual should be fully known and perfectly appreciated, will palliate the evil of delay.

Comdg. F.D.A. and Field Force.

From Maj. Forbes, c.b., comdg. rear guard, to Capt. Todd, brig. maj. 2nd brig. C.I.F.F.
Camp near Deopore, 18th May, 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of the brigd. comdg. the 2nd brig., the arrival in camp of the rear guard,* having been closely followed up, from within a mile of our last encampment at Etor, by 4,000 to 5,000 of the rebel army, of which 1,000 to 1,200 were cav.

As the brigd. is aware, a broad and deep ravine, only passable for carts by one narrow road, intersects the route about a mile from Etor.

It was when halted here, on account of the baggage, that I first saw the rebels approaching, from the Calpee direction, towards my left flank. They took up a position on my left and rear, occupying the village of Etor, and from their strength, particularly in cav., it was throughout apparent that our bold front alone saved the rear-guard from being driven in, and the consequent loss of the guns, owing to the only line of retreat being choked up by carts.

During the two hours or more we were halted here the enemy's cav. made several advances, one or two at a rapid pace; but deceived, I imagine, by the perfect steadiness of the troops into supposing that a larger force was concealed in the broken ground in our rear, they did not close; and as soon as the road was clear I withdrew, first the guns and inf. to a position on this side the ravine, then the tr. of H.M.'s 14th lt. drags., and lastly the remainder of the cav. at a walk, until concealed from the enemy by the nature of the ground, then at a gallop.

As I expected, this retrograde movement brought the enemy on us, and before the cavalry had had time to form on the right and left of the guns, he had occupied the position we had given up.

This further advance in force was, however, for some time checked by the rifles of the 3rd Eur., and the excellent practice of the two guns of the R.A., and time given for the baggage to get on a considerable distance.

For the first three miles of the remainder of our march we were almost surrounded by the rebel cavalry, and fired into by their artillery, but alternately halting and retiring we succeeded in preventing any of the baggage from falling into their hands.

If any baggage was lost it could not have been on the road by which I marched, and to have divided the rear guard, or even have extended it more than was done, would have been its destruction, followed by the loss of the greater portion of the ammunition stores and baggage of the brigade.

I would beg to bring to your notice the officers named in the margin of this report, and in an especial manner Lieut. Lowry, to the precision of whose fire, in the manner in which he handled his two guns, do I chiefly attribute our being able to keep in check so large a body of cavalry.

Lieut. Bonns, By. engns., and Veterinary surg. Lamb, 3rd lt. cav., were most useful to me in getting on the baggage and in conveying orders. Mr. Lamb rode into camp at my request to report the presence of the enemy, and returned at very considerable risk of being cut off.

J. FORBES, Maj. 3rd By. lt. cav.,
Comdg. rear guard.

From Lieut. Col. Campbell, comdg. 2nd Brig.
Central India F.F., to the Chief of the Staff,
C.I.F.F.

Camp Deopore, 18th May, 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of the Maj. gen. comdg. C.I.F.F., that a large body of upwards of 1,200 of the enemy's cavalry with three guns moved suddenly out yesterday at 2 p.m. from the rear of a large village situated about two coss on our left flank. The plain intervening is not intersected by nullahs, and they were soon after reported to be advancing, with an evident intention of attacking our camp.

2. The small village of Muttra, which forms our left point of Appir, was then occupied by two companies of the 71st highland lt. inf. and two guns belonging to the By. lt. batt. No. 18, with a support from the 24th N.I. I immediately reinforced this post with the whole of the 71st and the remaining two guns of the No. 18 batt., and giving orders for the 14th lt. drags. and two guns of the R.A. to follow, proceeded at once to meet the enemy, taking with me the 3rd lt. cav. and the half battery, whom I met on their way to Muttra.

3. I found that the enemy were advancing rapidly in line about one and a half mile from us, with their line so far extended as to threaten our left rear, to this point I directed our advance, and soon after coming within range the enemy halted. This enabled the 14th lt. drags., under Maj. Scudamore, and the two guns of the R.A. to take up a position connecting our line with Muttra.

4. A heavy fire commenced on both sides, the enemy firing remarkably well, and sending two or three round shot into the ranks of the 3rd lt. cav., but the superior fire of the R.A. and No. 8 batt. effectually stopped all further advance on their part.

5. An attack on Muttra now attracted my attention; but to withdraw any of my guns would also have drawn the enemy again upon us. Maj. Orr, comdg. Hyderabad contingent, however, most opportunely appeared, and galloping down with him I ascertained that a very strong body of the rebel inf. had been repulsed by the 71st Highland L.I., under Majors Rich and Loftus. The loss of the enemy has since been ascertained to have been very great; but having had time during the morning (since yesterday's attack) to loophole the houses, the fire of the enemy was harmless.

6. The precautions for protecting the right of the camp were not unnecessary, for another column of inf. and two heavy guns came down from Calpee, and sent several shot right through the camp, without, however, much damage. Capt. Field, R.A., most ably kept these at a distance, supported by the 3rd Eur. regt. and the remainder of the 24th N.I.

7. Foiled on all sides, and it being now sunset, the enemy slowly retired, taking with them their dead and wounded in the nullahs.

From Lieut. Col. G. V. Maxwell, c.b., H.M.'s 88th regt., comdg. moveable col., Cawnpore district, to Col. E. R. Wetherall, c.b., chief of the staff, C.I.F.F.

Camp before Calpee, May 24, 1858.

Sir,—I arrived here on the morning of the 18th inst. with the force mentioned below,* and broke ground the same night. On the following morning we had three 10-inch mortars in position opposite the Fort of Calpee, and a fourth on the next day.

2. On the morning of the 19th I received an urgent requisition from Sir Hugh Rose for a wing of H.M.'s 88th regt., a wing of the Sikh batt., and the whole of the camel corps, to join his force on the opposite side of the Jumna. The demand for this amount of troops from my col. was made upon the supposition that a patrol of three companies of the 88th regt., 200 of the Sikh batt., and 100 of the Towana horse, and two guns which I had sent to Sharghur had rejoined me, but as that patrol had not returned, and I had no reason to expect it back for some time, I did not consider myself justified in complying to the full extent with Sir Hugh's request, and I sent across the Jumna on the night of the 20th two companies of the 88th, the whole of the camel corps, and a hundred and twenty-four of the Sikh inf., informing Sir Hugh that as soon as I could hear of the approach of the patrol I would send the remainder of the men asked for by him.

3. By Sir Hugh Rose's orders, I sent on the morning of the 21st two 8-inch mortars and two field guns, with a company of the 88th regt. to Russoolpoor, a village about three miles below Calpee on the left bank of the Jumna, and opposite to the village of Rehree, where the enemy had a battery which commanded the road by which Sir Hugh proposed advancing on Calpee.

4. During the night of the 21st two 8-inch mortars were put into position in the village of Diloule, opposite the Kutcherri and town of Calpee.

5. Under instructions from Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, the three above-mentioned mortar batteries opened fire at noon on Saturday, the 22nd. The well-directed fire of the mortars and guns from the Russoolpoor battery under Lieut. Hare, of the B.A., soon cleared the village of Rehree, and the rebels withdrew what guns they had there. The practice of Maj. Blunt's four 10-inch mortar battery was beautifully accurate, and that from Capt. Turnbull's, at Diloule, was most effective and well sustained until the occupation of the town by Sir Hugh Rose's force.

6. The river Jumna being between my force and the enemy, the inf. and cav. under my command had not the opportunity of giving that active co-operation to Sir Hugh Rose that I could have wished, but they performed their picket and battery duties much to my satisfaction. Enfield rifles of the 88th regt. annoyed the enemy very much, and prevented them having the free use of the river in front of the town.

* Four guns Major Blunt's batt.; 266 Towana horse; 578 of H.M.'s 88th regt.; 683 camel corps; 458 Sikh police corps; four 10-inch mortars; four 8-inch mortars.

* H.M.'s 14th drags., 42 sabres, under Lieut. Beamish; R.A., 2 guns, under Lieut. Lowry; 3rd By. L.C., 170 sabres, under Lieut. Dick; 3rd Eur. 93, under Lieut. Makintosh; 24th N.I., 113, under Lieut. Estridge; cav. Hyderabad contg., 200, under Capt. Murray.

7. The chief credit of the operations of my column on the left bank of the Jumna is due to two officers, viz., Maj. Blunt, of the B.A., and Capt. Turnbull, of the B.E. I believe the merits of Maj. Blunt are already known to H.E. the C. in C., but I beg to express my acknowledgments of the valuable services Maj. Blunt has afforded me since he joined my column in Feb. last; he has been indefatigable, active, and zealous for the good of the service, not confining himself to the mere routine of his own branch of it, but he has given me on all occasions his advice, which his knowledge of the country and professional acquirements rendered so valuable to me. Of Capt. Turnbull, of the B.E., I cannot speak too highly. Not only was he most persevering in making the batteries, exposing himself all day to the overpowering heat of the sun, when he had finished his duty as an engineer he then became an artilleryman, and worked the mortar battery at Dilaude. It will be a subject of much gratification to me if the expression of my thanks to these officers were productive of the appreciation of their services by H.E. the C. in C.

It is due to Lieut. G. L. Fraser, of the late 23rd N.I., that I should speak most favourably of the way he has performed his duties as staff officer to the column; he has been most zealous and hard-working. G. V. MAXWELL, Lieut. col. 88th, Comdg. moveable col.

From Brigdr. Stuart, c.b., comdg. 1st brig. Central India F.F., to the asst. adjt. gen. Central India F.F.

Camp Calpee, 20th May, 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report that about 9 A.M. of the 22nd of May, the 1st brig. C.I.F.F. got under arms, in compliance with instructions from the maj. gen. comdg., and, in consequence of the enemy threatening the right and front of our camp near the village of Golowlee in force, I myself proceeded to the mortar battery on the right, the picket at which consisted of one comp. 3rd Eur. regt., also the picket on the bank of the Jumna, composed of one comp. H.M.'s 86th regt., which guarded our extreme right flank, had, by the orders of the maj. gen., been reinforced by nearly the whole of H.M.'s 80th regt., which, thrown into skirmishing order, covered almost the whole of our position to the right. The maj. gen. also directed half of No. 4 lt. f. batt. to move down to the mortar batt., and fire was immediately opened on the enemy, who were advancing in great numbers, and with much spirit, over ground most favourable to them, as it was thickly intersected in every direction by nullahs and ravines close up to our position. Finding that the enemy were commencing to outflank the left of our line of skirmishers, I sent for three companies of the 25th regt. N.I., which, when extended, made all secure in that direction. The action now became general throughout the whole line, but the advance of the enemy was checked, though most obstinately persevered in on the extreme right, where Lieut. Col. Lowth, H.M.'s 86th regt., was commanding. Matters thus continued until about noon, when the enemy made a most determined assault on the mortar batt. and position held by the guns, taking advantage of our line of skirmishers being weakened by many men having been compelled to fall to the rear from the effects of the sun, which, as felt by all, was most overpowering, as also from their rifles having become leaded. At this juncture I could only muster a handful of men to defend the mortar batt. and guns, and the enemy were steadily pushing on, when the timely arrival of two companies of the rifle brig., which in reply to my call for aid the Maj. gen. himself brought up, and led against the enemy, caused them to retire precipitately, and they made no further stand. About this time also I had been compelled to reinforce my right, with a comp. of H.M.'s 80th regt., and my left with the 21st comp. R.E., as the determination shown by the enemy was so great, and the distress occasioned by the excessive heat of the day so paralysed the men that they could scarcely hold their ground; simultaneously however with the repulse in the centre, the enemy were driven back on both flanks, and our whole line pushing on, completely routed them. In compliance with the Maj. gen.'s instructions, I checked the pursuit of the enemy beyond a certain point. It was, however, persevered in on the right by Lieut. col. Lowth, H.M.'s 86th regt., further than was intended; having reinforced the original pickets, I directed that the remainder of the troops should return to their tents. Nothing further occurred this day.

2. Of the operations of the 1st tp. H. A., left wing H.M.'s 14th lt. drags., 3rd regt. cav. Hyderabad Contingent, half of No. 4 lt. f. batt. Madras Sappers and Miners, and wing 25th regt. N.I., on the 2nd May, I make no mention, as they were not severally under my direction, and I understand Majors Gall and Robertson, who were in command of these troops, have sent in their reports.

3. On the 23rd May, at half-past three o'clock A.M., the 1st brig., consisting of the troops named below,* in compliance with instructions received, advanced on Calpee; line was formed in skirmishing order, their right resting on the right bank of the Jumna, and the left extending westward to the utmost extent permitted by the number of infantry at my disposal. The cart road leading to Calpee nearly bisected the line. I accordingly entrusted the general superintendence of the troops on the right of this road to Lieut. col. Lowth, H.M.'s 86th regt., and that of the troops on the left of it to Lieut. col. Campbell, H.M.'s 71st regt., who had joined me under instructions from the Maj. gen. The brig. advanced steadily, meeting with no opposition till the village of Rehree was reached, when the men of H.M.'s 86th regt., who were moving on it, received a volley, but, charging in with a cheer, drove the enemy out of it at once, and put them to flight. The brig. continued to advance till the position indicated by the Maj. gen. was reached, and secured. I then sent for the guns and cavalry, having, as the Maj. gen. is aware, on account of the nature of the ground over which we marched, been obliged to leave both in the rear, until our new position had been gained. The brigade now remained halted until a junction was effected with the column under the personal command of the Maj. gen., when, having received orders to enter the town of Calpee, I did so with all my infantry, and, finding it deserted, bivouacked the men in the most suitable manner I could, till I was ordered to march into camp at about five o'clock P.M.; the remainder of the 1st brig. were serving immediately under the Maj. gen. on this day. I do not, therefore, report their proceedings. Maj. Gall, H.M.'s 14th lt. drags., has intimated to me that he was in command of the pursuing cavalry on this occasion, and that he has sent in his report to the chief of the staff.

In conclusion, it gives me the greatest pleasure to state that the troops of the 1st brig. on this occasion, as at Koonch, displayed a determined fortitude which nothing could overcome in the action of the 22nd May. They were exposed to a fiercely-burning sun from 9 A.M. to 2 P.M., and though, as I have mentioned, they were much distressed by the same, yet every man struggled to get to the front until fairly beaten down. I am much indebted to the officers of my staff; Capt. Fenwick, field engr.; Capt. Colly, maj. of brig.; Capt. Bacon, dep. asst. qr. mr. genl.; and Lieut. Henry, sub-asst. coms. genl., for their gallantry, zeal, and indefatigable exertions during these operations; also to Surg. Mackenzie, staff surg., who on this occasion was, as I have ever found him, most unremitting in his exertions in his department. Capt. Colly, my brig. major, has served with this brig. since it was first organised, in June last, and during the eventful year that has passed has shown great gallantry in the field, and untiring zeal and application of his various duties, which he has conducted much to my satisfaction. I therefore most earnestly beg to bring the services of this meritorious officer to * H.M.'s 14th lt. drags., 40 sabres; regt. cav. Hyderabad Contingent, 50 sabres; No. 4 lt. f. batt.; No. 18 lt. f. batt.; 21st comp. the favourable notice of the maj. gen. comdg. I beg also to place on record how ably I was seconded in the operations herein detailed by Lieut. col. Lowth, H.M.'s 86th regt., an officer of great energy and judgment, most conspicuous also on every occasion for his gallantry. Lieut. col. Lowth reports to me that Maj. Stuart, Capt. Lepper, Ens. Keane, and Asst. surg. Barry all did good service, and that Capt. Lepper and Dr. Barry left sick beds to join their regt. in the field. I had also occasion to remark the excellent conduct of Ens. Trueman, who commanded the picket of the 3rd Eur. regt. at the mortar batt. on the 22nd inst. This officer, though very young in the service, behaved with great steadiness and gallantry. The wing 25th regt. N.I., employed under me on the 22nd inst., greatly distinguished themselves; they were hotly engaged the whole morning, and fought most stoutly; the conduct of Serg. maj. Graham, on whom devolved the com. of the half batt. No. 4 L.F. batt. when Lieut. Strutt was directed to proceed with the remainder of his guns to another part of the field, deserves great praise; for when the crisis I have alluded to was at hand, I found him prepared to meet it with the utmost steadiness. C. S. STUART, Brigdr.

Comdg. 1st brig. C. I. field force.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of the Maj. gen. comdg. the C.I.F.F., that on the 23rd inst., when directed by your order to pursue the enemy supposed to be retiring from Calpee by the Gwalior or Jaloun road with the troops below noted*, I immediately proceeded to assemble the force placed under my command on the road indicated to me, which proved to be the high road from Calpee to Jhansi. This, however, diverges to Jaloun about three miles, as near as I can recollect, from Calpee.

Capt. Lightfoot reporting his horses to be suffering greatly from want of water, an order was issued to give water to them before commencing the pursuit.

Whilst they were drinking, Captain Abbott informed me that a large Mussulman tomb, about half a mile up the Jhansi road, was occupied by three hundred of the enemy, and we at once proceeded thither, made preparations for surrounding it with our cavalry, and as we moved towards it Lieut. Dowker, of the 1st regt. Hyderabad cont., joined me with 50 sabres.

The building was found to be unoccupied, but at the same time the enemy was descried retiring in great numbers over the plain beyond it to our right front, and a pursuit, which soon brought me to the points where the roads from Jhansi and Jaloun to Calpee unite, was commenced. Here I left Capt. Need, who had accompanied me thus far with his squadron, to bring up the H. A. I had sent back for.

Lieut. Dowker I detached a little to my right, and accompanied by Capt. Abbot and Barrett at the head of their respective detachments, I charged through the enemy's retiring line and dispersed it. The rebels were cut up in all directions, with the loss of two guns, which they abandoned to Lieut. Dowker on the right. The dragoons in the centre sabred a great many of the fugitive sepoy, who, firing wildly, and completely panic-stricken by the suddenness and rapidity of our advance, fell an easy prey to their pursuers, in some instances casting away their arms, in others suffering themselves to be followed into ravines, where they were slain. Four elephants were soon after captured as the pursuit continued.

On the left, ahead of all, Capt. Abbott charged along the road to Jaloun and the right and left of it, capturing on his way a 9-pdr. gun, which the paralysed enemy, though loaded and placed in position, did not fire, but abandoned after several of them had been cut down round about it; a few casualties occurred in Capt. Abbott's regiment.

Beyond the village of Hurkhopoora about a hundred of the enemy's red cavalry crossed our front from the left, accompanied by some infantry, and entered a village about half a mile to our front. As it appeared that they were disposed to make a stand here, and my cavalry being thrown into some disorder by the pursuit, I sounded the assembly, and re-formed my line, with the intention of attacking them; but before this could be done they had fled, and in the exhausted state of the men and horses further pursuit for the moment was out of the question. I therefore halted, and proceeded to water my horses at a well to my left rear. Between 200 and 300 of the rebels had been sabred, without any casualties on our side beyond those specified. On my left the sound of Capt. Lightfoot's guns had been heard as we approached by the Jhansi road, preceded by Capt. Need, who, extending to the right and left of the road, charged the rear of an infantry column, of whom he cut down nearly 200, while Capt. Lightfoot plied them with shot and shell.

Cpts. Need and Lightfoot captured three pieces of ordnance during this advance, continued by the former to the eighth mile stone on the Jhansi road.

After watering, I joined the H.A. on the Jhansi road, and proposed advancing, but the exhausted state of the H.A. horses, and, indeed, of our men generally, would not admit of this, and I gave orders for the return of the force to camp at Calpee, which we reached after having been upwards of thirteen hours in the saddle.

A considerable body, some hundreds of the rebels, went off early, to my right, in a northerly direction, descending into ravines where it would have been very difficult to follow them with cavalry. Amongst them were a great many women and children this body did not pursue.

I cannot speak too highly of Capt. Abbott's conduct during the pursuit which on the left he led well in advance at the head of his regiment, animating it by an example it nobly followed.

The very weak squad of drags. that I have had with me was ably led by Capt. Barrett, whose good conduct whilst serving under my immediate command I have already had occasion to bring to the notice of the brigdr. comdg. brig. C. I. F. F., for favourable recommendation to the maj. gen. Capt. Barrett's men did great execution amongst the rebels, and the sowers of the 1st cav. Hyderabad Contingent, led by Lieut. Dowker, emulated them.

To all the troops, all the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, placed under my command, my best thanks are given, for the energy and fortitude displayed by them. Surg. Stewart, 14th drags., I have to thank for his attention to those who fell sick during the pursuit carried on through the hottest part of the day. My thanks are also due to assist. surgs. Lofthouse and Lumsdaice; Lieut. and Adj. Gills, left wing 14th drags., as on many previous occasions, distinguishing himself in several personal encounters with armed sepoys.

I specially recommend Cpts. Abbott, Barrett, and Need, and Lieut. Dowker, to the notice of the maj. gen. actg. regimental sergt.; maj. Clark and private Winton, B trp. 14th drags., behaved with great gallantry. The captures were as follows:—5 guns, 1 gingall on wheels, 2 artillery waggons filled with ammunition, 1 native tumbril, 20 boxes of ammunition, 6 elephants, 8 camels, 42 bullock draughts, 3 hackeries, 1 spring cart.

R. H. GALL, maj., Left wing 14th lt. drags.

List of Officers and Men of the Central India Field Force, specially mentioned for important or good service in the operations before Calpee, from 17th to 23rd May, 1858.

Col. Wetherall, c.b., chief of the staff. Important service during the operations as a very active and intelligent chief of the staff, although very ill, and suffering from climate. Gallant conduct in the charge of the camel corps. Horse wounded.

Capt. Wood, assist. adj. gen. Useful services and zeal during the operations.

Capt. Cockburn, H.M.'s 43rd regt., a-de-c. Useful service and zeal during the operations; and gallant conduct in the charge of the camel corps. Horse wounded.

Lieut. Luard, late 1st Ben. N. C., actg. a-de-c. Useful service and zeal during the operations.

Lieut. Baigrie, 3rd By. Eur., actg. assist. gr. mr. gen. Useful service and great devotion in continuing to discharge his duties during the whole of the operations, although badly wounded. Gallant conduct in the charge of the camel corps. Horse killed.

Lieut. Lyster, interpreter, late 72nd B.N.I. General useful service during the operations.

Lieut. Gordon, Asst. comsry. gen. zeal and intelligence in supplying the force under most difficult circumstances.

Dr. Arnott, superintending surgn., expresses his approval of the medical officers of the force under his orders in the following terms, and I beg to confirm his approval:—

"To the distinguished skill and ability of field surg. Ritchie is due the eminent success of the depot hospital at Jhansi, in which every capital operation has completely succeeded, and among two hundred European and one hundred native sick and wounded the casualties have been far below the average. To the indefatigable zeal of Drs. Ritchie and Taylor, and their attention to that enormous charge must be ascribed in a great measure such extraordinary success. Dr. Stewart, H.M.'s 14th lt. drags., unfortunately was not present at Jhansi, but his duties, since the 7th of May, have been onerous in the extreme, and the zeal with which he has devoted himself to them merits every praise. The exposure and fatigue so cheerfully undergone by Dr. Dees in his duties with the 3rd cav., and his unceasing attention to his duties, are gratefully remembered. Dr. Mackenzie, 3rd Hyderabad cav., has been most active, and his exertions at the storming of Jhansi in carrying on the duties of Dr. Stack, when shot dead, were most useful and the saving of much suffering among the wounded of H.M.'s 86th regt. Dr. Vaughan in undertaking to conduct the duties of field surg., in addition to his own, only evinced that zeal for the service of which we had already ample proof. His duties since the force left Jhansi have been of the most arduous and trying description; but they have on all occasions been most cheerfully and ably performed.

"These officers I would beg to recommend to your most favourable notice, though my warmest thanks are due to all for the cordial and steady support and co-operation they have on all occasions afforded me."

Rev. Mr. Schwabbe, Protestant chaplain. Unwearied zeal in the execution of his duties, and most praiseworthy attention to the sick and wounded, went home on sick certificate, dangerously ill from sun sickness.

Rev. Mr. Strickland, Roman Catholic chaplain. Unwearied zeal in the execution of his duties, and most praiseworthy attention to the sick and wounded.

Lieut. col. Maxwell, comdg. flying column, on the left bank of the Jumna. Important services during the operations, particularly in shelling and firing very efficiently on the fort and town of Calpee and the enemy's position.

Dr. Arnott, M.D., superintending surg. Great zeal and ability in the discharge of his difficult and important duties as chief medical officer to the force. Great zeal in riding back in extreme heat voluntarily from Calpee the day of our arrival, the whole way to the camp of Golowlee, and bringing back from there all the sick to Calpee, thus performing a triple march in one day.

Ensign Mackintosh, 3rd By. Eur. Posting his men advantageously, and beating back the enemy by the good fire of the detachment of this regiment on the 17th of May.

Capt. Douglass, B.A. Gallantly and skillfully placing his guns at Muttra, under a heavy musketry fire, and clearing the ravines of rebels, on the 17th May.

Capt. Todd, brig. major of 2nd brig. Giving very useful assistance on the 17th May to Lieut.

col. Campbell, comdg. 2nd brig. in the field, although very ill and in the sick report.

Maj. Orr, comg. Hyderabad F.F. Efficient aid to the 2nd brig. at Diapoorra on the 16th May.

Majors Rich and Loftus. Skillfully loopholing the houses, and driving back the enemy with great loss when they attacked Muttra on the 18th May.

Maj. Stuart, H.M.'s 86th regt. Skillful disposition of the pickets and reinforcement, and in repulsing the determined attack of the enemy on the 20th May.

Lieut. Jerome, H.M.'s 86th regt., severely wounded. Most gallantly and successfully leading his company against the enemy on the 20th May.

Capt. Lepper, H.M.'s 86th regt. Skillfully directing the different companies of skirmishers against the attack of the enemy on the 20th May.

Lieut. Forbes, 25th By. N.I. (partial sun-stroke). Gallantly and successfully leading his company against the enemy on the 20th May.

Capt. Lightfoot, comg. 1st tr. By. H.A. Good service in the pursuit on the 22nd May.

Serjt. maj. Graham, comg. half No. 4 lt. fl. batt. Bravery and skill in commanding his guns, when attacked in position on the right, and afterwards when his guns advanced in pursuit on the 22nd May.

Asst. surg. Barry and Capt. Lepper, H.M.'s 86th regt. Having left their beds, being in the sick report, to join the regt. in the field on 22nd May.

Ens. Trueman, 3rd By. Eur. Great steadiness and gallantry on the 22nd May, when in command of the pickets of his regt. at the mortar battery when attacked.

Brig. Stuart. Ably commanding the advance of the right wing, and bringing up the art. and baggage rapidly through the difficult ravines on the 23rd May.

Capt. Onmanney, R.A., comg. art. Good service in covering the advance, and silencing the enemy's guns, with the batt. R.A. on 23rd May.

Serjt. Judgson, Hyderabad art. Excellent conduct under Capt. Turnbull, B.E., in the mortar batt. on the left bank of the Jumna.

Gunner Farrell, R.A. Excellent conduct under Capt. Turnbull, B.E., in the mortar batt. on the left bank of the Jumna.

List of Officers mentioned for useful Service during the Operations before Calpee from 17th to 23rd May, 1858.

Capt. Lightfoot, comg. 1st tr. By. H.A. Placing skillfully his guns at Muttra on the 7th May.

Maj. Stuart and Ens. Keane, H.M.'s 86th regt. For having, on the 22nd inst., rendered good service in the field.

Lieut. Haggard, comsry. of ordnance. Causing, on the 22nd May, casualties and disorder, by the fire of his siege guns, in the enemy's cav.

Capt. Hare, comg. 5th regt. Hyderabad contingent. Useful service when left in charge of the camp on the 22nd May.

Lieut. Macquoid, adjt. 6th Hyderabad inf. Useful service and constant zeal under Capt. Hare on the 22nd May and other occasions.

Capt. Abbott, comg. 3rd cav. Hyderabad contingent. Guarding well, on the 22nd May, the outposts on the left, and executing skillfully and successfully a retrograde movement, to draw on the enemy into the fire of our siege guns.

Maj. Ross, comg. camel corps. Useful conduct in covering the advance of the left column against Calpee on the 23rd May.

CULTIVATION OF COTTON IN INDIA.—A massive Blue-book, of 1,640 pages, contains a selection of papers showing the measures taken since 1847 to promote the cultivation of cotton in India. As this, in every sense, ponderous volume is only a continuation of Part III., relating exclusively to Bombay, it may pertinently be questioned whether, as so often represented in Parliament, the public money is not rather improperly squandered on the printing of a mass of crude and undigested information, which would frighten the veriest devourer of Blue-books at first sight. The mover for this immense pile of volumes was Mr. Seymour, M.P. for Poole.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, April 27, 1859.

THE PRINCIPALITY OF DHAR.

ON the motion of Mr. J. B. Smith, the House of Commons lately called for a "copy of all correspondence between the Home Government and the Supreme Government of India on the subject of the Principality of Dhar." These papers are now published, and redound greatly to the credit of the late Court of Directors. Instead of availing themselves of a plausible opportunity for annexing a rebellious State, they generously interposed between the delinquent and their own public officers. This conduct on their part was, indeed, by no means novel or exceptional, though contrary to the line of policy with which they have been falsely and ignorantly charged by their vulgar opponents. It has been the fashion to accuse them of being inflamed by a lust for conquest and territorial aggrandisement, and their enemies have loved to aver that, for the sake of increased patronage or revenue, they were ever ready to postpone the highest considerations of national honour and truthfulness. Their latest despatch on the subject of the Principality of Dhar is only one of many proofs that they were ever anxious to act with strict justice, tempered by great forbearance, in all their transactions with the petty independent principalities of India. And on more than one occasion, as in the present instance, they have supported the native State against the pretentious and arbitrary proceedings of the local Government.

The facts of the case are simply these. On the 23rd May, 1857, Jeswunt Rao Puhar, Rajah of Dhar, on his death-bed adopted as his successor his younger brother, Bala Sahib, then a child of about ten years of age. The Supreme Government, acting on the earnest recommendation of Colonel Durand, Political Agent for Central India, sanctioned this adoption "in recognition of the good qualities and good conduct of the deceased prince," and a regency was appointed to conduct the administration during Bala Sahib's minority. During the mutinies, however, the Durbar enlisted in their service a considerable body of fierce, ill-disciplined Afghans and Mekraunes, over whom they neither exercised, nor attempted to exercise, any sort of restraint. All kinds of excesses were therefore perpetrated. The Government mail was attacked and robbed, the stations of Bhoparwur and Sirdarpore were plundered and burnt, the Green Flag hoisted in token of rebellion, and the British troops defied and opposed in the field. These outrages could not be passed over with impunity. Accordingly, on the 22nd October, 1857, a detachment from Brigadier Stuart's column sat down before the fortress of Dhar, which, as soon as a practicable breach was effected, was evacuated by its garrison. To mark "the just resentment of the British Government," Colonel Durand directed that the fort should at once be dismantled, and the principality itself annexed to the empire. These suggestions were approved of by the Governor-General, but promptly condemned and discountenanced by the Court of Directors.

"The ground," say they, "upon which this forfeiture was decreed, and, as we learn from subsequent papers, has since been carried into effect, was, that it is expedient to demonstrate, in the most unmistakable manner, to the princes and chiefs of Malwa that the British Government holds the durbar responsible for the conduct of their armies, and has determined, therefore, in this case, by way of example, to visit upon the State itself the rebellion of its mercenary troops. But we do not perceive how we could consistently punish this, or any other weak State, for its inability to control its troops, when it was patent to the whole world that the more powerful States of Gwalior and Indore, and even the British Government itself, were unable to control theirs."

As a temporary arrangement, however, they authorise the "attachment" to continue, while an investigation was held as to the complicity in the recent outrages of any members of the young Rajah's family or of the Durbar. But they express their opinion that, "in consideration of the youth and apparent innocence of the young Rajah, and of the good conduct of his predecessor in this ancient principality, you may justly and expediently make such arrangements for the future government of Dhar as will not permanently deprive him of the inheritance upon which, by the favour of your Government, he had so recently entered, and with such fair prospects of a peaceful and prosperous reign." It will scarcely be credited that, although this despatch was dated so far back as the 22nd of June, 1858, no action was taken upon it by Lord Canning, at least up to the commencement of the present year. On the 1st of March, therefore, the Secretary of State for India was compelled to refresh his lordship's memory, and to desire that he would "proceed with all possible despatch to carry out the policy indicated by the Court of Directors, and entirely concurred in by the Board of Commissioners for the Affairs of India." Perhaps when he has completed the ruin of the European mercantile community, and sufficiently enriched all natives of ambiguous loyalty, the illustrious earl to whose hands a Whig Ministry entrusted the helm of our Indian empire, may find leisure to answer, if not to act upon, the numerous despatches which have been addressed to him by the Home Government, without hitherto eliciting the slightest acknowledgment.

LORD CANNING AS A FINANCIER.

WHATEVER difference of opinion may exist as to the general policy of Lord Canning in India, there can be but one opinion of his measures regarding finance. His attempts to obtain money, first by a five per cent. loan, receiving in payment one-half in four per cent. paper, then his five and a half per cent. loan, followed by a sale of Treasury Bonds bearing five and three-quarters per cent. interest, look more like the wild and desperate efforts of a needy, reckless, and unskilful spendthrift, than the calm, well-considered, and able measures which we have a right to expect from a statesman entrusted with the direction of the finances of a great empire. The inevitable result of such rapidly repeated changes, and such reckless disregard of the credit of the Government, could have been foretold to him by the veriest tyro in finance. Far from obtaining money for the pressing wants of the State, he effect-the small shopkeeper, or bunnia, trading in the most distant parts of the empire. The confusion and injury to commerce will be widespread and great, and we venture to predict that the profit to the revenue will, in a short time, be nil. All experience proves that an attempt to increase revenue by augmenting import duties has only the effect of checking consumption, and ends rather in reducing than raising the receipts. We have repeatedly seen the South American Governments endeavour to increase their revenue by raising the duties on British manufactures, and the result has invariably been a great diminution in imports, and falling off of the previous receipts. Such, too, will be the case in India if this monstrous measure of Lord Canning's is permitted to continue in force. But we trust better things from the good sense of Lord Stanley, and the sound financial advisers of his council.

GREAT SOUTHERN OF INDIA RAILWAY.

The directors of this company state in their report that the sanction of the East India Company was obtained in May last for the construction of the first section of the railway between Negapatam and Trichinopoly, a distance of eighty miles, with a guaranteed interest of 5 per cent. per annum on £1,000,000, the estimate by the court of directors of the cost of the undertaking. It has been ascertained by the consulting engineer that £500,000, as originally stated by the directors, would be amply sufficient to construct and provide the rolling stock for the first section of the railway. Of the 25,000 shares in the company £5 per share has been called up, and the directors have paid into the treasury of the India office £120,000.

From the report made to them by the consulting engineer, the directors find that the country between Negapatam and Trichinopoly is peculiarly favourable for the construction of a railway, and, by subdividing the line into manageable lengths, and appointing a resident engineer and inspector to each, they were satisfied that, under this system, they would be enabled not only to complete the railway as rapidly, but in as substantial and workmanlike a manner as if it had been placed in the hands of contractors. Taking these circumstances into consideration, the directors have resolved to execute the works under the superintendence of their own officers, and they have now contracted for the stores and service materials, as well as the rails, chairs, and fastenings for fifty miles of permanent way at very favourable prices. The saving in the cost of the first section will be considerable. Starting westward from Negapatam, the line traverses one of the most thickly peopled districts of India; it passes through the heart of Tanjore, styled "the garden of India," containing a population of 2,000,000, and through the district of Trichinopoly, with 800,000 inhabitants. The chief stations will be Negapatam, a seaport on the western coast of the Bay of Bengal; the town of Tanjore, with 80,000, and the town of Trichinopoly, with 35,000 inhabitants. The whole country is under cultivation, and is excelled in fertility and productiveness by none in India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.—The directors of the Oriental Bank Corporation have published their report preparatory to the annual meeting on the 28th instant. The accounts are made up, as usual, to the 31st of December, and the net profit, after defraying current expenses, and writing off bad and doubtful debts, amounts to £155,187. A dividend of five per cent. for the first half-year of 1858 has already been paid, and the directors propose to declare a similar dividend of 5 per cent. for the subsequent half-year, together with a bonus of 2 per cent., making for the year a distribution of 12 per cent. on the capital of the company. The dividend and bonus of £1.15s. per share will be paid, free of Income-tax, on and after the 2nd proximo, and after these payments have been made a balance of £3,987 will be carried forward to next year's account. Since the last report was issued the supplemental charter has been received, granting facilities for the holding of shares and for the earlier summoning of meetings and the declaration of dividends. With respect to the depreciation in the current value of Indian securities, a portion of local reserves being held in this description of property, the directors announce that although the fall will probably be only temporary, they have considered it their duty from time to time to put aside a sufficient sum to adjust the value of these investments to the market price of the day. In the case of the London and Eastern Bank the progress making in the realisation of securities is stated to be satisfactory, and there is every prospect of a final arrangement at an early date.

MAJOR GENERAL HAVELOCK, the younger and only surviving brother of the renowned Havelock, the deliverer of Lucknow, and we may almost say of India, is a candidate for the governorship of the Leeds Borough Gaol.

JEREMIE'S SEDATIVE SOLUTION

(The Recipe of which has recently become the property of Messrs. SAVORY and MOORE) has long been celebrated in India as an invaluable ANTI-CHOLERAIC and ANTI-SPASMODIC MEDICINE.

Official Reports of Military Medical Officers, and private ones from Civilians of the highest rank, afford abundant proof of the importance with which it is still regarded in that country.

During the recent visitations of Cholera to the United Kingdom, JEREMIE'S OPIATE acquired considerable popularity as affording speedy relief in the early stages of the disease, and effectually arresting its progress. In all cases where the use of a sedative is indicated, JEREMIE'S SOLUTION may be safely and advantageously administered. The fact that its exhibition is not followed by those distressing symptoms which more or less characterise other preparations of Opium, warrants the preference which is accorded to it by so large a number of the Medical Profession.

Copy of a letter addressed to Messrs. SAVORY and MOORE by the lady of an eminent official personage in India, during the last outbreak of Cholera:—

"Be so good as to send me six bottles of your JEREMIE'S DOCTORS. I wish to promote the use of this Medicine at these times, because my own personal experience of it gives me such unlimited confidence in its success. I am told by the doctors now, that sulphuric acid is the great remedy for Cholera; I am not acquainted with this remedy, but the JEREMIE'S DOCTORS I used every day during a period of ten years in Calcutta, and every one knows that the form of Cholera in Bengal is very deadly. I have given it alike to all patients, whether European or Native, and as I had an establishment of my own of sixty-three male servants, and distributed to them and to all their families, as well as to all the poor around, my experience has been large. During this whole period of ten years I only lost one patient, a poor Native, who laboured in my tank after being seized with cholera. One varies the dose of from five to forty drops, according to the strength of the disease. The chief care is to repeat it in small doses after each purging or vomiting. After cramp and collapse have come on, I have recovered my patient by a forty-drop dose. I have always seen this remedy used by the first medical men in Calcutta. I also used mustard poultices largely to calves of legs, soles of feet, and stomach."

N.B.—A compound of a deleterious character is imposed upon the public as JEREMIE'S SOLUTION OF OPIUM, by means of falsified labels, wrappers, and bottles. Purchasers are therefore cautioned that the Government Stamp on every genuine bottle contains the names and address of the proprietors,

As supplied to her Majesty's Government, the Council of India, the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, the United States Mail Steamers, Prisons, Poor-law Unions, Hospitals, Public Institutions, the principal Club Houses, &c., &c., is the only Pure Vinegar made or to be obtained; Vinegar, in its ordinary state, is water and poisonous acids. This Vinegar does not contain any impurity or adulterating ingredient whatever. Families, Clubs, Messes, &c., by using this delicious Vinegar, insure purity, and effect a saving of fifty per cent. See reports of Dr. Letheby, City Officer of Health, Dr. Hassall, of the "Lancet" Commission, Dr. Ure, M.D., F.R.S., and many others. Sold in bottles, labelled and capped, by every Agent, and Wholesale at 63, KING WILLIAM-STREET, LONDON-BRIDGE, E.C.

Six Quart sample sent free to any railway for 3s. 6d.
Colonial and Foreign Orders must contain a remittance or reference.

CONDY'S PATENT FLUID;

OR, NATURAL DISINFECTANT,

Not only deodorizes but disinfects perfectly, and destroys for ever the cause of infection, is not poisonous, may be used to purify water, evolves no noxious or unpleasant gas, cannot be mistaken for any other fluid, thereby preventing death and disease, gives health, pure air, and fresh water, and is therefore the best, safest, cheapest, and most pleasant disinfectant ever introduced.

This fluid has been examined and reported upon by the Board of Health and all the most eminent medical men and chemists of the day, in all cases in the most satisfactory manner possible.

The public are recommended to use this fluid, properly diluted for use, frequently and habitually in the bath, and as a means of instantly lowering the temperature and purifying the air of apartments, tents, &c., also for big-water, stables, musty casks, sick rooms, close places, &c., as it has numerous advantages, and can be used with certain immediate success and perfect safety.

Sold in Quart Bottles 4s., Pints 2s., Half-pints 1s., and in bulk 10s. per gallon.

Free by rail on receipt of P.O.O. Colonial and Foreign Orders must contain a remittance or reference.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.

"Auckland, N. Z., Nov. 19, 1858.
"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Frencher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

(the Originators of this method of preserving.) Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are particularly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

This publication stands on quite a different ground from the other monthlies, and affects no rivalry with them. We beg to add our own recommendation to those it has already received. Though the conductors disclaim the idea of filling any vacuum, they certainly do so. They evidently also possess good information, and deal with most of their topics in a serious and searching spirit.—Press, March 5, 1859.

If it proves to be, what from the first number seems likely, a publication appealing more to the higher class of readers, whose wants are at present only supplied by the Quarterly Reviews, its chances of success will certainly be very considerable. There is no conceivable reason why articles written by and addressed to thoughtful men should only make their appearance four times in the twelvemonth, but, on the contrary, every reason to suppose that a monthly collection of such would meet with a ready and extensive sale. The purely political articles are on "Indian Finance" and "Parliament and the People," the last, especially, very ably written.—Globe, March 2, 1859.

First of all, let us bid welcome to the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," published by Messrs. Allen and Co., of 7, Leadenhall-street. It is sought to establish a sort of English "Revue des deux Mondes." This design is strictly carried out.—Literary Gazette, March 5, 1859.

Its articles, which are of a thoroughly miscellaneous character, are promising enough.—John Bull, March 5, 1859.

The first number of a new monthly publication, the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," deserves a cordial welcome. Professedly based upon the plan of the "Revue des deux Mondes," it exhibits much of the scholarly spirit, the freedom and independence of thought, and the thorough geniality of tone, which mark its distinguished prototype. The opening article on "Literature and Life" is remarkable, hitting the case to a nicety, taking the middle course between the reckless Mohockism of Bohemia, and the affected kid-glove refinement of the Saturday Review. All the articles are excellent; but I would specially point out a well-deserved attack on "Christmas Pieces," a biographical notice of "Hallam," and a review of Owen Meredith's "Wanderer."—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, March 5, 1859.

The best brief notion we can give of the publication is to say that it promises to become to the English reader what the Revue des deux Mondes is to the French, with an indefinitely wider latitude of topics and freedom of opinion. The soundness of its judgment on the question of Parliamentary Reform is displayed in the ablest and most thoroughly constitutional article that has yet appeared in any of our periodicals on the subject—an article which acquires additional value from the fact that it foreshadowed the whole of the scheme of the Government two days before the Reform Bill was brought forward. Let us have at least one English periodical, written with integrity and good taste, to which we may confidently look for fearless and honest opinions. The "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" promises to realise those expectations, and we heartily wish it the success which it deserves.—Home News, March 3, 1859.

At the SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING, held on the 25th November, 1858, it was shown that on the 30th June last,—

The Number of Policies in Force was..... 6,085

The Amount Insured was..... £2,551,136. 6s. 6d.

The Annual Income was nearly..... £120,000

The New Policies issued during the last five years are as follows:—

5,411 Policies for £2,599,658, yielding £110,624 in Premiums, showing an average yearly amount of new business of more than HALF-A-MILLION STERLING.

The Society has paid claims on 1,063 policies, assuring £426,044 since its establishment in 1841.

Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at as moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.

Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European Life in that Colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on the lives of military officers holding civil appointments, for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the Assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.

Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

Policies issued free of stamp duty, and every charge but the premiums.

In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

NOTWITHSTANDING the proverbial length of a stern chase, that distinguished vagabond, Tantia Topee, has at last been fairly run down and captured. This important intelligence figures at the head of the news brought from Bombay by the Mail of the 11th April. Only second to it in interest is the announcement of the surrender of Maun Sing to Major Meade's column at Mahoodna on the 2nd April. Five days afterwards this same detachment was enabled, by Maun Sing's treachery to his late comrade in flight, to surprise and seize Tantia Topee himself. Only a few days previously, the columns under Colonel de Salis and Colonel Rich, by a combined movement overtook and attacked the rebels under their principal leaders, Feroze Shah, Tantia Topee, and the Rao Sahib, and cut up 500 of them, with very trifling loss on the part of the British troops.

The latest intelligence from the Nepal frontier reports an attack upon the 1st Sikh Infantry, by a body of rebels, in a vain attempt to burst through into Oude. H.M.'s 53rd promptly advanced to the support of the Sikhs, and the enemy was repulsed and driven to the eastward. In this affair, however, Lieut. Grant, 1st Sikh Infantry, was killed, and Lieut. Bicker (?), of the same corps, severely wounded.

On the 28th March, Colonel Kelly again attacked the rebels near Bootwal, killed some 400 of them, and captured a number of elephants, camels, and horses. According to a Calcutta paper, the Begum had contrived to make her way to Katmandoo, where she is living in disguise with the Ranee Chunder of Lahore, who escaped from the fortress of Allahabad some years ago. The Nana, if the same authority be worthy of credit, has assumed the costume of a Fakir—an extremely primitive garb—but, being recognised by an officer of the frontier force, narrowly escaped being captured, and the ultimate consequences of such a mishap.

In other parts of India the ground swell of the late rebellion still continues, though daily declining in importance. Detachments of troops are scouring the country, and gradually enforcing a return to orderly habits and civilised pursuits.

The excitement caused by the new Customs Act appears to be dying out in Bombay—it being an essential property of the Anglo Saxon character to overcome obstacles and endeavour to be "jolly under creditable circumstances." Thus, instead of a further outburst of either indignation or lamentation, we find full reports in the local papers of the festive honours

COLONISATION OF INDIA.

The "Colonisation of India" is a phrase very apt to conjure up false ideas. It makes people think of the colonisation of America, of Canada, of Australia, and New Zealand, and of course their thoughts are very wide of any possible reality in fact. To colonise a vast tropical country, already, for the most part, well stocked with inhabitants, is clearly an impossibility. Even were there room for them, we could not turn ship-loads of British immigrants adrift on the plains of India, to clear and cultivate the land, or to seek fortune in the pleasant but anxious operation of sheep-farming. The land would absorb such immigrants into its bosom as fast as you could pour them on to it. To establish colonies in India, however, is a very different and much more feasible matter. There are spots on which it is possible for an Englishman to labour and live, where he may enjoy many of the comforts of home, and where his children may grow up around him healthy and vigorous, fit, in due time, to fill his place, when, at a good old age, he is laid under a foreign sod. The Sub-Himalayan range offers vast tracts suitable for such colonisation; so do the Neilgherries, and probably other mountain ranges. There, the hardily-reared Briton may at all seasons engage in the toils of agriculture without fear of injury from the climate, while elsewhere he can only superintend the actual labourer, and that only at certain times and under many precautions. But it would not be necessary to depend altogether on immigrants for such colonisation. The retired soldier, fully acclimatised, would make an excellent colonist, and would be very glad, doubtless, to appear in that character, on his grant of land—the parting gifts of the Government whom he has faithfully served. Enterprising and intelligent men, however, of a class somewhat higher than that of the mere clohopper, would rejoice in the opportunity of leaving their over-crowded native land with a chance of earning competence, if not fortune, in a country whose very name is a scarecrow to the ignorant and the timid. We might thus establish a chain of settlements along the base of the hills, each the centre of a fertile and highly cultivated district, the home of a thriving and happy community of real English hearts, and, to descend to a lower but not less important point, serving as an admirable nursery of stout recruits for our European army in India?

Intelligence, industry, and economy would have their natural effect in our colonies as elsewhere, and we should soon have men qualified to return "home" as small "Naybobs" or to found a squirearchy under the shadow of the snowy Himalaya. It is impossible to over-estimate the benefits which the realisation of such a system would confer on this country generally. We might expect that the influence of such colonies of Englishmen, wisely and firmly governed, would flow down over the plains in streams of unmixed good. Their prosperity would, it may be hoped, excite the curiosity and arouse the competition of the natives around, who, by the use of the improved processes and implements of the white stranger, and by imitating his industry and perseverance, might expect to share his good fortune. May we not hope, too, that familiar acquaintance with the virtues of the Englishman above the lower classes—we wish we could exclude the thought of his vices,—would in time produce its humanising and civilising effect.

Our mountain-colonists would not be confined to the pursuits of ordinary simple agriculture, to the cultivation of cereals, or to the feeding of sheep and cattle. The tracts to which we refer are adapted to the growth of many valuable articles of produce. Among these is tea, for which it is not even yet pro-dent to rely solely on the Chinese. This is already grown at the base of the Sub-Himalayas, and with complete success. We have seen it stated, moreover, that an experienced French wine-grower has said that he had seen in these hills thousands of acres perfectly suited to the growth of the vine. Besides these products, doubtless many of those hitherto confined to Europe might be made to flourish in the temperate climate of the hills. We may instance fruits of various kinds, which the railways would carry sound and fresh to the dwellers in the hot and thirsty plains from one extremity of the country to the other.

Besides the riches to be gathered by industry from the surface of the soil, there are also treasures to be won from its bosom. We fear to mention gold, though we have heard whispers of its suspected existence in some of those parts. But there is iron, and, it may be, coal, at no great distance—articles in fast-growing demand throughout this country. The colonist could not work as an actual miner, perhaps, but he could, if qualified by previous teaching and training, bring his skill and experience into the most useful and profitable employment in directing and superintending the operations of native workmen, initiating them into the use of the improved implements and processes which would supersede their own rude and primitive contrivances.

Out of the hills and over the plains and table-lands of the country, Europeans can be useful only as directors and superintendents. The climate forbids them mere bodily toil. But there is or will be occupation of a suitable and safe character for thousands even here, and these of a higher grade than our mountain colonist. Already we have them crowding every steamer as engineers of various grades, contractors, and contractors' assistants—all to be employed on the railways and public works of the country; and we have Lord Stanley's recorded promise that the State will add its quota to the ranks of this class in an uncovenanted engineer service. The demand for men of this class must be ever on the increase; and we have no doubt the supply will always be equal to the demand. Soon, however, we shall want many more of this class to direct and superintend the cultivation and preparations of various articles of produce on the most improved systems, and under the fostering influence of English capital. Cotton and flax, for instance, on this side of India, will furnish employment for many practical men, and as we "develop the resources" of the country, other products may be found to claim the like attention.

The "colonists" most needed at present, however, are men of skill, experience, and capital, coming out with a determination to act while others are talking—to prove, say, the practicability of supplying Manchester with good, clean, cheap Indian cotton, by actually doing the thing, as much to their own benefit as to that of Manchester. Such are the men we most want just now—men something like the indigo planters of Bengal, active, energetic, persevering, and seeming born and bred to their business—something like these, only less dependent on presidency merchants and agents. We should like to learn of ever so few of them being at work in Khandeish, Guzerat, or the Southern Maharatta country. When they prevail throughout the cotton-producing districts we shall soon hear little more of the rivalry of churka and saw-gin, of the merits of various kinds of seeds, and the best time for sowing them. The cotton will be grown, collected, cleaned, and shipped—probably without an incendiary admixture of stones—and the public will know only that it has found favour in Lancashire, and yielded a profit to the exporter. Such are the "colonists" we most need just now, and whose success as immigrants would be most certain; we suppose they will come with the railroads.—Bombay Gazette.

COMMERCIAL BANK OF INDIA.

An annual general meeting of the shareholders of this bank was held at the banking house of the company in Rampart-row, at one o'clock p.m., on Wednesday, the 30th March, when there were present H. D. Cartwright, Esq., in the chair; J. J. Lowndes, Heerjeebhoy Jehangir, Bomanjee Framjee Cama, and Soratjee Framjee, Esqs.; directors Dr. Hugh Miller, O. W. Ketterer, Hormusjee Jehangir, Phillip D'Lemos, Nowrojee Furdoonjee, Ardaseer Rustomjee, Cursetjee Pallonjee, and Premchund Roychund, Esqs., and several others.

Mr. R. Angus, the manager of the bank, having read the notice convening the meeting, published in the newspapers, Mr. Cartwright proceeded to read the report of the directors, which is as follows:

REPORT.

"The directors avail themselves with pleasure of the opportunity afforded by the close of another year's business, for reporting to the shareholders the position of the bank's affairs.

"The audited accounts now submitted, which have been in circulation amongst the proprietors for some days past, show, after meeting the expenses of the entire establishment, and amply covering all bad and doubtful debts, a net profit of rupees four lacs, forty-two thousand eight hundred and sixty, annas six, and pies ten (Rupees 4,42,860-6-10). From this sum, two dividends, respectively at the rate of six and eight per cent. per annum, have been paid to the shareholders; and the directors have carried the balance of rupees one lac, twenty-three thousand six hundred and sixty, annas six, and pies ten (Rs. 1,23,660-6-10) to the credit of the reserve fund. The latter augmented by a dividend from an old estate, now therefore stands at rupees one lac, ninety-seven thousand eight hundred and seven, annas eleven, and pies five (Rs. 1,97,807-11-5), irrespective of what may be realized from the bank's properties in Ceylon, to the earliest possible sale of which the attention of the directors continues to be given.

"The last yearly general meeting took place, it will be recollected, immediately after the severe commercial crisis of 1857. Looking to the extended operations of the bank, it could not be expected that it could pass unscathed through such a period, or that calculations of loss however cautious, made ere the result had been fully ascertained, could be deemed wholly reliable. In addition, indeed, to the bills in suspense, alluded to in the auditors' report submitted to last general meeting, farther bills in the bank's hands, principally upon two houses of standing, shortly thereafter became dishonoured. The present profit and loss account, however, now shows as closely as possible the bank's entire losses during the disastrous period referred to, which have been estimated at Rs. 1,17,338-3-4—a sum which, in the opinion of the directors and the auditors, will not be augmented, and which has been deducted from the profits of the year just ended.

"The directors have to report that on the 14th of October and 30th November last respectively, Dr. Dallas and Frederick Chapman, Esqs., resigned their seats in the Bank's direction. In accordance with the deed of settlement, J. J. Lowndes, Esq., was appointed in room of the former, and H. D. Cartwright, Esq., in that of the latter. A resolution will be proposed to the shareholders confirming these appointments.

"Two directors will further have to be chosen in the room of Heerjee Jehangir and Bomanjee Framjee Cama, Esqs., who go out by rotation.

"Two auditors have also, under clause 85 of the deed of settlement, to be appointed for the current year. The lamented death of the late David McCulloch, Esq., to whose many services on the bank's behalf the directors may here but simply refer, having taken place since last meeting, it became necessary to appoint an auditor in his stead. The board, finding great difficulty in securing the services of a shareholder to undertake this important duty, decided upon appointing a gentleman not a shareholder, but whose position in the mercantile community would undoubtedly secure the confidence of the proprietors. The directors are of opinion, that an alteration of the present rule upon this subject is very desirable, and a resolution, in terms of the advertisement calling this meeting, will be accordingly submitted for the adoption of the proprietors."

DIRECT CADETS.—The following gentlemen having obtained nominations passed the required examination for direct cadets on the 3rd inst.:—H. O. Cumberlege, R. M. Jennings, Thos. G. Macanlay, Arthur C. Mottet, E. G. Newnham, W. S. Peat, Campbell Walker, Thos. C. Briggs, H. F. Bunbury, C. C. G. Murray, A. W. Parker, G. E. Weston.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SURPRISE OF THE REBELS.—An express has just reached Mhow with the good news that part of Smith's brigade, consisting of eighty of the 8th hussars, 150 of the 95th, and 130 of the 10th N. I., the two latter mounted on Samni camels, after marching all night on the 4th April twenty-three miles, came upon and surprised 800 rebels at daylight the next morning at a village called Tinsia, in the heart of the dense belt of jungles west of Seronje. Tinsia is about thirty miles due west of Seronje, and about ten miles north-east of Muxsoodenugger fort, and near Jookur. Smith's brigade went after them on the 3rd, but the rebel party, under the Rao, hearing of their approach, soon horsed and made direct for the Trunk road, and came across some of the brigade baggage, two gharricks of which they plundered, and killed the bandmaster of the 10th N.I. (an European). They appear to have turned north, and united with Tantia Topee and Feroze Shah, who thought themselves securely encamped in the thickest jungles. This is known to be a fact, as some of the looted property was recovered on the 5th in their camp. The prisoners taken, some of whom are Bengal sepoys and Scindiah's body-guard, state that all three were there.—I mean Tantia, Feroze, and the Rao Govind. One man of distinction, supposed to be the latter, was killed by an 8th hussar, but this requires confirmation, and we shall anxiously wait for further intelligence. Of the 800, 350 at least are computed killed, while our casualties are reported at two men and five horses of the 8th wounded, two men and one officer 95th wounded, four men 10th N.I. and one camel corps also wounded—no one killed. Many men were missing, having no doubt lost themselves in the jungles; a large quantity of baggage, including camels, horses, and ponies, fell into our hands.—Bombay Gazette.

THE 5TH PUNJAB INFANTRY at Baraitch have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to move towards the Nepaul frontier.

LORD CLYDE AT AGRA.—As it was publicly given out on Tuesday, that his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief would visit the Taj in the evening, where the Rifle band would be in attendance, and the Taj be illuminated, a large concourse assembled at the place at 8 P.M. The Taj looked splendid as it always does, whether lighted or not, and the music was, as usual, good; but the sight of the evening, beyond a doubt, was Lord Clyde—"the hero of a hundred fights." The pertinacity with which the crowd of sight-seers followed His Excellency about from place to place, was like the boy in, we believe it is, "Barnaby Rudge," who in his fondness for street spectacles used to "follow the stilts home to their door." And Lord Clyde being led about and shown the lions by the aid of a feeble light emitted from a very small lantern, reminded us of Diogenes looking about for an honest man. The party broke up about 11 P.M., much pleased, no doubt, with their evening's entertainment.—Delhi Gazette, March 24.

CONTEMPLATED CHANGES IN THE CIVIL ADMINISTRATION OF THE PUNJAB.—In consequence of the approaching departure of our excellent financial commissioner to England on furlough, it has been proposed to place our present active judicial commissioner, Mr. Edward Thornton, in his place, the latter officer being succeeded by Mr. Barnes, the commissioner and superintendent of the Cis-Sutlej States, whose place will be occupied temporarily by Major Lake, commissioner and superintendent of the Trans-Sutlej States, the vacancy thus created being filled up by Major Taylor.—Lahore Chronicle.

THE NAWAB OF FURRUCKABAD.—A further delay has occurred in the confirmation of the Nawaub of Furruckabad's sentence. It appears that Lord Canning has called for the case, apropos of Major Barlow's strange letter. A European officer, a medical man, is said to be under arrest for receiving presents from the Nawaub after his condemnation; and a court of enquiry, we hear, has been called for.

TRAITOR ENGLISHMEN.—A curious piece of information has reached us (Delhi Gazette) from Oude. The source from whence we derive it is perfectly reliable, though we are not at liberty to mention names. Our informant was told by a certain talookdar, "a man of influence, who had done good service in rescuing the extra assistant commissioner from the hands of the rebels, that there are two Europeans still with the Begum's force, one about fifty and the other about thirty years of age. He is sure they are not half-castes, but pure Europeans. They came from Delhi with the flying rebels. He does not know what they belonged to, but one wears an English sword. They were made Mussulmans in Delhi. His account as to their position and influence is contradictory. He said first that they received two annas a day, lived under a tree with the sepoys, were consulted by nobody, and of no importance, and dying of hunger; but afterwards he represented them as dissuading Rana Beni Madho from coming in, by their assurance that if he did so he would certainly be hung; and, also, he said that Mummoo Khan employed them to draw plans of fortifications, and make guns. If they are Europeans of pure blood, there is very little doubt that they must have influence there.

REBELS AND RUMOURS.—A letter received at Calcutta states that the rebels have entered the Santhal Purgunnahs and that the magistrate of Moorsheadabad had gone to Jungypore for assistance. A correspondent at Chota Nagpore mentions that the Ex-Rajah of Porabant, Urjum Sing, had been forced, with his brother and a number of insurgent leaders, to an unconditional surrender. The disarming act has been extended to every part of the Goruckpore district. It is also stated that the guards hitherto stationed over ghats between Oude and the Doab have been discontinued, because the country is quiet. It is reported from Patna that the insurgents, 40,000 or 50,000 strong, are reported to have recrossed the Gunduk, and have gone west. It is also affirmed that the Begum had informed Jung Bahadur that her troops would leave his territories via Buteah. The Englishman reports that the Oude Begum has gone to Katmandoo, and is living in disguise with the Ranees Chunderabutti. The Nana, according to the same journal has dressed himself as a Fakir, and was traced and pursued by an officer of the frontier force, but could not be caught. A company of Goorkhas belonging to the 73rd N.I. have been ordered off in the direction of Rajmehal for the protection of the railway works, some of which have been already destroyed. The Hurkaru deposes to having seen a private letter which mentions that a large body of rebels are in the neighbourhood of Hazzareebagh. We have heard also that a party of men employed on the railway are in a state of siege in Rajmehal.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—The Bengal Government, noticing the zeal and energy displayed by Lieutenant Wyld, in opening up, in so short a time, and at a comparatively small cost, the road from Cuttack to Ungool, which has been found so useful during the mutiny, and for which he has received the thanks of the late Court of Directors, has urged on the Government of India the advantage of vesting the officers of the Public Works Department with powers to enable them to execute, in ordinary fair weather, roads without a reference to Government; as, under the present system, in ordinary cases, a whole year generally elapses from the date of the orders for preparing estimates to the commencement of the work. As the system is condemned by both the local as well as the superintending Government, we would urge the adoption of the system recently introduced into the Commissariat Department, and which has been found to work with such marked success.

THE UNION CLUB.—It is proposed to set on foot in Calcutta a club, to be called the Union Club, the primary and declared object of which will be to promote friendly social intercourse between European and native gentlemen.

SIR R. HAMILTON has declined to accept the seat in Council offered to him.

SANGOR, March 17.—A deep laid plot to break through the jail has been discovered here; had another day been allowed to pass, all the prisoners would have, in all probability, effected their escape. The magisterial authorities had to call in the aid of the Customs establishment, which was promptly rendered; some fifty men were sent under an active officer, Mr. Assistant Patrol Hamilton, who it is said has the credit of having discovered a passage dug under ground by the prisoners preparatory to their escape; but so concealed, that though a large number of our authorities were for some time in the room, it had not been observed by them. Could this have been done without the cognizance of the guard?

SIR A. H. LAWRENCE, Bart., of the Bengal Civil Service, has been appointed an Assistant Commissioner of the 3rd class in the Punjab.

THE FINANCIAL "FIX."—In consequence of the present financial difficulty, the Government of India has ruled, that all officers authorised to draw large sums of money from the general treasury, and to deposit them in private banks on their account for expenses to be incurred in the respective departments to which they belong, shall, in future, keep at their disposal certain reasonable sums for such purposes. A rate or per centage has already been fixed by Government for such advances. Among the officers entitled to receive the above advances are the commissary generals, the superintendents of marine, the arsenal store-keepers, the superintendents of the electric telegraph, and the executive engineers.

IRREGULAR CAVALRY.—According to the Lahore Chronicle, the Pathan horse and the Mooltanee cavalry under Stokes, Smith, Vivian, and Cureton are to be formed into three regiments of irregular cavalry, and to be called the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd regiments of Pathan cavalry.

PUNJAB ITEMS.—We (Delhi Gazette) are told that Col. Edwardes has for the second time obtained leave to proceed on furlough. Major James, recently nominated commissioner at Leia, will return to Peshawur to officiate for Colonel Edwardes, being succeeded at Leia by Major R. Taylor, deputy commissioner of Kangra. Mr. Reginald Saunders obtains the Kangra district. We understand we were somewhat in error in saying that Mr. Roberts was to succeed Mr. McLeod. The arrangement, we believe, is that on Mr. McLeod taking leave, Mr. Thornton will become financial commissioner, and Mr. Roberts take Mr. Thornton's place. Further changes are on the tapis. Mr. Montgomery will go to Murree, Maj. Lawrence, military secretary, accompanying him.

MONUMENT TO GENERAL NICHOLSON.—Colonel Edwardes has addressed the following letter to the friends, public and private, of the late Brigadier General John Nicholson, c.b.—Dear Gentlemen, The subscription which we opened in August last, for an obelisk and traveller's tank at the Margulla Pass, in memory of General Nicholson, has amounted to Rs. 11,991-14 as; which (though a large sum) would not carry out our first proposal. A majority of the committee has, therefore, been again consulted by our secretary, Captain Cracroft, and myself, and the prevailing feeling is in favour of a monument at home, if possible, in St. Paul's Cathedral. You are aware that it is intended (if permission be obtained) to erect one there in memory of our other lost friend Sir Henry Lawrence; and if beside it we could place the monument of J. Nicholson each would be more complete; throwing light upon the other. (Indeed, it might be best of all to unite the two, master and pupil, as in life.) With your approval, then, this new design will now be carried out; and if our memorial may not minister to the physical wants of others, as we had meant, surely it will accomplish real good in stirring hearts to do unselfish things for England and the vast countries in her charge. A complete list of the subscribers is now subjoined for your information; and any who may not have forwarded their donations to Captain Cracroft, will oblige by so doing.—Yours sincerely, HERBERT B. EDWARDS, Lieut. col.—Peshawur, Feb. 28, 1859.

THE BUDGET OF PUBLIC WORKS EXPENDITURE of 1859-60 has been estimated at Rs. 62,00,000, of which Rs. 8,00,000 have been set apart for military works, and Rs. 35,00,000 for roads, bridges, and canals. This is, the Englishman presumes, in anticipation of orders for resuming public works, which may be issued at once, now that many military buildings have been completed.

CASH BALANCES.—The following statement of the cash balance in the Government Treasuries in India for the first, second, and third quarters of the official year 1858-59, is published by the Government of India for general information:—

Date.	Amount of Balance.
On 31st July 1858 .. ..	Co.'s Rs. 12,64,57,299
On 31st Oct. 1858 .. ..	" 9,78,86,641
On 31st Jan. 1859 .. ..	" 10,48,45,343

MR. TAYLER.—The Lieutenant Governor has written to Mr. Tayler, informing him that he has been removed from the Judgeship of Mymensing, and that he will not be re-employed till he shall give assurances to the Lieutenant Governor that he will in future conduct himself with becoming respect and in proper subordination to the Government under which he is placed.

ALI NUCKEE KHAN.—The wife of the state prisoner Ali Nucky Khan, minister to the King of Oude, lately petitioned the Governor General to relax the strict imprisonment in which he is kept, and particularly to allow her to see him, and receive letters from him. The reply given to her is to the effect that Ali Nuckee has been offered an evening drive, which he refused, and also to be sent to Chunar for the benefit of his health where he might be under less restraint than in Fort William. This he also refused. The lady is, however, informed that she may see her husband once a week, and that she may write to him and receive letters from him, all such communications being inspected by the town major.

EMBARKATION OF LORD HARRIS.—The embarkation of Lord Harris for Calcutta, on the 31st March, was attended with very little military display. A company of H.M.'s 44th with the garrison band, and colours of the regiment, was drawn up opposite to the landing-place, where a large number of ladies and gentlemen were assembled to bid his lordship farewell. The beach was crowded with thousands of spectators. About six o'clock Lord Harris arrived accompanied by Sir Charles Trevelyan, and after a few parting words with his friends, entered the port boat under a salute from the fort, and soon got afloat. Sir Charles Trevelyan, Sir Patrick Grant, the town major, and Captain Franklin going with him. His lordship was lustily cheered from the beach as the boat left, the band striking up at the same time the national anthem. Dr. Sanderson, Mr. Murray, Mr. Carmichael, and other gentlemen started off in another boat. The Sydney, which had steam up, was soon reached, and got under way immediately after Lord Harris had set foot on board. The Governor and the Commander-in-Chief, with the other gentlemen who were not passengers by the steamer, returned before dusk.—Spectator.

SIR CHARLES TREVELYAN'S STAFF.—We understand that Sir Charles Trevelyan has already selected the officers of his staff, and the following are the gentlemen whose names will probably appear in the next Gazette:—Mr. D. F. Carmichael to be private secretary; Lieut. colonel Crewe, K.T.O.M., to be military secretary; Capt. R. C. Glover, 43rd light infantry, and Lieut. and Adj. Seaton, of the 1st fusiliers, to be aides de camp.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We have had a sad accident here: Captain Raikes, of the Governor's body-guard, was thrown from his horse on the 30th March and died on the 1st April, his skull having been extensively fractured. He was buried on the 2nd, the Governor, Commander in Chief, and almost every one in Madras, attending.

THE PORTUGUESE COMMUNITY.

To THE RIGHT HON. JOHN, LORD ELPHINSTONE, G.C.H., Governor and President in Council, Bombay.

MY LORD,—We, the undersigned Portuguese inhabitants of Bombay, respectfully beg to approach your lordship in council with the following appeal in behalf of our community.

We doubt not but that your lordship is aware that there is a class of inhabitants over whose destinies you preside, called the Portuguese community. This Christian community, now so little cared for amidst the present medley of creeds, caste, and colours, has had its existence for upwards of three centuries; and, on the cession of the island of Bombay to the British Sovereignty, was made over, by a solemn treaty, to the care and protection of the English Government, with a special proviso that it should freely enjoy all privileges and immunities as regards its faith and well being; but it now unfortunately happens to be ranked beneath all other communities, without any representative to tell its grievances, or a justice of the peace to attend to the wants and interest of our people, the same as other classes, and thus lowered in the scale of society, as if unfit to be represented by any respectable native Christian, and as if unworthy to sit in any public assembly or meeting, when the interest of their fellow-subjects as well as of themselves are under consideration.

As, however, the former Government has ceased, and as her Majesty the Queen has been generously pleased to ordain in her royal proclamation that all her subjects, of whatever race or creed, be freely and impartially admitted to offices, the duties of which they may be qualified, by their education, ability, and integrity, duly to discharge, we respectfully beg to urge on the consideration of your Lordship in Council the necessity of appointing at least one or two justices of the peace for our community.

We think that we need not tax your lordship's time with any lengthened detail of the difficulties and inconvenience our people experience from the want of such appointments; suffice it to state that it is really distressing to see a native Christian female under the necessity of having recourse, when there is occasion for so doing, to a justice of the peace not of her class or persuasion, to say nothing of the disparagement and disgrace it reflects on the generality of our class.

In the confident hope that this appeal in behalf of our community will deserve consideration and support at your lordship's hands, we remain, my lord, with due respect and submission, your lordship's most obedient humble servants, (Signed) S. VIEGAS, A. G. DE GA', M. AUGUSTA, M. E. DE SOUZA, N. FERNANDES, M. R. DE QUADROS, and others.

GOVERNMENT REPLY.

No. 966 OF 1859.—JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 23rd March, 1859.

SIRS,—I am directed by the Right Hon. the Governor in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your memorial, dated the 12th instant, praying that one or two members of the Portuguese community of Bombay may be placed on the list of justices of the peace.

2. In reply, I am desired to inform you that the Right Hon. the Governor in Council fully appreciates the respectability, good conduct, and loyalty of that portion of the inhabitants of Bombay which is of Portuguese origin, and his Lordship in Council will have great pleasure in including the names of one or more gentlemen of this section of the community in the commission of the peace.—I have the honour to be, sirs, your most obedient servant, (Sd.) H. L. ANDERSON,

Secretary to Government.

To S. Viegas, Esq., and other representatives of the Portuguese community, Bombay.

colonel G. W. P. Bingham, C.B., arrived in Bombay by rail from Agra on the 28th March, and another detachment also arrived on the evening of the 30th. 450 men of this regiment, with 12 officers, under the command of Lieut. col. Sibley, left for Kurrachee on the 5th of April by H.M.'s I.N. steamer Peroze. H.M.'s 17th lancers are under orders to proceed to Jhansi to relieve such of the 14th light dragoons as have been stationed there for some time past, which latter corps is to march to Bombay for embarkation to England. The 3rd dragoon guards will be stationed at Mhow in place of the 17th lancers. H.M.'s 95th regiment are to be quartered at Neemuch, and the 89th foot, now at that station, are under orders to march to Seronge.

MR. GEORGE BEASE, the late editor of the Standard, has been acquitted by a Bombay jury of the charge of manslaughter. The circumstances of the case, as disclosed by the prosecution, are briefly these. On the night of the 27th November last (about half past one), Mrs. Bease went to the house of a Mr. Foster. She remained there some time, and while there her husband discovered that she was absent. As Mrs. Bease, accompanied by Mr. Foster, was returning to her husband's house, one shot was fired at the woman, and another immediately afterwards at the man. Both shots struck, and the surgeon deposed that the woman died from the effects of the wound. Mr. Foster, who was only slightly hurt, immediately after the shots had been fired went to the prisoner's house, and found him with a double barrelled gun in his hand. No one else was there. One witness deposed that the prisoner had acknowledged to him, (the witness) that he had fired the gun, and Major Marston, captain of police at Kurrachee, also deposed that Bease voluntarily confessed he had shot his wife and Mr. Foster. The jury returned a verdict of Not Guilty, and this verdict the Chief Justice refused to receive until satisfied that the jury understood the facts of the case. "He therefore," according to the report of the case in the Bombay Standard, "submitted to them three questions, the answers of which, if in the affirmative, would amount to a verdict of guilty. The questions were—1. Whether the prisoner fired the shot which struck the deceased? 2. Whether the deceased died from the effects of the wound caused by the shot? 3. Whether, when the prisoner fired, he fired at either the deceased or Foster? The jury retired again, and returned with answers which seemed to show that they had not clearly understood the evidence. His lordship then read to them the evidence in extenso. The jury again retired, but finally gave a verdict of "Not Guilty." Sir M. Sausse—That is your verdict, gentlemen? All I can say is that I am glad that it is not mine. You are discharged." Mr. Bease is now to be tried for an attempt to murder Mr. Foster.

THE BOMBAY TOWN MAJORITY.—The appointment of Colonel Robertson, of the 25th N.I., to the Town Majority of Bombay, is one of the most judicious nominations that has characterised Lord Elphinstone's administration. There are few officers in the army more popular than Colonel Robertson, both in the service, of which he is such a distinguished ornament, and in society generally. The public will therefore learn with regret that it is contemplated to separate the secretaryship of the Prize Committee from the office of town major, which will reduce the emoluments of the latter by 200 rupees per month. The town major has ever held this appointment, and the reasons for withdrawing it now are as unfair towards Colonel Robertson, as they are discreditable to those who are endeavouring to accomplish the job. If the appointment is a sinecure, let it be abolished altogether, and the friends of Colonel Robertson will have no cause for complaint. But, if it is to be maintained, let Colonel Robertson hold it as his predecessors did before him. It is to be hoped that Lord Elphinstone will act in this matter so as to give occasion for no hostile criticism.

POISONED TEA SERVED OUT TO THE TROOPS.—We have just received the particulars of a very serious affair which occurred at Kirkee, on Sunday the 20th March, which appears to us to demand a most searching scrutiny, and the condign punishment of the offenders. From the statement that has been made to us by a party at Kirkee, we learn that on the above date, some of the men of the Inniskilling Dragoons, on their return from church, were taken seriously ill after drinking their tea at breakfast, and had to be sent to the Regimental Hospital where they received immediate medical aid, and were restored by the exhibition of emetics. A board of medical officers afterwards sat to investigate the cause of the men's sudden illness, when it was ascertained the tea of which they had partaken, and which was supplied by the contractors, was adulterated with some deleterious ingredient, by which it was poisoned. Subsequently to this, a Military Court of Inquiry very carefully investigated the matter, and came to the same conclusion as the medical officers. We hope that the matter will not stop here, but that measures will be taken by the brigade authorities to bring the rascally contractors to book. One of these wretches is a Banian and the other a Parsee, and both, we are told, are men of indifferent character. We have every reason to believe, that both the brigadier and the depy.-asst. commissary gen. stationed at Poonah will do all in their power to get at the bottom of this nefarious affair; and we imagine that the first steps taken to prevent further mischief, must have been to instantly annul the contract, and to destroy the contractor's stock of adulterated tea. One thing is, however, quite certain, after the recent exposures of the bread and tea contracts, namely, that the system is a rotten one, and must be got rid of.—Poonah Observer.

SCINDE.—Two of the chief Sirdars of Candahar have arrived at Kurrachee with a large suite. Their names are Syud Mahemad Khan and Syud Main Khan. They are in search of a young scapegrace Sirdar, who has run away from home ostensibly to make the Haj. The young man named Jelaladin is at Sonmeeanee, and will soon be brought back like the prodigal son. The Sirdars are residing with Moorad Khan, the Government contractor, and were visited on their arrival by the judicial deputy magistrate and the native officials.

PERSONAL STAFF OF THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—The following appointments have been made on the Personal Staff of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay army, with effect from the 12th April, subject to the approval of His Excellency the right hon. the Commander-in-Chief in India:—Captain E. L. Green, of H.M.'s 77th regiment of foot, to be aide-de-camp, vice Vaughan. Lieut. G. A. Vaughan, of H.M.'s 33rd (Duke of Wellington's) regiment of foot, to be extra aide-de-camp, until further orders.

ELPHINSTONE COLLEGE.—Two fellowships, one senior and one junior, to be entitled the "Decana Fellowships," have been instituted in the Elphinstone College. The junior fellowship, the monthly income of which is Rs. 70, has been endowed upon Jeviral Umashanker, a senior student of the college.

ADEN.—We are glad to perceive that the Government English school at Aden has proved, under the management of Mr. Charles Gilder, formerly of Bombay, eminently successful. The annual inspection took place on the 14th of April. The examination of the pupils was conducted by Sir Charles Trevelyan, who expressed himself highly gratified at the progress which had been made. He complimented Mr. Gilder and his assistants on the result of their labours, and trusted they would persevere in their zealous exertions.

SHIKARPORE, 22nd March.—This station has been abolished as a military cantonment; the artillery leave immediately. One of Jacob's rifle corps is to be stationed here, and the other at Sukkur. This arrangement will cost much more than having a native regiment of the line stationed here. I, however, congratulate the latter on their being relieved from doing duty in such a place—it is only fit for salamanders like Jacob's rifles. I hear the weapon used by the rifles is a great deal too heavy for a native.

COLONEL PARKE, H.M.'s 72nd Highlanders, at present commanding a brigade in the field, is to command the station of Mhow, which is to remain a Bombay cantonment for the future. Colonel Somerset, likewise commanding a cavalry brigade in that field, will shortly assume command of the brigade at Deesa, consequent on Brigadier Ferryman, 89th regiment H.M.'s, being transferred to the Bengal Presidency, and being thereby compelled to vacate a Bombay command.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—At a meeting of the directors, held on the 7th April, the Bank of Bombay reduced its rates of interest and discount one per cent. all round.

1ST BOMBAY FUSILIERS.—Subjoined is the garrison order issued by Brigadier Farquharson, commanding at Mooltan, on the occasion of the head quarters and right wing of the 1st Bombay fusiliers leaving that station on their return to the Presidency:—"19th March, 1859.—The head quarters and right wing 1st Bombay fusiliers, under orders to return to the Bombay Presidency, have been quartered at Mooltan since the mutinies first broke out. The regiment, while performing more than ordinary duty, and, consequent on the emergencies of the service, occupying inferior accommodation, has, especially on the 31st August, 1858, rendered important service at Mooltan. Brigadier Farquharson, commanding, cannot allow the head-quarters of the corps to leave the station without thanking Major Hogg, the officers and men, for these services, and for their general good conduct during the period they have been under his command. He wishes them a happy meeting with their families and friends. Brigadier Farquharson desires also to thank Surgeon Costelloe for the care he has taken of the sick, and the assistance and advice he, as senior medical and sanitary officer at Mooltan, has always so readily afforded him. The 1st Bombay fusiliers hastened northward by the line of the Indus immediately on the alarm of the mutiny. They got no further than Mooltan, and have there remained ever since. But though denied participation in the heroic feats of their fellow-soldiers, they had arduous and anxious duties to perform in watching a large body of disarmed native troops, and finally in suppressing an attempt on the part of those troops to break out into open mutiny."

The Victoria Cross.

War Office, May 6.

Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confirm the grant of the decoration of the Victoria Cross to the undermentioned officer of her Majesty's Indian military forces, which decoration has been provisionally conferred upon him by the C. in C. in India, for distinguished gallantry displayed by him in that country, when serving under his immediate command, as recorded against his name, viz.:

1st Bengal Eur. Fusiliers.—Lieut. T. A. Butler—"Of which success the skirmishers on the other side of the river were subsequently apprised by Lieut. Butler, of the Bengal Fusiliers, who swam across the Goomtee, and, climbing the parapet, remained in that position for a considerable time, under a heavy fire of musketry, until the work was occupied."—(Extract of Lieut. gen. Sir James Outram's memorandum of operations at the siege of Lucknow.

AURUNGABAD.—Aurangabad is to be made a station for European troops of the Bombay presidency, but the place is said to be feverish, and the heat excessive. It is reported also that Mhow is to be handed over to the Bengal commissariat.

Brigadier Honner at Kooshana.

No. 340 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from Maj. gen. J. Michel, C.B., comdg. Malwa div., forwarding a report from Brigdr. Honner, C.B., comdg. Rajpootana F.F., of the attack and pursuit of the rebels under Rao Sahib.

2. H.E. in Council highly commends the gallantry of the officers and men, especially those mentioned by Brigdr. Honner, C.B., and the good management of the commander and commissariat officer by which such complete efficiency has been given to the troops in their rapid movements in pursuit of the enemy.

From the Maj. gen. comdg. the Malwa div. to the Adj. gen. of the Army.

Hd. Qrs. Camp Gungrar, Feb. 19, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward a report from Brigdr. Honner, comdg. Nusseerabad F.F., who states that after a march of forty-three miles, from two A.M. to five P.M. of the 10th Feb., he came up to the rebels under Rao Sahib, at Kooshana, in Marwar, attacked them, and pursued for eight miles.

2. Two hundred and twenty-six of the rebels were found dead on the field. The brigdr. states that officers, non-commissioned officers, and men as per margin,* rendered themselves conspicuous by their forward gallantry, and in his detail of the force under his command the following officers appear to have commanded detachments of regts. in the engagement.

Capt. Phillips, 8th hussars, comdg.

Capt. Dennis, 1st By. Lancers, comdg.

Lieut. col. Heatly, 83rd Regt., comdg.

Lieut. Forteath, 12th N.I., comdg.

Capt. Heathcote, Sikh horse, comdg., and asst. qmr. gen. to the force.

Lieut. Stevenson, art., camel corps, comdg.

3. The brigdr. further begs to bring to special notice the excellence of the Commissariat arrangements made by Capt. Lucas, an arrangement which enabled the brigdr. to give every man and horse a full ration after this arduous pursuit.

4. I fully concur in this eulogy.

6. I trust his lordship the C. in C. will approve of the conduct of the brigdr. and his troops, more especially when the nature of the country over which they had to act is brought into account.

J. MICHEL, Major gen., comdg. M.D.A.

From Brigdr. Honner, C.B., comdg. Rajpootana F.F., to the Asst. adj. gen., Malwa Div.

Camp Kooshana, Feb. 11, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of the maj. gen. comdg. Malwa div., that the force under my command, in continuation of the pursuit of the rebels, marched from its encampment at Goonah yesterday morning at two o'clock, and reached that of the rebels at five o'clock in the evening at Kooshana.

2. The rebels heard of our approach when we were about eight miles off, and instantly commenced a flight, breaking up into two large bodies, and going to the south west and south east respectively; one party is said to be under Feroze Shah, the other under Rao Sahib. Tania Topee is reported to have left the rebel camp immediately after its surprise by Col. Holmes' detach. on the night of Jan. 21 at Seikur, and to have gone to join the Nana in the Terrai.

3. On entering the sandy wastes on the border of the desert of Bikanair, I found it necessary to leave Capt. Petrie's trp. of H.A. behind at Dye, with orders to proceed to Nagor and thence to Nusseerabad, as it would have been absolutely impossible to drag guns through the sandy country, even though eight or thirteen horses were attached to each.

4. Our march from Goonah to this place was about forty-three miles, thirty of it through a desert hilly tract of deep heavy sand. About half-past three o'clock P.M. the rebels were said to be ahead about eight miles; evening was approaching, and no time was to be lost. About six miles from this we proceeded at a trot, and when within three miles of Kooshana the force was formed up, the hussars in column of divisions on the right, the 1st By. lancers in the centre in a like formation, at squad distance, with the Sikh horse on the left, considerably in advance in echelon. Detachments of H.M.'s 83rd and 12th N.I. mounted on camels in line in front. In this formation we went on at a sharp canter, the camels keeping their place in excellent order, until we came close in Kooshana, when seeing that the rebels had taken off to the left, our front was changed in that direction, and pursuit at the gallop commenced. After going about two miles it was requisite that the inf. should return and hold the village and the rebels' camp, but the hussars and the lancers went on at a dashing pace for about eight or ten miles, long into the moonlight, and cut off the rebels at every opportunity, and rejoined the inf. at about ten o'clock at night.

5. The patrols of cav. sent out this morning to pick up stragglers and seek for information counted 226 dead bodies of the rebels killed in their flight, by the sabre and lance.

6. Our casualties are, one private of the 8th hussars killed, and one private contused. One trooper of the 1st lancers killed, one slightly wounded, five of the Sikh horse missing, together with their horses. One trp. horse 8th hussars wounded, four trp. horses of the 1st lancers wounded and one missing. No officer killed or wounded.

7. Rebels to-day are stated to be in full flight towards Arrah. I follow in pursuit as soon as I can lay in a store of flour, provisions, &c., for the troops.

8. During the last four days the force has marched 130 miles over tracts of deep heavy sand, most distressing both to horses and baggage animals. Yesterday the cav. must have gone over sixty-five miles of ground during the march, pursuit, and return to camp at night. The powers of endurance evinced by the horses were astonishing.

10. I have to bring to special notice, that since the force left Nusseerabad, on the 18th Dec., 1858, up to the present date, it has marched upwards of 800 miles, and the commissariat has daily, with one or two exceptions, supplied to every man, horse, and baggage animal entitled to it, his full ration of food, grain, and forage, and even at the end of yesterday's operations at night every soldier had a good dinner of fresh beef, vegetables, and biscuit, with the usual grog. These advantages I attribute to the excellent arrangements made by Capt. Lucas, asst. comsry. gen., before the force left Nusseerabad, and carried on by Capt. Malcolmson, the actg. comsrt. officer in charge, assisted by his Gomashta Dababoy Eduljee Sookia, on Capt. Lucas's departure from the force for other duties.

11. It is not usual to mention matters of this kind in a despatch, but the great benefits which have been experienced by the force from the above arrangements, and the practicability of European troops being well supplied with food, even during the most rapid operations in the field, have induced me to bring these circumstances prominently forward for the especial consideration of Government.

12. Every officer and man has done his duty in his own individual calling, as became a British soldier.

13. In the pursuit there were several instances of hand to hand combat with the sabre. Capts. Phillips and Puget, 8th hussars, Capt. Carnegie, my asst. adj. gen., and Captain Malcolmson, my orderly officer, made themselves conspicuous by their forward gallantry in these conflicts (the latter officer had his charger wounded by a sabre cut, and also a corporal Landly, 8th hussars, tp. Havildar Major Ram Sing, and trooper Adjoodia Pursod, 1st lancers).

14. Capt. Baynon, political officer attached to the force, has been of the greatest assistance to me in procuring information, and his attention, and energy, and zeal in the cause are beyond all praise.

15. The medical department, conducted by Asst. Surg. Rudd, H.M.'s 8th hussars, was, as usual, in the British army, all that could be wished.

16. The following is the detail of troops engaged yesterday. Their admirable conduct on this, as well as on every other circumstance of service, since the force took the field, and the discipline that has been maintained in the several detachments by their officers, have been to me the source of much gratification, but it will be for the higher authorities, to whom I most earnestly recommend them, to appreciate and record in terms which may seem to them most befitting the merits of these noble soldiers:—

Detail.—Capt. Carnegie, asst. adj. gen.; Capt. Heathcote, asst. qr. mr. gen.; Capt. Malcolmson, H.A., orderly officer.

H.M.'s 8th Hussars.—Capt. Phillips, comdg.; Capt. Puget, M.P.; Lieut. Hon. E. Stourton; Lieut. T. Richards; Cornet P. De Winton; Asst. surg. Rudd, M.D.; 11 sergts., 10 corporals, 2 trumpeters, and 17 privates.

1st By. Lancers.—Captain Dennis, comdg.; Lieuts. Jenkins and Hill; 2 subadars, 2 jemadars, 11 havildars, 9 naigues, trumpeters, and 76 privates.

H.M.'s 83rd Regt.—Lieut. col. Heatly, comdg.; Capt. F. H. D. Marsh, 82nd regt., att.; Lieuts. G. M. Onslow and G. L. Huyshe; 9 sergts., 4 corporals, 1 drummer, and 119 privates.

12th Regt. N.I.—Lieut. Forteath, comdg. 1 subadar, 1 jemadar, 4 havildars, 4 naigues, 46 privates.

Sikh Horse.—Capt. Heathcote, in charge. Res-saldar Mitka Singh, 2 jemadars, 54 rank and file.

Camel Corps.—Lieut. Stevenson, art., in charge. 96 rank and file.

R. W. HONNER, brigdr.,
Comdg. Rajpootana F.F.

The Goruckpore Field Force.

No. 309 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council directs the publication of the following letter from Brigdr. Rowcroft, C.B., comdg. Goruckpore district, forwarding reports of successful actions with the rebels in the Goruckpore district:—

From Brigdr. H. Rowcroft, comdg. Goruckpore district, to Lieut. col. Mayhew, Adj.-gen. of the Army, Hd. Qrs., Allahabad.

Camp Sirsa, sixteen miles east of Toolseepore.
Jan. 22, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward, for submission to the Rt. Hon. the C. in C., the enclosed letters, reporting certain successful actions with rebels in the Goruckpore district, which, from the immediate movement and marches of the Goruckpore F.F., I regret to say have accidentally been omitted to be earlier transmitted.

2. I beg to solicit for the officers comdg. detachments, and for the officers and men of all arms, for the zealous, gallant and cheerful manner in which the successful attacks were carried out, the most favorable consideration of H. E. the C. in C.

H. Rowcroft, Brigdr.,
Comdg. Goruckpore District.

From Lieut. col. J. Brasyer, comdg. regt. of Ferozepore, to Capt. Morgan, maj. of brig., Bustee.

Camp Bhanpore, Nov. 11, 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of Brigdr. Rowcroft that I marched from Bustee towards Bhanpore with the regt. of Ferozepore this morning, as directed. Just before daybreak I was informed that the rebels had strong pickets of about 100 men each in the nullah and jungle close by on my then left; that they had been sounding their bugles, and were very busy running about in the border of the jungle. Continuing my advance, I arrived near Bhanpore at sunrise; the rebels (as they proved to be) began firing musketry, keeping under cover of the jungle, and immediately fired a gun. Capt. Browne opening fire on my right front, my skirmishers having reached within musket shot of the village, and the rebels retiring towards my left and rear, I keeping my right close to the village, attempted to cut off the enemy's retreat by dashing through the jungle on the left of the road. This proved but an attempt, for I cleared the jungle only just in time to see them retreating towards the Khoanee Nuddee, still more to my than left.

The enemy retreating under cover of the jungle and out of reach of musketry, I am inclined to think they had but few or no casualties, and I am happy to say but one man (of the Ben. Y.C.) wounded on our side.

The position of the enemy evidently shows they intended to have got round upon the rear of (either) one party, had we not advanced from two different directions at one and the same time, and their preparations for retreat shows they had intention of our advance. They are now said to have crossed the Khoanee river about a coss in our present front.

J. BRASIER, Lieut. Col.,
Comdg. regt. of Ferozepore.

From Capt. M. Browne, 13th L. I., to Lieut. col. Brasier, C.B., comdg. F. detach., Bhanpore, 11th Nov., 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report to you, for the information of the Brigdr. comdg. at Bustee, that in compliance with an order received last night from the depty. qr. mr. gen., the detachts. under my command, strength as per margin, * marched from Rudowlee, en route to Bhanpore, at two o'clock this morning. On arriving within two miles of the enemy's position, I halted till daylight, and then advanced about half a mile from Bhanpore, which we reached about sun-rise; a deep nullah crossed the road, where some difficulty occurred in passing the guns over.

No sooner had the whole force passed this nullah than the enemy opened fire on us with round shot, one of which I regret to say severely wounded a man of the Ben. yeo. cav. As they had got our range with perfect accuracy, I considered that to remain where we were would subject us to many more casualties, and determined on attacking them at once. We advanced with the guns in the centre, supported on both flanks by the 13th L. I., in skirmishing order, with supporters, the troop of the Ben. yeo. cav. in the rear. The enemy now showed in great numbers in our front and both flanks. I should rate their numbers at about 800 men, cav., inf., and two guns, though the native spies say there were many more. On our advancing they retired, though in most orderly manner, from which I am disposed to think there were many sepoys among them, and irreg. cav.

We followed them rapidly, the guns of the nav. brig. throwing shells into them with admirable celerity and precision, the 13th keeping up a rapid rifle firing. The rebels occasionally halted and fronted, firing volleys of musketry at us, but without effect. We chased them for about two miles, when they were driven into a thick jungle, where pursuit would have been useless, and as we had left the town of Bhanpore in our rear, and not knowing whether there was any rebel force holding it or not, I determined on returning there to ascertain. At this moment, as you, sir, are aware, we were joined by the Sikhs under your command.

I should feel obliged by your bringing to the notice of the brigdr. the excellent conduct of all the troops and sailors engaged, moving as steadily as on an ordinary field day. To Capt. Boyd, comdg. the detach. 13th L.I., I beg to express my best thanks for the able manner in which he handled the skirmishers, and the spirited way in which he led the advance. Lieut. Ingles and the naval brig. worked their guns with a rapidity and coolness which was beautiful to witness.

I much regret that Lieut. Ellis and his fine trp. of Bengal yeo. cav. had no opportunity of charging, as the country consisted of thick jungle and large topes of trees, with very little open space between them. Had they been able to do so, I am convinced he could have captured their guns.

Lieut. Wroughton, 13th L.I., has acted as staff officer to these detachts. since we left Bustee, and has been most useful as an interpreter and indefatigable in obtaining information.

The native spies state that the enemy's loss was ten or twelve killed and about twenty wounded, but I am unable to speak with any accuracy on this subject from the thick state of the jungle and topes.

M. BROWNE, Capt. 13th L.I.

From Lieut. col. G. King, 13th L.I., comdg. at Goruckpore, to the Brig. maj., Goruckpore district, Bustee.

Goruckpore, Nov. 21, 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you, for the information of Brigdr. Rowcroft, comdg. the district, that I left this station at eleven o'clock P.M. on the 19th inst., with a party of the strength named in the margin,* and under the guidance of Mr. Bird, magistrate and collector of Goruckpore, for the purpose of dispersing a body of rebels under the command of Budhoo Singh, whose numbers were variously estimated at from 500 to 800 strong, and who were reported to have taken up a strong position in a dense jungle about sixteen miles to the eastward of Goruckpore. After a march of about seventeen miles we found ourselves in the vicinity of a house, formerly an indigo factory, and which, I had been led to suppose, was also in the occupation of the rebels, but as this information proved incorrect, I proceeded to enter that portion of the jungle stated to be in their occupation, and after proceeding a short distance came upon their position, which had evidently been abandoned with the utmost precipitancy, as I found the camp fires burning, and the food of a large number of men in a state of preparation.

A few bullocks and ponies, about seventy hackeries, two of them laden with rice, a quantity of native powder and cartridges, and a number of entrenching tools, had all been abandoned in the haste of departure.

On examination I found that a wide ditch and embankment had been traced out and partly executed on the side facing the open ground, and as from the density of the jungle there position was almost impracticable from other points, there can be no doubt that had time been allowed to complete the defences it would have proved a formidable one.

Finding that pursuit in such ground was useless, I withdrew the party, after burning the camp and destroying the powder, and marched again on the evening of the 20th inst. to Goruckpore, according to instructions received from the brigdr., leaving Mr. Bird with 150 native levies and 35 Europeans with half the trp. Madras nat. cav., both the latter parties under the command of Lieut. Alexander, Madras nat. cav., and the whole under Lieut. Shaw, of the native levies, to level the works thrown up by the rebels, after which it is the intention of Mr. Bird to return with the whole party to Goruckpore.

I beg to observe that in the twenty-six hours I was absent from the station, the men, the greater number of them quite young soldiers, marched considerably more than forty miles, and that apparently without the least distress.

G. KING, Lieut.-col., 13th L. I.

Comdg. at Goruckpore.

I should have remarked that the rebels are reported to have retired in a south easterly direction.

From Lieut. col. J. Brasier, comdg. detach., to Capt. Morgan, maj. of brig., Goruckpore district.

Camp Banpore, 25th Nov., 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of Brigdr. Rowcroft, comdg. the brig., that as directed by him I marched from Amah yesterday, at 2 P.M., with troops as per margin,* towards * 5 officers and 84 men Ben. Yeo. Cavy., under Lieut. Ellis 2 officers, 28 men and 2 guns nav. brig., under Lieut. Ingles, R.N.; 3 officers and 100 men H.M.'s 13th L.I., under Capt. Boyd.

* 4th Madras Cav.—1 officer and 42 sabres. H.M.'s 13th L.I.—4 officers and 134 of all ranks. 27th Madras N.I.—1 officer and 50 of all ranks. Police levies—1 officer and 150 of all ranks. 1 staff surg.—1 civil ditto.

Camp Attolee, 9th Jan., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of the resident, that as I approached the village of the Wakhud, where I was to encamp on the 15th inst., I received a hurriedly written note from Capt. Ivie Campbell, Enam Comsdr., who was at the village of Ressoad, informing me that a large body of Arabs and Rohillas had just entered the place and were plundering it.

I continued my march, and proceeded at a sharp trot to Ressoad, about seven miles distant, and met Capt. Campbell, who informed me that he had been plundered of everything he had, and narrowly escaped with his life, and that several of the inhabitants had been killed, and the insurgents had gone off about half an hour before my arrival with all the property they had plundered, laden upon camels, tattoos, and buffaloes.

On ascertaining that they had taken the direction of the Jintoor-road, I directed Capt. Clogstoun with his squad. of 2nd cav. to pursue in one direction, and Capt. Nightingale, comdg. the 3rd cav., to follow.

On my arrival at the village of Chichumba, about eight miles off, with the trp. of H.M.'s 12th lancers and four guns of the trp. of H. A., I found that Capt. Clogstoun had arrived first, and had pressed the insurgents so hard with about 250 of his men, who were all that were up with him at the time, that he was compelled to hazard many gallant men in a greatly unequal contest with nearly 300 of the rebels, which he did in a most gallant manner, and so determined was the attack that the insurgents were forced to seek for shelter in the village, throwing their plunder in every direction. It was not, however, before some loss was inflicted on the 2nd cav., when I am very sorry indeed to state Ressaldar Major Ismail Khan was killed while fighting very gallantly, and Capt. Clogstoun was also himself wounded, and his horse also.

When the rebels had sought protection in the village, Capt. Nightingale, with the 3rd cav., approached, and the two regts. immediately surrounded Chichumba until arrangements could be made for attacking it. Though the arty. were only six-pdr. guns, they were placed in position to open upon the village, and it was apparent from the firing which ensued that the place was well defended by small arms. On arrival of the 3rd inf. I made arrangements for assailing the village, for though it was only a weak wing, and only 110 men were available for duty, it was necessary to dislodge the insurgents without delay, who were in a small dilapidated Ghurree with an open front, so as to prevent their escaping at night.

As some scattered houses lay around which must be passed before entering the Ghurree, and Capt. McKinnon was the only European officer with the party, I determined to command it myself, as I foresaw that the assault would prove unsuccessful if he was disabled and any check should prevent a rush into the Ghurree.

The party advanced with skirmishers, supported by the H.A. 6-pdr. on the flanks, and on entering the village a few men fell. On nearing the Ghurree the firing became heavier, when Capt. McKinnon fell mortally wounded. Immediately after my Brig. Maj., Capt. Hoseason, was dangerously wounded, and my own orderly was shot dead by my side.

My utmost endeavours now completely failed in urging the men to follow me and by a dash gain possession of the Ghurree, and finding that many men crowded round their disabled commander to carry him off, which left me quite unsupported, no alternative was left me but to bring the remaining men out again, which I did under a heavy fire.

My object was now directed to prevent the rebels from escaping during the night, as I was informed by a prisoner that the party consisted of 200 Rohillas, 70 Arabs, and 70 Dhekanees, under the command of Haji Ali, the Arab chief.

I visited the cavalry pickets for this purpose, and gave directions that just before sun-set the cavalry line of posts should be withdrawn, as if with the intention of joining the camp at some distance off, to deceive the garrison, but that as soon as it became dark they were to take up their old position and to be vigilant during the night.

Between ten and eleven o'clock that night, with a bright moon shining, the rebels commenced their march across the plain in a compact body, and first brought the pickets of the 2nd cav. into action, which was subsequently joined by the 3rd cav., and the rebels when in full retreat kept up a continuous heavy fire, which caused us much loss; the rebels, however, had upwards of 100 of their number cut up and speared.

As it was entirely an affair of pickets, I beg to forward a separate report from Capt. Clogstoun and Nightingale, minutely detailing the part each regt. took on this very gallant occasion. So severe an example was dealt out to the rebels that wounded men have been brought into my camp from a distance of several miles off, who informed me that they fled in the utmost confusion and panic.

I feel that I cannot describe too highly the gallantry of Capt. Clogstoun and Nightingale on the night in question, as well as those who were engaged with them, who though so very unequally pitted against three or four hundred men moving in a mass across strong and rough ground, and keeping up a very heavy fire all the time, nevertheless these officers endeavoured to break and scatter them, but were prevented doing so by their approaching ravines, when cavalry could no longer follow them.

I should, however, fail in my duty were I not to notice, in a more prominent manner, the good fortune which led to Capt. Clogstoun's conspicuous gallantry on being the first to reach Chichumba and successfully to check the further retreat of the rebels, and by his rapid pursuit compelled them to enter Chichumba, and abandon their plunder, on the morning of our arrival.

The personal encounter which Capt. Clogstoun had with the rebels, which led to this fortunate result, was obtained, however, at the loss of seven out of eight men who charged with him. Capt. Clogstoun was himself wounded by a musket ball, and was nearly knocked off his horse by a blow from a musket, while at the same time his horse was wounded under him.

This individual act of personal bravery is beyond praise.

I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which both officers and men of the force performed most arduous and fatiguing duties, who, having marched a distance of thirty-six miles, were actually employed during the remainder of the day and the whole night without intermission, with the exception of a short interval when relieved for procuring food.

Dr. Mackenzie, the senior staff surg., and the medical officer under him were most active in the discharge of their duties, and they were unremitting in their attention to the wounded.

Capt. Hoseason, my brig. major, was most active during the whole of the day to the time he was dangerously wounded at the assault upon Chichumba, and while he was carrying my orders his horse also was shot in two places.

W. Hill, Brigdr.

Comdg. Hyderabad Contingent, and Berar F.F.

From Capt. H. Clogstoun, Comdg. Detach. 2nd Cav., Hyderabad Contingent, to Capt. H. Hoseason, Brigade Major, Hyderabad Contingent.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of Brigdr. Hill, comdg. the Hyderabad Contingent and Berar F. F., that on approaching the village of Ressoad, on the 15th inst., I agreeably to instructions received, took up a position on the right. A native there told me that the enemy had marched on the road immediately in my rear, and feeling convinced that the same information would reach the Brigdr. in Ressoad, from whence the enemy had retreated, I instantly pursued in the direction indicated. A hard gallop of six or seven miles brought me up with the rebel force, which was at the time passing by the village of Chichumba. The pace at which I had advanced caused but few men to be up, but considering that it was my duty to delay as much as possible the further retreat of the enemy, which would have taken them to ground favourable for their escape, I at once attacked them, and succeeded in causing them to take to the village and enclosures round it. I regret to state that in this affair I had four killed and three wounded out of eight who charged with me.

I then moved off into the plain and formed up my detach. as it galloped up, and was here joined by the 3rd cav. under Capt. Nightingale, who on our nearing the village of Ressoad had been sent with his regt. to the left. The two ressalahs then were posted so as to prevent the escape of the enemy from the village, and we awaited the arrival of the remainder of the force. On Brigdr. Hill's approach I was ordered to take ground to the north east of the village, where I remained during the rest of the day.

At five o'clock P.M. I proceeded to post the detach., strength as per margin,* with the view of meeting the enemy should they attempt to retreat from the village during the night in the direction of my pickets, which extended for a mile from right to left.

Between the hours of nine and ten P.M. the left picket fired on the enemy, who advanced in great strength and in a compact body. I immediately galloped to the point of attack with all the men I could gather at the moment, and fought the enemy over the short intervening space between the line of pickets and the hills, and up which we closely followed them. The top of the hills afforded more favourable ground, though of limited extent, and the attack was renewed with vigour. Capt. Nightingale, with a party of the 3rd cav., here joined me, and the enemy suffered severely; but a few minutes after they threw themselves into a deep ravine, impracticable for cavalry, and escaped from further pursuit. Their loss was great. Their dead strewed the ground from the line of pickets to the ravine into which they had descended. I am sorry to say my loss is rather severe. The enemy marched in a compact mass, and kept up an exceedingly heavy and constant fire on my men, who gallantly charged again and again, and always with effect; but we were not strong enough to break the dense column. Constant hand-to-hand combats occurred, in which the men showed the utmost gallantry and devotion.

In forwarding this report I beg to bring to the notice of Brigdr. Hill, as deserving of reward, the undermentioned officers and men whose chivalrous bearing and dash where all were bold was most conspicuous. The nature of the ground prevented the cavalry from forming in line. Our constant and unceasing attacks on the column in the face of a heavy fire were therefore kept up by bold dashes of six or eight men at a time, who nobly threw themselves on the great odds opposed.

Bessaldars Mahomed Sha, Meer Dalawur Ally, Jemadar Sadut Khan, who was one of the party who charged with me in the morning, and whose brother was one of those there killed, another brother was desperately wounded in the same conflict; Sadut Khan showed great pluck. Bargheer Mahomed Noor Khan, although wounded in the head during the day, came to the front and alone dashed into the enemy's column; his horse was shot under him, and he very badly wounded. Sheik Hyder, who was with me in the morning's affair; Zulfikar Khan, a brave and gallant fellow, who was severely wounded after killing two of the enemy; his brother was killed in the morning.

Troopers Meer Hoossain Alli and Sheik Chand, both wounded in the morning affair.

Trooper Emam Alli Khan, who behaved very bravely throughout the day, and accompanied Capt. Hoseason in the assault.

From Capt. G. Nightingale, commandant 3rd cav., Hyderabad Contingent, to the Brig. Major, Hyderabad Contingent, Berar F.F.

Camp Chichumba, 17th January, 1852.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward, for the information of Brigdr. Hill, comdg. Berar F.F., the following detail of such operations yesterday as immediately concerned the regt. under my command. We marched from Chundur to Wakhud, a distance of twenty miles, and on arrival these information having come in from Capt. Ivie Campbell, that a large body of rebels were at Ressoad and were then plundering the town, we received orders to push on. We accordingly proceeded at a gallop to Ressoad, twelve miles, where, in obedience to orders previously received from the Brigdr., I proceeded to the northward of the town to cut off the retreat of the enemy in that direction. We were taking up our ground, when an orderly came up to tell us that the rebels had left and were marching towards Chichumba, seven miles further on. I immediately followed in the track of the 2nd cav., which having been detailed to take the right of Ressoad had a considerable start of us. After a gallop of six or seven miles over a very strong road we came in sight of Chichumba, and perceived that the Ghurree and a nullah leading from it were occupied; on our approach we found ourselves under a rather heavy fire from the rebels, who had lined the nullah leading from the village, and which nullah afforded the enemy excellent cover, being overshadowed by masses of trees and thick bushes. Capt. Clogstoun informed me that he had lost several men in charging past the Ghurree, and that he had himself been struck, so we decided (the ground being perfectly impracticable for cavalry) to withdraw our regiments out of fire and surround the village, which we accordingly did, and enclosed the rebels in a network of videttes. I threw out parties to support my videttes, and after reconnoitring the ground, I crossed the nullah with some difficulty, at a distance from the village, and took up a position with my regt. on the rising ground to the westward, which commanded the roads to the Bamnee and Lonar. We there awaited the arrival of the inf. and guns, my main body being hidden from the enemy by a slight rise in the ground. When the arty. opened fire on the east face I remarked that many of the rebels came out of the Ghurree and concealed themselves in the castor oil fields facing me. I sent for a gun to drive them out of this, but none could be spared just then; so I rode to within about four hundred yards with Lieut. Johnson and twenty men, and began firing at the rebels with the two zumbourucks I had with me. On my doing this the enemy returned my fire from the castor oil field and showed in considerable numbers, but one of them having been knocked over by a ball from our zumbouruck, they returned into the houses and Ghurree. Shortly after this some people were seen escaping to the westward, and I sent a party to bring them in after the assault of the 3rd infantry had been repulsed. I merely held my ground with my videttes, throwing out additional parties as supports. Towards the evening Brigdr. Hill came across the nullah, and reconnoitred the ground towards the south, where Capt. Clogstoun had his pickets. There being a nullah here leading from the fort to the hills towards Burr, it appeared that the rebels would attempt to cut their way out either in that direction or towards Bamnee. The ground being hilly, rocky, and much cut off by the deep ravines on those sides, Brigdr. Hill instructed me to withdraw my regt. towards dusk, and throw back my videttes (so as to deceive the rebels with the idea that we had left these positions comparatively unguarded), after which, when the moon rose, I was to take up a position with my regiment so as to cut off the retreat of the enemy, if they attempted a sortie, which I had received information from one of my prisoners it was their intention to try during the night. In obedience to these orders I took my regiment off to the northward, and watered the horses (food we had none for either them or the men, owing to our thirty-five miles' march).

About 8 A.M. I personally relieved all the videttes, whom I found very much on the alert, and I allowed them, as well as their supports, to the number of seventy men, to proceed to camp, as they had been on that duty all day. They were to rest, and also afford protection to the camp. About nine P.M. we seized some rebels escaping from the Ghurree, and they informed us that the enemy were preparing to move out. I sent information instantly to Capt. Clogstoun and Brigdr. Hill, but before either of the messengers had gone far we heard shots in the direction of Capt. Clogstoun's pickets, so I caused the men to fall in at once and proceeded as well as we could at a gallop towards the scene of action. We met with many obstacles from the nature of the ground, it being impossible in the dim moonlight to see the nullahs and water-courses intersecting the plains at the foot of the hills. I reached the foot of the hills just as the rebels were ascending them. These hills are such as it would be unpleasant to ride over in daylight, covered with rocks and loose stones, with high grass and thick bushes, which gave the rebels an immense advantage over the cavalry, as a charge in a compact body was impossible to horsemen. I saw by the flashes of the guns that the enemy was making to the south-westward, so ascended the hills to the left, and pushing across the flat space at the top, found myself between the great ravine to my left and the whole mass of the enemy. To give an idea of the nature of the ground, I may mention that although I started with 90 men, only about 20 of these with the Adj. could keep up with me, when I scrambled up the side of the hill. At this time Capt. Clogstoun with his men was attacking the rebels fiercely in the rear and driving them forwards up the side of the hill on to the plateau, notwithstanding the great advantage they had in the nature of the ground and their very superior numbers. Seeing the large mass of the enemy, numbering, as has since been ascertained, more than 400 on my right, I ordered a charge across their front and galloped on. When I had gone about 200 yards I found myself alone in front of the enemy, who was now between me and my men, the only person with me being one man, a Waghirah named Wassil Khan. The enemy on seeing us commenced a tremendous fire, and I could also see by the flashes of the guns that they were resisting Capt. Clogstoun with the utmost determination, as they probably fancied that their retreat was cut off to the ravine. I rode backwards and forwards for several minutes in front of the mass, hoping that my regt. would hear my shouts, till at last Ressaldar Major Ahmed Bux Khan with seven of his men who had been in search of me, came up and joined me. He then explained how it happened that I was unsupported at first. When I galloped across the enemy's front I instantly disappeared from the sight of Lieut. Johnson and the rest of the men, only Wassil Khan, who happened to be next me, seeing the direction I had taken. From this some idea may be formed of the small degree of light there was. Lieut. Johnson having thus lost sight of me, very judiciously turned to the right and fell upon the enemy's rear with the regt., the troopers joining in as they best could through the thick bushes and grass. Here Ressaldar Major Shah Mirza Beg, charging with his usual gallantry, was, while in the act of killing one man, very severely wounded by a sword cut from a Rohilla. Trooper Shaik Fikrodeen was also cut down while spearing a rebel, and numbers of the latter fell under the swords and spears of the troopers, whom I had not allowed to load their carbines. While this was going on Ahmed Bux Khan, who had turned to the left in search of me, heard my shouts, and joined me as above stated. I formed up his seven men, and as the enemy passed in a dark mass, with shouts of defiance, keeping up a heavy fire, and marching swiftly but doggedly along, I could distinguish the forms of the men of the 2nd and 3rd cav. charging in upon their rear. I asked my men if they would charge them, and on their reply in the affirmative we rode through their rear from right to left, and was about 450 yards from the village; when the enemy advanced to attack the place I advanced the guns to within 150 yards of the houses, and kept up as rapid a fire as I could to cover their advance, and when I saw the infantry fall back, I resumed the fire to cover the retirement. I afterwards withdrew my guns to their original position, and the day's operations shortly after ceased.

Capt. Campbell's troop* of H.M.'s 12th royal lancers, which formed part of the detach. under my command, was detached by Brigdr. Hill's order on our arrival in front of Chichumba to the north side of the village, where I was employed throughout the day.

Captain Forrest's Operations.

H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council directs the publication of the following report of operations ably conducted under the command of Capt. Forrest, 3rd By. Eur. regt.

From Brig. gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior div., to the Chief of the Staff with the rt. hon. the C. in C.

Dated Camp Soopoor, 19th Jan. 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward a report of operations conducted under the command of Capt. Forrest, 3rd By. Eur. regt., and trust that that officer and those mentioned by him may receive the favourable notice of the rt. hon. the C. in C. for the able manner in which their duties appear to have been performed.

R. NAPIER, Brigdr. gen.,
Comdg. Gwalior div.

From Capt. J. O'B. Forrest, 3rd By. Eur. regt., comdg. F.F. detach. at Lullutpore, to Lieut. col. J. Liddell, comdg. F.F. at Lullutpore.

Dated Camp Poorah, 1st Jan., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward for your information a report of the proceedings of the force under my command (strength as per margin),† since my arrival at Talbehut on the 27th ult.

The information not having been good enough to warrant my moving immediately, I halted a day there to enable the spies I sent out to return, which they did on the evening of the 28th, and reported that the enemy, under Takoor Telook Singh, and Dewan Murdun Singh, had barricaded the road about a mile to the west of Sonorie, and had collected their followers to the number of 300 men (amongst whom were mutineer sepoys with percussion arms), with the intention of disputing the passage.

I marched at daybreak, in the following order: advanced guard—seven files of the 3rd Eur., twelve and a half files 24th regt. N.I., seven files of the Mil. Police (which Capt. Sneyd had kindly placed at my disposal), under Lieut. Leslie, main body. The remainder 3rd Eur., ditto 24th regt. N.I., and about sixty police, cav. and inf. Rear-guard—the troop 3rd Lt. cav., under Lieut. Coombe.

We proceeded for about three miles without opposition through a very dense jungle, but on coming to a sudden turn of the road, commanded by high rocks on either side in the very thickest of the wood, we were received with a heavy fire from muskets and matchlocks, with, I regret to say, fatal results to one of the Europeans. The enemy were driven in gallant style from the rocks by the advanced guard, and retreated slowly, disputing every inch of ground for about a mile, where, the jungle not being so dense, I ordered a more rapid advance, which resulted in a total dispersion of the rebels, who fled in the direction of some hills to the north-east of Sonorie. They left in the jungle between twenty and thirty killed, and their wounded must be computed at still greater numbers. From the difficult nature of the country, I deemed it advisable to send back a reinforcement of fifty N.I. to Lieut. Coombe. The results fully bore me out in this order, as the rear-guard was attacked by some stragglers, and two privates 24th regt. N.I. were wounded.

I proceeded to occupy the village of Sonorie, which was done without resistance. It was quite deserted. In it were the two fortified houses of the before-mentioned Takoors, which I ordered to be destroyed, and which order was carried out as well as the means at my disposal would admit of.

30th Dec. 1858.—About 10 A.M., it was reported to me that several of the enemy were lurking among the hills and jungle to our left rear. I, with the following party, twenty-five r. and f. 3rd Eur. and the police, proceeded by a détour to the N.W., while Lieut. Leslie, with the 24th regt. N.I., was ordered to make a similar détour in the S.W. direction, and meet the party under my command to the west of a large hill, behind which the enemy were supposed to be. We scoured the jungle for about three hours, but without being able to bring them to action, although they were seen in the distance, and one wounded by a man of the 24th regt. N.I. Their knowledge of the country, and the thickness of the jungle, enabled them to escape.

Amongst these hills, the police succeeded in retaking a quantity of cotton and thread which had been looted by the enemy some days previously, and which I handed over to the Thessaldar of Chunderie.

31st Dec., 1858.—Early in the morning, before daylight, information was given me that the Rana, with 300 men, was at Poorah, in a small ghurrie, and was looting the country. I immediately ordered the camp to be struck, and pushed on the 3rd cav. in hopes of surrounding him in his stronghold, while I followed with the rest of the column. His look-outs, however, posted on a high hill, discovered the approach of the cav., and he at once retreated to another small ghurrie in some strong jungle, about a coss beyond, and to the eastward of Poorah.

On learning this I left the art. and baggage with a guard of the 24th, and proceeded in two parties (one commanded by myself, the other by Lieut. Leslie) by different routes, to try and surround him.

The party under my command first came upon him, on which he quickly vacated his position, running straight on to Lieut. Leslie's party. The enemy had now only one line of escape open, and of which they were enabled to take advantage by our numbers, not having quite sufficient to complete the cordon.

We pursued them till the jungle became impracticable for troops to work in, when I returned to Poorah and pitched camp.

The officers and men have, in every instance, willingly and effectually carried out my orders, and to them I tender my best thanks, especially Lieuts. Coombe and Leslie, who so ably performed the duties allotted to them.

To Capt. Sneyd, also, I am indebted for his kindness in placing the police at my disposal.

JAS. O'B. FORREST, Capt.,
Comdg. F.F. detach., Poorah.

Brigadier Horsford in Nepal.

No. 347 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following report from Brigdr. A. Horsford, C.B., comdg. F.F.—of his having entered the Nepal territories, and having engaged and defeated a body of rebels at Sikta Ghat.

2. H.E. in council highly appreciates the excellent services of Brigdr. Horsford, C.B., and of the officers and men under his command.

From Brigdr. A. Horsford, comdg. F.F., to the dep. adj. gen. of the army.

Camp, Sishowah, Nepal, 10th Feb., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of H.E. the C. in C., that, under instruction received from the chief of the staff, I crossed the river Raptée yesterday morning at 5 A.M., with the troops as per margin*, and entered the territory of Nepal, for the purpose of attacking a body of rebels, who had placed fifteen guns in position at Sikta Ghaut, where there is a ford and pass leading towards the inner ranges of the Nepal mountains.

After a severe march through forest and open country, the troops came to a bend in the Raptée. At this place I thought it advisable to detach Col. Hill, C.B., rifle brig., with the troops named in the margin,† directing him to cross the river, follow its right bank, and attack the right rear of the enemy's position.

This portion of the force had a most difficult country to pass through, and for some time were under a heavy fire from art., but the nature of the ground was such that they were enabled to take advantage of a high and abrupt cliff, giving them perfect command of the enemy's guns, and its irregulars saving them from loss.

When the head of the main column reached the ford it encountered but slight opposition, the enemy having then found that their position was turned and almost immediately abandoning their guns, all of which were captured, a list of which I enclose.

The enemy's entrenchments, though slight, were so situated on a high bank, commanding the ford of the river, which is here not only deep and rapid, but upwards of 200 yards in breadth, that they could not have been taken from the front without a serious loss.

The whole of the latter part of the operations were carried on in a dense and rocky forest, where it was impossible to engage cav. in the pursuit.

From the information which I have received I do not believe the enemy were numerous, but a great part of them were artillery men. Few were killed, owing to their taking to the forest when the first was captured; some were, however, overtaken. Our own casualties are almost nominal.

This march into the territory of Nepal seems to be welcomed by the inhabitants, who feel that this column is acting a friendly part towards them. They have shown their inclination to assist the British forces by bringing in prisoners, and betraying where arms and plunder are concealed by the rebels.

In obedience to the orders received from H. E. the C. in C. the strictest discipline is enforced, and every care taken to respect the prejudices of the Nepalese people.

My thanks are due to officers comg. regs., namely, Col. Hill, C.B., 2nd batt. rifle brig., Lieut. Col. Sir W. Russell, Bart., 7th Hussars, Major Moir, C.B., Ben. H. A., Maj. Vaughan, 5th Punj. Rifles, Maj. Ramsay, Kumaon batt., and Lieut. Hicks, comd. left wing 1st Belooch batt.

To Maj. Hughes, 1st Punj. Cav. my especial thanks are due, not only for his services at the head of his regt., but for the aid he gives me in his capacity as mil. comsgr.

To Maj. Dillon, 2nd batt. rifle brig., my brig. maj., Capt. Hoste, 5th Punj. rifles, brig. qr. mr., and to Lieut. Topham, 7th hussars, and Lieut. Fryer, 2nd batt. rifle brig., who acted as my orderly officers during the day.

My thanks are also due to Capt. C. H. E. Græme, 5th Ben. Eur. Reg., sub-asst. comsgr. gen., and to Mr. W. H. Ross, C.S., deputy comsgr.

During the day about forty (40) of the enemy's cavalry surrendered themselves.

A. HORSFORD, Brigdr., Comdg. F.F.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Assam Company, held yesterday, Sir William Baynes, Bart., in the chair, a very satisfactory report was read, stating that there had been no material injury done to the company's property during the late mutiny.

"THE LAST OF THE MOGULS."

AMONG the many readable articles in the current number of the Universal Review,* not one, perhaps, will be perused with greater or more general interest than that which bears the above title. We shall not, however, forestall the pleasure that awaits the readers of that excellent monograph by tracing, in outline, the sad tale of the declining glories of the House of Timour; nor shall we dwell on the infatuation of the Indian Government in treating a shadow with the reverence which the substance would never have obtained. For these and other matters of high import we must refer the curious to the article itself, while we briefly invite attention to such portion of the evidence adduced at the trial of the ex-king as tends to throw new light on the causes of the mutiny. In the first place, the general belief that the annexation of Oude was one of the chief causes of discontent, does not appear to rest on any sure foundation. On the contrary, the witnesses positively declared that that act had rather given satisfaction than otherwise to the Delhi Mussulmans, who rejoiced over the humiliation of the schismatic Shiahhs. The king's physician, Assan Oollah, further asserted that the sepoys did not complain of the annexation, which, in fact, liberated them from the oppression of the Oude Government, but that they mutinied "because they were ripe for revolt." The chuppatie mystery remains as much a mystery as ever, and seems to have had no other effect, and possibly no other object, than that of unsettling men's minds and creating a universal agitation. The greased cartridges, however, exercised no slight influence in promoting the rebellion. The sepoys complained, indeed, of other grievances, such as the short leaves allowed to the troops, the discontinuance of batta, the expeditions beyond the sea to Burmah and Persia, and the little consideration shown to the native army, as compared with former times. But the issue of the greased cartridges was the grievance most prominently put forward, because, said the royal Hakim, it involved a religious element. Thus, "the mass of the people, who are necessarily ignorant, were deceived, and really believed that they were fighting for religion. The wicked," he added, "were guided by motives of gain." At the same time, as the writer of the article in question truly observes, "the affair of the greased cartridges would never have done the work that it did, if the heart of the army had not previously been alienated from its British commanders, and if it had not been unmistakably demonstrated by our reverses in Affghanistan that a British army is not invincible in the field. Those reverses, we may be sure, paved the way to our more recent disasters.

The prestige of the indomitable might of the Feringhee was gone. The hat had already succumbed to the turban." The lesson taught to our rulers by recent events has been too dearly purchased to be lightly regarded. "Great will be the error committed by the British Government if the existence of any titular kingships be ever again permitted. With the substance we must annihilate also the shadow of power. That it is at the same time bad policy and false humanity to exhibit this deference to the ancestral traditions of defunct greatness is clearly demonstrated, if anything so evident need demonstration, by this story of the Last of the Moguls."

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF INDIA.

AMONG the many reforms suggested for India, that which is of the most pressing importance—namely, the reform of the Legislative Council,—has escaped the notice of the British Ministry, past and present. It is impossible to read the debates in that Council, and the measures proposed in it, without being impressed with the paramount necessity of re-forming it, and giving it such a reorganisation as will secure that variety of knowledge and intelligence which is required for the proper and wise legislation of a great empire. Are the Ministers of this country aware of the composition of the Council? It is composed first of the Governor General as President, formerly a postmaster; two judges learned in the law, and another gentleman learned in the law, sent out from this country; a gallant general, well versed in military matters, and five civilians, members for the North-West Provinces, Bombay, Madras, and Bengal—gentlemen whose whole life has been spent in learning Oriental languages and the voluminous regulations of the Company, in collecting revenue, and administering justice in the Native Courts. How, in the name of common-sense, are we to expect good measures of finance, or wise legislation regarding the great mercantile and agricultural interests of the empire from a body so constituted? We cannot surely be surprised at the bungling measures of finance, which have been so strongly condemned in this country, when we reflect upon the qualifications of the present members of the Legislative Council, nor ought we to be astonished at the Customs Tariff Act, which has thrown the whole mercantile community of India into confusion. In this great country Ministers do not hesitate to raise to the peerage a Baring or a Jones Loyd, and avail themselves of their financial and mercantile experience in the highest Legislative Council of the realm, but in India a merchant or a planter is a kind of pariah whom it would be undignified to admit within the aristocratic precincts of the Legislative Chamber. Hence those measures of finance so destructive to the value of Government-paper and so injurious to commerce. It is not very long ago since the Legislative Council passed an Act doing away with the admirable dollar currency of the Straits settlements, and substituting for it the clumsy and inconvenient rupee currency. And what was the reason assigned by these wonderful legislators? Why, they had a few servants in these settlements, and it was more convenient to keep their salary

* The Universal Review of Politics, Literature, and Social Science. London: Wm. H. Allen and Co.

Review of a valuable and interesting paper on the "Resources of India and its Colonization." The writer brings to his task the inestimable advantage of a personal knowledge of the districts suitable for the residence of Europeans. He is well acquainted not only with the Upper Provinces of India, but also with Sylhet, Cachar, and Assam, and is thus enabled to speak with far greater authority than if he had derived his information at second-hand from the reports of previous explorers. As the result of his own observations he states that the tea-plant may be successfully cultivated from Assam in the East to the hill districts of the Punjab in the far West. Throughout this vast extent of territory a light, porous, yellow loam prevails, almost identical with the soil of the best tea regions of China. The plant thrives with equal luxuriance on the banks of the Burhampooter and at an elevation of 7,000 feet above the level of the sea. It does not yield any return, indeed, until the expiration of the second year, but from that period its productiveness continues without diminution until long after its original planter has been gathered to his forefathers. In Assam and Cachar, where it is indigenous, trees have been found sixty and seventy years of age, and "still producing leaves of an excellent quality." According to this writer, both Mr. Fortune and Dr. Jameson have considerably over-estimated the expenditure, while they have underrated the receipts of a healthy tea-plantation. "An acre of land," he says, "may fairly be expected to yield 300 lbs. of tea, the average price of which will certainly exceed two shillings per lb." Mr. Fortune, taking for the basis of his calculations, a farm of 1,800 acres, looks for an income of Rs. 9,000 in the third year, of Rs. 27,000 in the fourth, of Rs. 72,000 in the fifth, of Rs. 108,000 in the sixth, of Rs. 135,000 in the seventh, and of Rs. 180,000 in the eighth. From this total of Rs. 531,000 he deducts Rs. 268,212 for expenses, and thus leaves a net balance of Rs. 262,388 as the aggregate return in eight years on a capital of £20,000. This, however, is evidently far below the mark, for he strikes the average price of tea at one shilling a pound, although in 1854 the Government teas at Almora and Deyrah Dhoon averaged 3s. 1½d. per lb. Dr. Jameson, again, assumes a farm of 6,000 acres, from which he expects a clear profit of Rs. 230,266 on an annual expenditure of Rs. 129,734. He also undervalues the price of tea at 1s. 6d. per lb., while he fixes the landrent at three rupees per acre, although "the maximum rate, according to the Government notification, can never exceed one rupee per acre, and that maximum is not reached until the 20th year of possession of land by the grantee." There are many other points in this able and opportune paper, on which we had intended to comment, but our waning space warns us to forbear, if at least we would hope to find room for the following extract:—

"The writer has visited many tea-plantations, and he knows no occupation connected with agriculture more agreeable. All others, such as indigo manufacture, sugar-baking, farming, &c., have their compounds of "villanous smells," but tea-growing and its manufacture are as agreeable to the senses of sight and smell, as they are profitable to the purse. The shrubs are planted in even rows about a yard apart, and when four or five years old are about the size of a gooseberry bush. In spring they are covered with flowers, a species of Camellia (the tea-plant is termed by Dr. Griffiths Camellia theifera), very beautiful and of delicious fragrance. The writer, however, remarked that the smell of the flowers of the tea-plant in the Dhoon was faint compared to that of the tea-plant blossom in Assam. The flowers remain on the plant about a month, and give to the whole plantation a pretty garden-like appearance. A favourite and healthy occupation of the planter is to wander in the morning through his plantation, gardener's knife in hand, to lop off redundant, or rotten, or broken branches, but he is never required to expose himself to the heat of the noonday sun. The large bamboo tea barns where the leaf is dried, toasted, manipulated, picked, and packed, have an atmosphere of most delicious fragrance, which may be faintly imagined by those who have visited a large London retail tea-shop. To the sportsman no country in the world affords greater variety or abundance of game than Assam. Its vast forests and extensive tracts of wild wastes are inhabited by innumerable herds of wild elephants, buffaloes, and hogs. Tigers, leopards, bears, rhinoceroses, roam through the woods and plains, and afford excellent sport to the hunter. Pheasants, partridge, and quail are also abundant. To the botanist also Assam affords an unrivalled field for study and research. Its rich soil, watered by frequent showers in the summer, and dense fogs in the cold weather, produces a vegetation of astonishing luxuriance and variety. The forests are full of trees of every variety and utility, from the gigantic caoutchouc to the tall and slender and graceful betel-nut palm. The caoutchouc tree, says Mr. Robinson, may be distinguished from a distance of several miles, by its dense, immense, and lofty crown. Dr. Griffiths, in his report on this tree, gives the dimensions of one of the largest as follows:—Circumference of main trunk, seventy-four feet; ditto of main trunk and supports, 120 feet; ditto of area covered by the branches, 610 feet; estimated height, 100 feet. The geographical range of the tree, as far as has been hitherto ascertained, may be stated to be between 25°10' and 27°20' north latitude, and between 90°40' and 95°30' east longitude. Throughout this space it is found in the densely-wooded tracts, so prevalent along the bases of the hills, and perhaps on their faces, up to an average elevation of 2,250 feet. At present there is one European manufactory of caoutchouc in Assam, but the process of cleansing the gum is kept a secret. There is no doubt that when Assam is more peopled by Europeans, and its forests become more known, caoutchouc will form an important article of export. Oaks and numerous other large trees suitable for building purposes and making furniture, abound in the forests of Assam. In Sylhet and Cachar, the vegetable productions are nearly similar, although less known."

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

The reports from Messrs. Turnbull and Purser respectively, on the progress of the works in the Bengal division up to the 31st of December, and in the North-Western Provinces to the 31st of January last, will afford the most precise information of the proceedings of the company in India during the six months which have elapsed since the board last met the shareholders.

The general results apparent from a perusal of Mr. Turnbull's report may be shortly epitomised as follows:—21 miles of additional line were opened on the 1st of October last; the line from the River Adjai to Cynthea, 24 miles, will, it is expected, be completed during the present year; the next 33½ miles by June, 1860; the following 25 miles by the end of the present year, and the remaining 25 miles into Rajmahal by the autumn of 1860. The state of the next division, 24 miles, is not quite so forward, though 12 miles are ready for the permanent way; the succeeding division, 26 miles, will, it is expected, be ready for the rails in July, 1860; 26 miles of the next 43 will be ready for the rails by the end of this season; 15 miles of the following 31½ are now ready for the permanent way; the Monghyr tunnel on this division is steadily advancing; the progress in the Keenul and Hulohur divisions, 21½ miles, has been considerable; 11 miles out of the next 31½ are ready for the rails, and six more will be finished immediately; on the next 31½ miles the progress has been satisfactory, and 13 miles are ready for the permanent way; the works on the Soane district, 78½ miles, extending to the River Kurrumnassa, the boundary of the Bengal division, and at the Soane Bridge, have been resumed, are steadily progressing, and 43 miles will be ready for the permanent way before next rains.

From Mr. Purser's report, it is seen that 123 miles in the North-West Provinces are open for traffic; and that 282 miles are ready for the permanent way materials.

The board consider that the prospects which the reports referred to hold out as to the completion of these great works are highly gratifying, and reflect much credit upon the officers under whose able management they have been carried on. The precise time of completion depends now mainly upon the success or otherwise of the exertions which are being made to expedite the transport of the permanent way materials from Calcutta to their several points of destination. The board reported on a former occasion the steps which were in preparation to meet the difficulty of transport; and they have now the pleasure to state that of the six steamers building in this country one has already been shipped for India, the hull of the second is completed, a third will be tried during the next month, and the remaining three are well forward. One pair of engines is completed, four pairs will be ready in about two months, and the last pair is well in hand. There are seven barges, each capable of carrying 420 tons, under contract; of these one is finished, four others will be ready in about three weeks, and the remaining two are well forward. There are also fifty 45-ton barges under contract, thirty-two are completed, and the remainder nearly finished. The designs of the Jumna Bridge superstructure are completed, and the work will be in hand next month. The Tonse superstructure will be proceeded with forthwith, and the whole will be in Calcutta as soon as required.

The board reported, under date the 28th April, 1857, that they had undertaken the survey of the River Sutlej, with a view to determine the best point at which to cross the river. The surveys have been completed for some time, and show the formidable nature of the works which will be required to effect the passage over this river. This survey was undertaken in the expectation that, in terms of an arrangement entered into in the year 1853 between this company and the Upper India Railway Company, at the instance of the East India Company, the construction of the line from Delhi to Lahore would have been entrusted to this company, and it would not have been entered upon otherwise. The Government of India has lately recommended that the line should be made by the Punjab Railway Company, and Lord Stanley having acquiesced in that view, the board, with better acquaintance of the value to this company of the country through which the line passes, have thought it desirable, in the interests of the shareholders, to accept the decision which has been arrived at, and to relinquish their claim to this line.

These works are in a high state of efficiency. The cost of maintenance for the half year has been 7d. per mile.

Annexed to the report is the revenue account received from India, for the half-year ending the 31st December last. The account as furnished debits revenue with the cost of taking up the iron sleepers, which were put down on the line to Ranegunge as an experiment, whereby to test their adaptability to the company's purposes, and of relaying the road with ordinary wooden sleepers. The board consider that the cost of this experimental work should not be made a charge against revenue, and will instruct Mr. Palmer to apply to the government of India for authority to transfer it to capital.

The number of passengers carried during the half year ending 30th June was 581,374; showing an increase of 69,218 passengers, as compared with the corresponding half-year, and an increase of 10,304 over the preceding half-year.

The number of passengers during the year ending 31st December, 1858, was 1,172,552, against 1,070,907 in the year ending 31st December, 1857.

The quantity of goods and minerals, exclusive of parcels, carriages, and live stock, for the half-year ending 31st December, was 99,006 tons; giving an increase of 9,246 tons over the preceding half-year, or 29,551 tons over the corresponding half-year.

The tonnage carried in the year 1858 was 190,566 tons, against 134,105 in the year 1857.

The amount of railway materials included in the traffic returns is about 10 per cent. of the whole.

The gross traffic receipts for the half-year ending Dec. 31 were £85,972. 8s. 5d., showing an increase of £5,073. 7s. 3d. over the preceding half-year, or £10,639. 6s. 10d. over the corresponding half-year; and the board have the pleasure to state that since the 31st December the traffic has considerably increased. The total gross receipts for the year ended Dec. 31, 1857, were £133,640. 13s. 9d., against £166,871. 9s. 7d. for the year ending Dec. 31, 1858. The net traffic receipts since the opening of the line have been as follow:—

For the hf.-year endg.	30th June, 1855	£10,631	1 7
"	31st Dec., 1855	20,621	11 2
"	30th June, 1856	27,791	3 4
"	31st Dec., 1856	29,268	18 2
"	30th June, 1857	40,215	5 5
"	31st Dec., 1857	42,555	6 1
"	30th June, 1858	45,169	13 3
"	31st Dec., 1858	42,978	9 7

The last amount will, of course, be affected to the extent of £4,744. 12s. 11d., if the Government refuse to admit that sum, being the cost of replacing the iron sleepers already referred to, as a charge against capital.

An elaborate statement exhibits the gross and net earnings, the number of passengers and the tonnage carried, and the gross and net receipts per mile per week since the opening of the line, and shows in the fourth year an increase of 48.41 per cent. in the passenger traffic; 600.27 per cent. in the goods traffic; 140.54 per cent. in the gross receipts; and 182.05 per cent. in the net receipts.

This large progressive increase in the traffic and revenue appears to the board highly satisfactory, and affords an indication of the results which may be fairly anticipated when the whole line is completed.

The whole of the engines and other rolling stock are stated to be in excellent condition.

The shareholders are aware that the line from Allahabad to Cawnpore has been for some time past available for the use of the Government. The opening of this line to the public has been delayed for various reasons, but the board have received advices that the Government had consented to its opening for general traffic on the 3rd of March. The board anticipate very favourable results as soon as they are in a position to develop the traffic.

In their last report the board intimated their intention to apply to the Secretary of State for India in Council for permission to use temporarily, for the purposes of the main line, the capital raised for the Jubbulpore line. The board pressed this point very strongly, but were met with a positive refusal, and were required instead to raise capital to the extent of £2,000,000 forthwith. In the then state of the money market they felt that such a proceeding must inevitably be attended with failure and serious prejudice to the existing stock of the company; and, after a lengthened correspondence and negotiation, it was determined that £1,000,000 should be raised on debentures at 4½ per cent., convertible hereafter into shares, to be followed by an issue of a similar amount in shares. The board have every reason to be satisfied with the success which has attended these operations.

The total amount of capital now created for the main line is £10,731,000, the amount specified in the contracts with the East India Company as the probable amount of capital required for the construction of a double line to Burdwan and a single line for the remainder of the distance to Delhi. In consequence, however, of the delay and losses caused by the mutiny, and its effect on the cost of transport, labour, and materials, this sum will not prove altogether sufficient to complete the line and provide the necessary amount of rolling stock. The board are engaged in preparing a careful estimate of the probable amount of additional capital which will be required. They are not yet in a position to state the amount of loss which the company has sustained through the mutiny, and as they will have a claim upon the Government for compensation to that extent, the amount of capital will, of course, be contingent upon the settlement which may be arrived at in respect of this claim. Any additional capital required will be raised upon the same terms as to the guarantee of interest as the existing stock.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

The report of the directors of this company states that the portions of the railway under construction by contract, upon which operations have been carried on during the past half-year, are the Bhore Ghat incline, 13½ miles; the section from Poonah to Sholapore, 163 miles; from Wassind to the foot of the Thull Ghat incline, 25 miles; the Thull Ghat incline, 9 miles; and from the summit of this incline to Bhosawul, 190 miles; together, 400½ miles. The board regret that upon the Bhore Ghat incline the contractor has failed to carry forward the work in such a manner as alone could have secured its completion by the date fixed in the contract. Arrangements were in progress at the departure of the last mail from Bombay to put an end to the contract. On the termination of the contract the most energetic measures will be taken for prosecuting the whole of the works on the Bhore Ghat incline. The directors hope that the through communication by railway between the Concan and the Deccan will be completed without any further obstruction. The works on the other contracts continue to be executed steadily. The portion of the railway from Poonah to Deeksal—a distance of 64½ miles—was completed and opened for public traffic on the 15th of December last. Upon the line from Bhosawul to Jubbulpore, 332 miles, the contractors have been principally engaged during the half-year in the necessary preliminary arrangements. The construction of the Nagpore branch, 263 miles, has been let by public competition, and is to be completed by the 25th of March, 1863. During the half-year the opened portion of the railway has continued to be safely and efficiently worked. It consisted on the 31st of December last of 88½ miles in the Concan, and 106½ miles in the Deccan, total 194½ miles. The gross receipts on revenue account during the half-year amounted to £60,890, and the expenses to £26,400, or 43.35 per cent. of the receipts, leaving a net profit of £34,490. Compared with the corresponding half of the previous year an increase of £28,022 is shown on the gross receipts, an increase of £17,019 on the net profits; and a decrease of 3.49 per cent. on the working expenses. Leaving out of the account the receipts for seventeen days on the portion of the line between Poonah and Deeksal, the average receipt per mile from the remaining 130½ miles open throughout the six months amounts to £163, against £371 in the corresponding half-year, being an increase of 25 per cent., which the Board consider very satisfactory. The total number of passengers conveyed during the half-year was 553,816, against 383,163 at the corresponding period of 1857, showing an increase of 170,653 passengers, of whom 142,726 were third-class, 26,347 second-class, and 1,580 first-class—the total number of third class passengers being 505,138, of second class 41,703, and of first-class 6,970. The interest account to the 31st December last shows that £642,568 had been paid by Government to the company as interest on paid-up capital, out of which is deducted £133,183 paid by the company to the Government out of net revenue, leaving a balance against the company on interest account of £509,384. The combined (London and Bombay) capital account to the 31st December shows that £1,241,159 had been received, including £330,406 in Bombay; and £3,636,727 expended, including £1,475,733 in Bombay; leaving a balance of £604,432, including £2,965 in Bombay.

Blackwood's Magazine. No. DXXIII. Wm. Blackwood and Sons.

The very amusing series of papers entitled "A Cruise in Japanese Waters" is brought to a close in the present number. In some respects this is the most pleasant instalment that has appeared. Not only is it imbued with the same genial good humour, the same manly and vigorous tone, the same buoyant "salt-water" spirits, that so agreeably characterised its predecessors, but it contains also much information on the manners and mode of thinking of the Japanese generally. The writer was evidently much prepossessed in their favour, and loses no opportunity of praising their intelligence and amiability of disposition. Of the many passages we at first proposed to extract, we can find space for only two; but these will suffice to stimulate, if not to gratify, the curiosity of our readers. The first describes the many uses to which paper is applied:—

It was wonderful to see the thousand useful as well as ornamental purposes to which paper was applicable in the hands of these industrious and tasteful people; our papier-mache manufacturers, as well as the Continental ones, should go to Yedo to learn what can be done with paper. We saw it made into material so closely resembling russian and morocco leather and pig-skin that it was very difficult to detect the difference. With the aid of lacker-varnish and skilful painting, paper made excellent trunks, tobacco-bags, cigar-cases, saddles, telescope-cases, the frames of microscopes; and we even saw and used excellent waterproof coats made of simple paper, which did keep out the rain, and were as supple as the best Macintosh. The Japanese use neither silk nor cotton handkerchiefs, towels, or dusters; paper in their hands serves as an excellent substitute. It is soft, thin, tough, of a pale yellow colour, very plentiful, and very cheap. The inner walls of many a Japanese apartment are formed of paper, being nothing more than painted screens; their windows are covered with a fine translucent description of the same material; it enters largely into the manufacture of nearly everything in a Japanese household; and we saw what seemed balls of twine, which were nothing but long shreds of tough paper rolled up. If a shopkeeper had a parcel to tie up, he would take a strip of paper, roll it quickly between his hands, and use it for the purpose; and it was quite as strong as the ordinary string used at home. In short, without paper all Japan would come to a dead-lock; and, indeed, lest by the arbitrary exercise of his authority a tyrannical husband should stop his wife's paper, the sage Japanese mothers-in-law invariably stipulate, in the marriage settlement, that the bride is to have allowed to her a certain quantity of paper!

The following description of the famous butterfly trick is both curious and entertaining:—

Our Japanese Merlin was seated cross-legged about ten yards from us upon the raised platform of the floor of the apartment; behind him was a gold-coloured screen, with a painting of the peak of Fusi-hama in blue and white upon its glittering ground. He threw up the sleeves of his dress, and showed a piece of some tissue paper which he held in his hand. It was about six inches square, and by dexterous and delicate manipulation he formed it into a very good imitation of a butterfly, the wings being extended, and at the most each was one inch across. Holding the butterfly out in the palm of his hand, to show what it was, he placed two candles, which were beside him, in such a position as to allow him to wave a fan rapidly without affecting the flame, and then, by a gentle motion of this fan over the paper insect, he proceeded to set it in motion. A counter-draught of air from some quarter interfered with his efforts, and made the butterfly truant to his will, and the screen had to be moved a little to remedy this. He then threw the paper butterfly up in the air, and gradually it seemed to acquire life from the action of his fan—now wheeling and dipping towards it, now tripping along its edge, then hovering over it, as we may see a butterfly do over a flower on a fine summer's day, then in wantonness wheeling away, and again returning to alight, the wings quivering with nervous restlessness! One could have sworn it was a live creature. Now it flew off to the light, and then the conjuror recalled it, and presently supplied a mate in the shape of another butterfly, and together they rose, and played about the old man's fan, varying their attentions between flirting with one another, and fluttering along the edge of the fan. We repeatedly saw one on each side of it as he held it nearly vertically, and gave the fan a short quick motion; then one butterfly would pass over to the other, both would wheel away, as if in play, and again return. A plant with some flowers stood in a pot near at hand; by gentle movements of the fan the pretty little creatures were led up to it, and then their delight! how they played about the leaves, sipped the flowers, kissed each other, and whisked off again with all the airs and graces of real butterflies! The audience was in ecstasies, and young and old clapped their hands with delight. The exhibition ended, when the old man advanced to the front of his stage, within arm's length of us all, accompanied by his magic butterflies, that even in the open air continued to play round the magician and his fan! As a feat of legerdemain, it was by far the most beautiful trick we had ever heard of, and one that must require an immense amount of practice.

Chronological Account of India. By J. C. Burgoyne. Wm. H. Allen and Co.

Of the many handbooks of Indian chronology this is decidedly the best, because the most intelligent and intelligible. It is divided into two parts. The first contains the heads of all the principal events connected with the Mahomedan empire in India, from A.D. 873, when Ismael Samani assumed the title of King of Bokhara, to A.D. 1823, in which year was effected the dismemberment of the Dooranee empire. The second part is devoted to the European settlements and conquests in India, and embraces the eventful periods of history that lie between the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope and the transfer of the Company's dominions to the Crown of Great Britain. The historical facts set forth in this little manual are as authentic and well selected as they are concisely and lucidly arranged.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.

"Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 19, 1858. A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) in the have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co. Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 70, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The first number of a new monthly publication, the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," deserves a cordial welcome. Professedly based upon the plan of the "Revue des deux Mondes," it exhibits much of the scholarly spirit, the freedom and independence of thought, and the thorough geniality of tone, which mark its distinguished prototype. The opening article on "Literature and Life" is remarkable, hitting the case to a nicety, taking the middle course between the reckless Mohockism of Bohemia, and the affected kid-glove refinement of the Saturday Review. All the articles are excellent; but I would specially point out a well-deserved attack on "Christmas Pieces," a biographical notice of "Hallam," and a review of Owen Meredith's "Wanderer."—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, March 5, 1859.

First of all, let us bid welcome to the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW," published by Messrs. Allen and Co., of 7, Leadenhall-street. It is sought to establish a sort of English "Revue des deux Mondes." This design is strictly carried out.—Literary Gazette, March 5, 1859.

The best brief notion we can give of the publication is to say that it promises to become to the English reader what the Revue des deux Mondes is to the French, with an indefinitely wider latitude of topics and freedom of opinion. The soundness of its judgment on the question of Parliamentary Reform is displayed in the ablest and most thoroughly constitutional article that has yet appeared in any of our periodicals on the subject—an article which acquires additional value from the fact that it foreshadowed the whole of the scheme of the Government two days before the Reform Bill was brought forward. Let us have at least one English periodical, written with integrity and good taste, to which we may confidently look for fearless and honest opinions. The "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" promises to realise those expectations, and we heartily wish it the success which it deserves.—Home News, March 3, 1859.

Its articles, which are of a thoroughly miscellaneous character, are promising enough.—John Bull, March 5, 1859.

110, REGENT-STREET, and 33, LUDGATE-HILL, Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans.

In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots; the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, wholesome, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accepted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 131, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, and may be had gratis, for stamped envelope. The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores decayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OSSEVATE THE NUMBERS.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

Via Southampton (pre-payment compulsory), letters under $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. 0s. 6d. | 2 oz. 2s. 0d. | 4 oz. 4s. 0d.

Newspapers, not exceeding 4 oz., Three-pence each.

Books under  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. 6d.; under  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. 1s.; and for every additional  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta Mail of the 8th April brings no intelligence whatever of a military nature, and very little of any other kind. The clamour against the new Customs Act appears to have subsided into a mild protest, or petition, addressed to the Secretary of State for India. Government securities are still regarded with disfavour, the Five per Cents. being at 11 per cent. discount, and the Fours at 22, with a downward tendency.

Sir Mordaunt Wells, the new Calcutta judge, has made a "sensation," by denouncing the native predilection for perjury. He has even ventured to administer a rebuke to the Commissioner of Police for dealing too leniently with the corrupt and negligent agents belonging to his department. It is greatly to be desired that Sir Mordaunt shall not allow himself to be discouraged by the many vexatious difficulties he will encounter in his attempts to improve the police system of Calcutta.

Lord Harris was on a visit to the Governor General, having taken leave of Madras amid a profuse demonstration of compliments and farewell speeches. His lordship's successor, Sir Charles Trevelyan, is exhibiting the activity and enlightened liberality of opinion which usually mark the first few months of office. One of his earliest acts was to appoint a native aide-de-camp, and on more than one occasion he has evinced a popularity-seeking sympathy with the Eurasian community. His Excellency's abilities are beyond all doubt, but his experience of India is of somewhat ancient date, and ideas which once were vigorous may have degenerated into crotchets. This time alone will prove, and in the meanwhile we shall watch his career with attention, perhaps with anxiety.

The competitive system is to be strictly carried out in the Madras Presidency, at least with respect to entrance into the public service. Honorary distinctions, too, are to be conferred on meritorious natives agreeably to the scheme introduced in Bengal by Lord William Bentinck. Against these measures no reasonable objections can be made, nor are the home authorities likely to complain of the steps that have been taken to reduce the voluminous

BENGAL.

BENGAL IS TO BE SOLD.

We have won the game. It is now five years since the Friend of India declared the creation of an allodial tenure throughout India to be one of the five objects of its policy. The announcement was condemned by our best friends as chimerical. Old officials treated it as insane. Reformers would scarcely listen to a plan which, however advantageous, was opposed to the institutions of three thousand years. The untiring exertions of Mr. Macleod Wylie induced the missionaries to include the scheme in their petition, but even they expressed rather a wish than a political anticipation. The great body of the community held the attempt to abolish the one great Indian tax as a useless waste of power. Nothing could seem more hopeless, except to the few who believed with us that freehold tenure is inevitable wherever the British dominion extends. It is engraved in the national temperament, in its spirit of independence, and its dislike of organisation.

The plan laughed at for years has been carried in an hour. On the 14th February Lord Stanley announced that he had issued peremptory orders for the sale in fee simple of all waste lands. He said:—

"There is one class of lands with which the State has power to deal, and is not hampered by any arrangements formerly existing—I mean lands which are unoccupied and are claimed by the Indian Government. I believe the House will feel that it is most important to open these lands to European colonization—(hear). The extent of them is more limited, I believe, than is generally supposed; but in Assam, in the Sunderbuns, in the Neilgherries, they do exist. Hitherto the custom of the Government in India has been to give allotments of these lands upon easy terms for long periods, but those periods have never extended to perpetuity. The great object of those Europeans who apply for these lands we find to be to obtain the fee simple; in fact, to possess them for ever—(hear). They are willing to pay a sum down, but they wish to be free from future interference with their rights. That subject was considered here, and the desire was considered to be reasonable, and if the House will allow me, I will read an extract from a despatch which I will lay upon the table, dated December 22:—

"In such districts, where large tracts of unclaimed land are to be found absolutely at the disposal of the State, rules have already been promulgated under which settlers can obtain allotments on very easy conditions and for long terms of years; but in no case, I apprehend, extending to a grant in perpetuity. In such cases I desire that you will take such steps as may seem to you expedient for the purpose of permitting grantees to commute the annual payments stipulated for under the rules (after a specified period of rent-free occupancy) for a fixed sum per acre, to be paid on possession of the grant. In all other respects, and particularly in regard to the conditions which provide for a certain proportion of the land to be cleared and brought under cultivation within specified periods, the rules will of course remain unaltered."

All Soonderbun grantees, all tea-growers in Assam, all miners renting of Government, all planters in territories like Wynaad or Darjeeling, may now, if they have inclination and capital, become owners of the soil. Moreover, the broad phrase so often quoted to prove the chimerical rashness of our idea has become a reality. Bengal is to be sold. Orders have been sent out to frame plans by which all land under the perpetual settlement may be redeemed for a quantity of Company's paper yielding interest equivalent to the rental:—

"In Bengal there exists a perpetual settlement, by which the landowners are free from all demands except the payment of an annual sum. In such case it is quite clear that there can be no loss to the revenue of the State if these annual payments are commuted for a sum down, and that sum applied to the extinction of debt. The effect of the commutation will be to give to the landholders possession of the land for ever, free from all future charge. In any arrangement of this kind it will be necessary that existing sub-tenures and rights of all descriptions shall be treated with consideration. We have pointed out, in the despatch from which I have already quoted, to the Indian Government, the advantage of this process. We have pointed out the policy of giving a feeling and position of ownership to those who are now, in some sense, tenants of the State. We have indicated the wisdom of giving them material interests in our rule, as by so doing we shall give to the native landowners a direct interest in the permanence of our rule (hear)—because it is clear that where a commutation of this kind has taken place, and a perpetual exemption from future taxation been given to the landholder, he cannot reasonably expect that such immunity, so acquired, will be respected by any Government but that with which it has taken place."

Moreover, in reply to a deputation of flax merchants, Lord Stanley stated distinctly that under his instructions any one who built a factory or established a farm could not be dispossessed.

Every European or native who holds direct of the State may emancipate himself at once from all further risk of agency or dependence on the Collector. No native can sweep away his property in an hour by neglecting to pay his rent, no distressed Chancellor of the Exchequer raise his rent on the land which he has cleared. For the first time in history it has become possible to own land in Bengal. Hitherto forty millions of human beings have been simply tenants on their own soil.

That single innovation, which excited so little attention that the compiler of the telegrams thought it unworthy of mention, will, we firmly believe, place Lord Stanley a century hence in the front rank of Indian benefactors.

We are not about to weary our readers with long-drawn arguments for an accomplished fact. No native attempts to deny that lakhrāj land is better than land bearing an assessment. No European ever questioned the superiority of freehold over any other form of tenure. The price of lakhrāj land is already greater by some years' rental than that of land under the perpetual assessment. The solitary doubt expressed will be as to the prudence of thus cutting up future revenue by the roots. That assertion has been exposed till those who object should be ashamed of arguments which prove only their own dulness of comprehension. The State Debt is as permanent as the State Revenue. If, while we extinguish the revenue from the land, we extinguish an equal quantity of interest payable on the debt, neither we nor posterity can suffer. The latter, indeed, gain by the whole difference in the value of land under assessment and land held in freehold. Every other kind of revenue must of course be enlarged by the improvement, which, without freehold, is almost impossible. Men will not undertake works involving great expenditure unless they are to reap their whole benefit. The insecurity of tenure affects the value of the land, and everything on the land, and our tenure, though better than that of most Indian provinces, is still wretchedly insecure. The consequence is that all improvements not promising enormous and immediate returns are postponed. The capitalists in fact, who ought to be proprietors, are simply tenants on lease, intent on screwing the last farthing from their estates at the earliest possible moment.

The extent to which the offer will be accepted will depend almost entirely on the conditions demanded by the State. The amount is, we presume, settled by Lord Stanley's speech. The revenue and the debt must perish together, and the amount therefore must be twenty years' purchase. Even that is excessively high, nearly three pounds an acre in a country like Bengal. But something more is necessary than a mere permission to commute at twenty years' purchase. The new policy must be accepted heartily, with an honest desire to make it work well, and permission given to redeem estates in portions. No man, for example, and no association of men in India could redeem an estate like that of the Rajah of Burdwan. Even estates like that which went to the hammer three years since in Jessore, or the Mysadul, or Mymensingh estates, are almost irredeemable. The Legislature must permit them to be redeemed in fragments, each bearing its own proportion of the jumma. The direct object of the Act—a large increase in the settlement of Europeans, can only be attained by that provision. In the hills and waste lands the matter is simpler, estates having generally been split by the surveyors into manageable plots. But even there it will be necessary to fix an acreage price, and allow the purchaser to take as many as he requires, subject, of course, to fair provisions about clearance. All will depend upon the rules, and they must be framed in a spirit worthy of the magnificent policy they inaugurate.

Under the most favourable rules the native movement will not, at first, we imagine, be large; very small and valuable estates may be redeemed at once, but, as a rule, there is too much distrust of the duration of our Government. A native with a redeemed estate must be loyal in his own despite, and the loyalty is yet to be produced. Gradually, however, as the conviction that we are irremovable dawns on the native mind, the advantages of a freehold tenure will become plain. A jaghire is even now the highest object of native ambition. His estate may now be turned into a jaghire by his own act, and the price will not long stand in the way of the desired change. The movement of the Europeans will be more rapid. Everywhere where they are renting land for tea plantations, mines, coffee fields, and building purposes, they will be tempted to purchase the fee simple. On such estates there are no ryots with immemorial rights in the soil, and the proprietor, his rent once commuted, will be as secure as an English landlord, able to trust his subordinates, to travel, to plant, and to improve. He may do all these things now, but he does them at the risk of seeing the labours of years swept away in an hour by the rascality of a messenger to the Collector's office. The possibility exercises an effect on the imagination far greater than it deserves, and hundreds of profitable enterprises are postponed or laid aside from the insecurity of the tenure. We are no believers in colonization properly so called, but with an allodial tenure Bengal may yet be surrounded by a ring of hill estates, owned by a pushing, thriving, independent European yeomanry.—Friend of India.

THE NORTH-WEST BANK.

The last effort for a peaceful conclusion to the affairs of this bank has, we are informed, failed. Out of the 5,514 shares in the bank, holders representing 2,460, are pledged to a wind-up. Holders of 279 more shares are understood to be in favour of the same policy, while only 1,183 are resolutely opposed. These latter, however, residing in Calcutta, have, from the distribution of votes, an excessive influence, and prohibit the winding-up. The directors were requested to endeavour to modify the rule, so as to give proxies their fair weight, but the request was declined. Meanwhile, Colonel Davidson, a large shareholder, has commenced an action to compel a winding-up under Clause 86 of Bank Deed. All efforts at accommodation having failed, and the collection of votes from a clear two-thirds being a work of extreme difficulty and annoyance, Colonel Davidson's action, we are told, must proceed, and shareholders are recommended to subscribe towards his legal expenses.

We have never seen the deed, but under any deed it ought to be in the power of holders owning a clear majority of the shares to oust the directors, and take the direction of affairs into their own hands. The practice of splitting votes is as open to one side as the other. The directors once replaced by the nominees of the majority, business can soon be closed, or the bank for that matter left to the official assignee, who will very soon ascertain its true position.

Before, however, extreme steps are adopted, whether in the Supreme Court or the bank parlour, we would for the second time press on the minority the uselessness of the course they seem disposed to support. The bank is solvent, though the directors acknowledge heavy losses. If the shareholders wind up now, amicably, they will at least save all that remains to be saved. Under no circumstances can they hope to save more. No possible amount of bolstering short of a fresh contribution of capital, will enable the bank in its present condition, with its credit denounced at its own meetings, its shareholders clamouring for a wind-up, and its shares unsaleable, to do profitable business. Do the shareholders want to do unprofitable business? What do they expect? To make a fortune by a coup, or to recover credit without one, or what? If it is a dividend from ordinary business to which they look, they can withdraw their funds, and if they please open a new bank, with new connections and untarnished name. The present policy can result only in the ultimate closing of the bank by legal process, and a return of capital diminished by law expenses which the holders of the majority of shares do not wish to incur.—Friend of India.

SILK.

The spread of disease among vegetable substances seems to be a feature of the day. Within the last twenty years no less than three prime articles of food, the potato, the grape, and the olive, have been menaced with extinction by diseases for which science could find but an imperfect remedy. The potato perished to an extent that produced a famine. The olive has disappeared from places in the Mediterranean; and the vine disease, after threatening the prosperity of Portugal and Southern France, ruining the Canaries, and turning the vine dressers of Madeira into tobacco growers, is still but partially subdued. A wine report tells us that although the vintage has been large during the season, the grapes are tainted with the sulphur used to extirpate the disease. And now we are told, not for the first time, that the silk trade of Italy and Bengal is threatened with decay. In the former country the matter has for some time attracted attention, and Count Freschi, a silk grower of a noble house in Venice, is now travelling in Bengal to investigate the facts. At one of Messrs. Jardine Skinner's great flatures, "I found," says the Count in a letter to the Agricultural Society, "some of the characteristic symptoms which reveal in our country the prevailing epidemic, i. e., black spots, or rather scabs, upon the wings and legs of the insect whose tail is frequently clipped and black as if scorched; moreover, an abominous dung of loose green indigested matter, and a great dullness and tardiness of the worm in beginning its work; the very symptoms by which every common silkrearer in Europe observes this fatal diagnostic according to his sad experience." The theory advocated by this gentleman is that the insect is wearing out, and requires renewal from some wild indigenous stock, and it is to seek this that he is on his way to China. His facts, as far as degeneracy is concerned, are confirmed by a competent authority in the Indian Field.

Is it not—we write as observers and not naturalists—just possible that the disease is in the mulberry tree? A disease like that which struck the olive, but less fatal, might escape cultivators like our peasants wholly unaccustomed to observe, and would exert the most injurious effects upon the insect. The point is, at all events, worth inquiry if the society intend to collect a body of information. The matter, involving as it does the future of an entire trade, seems worth more exertion than a few letters to the managers of the great flatures. Every European in Bengal engaged in the production of silk should be invited personally and by name to lend the society the aid of his experience and inquiries. An investigation ending in a measure of practical relief would be worth thousands even to a single firm like Messrs. Jardine, Skinner, and Co.—Friend of India.

LORD CANNING AND THE BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HON. CHARLES JOHN VISCOUNT CANNING, Viceroy and Governor General of India, &c., &c., &c.,

MY LORD,—We, the President, Vice President, and Members of the British Indian Association, meeting at Calcutta, and other inhabitants of Bengal, avail ourselves of the occasion of your lordship's return to this metropolis to offer to your lordship our respectful and sincere congratulations on the termination of rebellion in the northern provinces of Hindostan.

It is nearly a twelvemonth since your lordship quitted the chief seat of Government for one nearer to the scene of disturbances, whence your lordship could more promptly direct the operations necessary to the tranquillization of the provinces in rebellion, and more minutely supervise and order the course of affairs relating to those provinces.

Calling to mind the state of those affairs at the time your lordship assumed in your own hands the government of the North Western provinces, and the guidance of operations against the rebels in the neighbouring country—a hundred and fifty thousand armed enemies in the field, the whole country of Oude in the virtual possession of the insurgents, the large district of Goruckpore on one side, and Rohilkund on the other, harbouring powerful bodies of rebels, a well-equipped enemy holding in force important positions towards the south, the extensive tract of territory on both sides of the chief pathway across Upper India just rescued from the possession of the rebels, and the minds of their population still in alarm and agitation—the result upon which we have taken the liberty of tendering our congratulations to your lordship, appears as striking from its magnitude as it is gratifying from its character, and reflects the highest credit upon those in whose hands lay the direction of active and administrative measures.

Nor can we forget that the success of those measures is, in no small degree, due to the soundness of the policy which, uniting firmness with discrimination, reassured the timid, fixed the wavering in their allegiance, and proved to the population of the revolted provinces, that resistance to constituted authority was certain ruin and destruction, while ready submission thereto ensured safety—a policy which, in fact, anticipated some of the most valued declarations of her Majesty's gracious proclamation.

By the community of Bengal, who have escaped the direct evils of insurrection, nothing has been felt so injurious to their own interests, as well as to the interests of the country at large, as the necessity to which the rebellion gave rise of your lordship's devoting a more than ordinary share of time and attention to the affairs of the revolted provinces, thus marring for the time the prospects of many administrative and other reforms, projects of which can be brought to maturity, and measures whereof carried into effect, only under your lordship's personal deliberation and guidance.

It is, therefore, that, while congratulating your lordship on the grand result achieved in the tranquillization of the northern provinces of Hindostan, so recently the seat of strife and rebellion, we view with pleasure your lordship's relief from the toils of administrative detail in connection with the government of the north-western Provinces, and hail your lordship's return to the metropolis, and resumption of all the functions of Viceroy and Governor General over these territories.—We have the honour to be, my lord, your lordship's most obedient and humble servants.

Signed by the President, Vice Presidents, and Members of the British Indian Association, and nearly fifteen hundred other inhabitants of Bengal.—7th March, 1859.

THE UNCOVENANTED SERVICE FAMILY PENSION FUND seems to have suffered less loss from the rebellion than similar funds and insurance societies in India. The capital of the fund has, according to the twenty-first report, increased in one year upwards of a lakh of rupees, after paying all liabilities. The Government have relieved the fund of the pensions due to the families of three subscribers who perished at Delhi and Agra. Mr. Finlaison, the actuary, has not yet given in his final report, but considers the state of the fund in April, 1856, prosperous.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—The Phoenix states that the work on the line of the Eastern Bengal Railway progresses fast. The ground at Sealdah, where the Calcutta terminus is to be, is cleared, the natives being paid two rupees for each tree cut down. As the earthworks have made but little progress, and the rainy season is but three months distant, we fear that by next cold season the line will not be open to Barrackpore. The surveys for the South Eastern and Mutlah Railway have commenced from Sealdah also. When both these railways are opened, Lall Bazaar will become a great thoroughfare, and may then, perhaps, be purged of its present impurities. Property on the Circular Road will have a new value, and the many building sites there will, it is hoped, be covered.

SIMLA.—A correspondent of the Englishman gives an account of the state and prosperity of Simla. The telegraph is being extended to the station. The approach of the Commander in Chief is fast filling it with residents, and raising the hopes of house proprietors. A club and family hotel have been opened. A brewery has been established under the superintendence of an experienced man from England, with a large supply of hops and good water. Simla beer is expected to rival that of Mussonrie and Kussowlee. Now that the new tariff has added to the already high price of English beer, and an impetus is given to country manufacture, why should not hops be grown largely in India, and the great drawback to a sale—that the country drink will not keep—somehow removed?

DUTY ON PAPER.—In an article on the Paper Duty, the Hurkaru speaks of paper as omitted from the list in the New Tariff, and of all, European and native, having to pay their quota to the English tax, as books are printed and letters written on taxed paper. The Indian duty on paper is doubled by the new Act, and the English paper which we use is not taxed till it is imported. A drawback is allowed on all books and paper when they leave England. No paper manufactured in India can enter into competition with that which is imported either in price or quality. India furnishes no linen rags, and her millions use a minimum of clothing.

DRAINAGE OF CALCUTTA.—The Engineers' Journal reviews the report of the Messrs. Rendel on the drainage of Calcutta. Mr. Clark's scheme provided that the sewerage should be discharged into the Salt Water Lake, on the very natural principle that water runs down, and not up a hill. The Messrs. Rendel recommend that the drainage be directed into the Hooghly. But during the four months of the rainy season the levels of the tops of the discharging sewers will be below low-water level, and consequently choked up, the stench of the Hooghly will become worse than that of the Thames, and the immense traffic of the canal, and the fact that the Municipal Commissioners have no control over it, prevent its being used to flush the sewers.

KILLING NO MURDER.—At the Calcutta sessions a Mr. Morgan, described by the judge as an Englishman and a gentleman, was tried on the charge of manslaughter. Mr. Morgan is a barrack-master, and found three natives sitting inside the ruins of the Cawnpore church in which were kept stores. They were smoking, contrary to strict order. On seeing him approach they ran off, but one of them, by name Poorun, was caught, and Morgan gave him a thump or two with his left hand, on which he fell. His spleen was ruptured, and he died half an hour after. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

TRANSIT DUTIES.—The Bombay Times draws attention to the Transit Duties, which, he says, are still levied in Nagpore under Mr. Plowden's administration, on the pernicious system inherited from the Bhonslays. He gives an instance. A quantity of cotton, lately purchased at Hinghghaut, the emporium of Nagpore, was conveyed down the river Wurdah into the Godavery, to be shipped at Coconada, on the East coast. The prime cost of the article was twenty-three rupees the bojah of 262 lbs. weight. On a distance of 120 miles the cotton was taxed seven times, and to the amount of a halfpenny a pound, or 25 per cent. on its prime cost. A Jogee on the road levies a fee of eight annas, called Dhurme, on every hundred bullock-loads. It is usually paid in advance to his representative at Hinghghaut or Chanda. Lord Stanley, in his financial speech, took credit to our Government for abolishing such duties. Here they exist, in a British province, in all their pristine glory.

THE HOLEE FESTIVAL IN CALCUTTA.—This native festival, which is a kind of saturnalia, has just terminated (March 22nd), and to the credit of the police be it stated, without those obscenities which formerly characterised the duration of this festivity. The police chowkedars quietly intimated to the vociferators of indecent songs that they rendered themselves liable to be taken up and fined, if they did not desist. This threat had the desired effect. As usual, a liberal effusion of Holee and Turmeric greeted all those who had occasion to pass Burra Bazar and Cotton Street, the head quarters of the Opium gamblers. These localities, at all times nuisances, were rendered still more so during the past three days.

DELHI, March 15.—This place is much altered. Fancy the prize agents have taken down the beautiful gilt cupola of the Sumum Boorj, which was sold by auction in bits and realized Rs. 80,000! The fortunate purchasers have made half as much again by scraping off the gold, which was thickly laid on, and not electro gilt, after the present fashion; the inside of the palace, now all the mud hovels, &c., are cleared away, looks very grand, and will no doubt make a healthy locale for the European garrison. There is a rumour here that Mr. Harvey, commissioner of Agra, is to come here, and Mr. Saunders goes to Rawul Pindee.

BENARES.—The new chok or square at Benares has been destroyed by fire. The cloth merchants and Bissaties have been heavy losers on the occasion. Cloths and valuables to a large amount, it is said, fell a prey to the devouring element. The chok was intersected with innumerable grass sheds, where the Bissaties and Kuprah Wallahs exposed their goods for sale, and the wonder is, that with the proverbial native apathy and carelessness, the accident did not occur earlier. It has not been ascertained how the fire originated; but, no doubt, the police, as usual, will report that some old hag, half beside herself, who they will single out for the magistrate's wrath, was preparing some dish in oil, when, throwing a handful of water on the preparation, she sent the hot oil boiling to the roof, and thus caused the fearful destruction which has brought so much sorrow and woe to so many at home in the sacred town of Kasee.—New Times.

TUMLOOK, March 25.—The quantity of salt estimated to have been manufactured in the Tumlook Salt Agency up to the 21st was upwards of five lacs. The crop, which fell off considerably after the late rains, has begun to improve, and had it not been for the bursting of the crop dam over the Roy Khalee River, and the prohibition to reconstruct it, the improvement certainly would have been greater. It is generally believed the manufacture will be very seriously affected if the bund be not allowed to be reconstructed.

THE EX-KING OF OUDE.—The Englishman says, Government have arranged that the estates of the ex-King of Oude shall be managed by the Lieutenant Governor of the North Western Provinces, and the proceeds held in trust till further orders.

LORD HARRIS, his private secretary, and Dr. Sanderson, have arrived in Calcutta in H.M.'s steamer Sydney.

Mr. STAUNTON, of the Military Auditor General's office, is, it is said, going to retire on a superannuation pension. His application has been sent in to the Local Government with a recommendation by Col. Champagnie. It appears that Mr. Staunton has served the Government for upwards of forty years, a very considerable period, and has all along given great satisfaction in the discharge of his duties. It is not known who is likely to be his successor. The arrangement will be made after Government has sanctioned the pension.

BURDWAN.—One of the Ranees of Burdwan is excavating a large and beautiful tank with a pucka ghaut and a roof at the railway station of Sastee-gur. She will also rear up a garden and establish shops at the spot for the convenience and refreshment of the railway passengers arriving there. The station is six or seven miles distant from Burdwan, and is situated in the midst of paddy fields. The travellers will, no doubt, feel grateful to the benevolent Ranees for these charitable works, the absence of which they have felt since the opening of the railway line in the lower provinces.—Phoenix, March 31.

HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION.—The third show of flowers, fruits and vegetables for the present year came off at the Town-hall, Calcutta, on the 31st March. Though wanting the strains of a band to enliven the affair, it appeared well attended. The display of flowers, with the contributions from the public gardens, gave the hall quite a gay and attractive appearance. The show of fruits has decidedly fallen off this year, though there were some fair sized peaches and mangoes, and a few very small strawberries. Very few good vegetables appeared, and are hardly to be expected so late in the season. The show, however, was a good one on the whole.

SEALKOTE, March 23.—General Windham arrived here under a salute of thirteen guns on Saturday, the 19th. On the morning of the 22nd all the troops paraded in review order for the General's inspection. At 6.30 A.M. on the 19th the troops were drawn up in a general line, which, after being inspected, broke into open column of troops and companies right in front marched past the saluting point in quick time; after which the brigade performed several evolutions, such as the line advancing covered by cavalry and artillery marching in echelon of wings; forming squares on the two centre sections of wings; firing in square, and a great many other manœuvres, too numerous to enumerate here. Suffice it to say that everything passed off to the entire satisfaction of the General, and after the line marched in review to the "General salute" the troops were dismissed to their quarters.—Mofussilite.

THE IMPERIAL CITY.—A letter from Delhi, dated the 20th March, states that the Hoolie holidays had passed off quietly. The Hindoos are now in the ascendancy. Formerly the bye streets only were the scenes of their orgies, but on this occasion the Chandney Chowk was crowded like a fair, hundreds of Sikhs adding their quota to the noisy display. It is at last settled that the Mahomedans shall not be re-admitted to the city, in spite of the order to that effect passed some time back by the Chief Commissioner of the Punjab. The military authorities were particularly adverse to it, as well as all officials. "Passes" are to be issued for those Mahomedans who wish to visit the city, and for the present it seems a prudent arrangement. The engineers are at work again destroying the useless ruins about the city. It is time something was done to open up new streets and render the place fit for Europeans to live in. Storms of rain, hail, thunder and lightning have prevailed at every change of the moon for some time back. The crops have been much injured, and scarcity, if not famine, is talked of. The races went off very well, though the ground was rather soft for the hurdle race; the 88th Connaught Rangers were the principal winners.

AN ARMENIAN CLUB.—The rage for clubs is on the increase. The Phoenix says the Armenian community of Calcutta have determined on starting one, and the projectors have already paid the entrance fee, 250 rupees.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—On Saturday, the 26th March, there was a meeting at Calcutta at the Chamber of Commerce rooms to protest against the new tariff and to advocate changes in the constitution of the Legislative Council. The resolutions read at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on the 17th were proposed seriatim, and, with a slight alteration of two of them, were adopted. An additional resolution was carried, approving of Lord Stanley's plan of selling the unreclaimed land in India to Europeans. Confidence appears, to a certain extent, to have been restored among the moneyed classes, if reliance may be placed in a report that has reached the Englishman, that between a lakh and a half and two lakhs have, for several days past, been paid daily into the treasury towards the 4 per cent transfer loan. However this may be, it is pretty certain that the native bankers and brokers are in favour of loans being raised in the English money market. In a letter to the President of the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce, commenting on the financial policy of Government, they say, with reference to the new  $\frac{5}{2}$  per cent. loan:—"Of this further financial measure as set forth in the notification we do not approve. It will depreciate the securities of all the previous loans to an amount much greater than all the money Government is likely to receive. We do not think that the money required will be subscribed in this country, and in order to avert the loss likely to follow from a persistence in the course indicated by Government, we trust that the Chamber of Commerce will follow up this matter until they influence a strong party at home to induce Parliament to interfere, and to authorize loans to be opened at home for all the money that may be required for the use of the Indian Government."

ALLAHABAD, March 20.—A curious case of extortion was punished the other day. A chuprassee in the employ of the railway was the delinquent. Being posted at one of the railway crossings a few miles out of the station, this respectable individual bethought himself of establishing a tollbar on his own account. Hackery men travelling on the Grand Trunk Road had to pay for permission to pass the crossing, and were of course informed that the toll was levied by order of Government. I should think they were beautifully adapted to the peculiarities of each case, being, however, fixed on the general principle of taking as much as could be squeezed out of each man. The imposition appears to have been practised for a long time; and was at last accidentally detected by a gentleman of this station, who happened to drive out on the Cawnpore road, and on arriving at the crossing, found a number of carts detained, pending the result of an altercation between the toll-keeper and the hackery men. He seized the man in the very act; took from his hand the pice which he had just robbed; and reported him to the railway authorities, by whom he was very properly sent before the magistrate. I understand the man has since been imprisoned.—Delhi Gazette.

GWALIOR.—Scindiah's newly-raised Sebundies have followed the example of their predecessors. On the 27th February, the Bhilsa troops went to Anotia with four guns to attack Dil Mahomed, and during the night six hundred of the Gwalior Sebundies went into the Bhilsa camp, announcing themselves as a British force. They then poured in several volleys, captured and killed about two hundred of the Bhilsa troops, burnt the camp, and carried off four unserviceable guns.—Madras Spectator.

VERY SHABBY.—The Director of Public Instruction proposed and Government of Bengal recommended to the Government of India, that the professors of government colleges should be allowed to retire on pensions after a service of fifteen and twenty-two years. The Lieut. Governor observed that this privilege is conceded to headmasters of small Zillah schools, and, if denied to the professors, will necessarily place them in a position inferior to that of the headmasters, who are otherwise considered scarcely equal to them in point of rank. Lord Canning has declined the proposal.

A PLEASANT STATE OF THINGS.—The Engineers' Journal notices the alarm that prevails all over the railway works along the Rajmahal district, and fears a total stoppage of the works. The whole line of country from Calcutta to Dinapore via the Sonthal hills is destitute of troops, with the exception of the hill rangers at Bhagulpore. A Mahomedan Zemindar recently threatened a Government engineer who was engaged on a new road, that if he made it go through his property he would be attacked by laticals. On applying for protection to the magistrate of Beerbhoom, the engineer was told that the law could do nothing, and that if he should take the law into his own hands he might be indicted for murder in the Supreme Court.

MILD PERSUASION.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette states that the mode in which the disarming act has been carried out at Allahabad has given rise to much discontent. The disarming has been entrusted to a Mahomedan official, who is said to flog persons who have really no arms, with a view to obtain bribes. The bunyas and peaceful classes are harassed, numbers of shops are shut, while their owners are compelled to attend at the Thannahs on the plea of possessing arms, and the disaffected and really turbulent escape.

ASSAM.—On the 27th of February last a small band of fifty sailors, with two companies of the Assam light infantry, had an encounter some thirty miles from Debrooghurh with the hill tribe of the Abors, in which, as usual, the Europeans had to do all the work. They took two offending villages, and burnt them down. Twenty of our men were wounded by the natives' arrows, which are barbed and poisoned; one died from the wound of an arrow. The Abors had brought this chastisement on themselves by a series of attacks on a tribe that is friendly with us.

RAMPORE BAULEA, April 2.—On the second day of the Hooli festival as Captain Warner and Mr. Eckford, deputy magistrate, were driving through the town, they met a crowd of bazaar people amusing themselves in the orthodox Hooli manner. The crowd treated them to some red powder, and as the gentlemen were inclined to take it as a joke, they were emboldened by the unlooked for forbearance to resort to stones, and finally pelted the pair. The Darogah has been ordered to inquire into the matter, but no one has been as yet traced or found out as a culprit.

BEHAR.—A letter from Gya states that the Behar district is all quiet, and crime decreasing. The Indian naval brigade is to be relieved by two companies from one of the regiments in Dinapore, and the men will then proceed to join their respective ships. The crops of wheat, rice, &c., have been greatly damaged by the late hail and rain. Doctors Mouat and Mackinnon are there visiting the jail and hospital.

DR. HALLEUR, the Professor of Philosophy, Astronomy, &c., at the Presidency College, is obliged to return to Europe on account of his health. He has obtained twelve months' leave, and he was to start by the Hindustan, the extra steamer, in April. Two gentlemen are spoken of as likely to succeed him—Major Dundas and Mr. Rees of the Presidency College.

CALPEE.—No. 6 field battery royal artillery is to stand fast for the present, letters having been received from Capt. Ternan, Deputy Commissioner of Jaloun, only two hours before the march was to commence, requesting that no European troops should be allowed to leave Calpee at present, on account of information having been received to the effect that the Rao Sahib, Tantia Topee and Co. were very likely to enter the district.—Delhi Gazette.

ROVING BANDS.—A letter from the steamer Koladyne, dated off Dinapore, the 18th March, states that a few miles above Chupra they saw a lot of rebels, horse and foot, who had been plundering, but prudently made themselves scarce on the approach of the steamer. That they should be bold enough to come so close to a station proves the insecure state of the country. A Mr. Wyyill and others are mentioned as having been murdered only three miles from Allahabad.

NOTES AND QUERIES.—The Ulwar disturbances are at an end, and the evil rumours from Nepal are contradicted. The question has been asked, Where do the rebels draw their supplies of guns from? they seem always to have them at hand. The fines levied on villages who misbehaved during the rebellion are being collected. On the late Colonel Skinner's estate the fines amount to one lakh and thirty-three thousand, which has to be collected or made good by the owners, or risk the loss of the estate by sale in satisfaction. This seems a curious way of rewarding the loyal. Simla is filling rapidly for the season, and house-owners will probably have a rich harvest. The weather has taken a sudden turn, and the hot season having set in, punkahs are not ready; moreover, coolies are all but unattainable, being in such demand in the Government departments.—Englishman, April 7.

AGRA.—Government has purchased the printing materials belonging to the late Secundra press at a cost of Company's Rs. 32,478, for the use of the authorities of the North Western Provinces.

THE DELHI MAHOMEDANS.—A letter from Delhi, dated the 28th of March, states that the discovery of some intrigue has led to a report that all Mahomedans were to be sent out of the city on the 1st April, or account for themselves as to who or what they are. This is not likely, but some sort of supervision or even espionage is necessary to counteract the native cunning and talent for intrigue. The pass system, though a check, is not effectual, as every European grants a pass for his servant who goes in and out as he pleases by transferring his master's chupras or crest. A party of police recently got scent of some treasure buried in a Moofsid's house, and thinking they had the best right to it, dug it up, and divided the proceeds. As usual they quarrelled over the division, and the aggrieved party gave information to some of the civil officers. The parties to the affair are in custody, but it naturally occurs to ask if this is the only instance found out? How many have been hidden? The chowkedars of Delhi are a thriving set.—Englishman.

COLLISION IN THE HOOGLY.—The following meagre particulars of the loss of the Cape of Good Hope appear in the columns of a contemporary. The Nemesis was first seen by the Cape of Good Hope when off Fultah, the former coming down Roypore reach. On nearing her the Cape of Good Hope put her helm hard a-port, but whether the Nemesis did the same is not known; at any rate, it was not in time to clear her, for the Cape of Good Hope was struck by the main hatch, and cut in two at once, the fore part of her sinking, whilst, fortunately, the after part floated with the officers and others, and allowed the boats of the Nemesis, aided by her own, to save the treasure and mails, with the exception of one bag of letters. There were about 145 souls on board in all, but it is almost impossible to ascertain accurately how many were lost amongst the native passengers from Akyab, Maulmain, and Rangoon. One of the crew was killed and one wounded. The lawyers will probably be the greatest gainers by the accident, and all particulars will doubtless be detailed in the supreme court ere long.—Englishman.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, April 8).—Since the departure of the Mail of 22nd ult. the market has remained very languid, and very moderate transactions have taken place beyond the immediate requirements for the supply of engaged tonnage. In Indigo little has been done, the season being out. Rau Silk.—Within the last few days the demand has revived, but transactions have been limited in consequence of high prices. Corals have been in fair request for Great Britain, at well maintained prices. Sugar has not been in general demand, and has remained unchanged in price. Saltpetre, fine sorts, has lately engaged inquiry, and none in the market offering. The demand is principally for Great Britain. Rice.—Table in moderate operation, Ballum in good request for Mauritius and other places. Lined has been in better inquiry for Great Britain and America. Jute has been rather quiet within the last few days, but good qualities have comparatively commanded higher rates, being rather scarce. Hides have remained steady. All other staples have been in limited operation.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, April 8).—After the departure of the last mail the market continued very buoyant, and stoppage of deliveries of goods sold previous to their arrival, consequent on the increase of import duty, having caused a great demand in the market, prices realised by the second hand dealers have been exorbitantly high; but the question as to the increased duty having been decided—one half being borne by the buyer and the other half by the seller—deliveries have again been resumed, but owing to some arrivals, the market has gone down a little. Mule Twist has been in moderate operation; the market has recovered to its former position. Grey Shirtings, although in good demand, are rather lower in price. Grey Madapolans have obtained better prices. Grey Cambrics maintain former prices. Grey Jacquets are slightly higher in price. Grey Mulls are rather lower in price. White Shirtings are slightly higher in price. White Madapolans are out of fashion. White Cambrics in good demand at well-maintained prices. White Jacquets fine are in good request at better prices, lower are less in demand. White Mulls, of all sorts, are in good demand. Lapets, Spots, &c., are in active inquiry at advanced prices. Book Muslins are in improved demand. Woollen market still dull. Copper in limited request. Iron has just engaged a little inquiry for the Upper Provinces. Spelter has improved in demand and price.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A MONSTER MEETING of the Mussulman and Hindoo inhabitants of Madras was held on Saturday, the 9th April. Sree Russia Katha Charriar, high priest of the Hindoos and warden of the Conjevaram Pagoda, was in the chair, and it is supposed that between six and seven thousand persons were present. The object of the meeting was to adopt a memorial to the Secretary of State for India, against interference by Government with the religions of the people of the country. It is stated that between five and six thousand signatures were affixed to the document at the meeting. The last paragraph of the memorial, which is as follows, sums up the wishes of those who signed it:—

"Your memorialists earnestly request that the system of grants in aid may be abolished, and the sums at present disbursed through that channel devoted to the establishment of Government provincial schools; by means of which a far better education can be afforded to the people than has been, or can be in the institutions of the missionary societies in which the larger portion of the grants is swallowed up, to the intense dissatisfaction of the people; this appropriation having already evinced its natural consequences, —as foreseen by the hon. Mr. P. Grant, in his minute dated the 12th October, 1854,—in the unhappy events in the North-West Provinces:—that Government officers may be restrained from taking official part in missionary proceedings on public anniversaries and meetings; and that the neutrality promised by your lordship and solemnly confirmed by her Majesty the Queen, may be undeviatingly observed and adhered to. By which course of just and impartial policy the people of India will most assuredly be won over to prize the English Government beyond that of any of its predecessors, and in due time will be auspiciously and certainly realised the wise and memorable observation of her Majesty at the close of her gracious proclamation. 'IN THE PROSPERITY OF THE PEOPLE WILL BE OUR STRENGTH, IN THEIR CONTENTMENT OUR SECURITY, AND IN THEIR GRATITUDE OUR BEST REWARD.'"

COLONEL FABER has resigned his appointment of Chief Engineer in the Department of Public Works, and has been succeeded by Col. J. T. Bell; and it is said that His Excellency the Governor intends to abolish the office of Covenanted Deputy Collector of Sea Customs, and to confer on an uncovenanted official at half the present salary. The change has not yet been made, but it is evidently in contemplation, for the present appraiser to the department has been appointed acting deputy collector.

A WARNING.—On the 7th of September, 1858, the Madras Government informed the Secretary of State for India that there had been a robbery in the office of the Nazir of the Masulipatam Court, and that Mr. Cotton, the acting civil judge, was considered responsible, owing to his neglect of the standing orders of the Sudder Court, for the proper custody of valuables committed to his charge. Mr. Cotton had been ordered to refund Rs. 2,670-2-6. Lord Stanley, on the 12th of January, replied as follows:—"I approve of your having directed the Court of Sudder Adawlut to issue a circular order conveying a warning that all officers who may not conform to the plain instructions prescribed for the proper security of money and other valuables deposited in their Courts, will be left to bear the loss which may arise from their neglect."

THE EXPLORING PARTY consisting of four officers, Dr. Copper, Dr. Macpherson, Dr. C. J. Smith and Captain Shakespear, who ascended the Galee-Purwarthum, (i. e. Hill of Wind) the highest portion of the Vindyan range, returned in good health. It is understood that they were much pleased with the expedition into the unsurveyed territory, and that they have reported favourably as to the practicability of forming a sanatorium for European troops.

ICE.—The superintendent of the Madras ice-house is under the necessity, according to the Madras Times, of informing the public that the demand for ice is falling off. He calls for an increased demand for the article to furnish means for building additional storing room, so that the supply may no longer be dependent on the safety of each cargo. The expense of a cargo of ice from America has lately doubled. The freight of one cargo alone amounts to about eleven thousand rupees.

THE "INDIAN STATESMAN."—The Madras papers advertise the issue of a new weekly newspaper, to be called the Indian Statesman. It is to be conducted by the former editor of the Athenaeum upon "independent principles," and will advocate "the application to India of those principles of publicity, honesty, and toleration in politics, which not only give a guarantee for the efficiency and responsibility of a Government, but secure for it the confidence, respect and affection of the people."—Mr. John Bruce Norton is to write for the journal.

LORD HARRIS AND THE CHURCH SOCIETIES.—The Madras Spectator informs us that a deputation of the two great Church societies, for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, headed by the Archdeacon, presented an address to Lord Harris previous to his departure. They say:—"We desire both as individuals and as committees to acknowledge the interest taken by you in the progress of sound religious truth amongst the natives of India, and we know that you are not less interested in the efforts which have been made to supply the spiritual wants of those Europeans and East Indians for whom the Government were not able to make provision. We recognise with pleasure your exertions to advance by various measures the temporal welfare of the people of this land, the operation of which will, we trust, indirectly aid the cause of Christianity by creating a favourable impression of the religion of those by whom these measures were originated and carried into effect."

THE PIER.—The Madras Times says it has been finally determined to erect a new pier at Madras, immediately opposite the centre of the Custom House. The screw piles are to be of solid wrought iron, and of such lengths as to admit of their being embedded in the sand to the depth of eleven, thirteen, and fifteen feet respectively, so that the platform shall be fifteen feet above high-water mark throughout the whole length of the pier. Four lines of railway are to run along the pier, with space for foot passengers. The pier-head is to be furnished with six fixed and eight movable cranes, and with thirteen screw moorings.

A NATIVE A. D. C.—The Hon. the Governor in Council has been pleased to authorise the appointment of a native officer to be designated "Native Aide-de-Camp to the Honorable the Governor."

Retirement on Half-pay.

Fort William, April 5.—No. 458.—With reference to G. G. Order, No. 193, dated October 5, 1836, H. E. the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the following Military Letter from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 58, dated Feb. 15, be published.

* 2nd drag. gds; 6th ditto; 7th ditto; 7th hussars.

Military, No. 58.

TO H. E. THE RIGHT HON. THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

My LORD.—Great difficulty having been experienced in dealing with claims advanced by officers of short periods of service to retire on half-pay under the clause of the Retiring Regulations established by the late Court of Directors of the East India Company, by their despatch to the Governor General of India, dated May 11, 1836, No. 3, as quoted in the margin,* I have resolved, with the concurrence of the Council of India, to recommend to Her Majesty the substitution of the following modified rule, which Her Majesty has been pleased to sanction:—

"Officers on producing the prescribed medical certificates, countersigned by the commanding officers, that they are compelled to quit the service by wounds received in action or by ill health, contracted on active service, or on detachment outpost, or any military duty in notoriously unhealthy localities, after three years' service in India are permitted to retire on the halfpay of their rank."—I have, &c.,

Action before Kurai.

No. 392 of 1858.

From the Maj. gen. comdg. M. D. A., to the Adj. genl. of the Army.

Hd. Qrs., M. D. A.,
Camp Kurai, 26th Oct., 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you, for the information of his lordship the C. in C., that having arrived at Lullatpore on the 22nd inst., with force as per margin,* information was brought to me that the enemy had been checked at the Syrus Ghat of the Betwah, and had rapidly returned to Jackloon. This place is about eight miles south-west of Lullatpore.

2. Without guns or wheeled carriage, the rebels were able to move through the mountains and dense jungle which comprises the country from Jackloon, proceeding via Pauly, Narhut Balabert, to Kunja. I was, therefore, compelled to move by Malthon and Doojee by forced marches.

3. On the night of the 24th I heard that the enemy was at Kimlasa. Knowing that he would move during the night, I moved on Kurai at two P.M., and at dawn on the 25th we discerned the rebel army crossing our front just beyond Kurai.

4. As I was desirous of bringing my infantry into action, I had ordered their march one hour before the cav.; the consequence was, that the cav. had only just come up in the rear when the inf., under Col. Lockhart, having cut the enemy's line of march in half, had wheeled to the right, and part advanced skirmishing. The inf. had already dispersed the enemy, who were not formed up in order of battle when the cav. arrived.

5. Their duty then consisted in rapid pursuit; the ground was of so broken a nature that this could not be easily effected.

The cav. accordingly, in three different directions, pursued different bodies of the enemy.

Col. Curtis, on the right, did not come up with any body of the enemy, who were on his side principally cav., and was unable to advance very far, as the enemy threatened our long line of baggage. Capt. Sir W. Gordon commanding a body consisting of the 17th lancers, and 3rd l. c. under Capt. Oldfield, pursued for about six miles, and as usual did his duty very efficiently and well, cutting up numbers of the enemy.

Capt. Mayne, with about sixty of his horse, did thorough good service, pursuing the enemy for nine or ten miles, and killing about a hundred and fifty.

6. The inf. followed about five miles, clearing villages of the enemy, and occasioning them some loss; the result of the day's proceedings was the cutting off, and driving to the north, about three thousand of the rebels, of which about three hundred and fifty were killed: one half of the remainder threw down their arms, and the remainder were so spread over the face of the country as to make it a matter of difficulty to again re-assemble.

7. The main body, under Tantia Topce, passed Kurai about two or three hours before our arrival, on march to the south.

8. It will be seen by the map that the enemy on the night of the 23rd were eight miles nearer Kurai by the jungle route; and as this could not be traversed by the force under my command, so the enemy were, in fact, at least twenty miles nearer to Kurai than ourselves.

9. The inf. by one o'clock P.M. on the 25th had traversed sixty-two miles in sixty hours, twelve miles of which was over broken ground, skirmishing with the enemy.

I solicit to bring this fact prominently to the notice of his lordship, as a proof of the excellent spirit and devotion of the soldiery.

J. MICHEL, Maj. Gen., Com. Malwa Div.

* 1st Column.—Fighting men: 60, and 4 guns 3rd trp. R.H.A.; 118 H.M.'s 8th lancers, 90 H.M.'s 17th lancers, 93 1st By. lancers, 88 3rd By. lt. cav., 20 H.M.'s 95th regt., 160 Mayne's horse; total 629.

2nd Column.—50 3rd By. lt. cav., 60 and 4 guns of 2-6 B.A., 210 of H.M.'s 71st hldrs. lt. inf., 320 of H.M.'s 92nd Highlanders, 650 of 19th regt., N.I.; total, 1,190. Grand total, 1,819.

Colonel Somerset at Tancha.

No. 342 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council directs the publication of the following letter from Maj. gen. J. Michel, c.b., comdg. the Malwa F.F., submitting report of an action fought with the rebel force under the Rao Sahib and Tantia Topce, under the command of Col. Somerset.

3. H.E. in Council considers these operations to reflect the highest credit upon Col. Somerset and the officers and men under his command.

From Maj. gen. Michel, c.b., Comdg. M.D.A., to the Adj. gen. Bengal army.

Chupra, Jan. 12, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward report of an action fought with the rebel force under the Rao Sahib and Tantia Topce by a small force, under the command of Col. Somerset, who is in command of a field brig.

2. In addition to Col. Somerset's report, I have deemed it right for H.E.'s information to forward a sketch route of the marches made by this small column in pursuit, whereby it will appear that 170 miles were traversed in six days.

3. When the smallness of the force is taken into consideration, and the speed of the pursuit, in which the soldiers had neither tents, baggage, or European supplies, except for the first day or two, I trust his lordship the C. in C. will deem that Col. Somerset and his column have well done their duty, and have merited his lordship's approval.

J. MICHEL, Maj. gen., comdg. M.D.A.

From Col. C. H. Somerset, Comdg. Field brig., to the Assist. adj. gen., Malwa div.

Camp Chupra Burode, 1st Jan., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report that yesterday, soon after daylight, the rebel force under Tantia Topce was overtaken near this place by the force as per margin,* under my command.

2. I had marched from a village called Surthul, ten miles off, at half past eleven o'clock the previous night, having sent on spies to watch the enemy. My spies not returning, I waited four miles off until near daylight, fearing to disturb the enemy, "who might move or disperse" in the dark, and I did not meet my spies until near this place, and the enemy had then moved off his ground.

3. I pursued him at a rapid trot for about seven miles, when I overtook three large bodies of cav., estimated at about 3,000, drawn up to receive me just beyond a village called Tancha.

4. The H.A. were immediately brought into action, and their fire was so rapid and effective, that though the rebels endeavoured to get up a charge before the infantry on camels could be formed up and dismounted they could not effect it, but retired pursued by my force, the H.A. galloping to the front for some distance "with the cavalry," when the squad. of lancers took up the pursuit.

5. I endeavoured with the H.A. and camel corps to follow the track of the enemy for about five miles further, but found they had so dispersed that it was not possible to do so. My force being too small to be divided, I gave up the pursuit after about twelve miles, and fell back to this place upon my supports, 300 9th N.I., which had not then come up, however, but arrived later in the afternoon.

6. The force with me had marched fifty miles between twelve o'clock P.M. of the 30th Dec., and six o'clock A.M. of the 1st Jan. (thirty hours), during which time they had not rested more than two hours at one time, having made forced marches for five days without tents or European supplies.

7. I heard on my return to this place that five elephants had been abandoned by the enemy when pursued at a village in the neighbourhood, one of which has been brought in this morning to camp, but the rest are supposed to have been carried off since.

8. Not having a sufficient force of cav. I am unable to scour the country as I should wish in search of the scattered rebel force, which I much regret, as hundreds of them might be found and cut up.

9. The loss of the enemy, owing to his rapid flight, was not severe, though numbers of men and horses, "among the former of which was a native sirdar," were seen to fall from the artillery fire, and some were killed in a charge of the squad. 17th lancers.

10. My own loss was one private 17th lancers, wounded.

11. I trust that I may be allowed to bring to the notice of the maj. gen. comdg. the div. the cheerfulness of the troops composing this force under considerable fatigue and some hardship, as well as the zealous manner in which I have been supported by the officers of the force on all occasions, and particularly in this rapid and trying pursuit, the results of which are only not greater because the enemy would not stay to measure his strength with me, and my numbers were insufficient to cope with him "when disposed."

12. The officers comdg. the different arms to whom my thanks are especially due, are—Maj. White, comdg. squad. 17th lancers; Capt. Paget, comdg. D trp. R.H.A.; Capt. Bethune, two comps. 92nd highlanders; Capt. Baugh, 9th N.I.; Lieut. C. Payne Barra, comdg. camel corps.

13. To my staff officer, Lieut. Wood, 17th lancers, I am particularly indebted for his zealous and unceasing exertions on every occasion in the various duties imposed upon him in the absence of any other staff officer.

C. H. SOMERSET, Col., Comdg. F. brig.

Colonel Holmes at Seekun.

No. 345 of 1858.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the adj. gen. of the army, No. 433, of the 2nd inst., forwarding one from Maj. gen. J. Michel, c.b., comdg. the Malwa F.F., with its enclosure from Lieut. col. Holmes, 12th By. N.I., reporting the complete surprise and defeat of the rebel force under Tantia Topce and other chiefs, after long and harassing marches.

2. H.E. in Council, while concurring with the C. in C. in the approbation expressed by his lordship, highly commends the conduct of Lieut. col. Holmes and the gallant force under his command.

From the Adj. gen. of the Army to the Sec. to the Govt. of India, Mily. depart.

Sir,—I have the honour, by direction of the C. in C., to forward a letter in original from Maj. gen. J. Michel, c.b., comdg. the Malwa F.F., No. 242, of the 10th ult., with its enclosure from Lieut. col. J. Holmes, of the 12th By. N.I., reporting the complete surprise and defeat of the rebel force under Tantia Topce and other chiefs, after long and harassing marches.

2. I am to request that in submitting these papers to H.E. the right hon. the Gov. gen. in Council, you will be good enough to express Lord Clyde's entire approval of the conduct of Lieut. col. Holmes and the gallant force under his command.

W. MAYHEW, Lieut. col.,

Adj. gen. of the army.

Adj. gen.'s Office, Allahabad,
2nd March, 1859.

From Maj. gen. J. Michel, c.b., comdg. M.D.A. and R.F.F., to the Adj. gen. of the Army, Bengal.

Camp Nusseerabad, 10th Feb., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward a report of operations and surprise of the rebel forces by a small column under the command of Lieut. col. Holmes, 12th regt. By. N.I.

Its operations extended over upwards of thirteen days, in which the troops under his command, mostly all infantry, accomplished a distance of 290 miles.

I trust his lordship the C. in C. will consider the march and surprise of the enemy highly creditable to the officers commanding, and the zeal and endurance of the troops worthy of all praise.

J. MICHEL, Maj. gen.,
Comdg. M.D.A. and R.F.F.

From Lieut. col. J. Holmes, 12th regt. By.N.I., Comdg. Nusseerabad F. detach., to the Assist.
adj. gen. Rajpootana F.F.

Camp Seekun, 22nd Jan., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honor to report for the information of the brigdr. comdg. Rajpootana F.F., the operations of the column under my command (strength as per margin),* from the date of its quitting Nusseerabad up to its surprisal of the rebel camp yesterday morning at this place.

At the requisition of Brigdr. gen. Lawrence, Gov. gen.'s agent for the states of Rajpootana, for a force to move from Nusseerabad for the protection of Tonk and Jeypore, I marched on the morning of the 8th inst. to Burra Samba; on the 9th to Diggee; on the 10th to Jurrana; and there receiving information that the Nawab of Tonk was in fear of the rebels moving upon his capital, they being at Allyghur Rampoor, distant twenty-four miles, I marched on the 11th through Tonk to Bambour, thereby effectually covering Tonk. At Tonk I received information of the rebels being on the march from Blugwuntguri towards Jeypore. On the morning of the 12th I marched through Nuttara to Jellae, with the view of intercepting the rebels; on arrival at Jellae, at half-past three p.m., I found that they had moved on the Chaksoo, and that Brigdr. Stowers, comdg. the Agra force, had passed through the place in pursuit. I immediately wrote to the brigdr., who was encamped eight or ten miles in advance, offering to co-operate with him. With this view I moved on again at nine p.m., and marching through the brigdr.'s camp (with whom I had an interview), I moved on the Chaksoo with the hope of aiding in surprising the rebel camp.

At Chaksoo I arrived at daylight on the 13th, having completed a march of forty-four miles in twenty-four hours, but too late to effect the object contemplated, as the rebels had moved off.

I remained at Chaksoo for five hours, and it being arranged by the brigdr. that the two columns should pursue by different routes, I marched to Gutwasse, distant six miles (in direction of Lalsoot), and there encamped for the night; on the 14th I marched to Lalsoot. On the morning of the 15th, having received the permission of Brigdr. Honner, comdg. the Rajpootana force (whose force had marched into Lalsoot that morning), to move on the direction of Jeypore, I marched at four p.m. to Tonga, arriving there at one a.m. of the 16th. At four p.m. I marched for Jeypore, encamped for six hours on the road, and reached it at eleven a.m. On the 17th information of the rebels' movements was received, that they were at or about Byrat. At Jeypore my force was augmented by 172 sowars of Mayne's horse (new levy), under the command of Lieut. Hawkins, the adj. of that corps.

On the 18th I marched to Chowmool; on the 19th to Koojrowlee; and on the 20th, at one a.m., to Kundeeluh. Here receiving information of the rebels having marched to this place (Seekun), distant twenty-eight miles, I moved again at six p.m. with the hope of surprising the rebels in their encampment.

The force reached the vicinity of the rebel encampment at half-past four a.m. of the 21st inst., having marched fifty-four miles in twenty-four hours. The surprise was all but complete, the rebels had no intimation of our approach until we drove in their outlying pickets, who, galloping off, conveyed the first intimation of our being upon them.

The confusion in their camp was very great, their horsemen galloped off in every direction, without attempting to make a stand, and numbers without even saddling their horses.

Joined at Jeypore.

I immediately moved to the attack, sending four guns of Capt. Shekleton's batty. at a gallop to the front with all my cav.

The inf., H.M.'s 83rd regt., under Lieut. col. Austen, and 12th regt. By. N.I., under Lieut. Mecredy, formed in line, moving in support.

The art. got quickly into action, sending shot and shell into the fugitives, but the moonlight did not admit of much execution being done.

The cav., Sikh horse, under Lieut. Newall, 2nd grendr. regt., assist. to the Gov. gen.'s agent, and Mayne's horse, under Lieut. and adj. Hawkins, these charged and thoroughly completed the rout. They continued the chase for some hours, but unluckily missed the road which the chiefs Tautia Topee, Rao Sahib, and Prince Feroze Shah took.

Our cav. killed upwards of fifty of the rebels and brought in fifty-one prisoners, besides a number of women. A greater number of the rebels might have been slain, but all those who had thrown away their arms, were, in the feeling of mercy, spared, and the anxiety to capture the leaders did not admit of time being lost in securing worthless followers.

The amount of arms (swords, matchlocks, Government muskets, and pistols,) is very great.

The amount of the rebels who were encamped here is stated to have been upwards of 2,500, but I think the number greatly exaggerated, and as our attack must have greatly dispersed and disorganised the body, I trust the means of the chiefs to harass the country may be considerably diminished.

The force has marched upwards of 200 miles in thirteen days, without a single day's halt.

The conduct of the troops has been most admirable, and nothing can be more commendable than the anxiety shown by officers and men to overtake the enemy.

From Lieut. col. Austen, comdg. H.M.'s 83rd regt.; Capt. Shekleton, comdg. No. 8 batty.; Lieut. Mecredy, 12th regt. By. N.I.; Lieut. Hawkins, Mayne's horse; Lieut. Newall, Sikh horse; and Lieut. Wardell, H.M.'s 83rd regt., my staff officer, I have received the most cordial and efficient aid, and I beg to bring their names to the favourable notice of H.E. the C. in C.

Lieut. Newall, besides comdg. the Sikh horse, has, in his capacity of political agent, afforded me invaluable aid by furnishing most correct information of the movements of the rebels.

I am happy to state that no casualties of any sort have occurred amongst the troops.

Captain Lambton at Naharghur.

No. 389 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following extracts of letters from the adj. gen. of the army, No. 385 of the 22nd Feb., 1859, and from Brigdr. gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., with enclosure, reporting the attack on the fort of Naharghur by a detach. under the command of Capt. F. W. Lambton, H.M.'s 71st highlanders.

H.E. in Council desires to record his high commendation of the intrepidity exhibited in this operation, and his sense of the conspicuous bravery of all concerned in the attack.

Extract of a Letter from the Adj. gen. of the Army to the Sec. to the Govt. of India, Mily. Dep., No. 385 of the 22nd Feb., 1858.

"In transmitting for the consideration of the rt. hon. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. in Council copies of the documents noted in the margin,* having reference to the attack of the fort of Naharghur, by a detach. under the command of Capt. F. W. Lambton, H.M.'s 71st highlanders, I am directed by the C. in C. to state that in H.E.'s opinion, the conduct of the party of the 71st regt. cannot be sufficiently praised, as will be seen from the following extract from a private letter addressed by Brigdr. gen. Sir R. Napier to the Chief of the Staff.

* Letter from Brig. gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. the Gwalior div., No. 54 of 31st Jan., 1859, with enclosure.

"The news of the affair with Lambton's detach. brought me down here as I reported to you.

"It is certainly marvellous to see the works attacked by that small detachment.

"The indomitable pluck of Englishmen is the secret of all their success.

"The small party, far from support, unacquainted with the strength of the garrison and with the country, did not hesitate to attack a place of considerable strength, and had they had a good petard, they would have taken it.

"The best shots in India, I believe; they went to work systematically and cleared the parapets; through a chink in the strong gate they fired and cleared the gateway, and drove from two guns planted to command the entrance, the gunners, who were ready to fire on them. They had previously assaulted and taken the two outer gates.

"The place belongs to Kotah. The guns were all burst, and the fort considerably dismantled.

"The Kotah Vakeel has come here, and professes that the Killadar will be hanged when captured.

"The camp followers had got into the town, which was entirely deserted, in spite of guards and sentries posted by Maj. Chetwode, but on my arrival here by putting additional guards and severely punishing offenders I put a stop to it, and the town is filling again."

Extract of a Letter from Brigdr. gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior Div., to Maj. gen. Sir W. R. Mansfield, K.C.B., Chief of the Staff, dated Camp Naharghur, 31st Jan., 1859, No. 54.

"In continuation of my letter dated 21st inst., I have the honour to report for the information of the rt. hon. the C. in C. that I arrived at Naharghur on the 23rd inst., and found the fort in possession of Maj. Chetwode's detach. which had been sent from Goonah to Capt. Lambton's assistance.

"The garrison abandoned the fort on the 21st, having maintained a fire of round shot upon Capt. Lambton's detach. as long as it continued within range. I beg to transmit Capt. Lambton's report.

"The fort is very strong, and had eleven guns and a garrison of 200 men.

"Capt. Lambton's party consisted of sixty men of the 71st regt. They forced the gate of the town and the outer gate of the fort, and only failed in storming the fort itself from the absolute want of means, except a few pounds of powder to burst open the strong iron-bound gates of the inner gateway. In this they nearly succeeded.

"The conduct of Capt. Lambton and his party evinced the utmost gallantry, and cannot fail to excite the most lively admiration in any person who views the formidable character of the work they attacked, although the origin of the conflict is to be regretted.

"It has produced a very great improvement on the bearing of the people of the country, who send supplies into camp readily where they were before hardly procurable.

"P.S.—The guns in the fort were destroyed by Gen. Michel's order, and the defences have been partially dismantled."

From Capt. J. H. Lambton, comdg. detach. H.M.'s 71st highland L.I., to Capt. H. O. Mayne, Pol. assist. in Gwalior, dated Naharghur.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that when the detach. under my command, strength as per margin,* arrived here yesterday afternoon, I sent to the town for provisions; they were refused, and the Kotwal threatened to shoot the first European that came into the town. An armed party under command of a subaltern was sent into the town to seize them. They found the gates closed and matchlocks were fired at them. The remainder of the detach. then proceeded to reinforce the first party, the gates were forced in, and the outer part of the fort taken with slight resistance. The inner part, however, we were unable to take, owing to the great height of the walls, and there being only one gate, which is strongly plated with iron.

We therefore retired, and attempted again to take it this morning. We were unable to blow it open, owing to the scarcity and coarseness of the powder. The enemy during this time kept up a brisk fire with matchlocks and big guns. I understand that there are 200 men and nine or ten guns of different sizes in the fort; the enemy were frequently summoned to surrender, but refused. I await further instructions.

J. H. LAMBTON, Capt.,
71st highland L.I.

From Maj. G. Chetwode, comdg. at Naharghur, to Capt. H. O. Mayne, Political assist. in Gwalior.

Camp Naharghur, Jan. 23, 1859, 2 A.M.

Sir,—Your note of yesterday's date has this moment arrived. The town and fort of Naharghur have been in our possession since the morning of the 21st, and I am now engaged in blowing up the defences and bursting the guns. I have written to stop the only force that I knew was advancing to join us, namely, some lancers, R.H.A. guns, and N.I., that were detached from Gen. Michel's force, as provisions are so difficult to procure here. As far as I can learn, the garrison of the place only consisted of some 200 men, who have dispersed in the jungle. Maun Sing was not here.

8th hussars, comdg. at Naharghur.

Brigadier Showers in the Field.

No. 315 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the Adj. gen. of the Army, No. 299, of the 10th Feb., 1858, forwarding one from Brigdr. St. G. D. Showers, c.b., comdg. at Agra, reporting the pursuit and defeat of the rebels under Tantia Topsee, and other chiefs.

H.E. in Council entirely concurs in the approbation expressed by the C. in C. of the arrangements which enabled that officer to inflict so heavy loss on the enemy.

R. J. H. BIRCH, Maj. gen.,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

From the Adj. gen. of the Army to the Secy. to the Govt. of India, Mily. depart.

Sir,—I have the honour, by direction of the C. in C., to forward for the information of the Rt. Hon. the Gov. gen. and Viceroy in Council, a letter from Brigdr. St. G. D. Showers, c.b., comdg. at Agra, No. 39, of the 18th ult., reporting the pursuit and defeat of the rebels under Tantia Topsee and other chiefs; and I am to express Lord Clyde's approval of the arrangements which enabled that officer to inflict so heavy loss on the enemy.

2. Lord Clyde also desires me to beg you will bring to the favourable notice of H.E. in Council the names of the native officers and men recommended for reward by Brigdr. Showers.

W. MAXHEW, Lieut. col.,
Adj. gen. of the Army.
Adj. gen.'s Office, Allahabad, 10th Feb., 1859.

No. 39.

From Brigdr. St. G. D. Showers, comdg. Agra and Muttra Districts, to the chief of the staff, Hd. Qrs. Camp.

Camp Mowh, 18th Jan., 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of the Rt. Hon. the C. in C., that I moved out with the force noted in the margin,* on the 4th inst., in progress to Hindown, to oppose the rebels under the Mahratta chiefs, the Rao Sahib and Tantia Topsee, and the Shazadah Feroze Shah, who, from their position, threatened both Bhurtpore and Jeypore.

On my arrival at Hindown, intelligence came in which led me to advance to Doongur Malarna, where I arrived on the 11th. Here I learnt the rebels were moving northwards between my position and Tonk. Their destination was evidently Jeypore. I immediately threw forward a strong advanced guard to Reepulivara, eighteen miles distant, to intercept the stragglers of the rebel force, and followed myself with the main body during the night.

The rebels had passed the village only a few hours before. I now took up the pursuit, and following close on their heels, came up with them at 3 A.M. of the 14th instant.

Dowsa is a town situated on the western slope of a rocky hill, and bounded to the west by fields with high banks. It was among these the rebels had taken up their position. The approach to it was difficult; there were but two roads leading out of the town in the direction. Without a guide on whom I could rely, I threw my column into one of these, and proceeded some distance, in the hope of finding an opening to lead me to the rebels' camp. Failing in this, and the grey of the morning appearing, I determined to commence the attack with the cav., leaving the art. with the Eur. inf. as an escort to follow. I counter marched the cav., and threaded the streets of the town at a sharp trot, until I came to the second road, which debouched nearer to the position of the rebels. I pushed up one of the banks on the right, and formed the cav. on the high ground, the detach. Agra mounted police on the left, squad. of Alexander's horse on the right; and then advancing at a charging pace across the intervening fields, came up with the rebels preparing to march. They were taken by surprise. The cav. dashed at once amongst them. Being unable to escape from the enclosures, numbers were killed. They, however, soon recovered from their surprise, and commenced a sharp musketry fire upon us. The charge, notwithstanding, was continued through a second field, when all that remained were cut up. We then came into the plain, when the pursuit was kept up.

Our attack was made about the centre of the enemy's position. It separated their force into three parties; one went off to the right, another to the left, while a considerable body were driven to our front, and vigorously followed up by the detach. of Alexander's horse and Agra mounted police under their gallant young commanders, Lieut. H. Chapman, of the late 49th regt. N.I., and Lieut. H. T. Oldfield, of the late 9th regt. N.I.

The art. with the detach. 3rd Eur. regt. had come up. The force had already made a most harassing march. During the last forty-five hours we had followed the enemy continuously a distance of seventy-five miles. Men and horses had been accoutred and harnessed the whole time, and had no other rest than what short bivouacs afforded. The horses were fagged. But Lieut. R. S. Robinson, comdg. arty., brought up his guns to within some 1,200 yards of the party of the rebels who had fled to the right, but being at such a long range, they effected their escape without suffering severely. Ferozeshah is said to have been with this body.

The party on the left, with which I learned Tantia Topsee moved off, disappeared early in the action. Not a horseman after the first half hour could be seen in that direction.

The pursuit was kept up for five miles. I then halted. Men and horses were worn out with the previous marching, but as the rebels were dispersed to the right and left, I directed a troop from each cav. detach. to take an advanced position to our front, so as to prevent the scattered bodies of the rebels from re-uniting without making a long detour.

In this action I received valuable aid from the contingent of cav. of the Bhurtpore State, strength as per margin.* I enclose the report of Capt. Nixon, the offic. pol. agent, and I have to commend to the notice of the Rt. Hon. the C. in C., the services of the officers mentioned by Capt. Nixon.

From Capt. Nixon himself I have received important assistance. He himself led the contingent into the field and directed it during the action. He was able and indefatigable in obtaining information of the movements of the rebels, and it was by his placing a number of riding camels at my disposal that I was able to bring my infantry up with the rebels. I beg to recommend the services of this officer to the favourable consideration of his lordship.

It is my duty also to bring to the favourable notice of H.E. the services of Lieuts. Oldfield and Chapman in leading the respective detachments against the greatly superior numbers of the rebels. I have to offer my acknowledgments to Capt. R. Stevenson, comdg. detach. 3rd Eur. regt., and Lieut. R. S. Robinson, comdg. arty.; also to Capt. A. L. McMulin, of the late 23rd regt. N.I., the detach. staff officer, and Lieut. A. Money, 3rd Eur. regt., my orderly officer, whose horse was shot under him. These officers rendered me great assistance during the action.

It is my grateful duty to bring to the favourable notice of Government the hardy and cheerful spirit displayed by all branches of the force while making the long and heavy marches in pursuit of the enemy, as well as the gallantry of the cav. during the action. The conduct of all deserves great commendation.

Lieut. Oldfield reports favourably of the conduct of Lieut. G. F. J. Graham, of the 4th Eur. regt., doing duty with the Etawah levy.

The loss in killed of the rebels may have been 300, and reports have come in stating that they are carrying off on cots numbers of their wounded. One person of rank was killed, whose name has not been ascertained. The rebels had no guns, but the force captured three elephants and eight camels (all that they had), several horses and ponies, and some 300 muskets and tulwars.

Their strength has been variously computed at from 4,000 to 8,000 men, but there were certainly not less than 3,000 fighting men. They estimate their loss at 600 or 700, and reports since received state that numbers are falling off and deserting.

ST. G. D. SHOWERS, Brigdr.,
Comdg. Agra and Muttra districts.

Cornet Tonnochy.

Fort William, 1st March, 1859.—No. 308 of 1859.—In publishing the following letter from Brigdr. gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior div., forwarding one from Cornet Tonnochy, 8th hussars, H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council desires to record his approbation of the conduct of Cornet Tonnochy and those under his command:—

From Brigdr. gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior div., to the Chief of the Staff, Hd. Qrs., Allahabad, Camp Naharghur, 27th Jan. 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward for submission to the Rt. Hon. the C. in C., a report from Cornet Tonnochy, 8th hussars.

This officer has performed useful service and has conducted the duties entrusted to him ably and creditably.

The native officers mentioned in Cornet Tonnochy's report will, I trust, receive his Lordship's favourable notice.

R. NAPIER, Brigdr.-genl.,
Comdg. Gwalior Div.

From Cornet Augustus Tonnochy, H.M.'s 8th hussars, to Capt. Thomas Field, R.A., Secree. Camp Deepna Khera, 25th Nov. 1858.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that agreeably to your instructions I marched from Kolaras and from thence to Ranode. On reaching this place, the Kumashdan informed me that Man Sing had crossed the Betwa to join Tantia Topsee, and was last heard of Jakhlow Ghat, but that he had left Bhyron Sing and Nirunjun Sing, with about 300 followers, matchlockmen, in the fort of Akajhree.

On the morning of the 8th I advanced to the fort of Akajhree with the force as per margin,* and found the enemy evacuating it.

* Cavalry composed of 1st B'y. lancers. Mowds and Boudunshur Horse, 115. Matchlockmen, 125. One native gun.

* Artillery—4 guns, 1 subaltern, 1 staff serg., 56 r. and f. 3rd Eur. regt.—2 capt's, 6 subalterns, 212 r. and f. Alexander's horse—1 subaltern, 5 native officers, 132 sabres. Agra mounted police—2 subalterns, 5 native officers, 120 sabres.

* 12 native officers; 485 rank and file.

I had communicated on the day previous with Col. Scudamore, H.M.'s 14th Lt. drags., who was encamped at Myapore, and in command of the flying column.

The fort, which is built of stone, is a strong one, containing four towers inside the second wall, which command the entire enclosure.

I here learnt that the enemy had gone towards Gurohie, a village situated on the borders of the Jhanssee territory, to which place I advanced on the 9th with the cav. and (35) thirty-five matchlockmen of Esaughur.

The village is situated on the slope of a small hill, which was occupied by the enemy. I sent Meade's horse to cut off their retreat, and advanced the matchlockmen in skirmishing order, supporting them with my cav.; but the fire soon became too hot for the skirmishers, who, after a few of their number had been disabled, could not be persuaded to close with the enemy.

I then gradually withdrew the cav., in hopes that the rebels would follow, and give me an opportunity of charging them on favourable ground. Just at this critical moment the shouts of Meade's horse, charging from the opposite side of the hill, showed me their position, and, leading up my own party, we cleared the hill, driving the enemy to take shelter in the adjacent jungles. Twenty-five bodies were counted on the field after the charge, in which Hurdeo Sing, Duffadar of Meade's horse, particularly distinguished himself. We rescued a zemindar, who was a captive in the hands of the rebels, together with a couple of bankers. The enemy mustered two hundred matchlocks, according to the report of the captives. After burning their village, we carried off a number of their cattle, together with one prisoner taken in the charge, with arms in his possession. Dhakunjee, the zemindar of Gurohie, was also in arms against us.

CHAPTER OF THE ORDER OF THE BATH.—Her Majesty the Queen held an investiture of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, on Thursday last, at Buckingham Palace. Sir John Laird Mair Lawrence, Bart., was introduced to the Royal presence between the two Junior Knights Grand Cross present, the Earl of St. Germain's being on his right, and General Sir Hew Ross on his left. Sir John Lawrence knelt near her Majesty, who, having received the sword of state from the Lord Chamberlain, was graciously pleased to confer upon him the honour of knighthood. The Queen, assisted by the Prince Consort, passed the riband of a Knight Grand Cross over the right shoulder and under the left arm of Sir John, and having invested him with the riband and badge, delivered to him the star of a Knight Grand Cross (Civil Division) of the Bath. Sir John Lawrence kissed the Queen's hand, and was reconducted to the dining-room by the two Junior Knights Grand Cross. The following Knights Commanders were then severally introduced by Bath King of Arms and the Gentleman Usher of the Order, received the honour of Knighthood, and were invested by the Queen, assisted by his R.H. the Great Master of the Order, with the insignia of their respective divisions in the Second Class (Knights Commanders) of the Bath, viz.—Major gen. Thos. H. Franks. Col. J. Jones, 60th rifles. Rear Adm. A. Milne (civil.) And Col. J. Jebb (civil.) The undermentioned Companions of the Order were severally introduced, and received from the Sovereign their decorations of the Military Division of the Third Class of the Order, viz.—Lieut. col. R. H. Gall, 14th Lt. drags. Lieut. Col. E. Steele, 83rd foot. Major James R. Gibbon, royal art. Col. Thomas William Hicks, Bombay art. Lieut. col. G. H. Robertson, 25th Bombay N.I. Maj. T. F. Wilson, 13th Bengal N.I. And Maj. J. D. Woolcombe, Bombay art. The Knights Commanders and Companions were severally introduced by Bath King of Arms and the Gentleman Usher of the Order.

EDUCATION IN INDIA.

A COPY of an educational despatch, dated 7th April, 1859, addressed by Lord Stanley to the Governor General in Council, is now lying before us, and from the importance of the subject is worthy of a brief notice. It is an able and carefully written document, and appears to hold the juste milieu between the Progressionists and the "Know-Nothings." Its primary object is to institute an examination into the operation of the orders issued in 1854 for the promotion of education in India, chiefly with a view to ascertain if there be any ground for the allegation that they were among the causes of the late rebellion. So far as official reports are concerned, there is nothing whatever to justify that assertion, except, perhaps, in the province of Behar, and even there the hostile feeling seems to have "originated rather from a general indisposition to Government interference and from a vague feeling that the spread of knowledge itself is inconsistent with the maintenance of the native religions, than from special objection to any part of the Government scheme." The Indian Government, however, is instructed to direct its immediate attention to the consideration of this most important question. It is suggested that possibly some of the measures recommended to be adopted may, notwithstanding their abstract excellence, be unsuited to the peculiar habits and temperament of the people for whose benefit they were designed. It may also be that the true nature and tendency of these measures may have been misunderstood, or systematically misrepresented, with a view to excite the very apprehensions which are said to have been entertained. Without, therefore, renouncing the great duty "of raising the moral, intellectual, and physical condition of her Majesty's subjects in India, by means of improved and extended facilities of education," Lord Stanley fully recognises the expediency of introducing any alterations into the system which actual experience may point out as desirable. There can be no question that education is the necessary forerunner of Christianity. The minds of the natives must first be prepared to receive the good seed, before that seed can be expected to take root and thrive. The scales must be removed from their eyes before they can learn to see things as they are, and not as they have been falsely depicted through their own ignorance, or the interested craft of their priests and teachers. Schoolmasters are the true missionaries for India, and if they will only content themselves with tilling the ground and planting and watering the grain, it will certainly result that Hindooism, as a religion, will gradually expire and make room for purer morals and a more reasonable faith. Already the natives are unmistakably anxious to acquire the English language, the first step to a thorough acquaintance with European science and literature. This willingness to learn the tongue of their conquerors cannot be too carefully fostered and encouraged, and is doubly satisfactory as an indication of their acceptance of the continued maintenance of British supremacy.

The despatch under notice contains, likewise, much valuable information of a statistical nature, a summary of which we are compelled to defer to a future opportunity, in order to make room for the lengthened report on the reorganisation of the Indian army.

REORGANIZATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

On the 15th day of July, 1858, a Royal Commission was appointed to inquire into the organization of the Indian army, and to report upon the changes which recent circumstances might have rendered expedient and desirable. The Commissioners were Major general Peel, H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge, Lord Stanley, the Marquis of Tweeddale, Viscount Melville, Lieut. general Sir Harry Smith, Lieut. general Sir George Wetherall, Major general P. Montgomerie, Major general Hancock, Colonel Burlton, and Colonel Tait. The attention of this Commission was specially directed to the following twelve questions:—

1. The terms on which the army of the East India Company is to be transferred to the Crown?
2. The permanent force necessary to be maintained in the Indian provinces respectively, after the restoration of tranquillity?
3. The proportion which European should bear to native troops in infantry, cavalry, and artillery, respectively?
4. How far the European portion of the army should be composed of troops of the line, taking India as part of the regular tour of service, and how far of troops raised for service in India only?
5. In connection with this question, the best means of providing for the periodical relief of the former portion, and of securing the efficiency of the latter?
6. Whether it be possible to consolidate the European forces, so as to allow of exchange from one branch of the service to the other; and what regulations would be necessary and practicable to elicit this object, with perfect justice to the claims of all officers now in the service of the East India Company?
7. Whether there should be any admixture of European and native forces, either regimentally or by brigade?
8. Whether the local European force should be kept up by drafts and volunteers from the line, or should be, as at present, separately recruited for in Great Britain?
9. Whether it would be possible to raise any regiments in the colonies, either for temporary or permanent service in India?
10. Whether the native forces should be regular, or irregular, or both; and if so, in what proportion?
11. Whether any native artillery corps should be sanctioned?
12. Whether cadets sent out for service with native troops should, in the first instance, be attached to European regiments to secure uniformity of drill and discipline?

The answers to these pregnant questions have at length been published in a Blue-book of huge dimensions, containing not only the Report itself—which will be found at the end of this article—and the Minutes of Evidence on which it is founded, but also a large collection of valuable papers and returns bearing on the subject, together with the opinions of the ablest and most experienced men in India, and, finally, the detailed replies of each of the Commissioners. At present we shall content ourselves with offering a few remarks on the Report, reserving for a future occasion an examination of the evidence adduced, whether oral or written.

With regard to the first question there could not possibly be any difference of opinion, as the recent Act for the better government of India secures to all officers at this time serving in the Indian army the rights and privileges they would have enjoyed had no transfer of the government taken place. The second question is still left open, but the Commissioners recommend that for some time to come the European forces in India should consist of not less than 80,000 men, of whom 50,000 to be stationed in the Bengal Presidency. They also advise that the proportion of native infantry and cavalry to European should not exceed two to one in Bengal, or three to one in the other presidencies: the artillery to be entirely European. The military police are regarded with just suspicion, and great caution is counselled in imparting to them a military organization and discipline.

The fourth question furnishes the first bone of dissension. According to the majority, it is unadvisable to keep up a local European army distinct from the Line, and in this view they are supported by the testimony of highly respectable witnesses, such as Lord Elphinstone, Sir George Clerk, Sir Charles Trevelyan, Sir Archdale Wilson, Sir Edward Lugard, Major general Pratt, Sir Willoughby Cotton, Sir Sidney Cotton, Sir Thomas Franks, and Sir Alexander Tulloch. But notwithstanding this formidable array of competent witnesses, every candid and impartial mind will be disposed to give the preference to the views of the minority. The latter, indeed, have not arrived hastily and without due consideration at a contrary conclusion. Their judgment is based on no mean authority, for on their side we find the names of Lord Canning, Lord Ellenborough, Lord Harris, Sir Patrick Grant, Sir Henry Somerset, Major general Birch, Sir John Lawrence, Sir James Outram, Sir R. H. Vivian, Sir F. Abbott, Major general Tucker, Colonels Holland and Durand, and Mr. J. P. Willoughby. But not only have they great names to justify their dissent from their colleagues, they have also, we apprehend, the best of the argument. If we consider the objections alleged by the majority we shall presently be compelled to admit that they are singularly shallow and superficial. Because history affords no precedent for the co-existence of two distinct armies, similarly recruited and serving under the same flag, we are desired to believe that the fact of such a co-existence is a thing to be deprecated. But where does history furnish a parallel case to the position of the British in India? Or why does it follow that a precedent is superior to an innovation? The wisdom of former times and of other countries is not necessarily so transcendent that we should in all things prefer imitation to striking out a new course for ourselves. Nor is the next objection of greater weight. Nothing, we are told, could be "more unfortunate, not to say dangerous," than the professional jealousies and heart-burnings which must inevitably result from a "double system." But that double system has already existed for years without any unfortunate, much less dangerous, consequences resulting. Why, then, must it be so pernicious in its future operation? Next we learn that the State in some dread crisis might be crippled if part of its means were placed under the exclusive control of the local Government. This is simply nonsense. Can any man in his senses suppose that India could ever be denuded of European troops, unless the last hour of British dominion had already struck? A considerable force must always be maintained in that country, and the fact of 10,000 or 15,000 European troops being at the disposal of the Indian Government cannot possibly tend to "cripple the resources of the State as regards Imperial purposes." Indeed, the objectors themselves acknowledge that no Government would ever, "under any circumstances, venture to withdraw from India the troops necessary for its defence." It is a wise precaution, however, to maintain a force beyond the influence of the economical crotchets of the Manchester School, ever ready to jeopardise the honour and interests of their country rather than endure the burdens necessary for its defence. But it is feared that a sense of inferiority may be engendered by the battle-fields of Europe being closed to the local corps! Surely this objection must have been intended as a good joke by some wicked wag, who is now laughing heartily at the matter-of-fact Commissioners. Why, for forty years India has furnished the only battle-fields on which the Line has had an opportunity to display its prowess and acquire a practical knowledge of the art of war. All the great victories from Waterloo to the present time, with the exception of the Crimean campaign, have been fought and won in India, and certainly since the outbreak of the mutinies no feeling of inferiority could well have been entertained by the local fusilier regiments. Then as to the inconveniences of a double system of recruiting, it is hard to imagine that this argument has been put forward in a serious mood. There is no occasion for any rivalry, or bidding against one another, and it would be time for us to abdicate our high position among the nations of the earth if the efficiency of our army could be endangered by the amount of recruiting required to keep up the strength of the European force permanently stationed in India. The remaining questions answered in the report need no comment. The replies of the Commissioners appear to be practical and judicious, and if their suggestions be adopted it is probable that the stability of our Indian empire will be placed on a much surer and broader basis than has ever yet been the case.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED TO INQUIRE INTO THE ORGANISATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

"TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

"We, the Commissioners appointed by your Majesty for the purpose of inquiring into the organisation of the army lately serving in the pay and under the control and management of the Hon. East India Company, have carefully investigated the subjects referred for our consideration; and we now beg humbly to lay before your Majesty minutes of the evidence which we have taken, and the result of our deliberations thereon.

"With reference to the first point suggested in your Majesty's warrant—viz.: 'The terms on which the army of the East India Company is to be transferred to the Crown,' your Majesty's Commissioners observe that the 56th clause of the Act for the better government of India assures to the forces which now belong to your Majesty's Indian army, 'the like pay, pensions, allowances, and privileges, and like advantages as regards promotion and otherwise, as if they had continued in the service of the said Company.'

"The privileges and advantages thus referred to are detailed in the appendix, but may be briefly stated to consist in a prescriptive right to rise strictly by seniority to the rank and emoluments of colonel of a regiment, with the option of retiring before attaining that position, or after various periods of service on a scale of pay, or pension, considerably higher than that granted to officers of your Majesty's army of the line. No change, therefore, can be made which would in any way disturb the system of promotion by seniority, as affecting officers now in the service, or interfere with any of their existing privileges; but the 57th section of the above-recited Act gives to your Majesty full power to frame new regulations on this and all other points, to be applied to the case of officers and others who hereafter may enter the Indian army.

"The second question—viz., the 'permanent force necessary to be maintained in the Indian provinces respectively, after the restoration of tranquillity,' does not appear to your Majesty's Commissioners to admit of a reply, in a definite numerical form, as the amount of force must depend on the probability of either internal disturbances or external aggression. The estimates of force given in the evidence are most conflicting, ranging from 50,000 to 100,000 Europeans; and there can be no doubt that it will be necessary to maintain for the future defence of India a European force of much greater strength than that which existed previous to the outbreak of 1857. The amount of such force should, in the opinion of your Majesty's Commissioners, be about 80,000; of which 50,000 would be required for Bengal, 15,000 for Madras, and 15,000 for Bombay. This amount and distribution, however, must always be affected by the political exigencies of the country; the introduction of railroads, and river steam navigation; the establishment of fortified posts, and other military considerations.

"As regards the third question, the proportion 'which European should bear to native corps in cavalry, infantry, and artillery respectively,' your Majesty's Commissioners are of opinion, that the amount of native force should not, under present circumstances, bear a greater proportion to the European, in cavalry and infantry, than two to one for Bengal, and three to one for Madras and Bombay respectively.

"The evidence before the Commissioners is unanimous, that the artillery should be mainly a European force, and they agree in the opinion thus expressed, exceptions being made for such stations as are peculiarly detrimental to the European constitution.

"In connection with this question, your Commissioners observe that military police corps have been formed, or are in course of formation throughout India. They see in this force, in its numerical strength and military organisation, differing, as it does, in no essential respect, from the regular sepoy army, the elements of future danger. They would, therefore, recommend that great caution be used in not giving to this force a stricter military training than may be required for the maintenance of discipline, lest a new native force be formed which may hereafter become a source of embarrassment to the Government.

"On the fourth question, as to 'How far the European portion of the army should be composed of troops of the line, taking India as part of the regular tour of service, and how far of troops raised for service in India only?' your Majesty's Commissioners are unable to arrive at any unanimity of opinion; and it will be found, on reference to the minutes of evidence, and to other papers in the appendix, that the sentiments of many distinguished men who have been examined, or have recorded their views on the subject, are no less divided than those of the Commissioners themselves. The latter can, therefore, offer no recommendation as a body, and must confine themselves to a report of the opinions of the majority and minority.

"The majority observe that a double European army, such as that now established, has had its origin in the double Government, which has hitherto existed; the authority of the East India Company having been distinct from that of the Crown, though derived from it, and subordinate to its general control.

"The original formation was thus anomalous and exceptional; and as the transfer by Parliament of the Government of India from the Company to the Crown has not carried with it the total amalgamation of the European portion of the two armies, it has become necessary fully to consider the subject.

"It does not appear that any case in history can be adduced of the co-existence of two distinct armies from the same sources, both as regards officers and men, serving the same Sovereign.

"They observe that, on the contrary, the great object of legislation in all civilised countries has been so to organise the military forces and resources of the State as to produce unity of feeling and interest, under one supreme authority, throughout the whole body. That it is impossible to arrive at these ends, in the case of two separate armies not amenable to the same authority as regards discipline and organisation, however closely assimilated in other respects. That nothing could be more unfortunate, not to say dangerous, than so to organise the armed forces of the State as to sow the seeds and form the ground-work of professional jealousies and heart burnings—the inevitable result of a double system—the consequence of which would be that no selection for appointment could be made from either service, which would be judged on its own intrinsic merits, but would be viewed rather with reference to that branch, whether line or local, from which the officer was selected.

"That, however good the local force of the late East India Company has proved itself to be, still it is the opinion of the majority that a local force deteriorates more than one which, by frequent relief, has infused into it fresh European notions and feelings, and a vigorous system of European discipline; and that this would more particularly be the case in a climate like that of India, where, according to the statistical statement of Sir Alex. Tulloch, backed by the professional opinion of Dr. Martin (himself an advocate for a local army), and others, the European constitution can never be said to become acclimatised, but, on the contrary, deteriorates, gradually and surely, in increasing ratio.

"That the resources of the State, as regards Imperial purposes, would be crippled by having a large body of its troops placed solely under the control of the Government of India.

"That the very fact of the local troops not being enabled to share in the battle fields of Europe is a great disadvantage to them, and may lead to a feeling of inferiority on their part, which would be extremely prejudicial to their general discipline; and that while the Crown ought to possess the advantage of giving to its army the most extended sphere of action, the very nature of a double army would, in a great measure, deprive the line army of the valuable experience it would acquire in India, whilst the local army would, in like manner, be debarred from all the benefits of field service in Europe.

"That no government, under any circumstances, would ever venture to withdraw from India the troops necessary for its defence. The question as to the force to be maintained in that country must be always decided by the home Government, responsible to the Sovereign, and to the country, through Parliament.

"That regulations could be drawn up for retaining India officers of the line army, whose services might be required by the local Government, and that officers of the line would undoubtedly qualify themselves for employment in India, if such employment, and all the advantages attending it, were open to them; and so far from the resources of the Governor General being curtailed by such an arrangement, it would, on the contrary, afford him a much larger field for the selection of able and useful officers.

"That in a financial point of view line regiments ought not to be, and with due regulations as regards transport and organisation would not be, more expensive than local corps; but even if they should be to some extent more costly, greater vigour would exist in their ranks, and the wisest economy consists in having the best organised body of troops the State can supply. This is more particularly the case in a vast empire such as that of India, in which the European army must ever play so conspicuous a part; and where, consequently, whatever tends to the greater efficiency of that army, must at the same time add to our power, and secure most effectually the safety of your Majesty's Indian possessions.

"That the local army of India, as now constituted, is more expensive than the line in its non-effective charges.

"That a double system of recruiting, the natural result of a double army, would operate most injuriously on recruiting in general; and that it would be next to impossible to carry it on satisfactorily, or with good results, if worked by two distinct authorities.

"That England cannot raise, and maintain permanently, very large armies by voluntary enlistment; and therefore the best troops must be supplied, at even an increased cost, if necessary, in order to compensate by their efficiency and vigour for their numerical inferiority.

"Should it, however, be ultimately decided, contrary to the strong and sincere conviction of the majority of your Majesty's Commissioners, that with a view of leaving undisturbed present vested interests, a local European force is to be maintained for service in India, they recommend that the amount of such force should be limited to that now authorised by Parliament to be raised and maintained out of the revenues of India. It is admitted, even by the witnesses in favour of a double army, that the local force is greatly benefited by the example set to it by the troops of the line; and that it is most important, and indeed, absolutely necessary, to retain a proportion of line regiments in India. To diminish the relative proportion of line regiments to local corps would render the line auxiliaries to the latter—a fatal error, which must inevitably tend to lower the position of the line by rendering it numerically, and, consequently, morally, inferior to the local or larger force.

"These views of the majority are supported by the valuable opinions of the following civil servants, and officers of the army, all of whom have great Indian experience:—Lord Elphinstone, Governor of Bombay, and late Governor of Madras; Sir George Clerk, under Secretary of State for India; Sir Charles Trevelyan, appointed Governor of Madras; Sir Archdale Wilson, 39 years in India; Sir Edward Lugard, 26 years in India; Major-General Pratt, 25 years; Sir Willoughby Cotton, 10 years; Sir Sydney Cotton, 30 years; Sir Thomas Franks, 15 years; Sir A. Tulloch, and others.

"The minority take an entirely different view of the question at issue. They entertain a strong conviction that the maintenance of a powerful local army, European as well as native, is essential to the efficiency and permanence of British rule in India. They fear that to replace a large body of officers, accustomed to the habits and acquainted with the language of the country in which they serve, by others, doubtless, of equal ability, but who during their comparatively brief residence in the East would have neither time nor possibly inclination to qualify themselves in the same manner for administrative duty, would seriously impair the power and curtail the resources of the Governor General and governors of the several presidencies. They regard the anomaly which has been referred to, of maintaining two separate armies under one sovereign, to be necessarily incident to the connection (in itself one of the greatest of anomalies) of England with her Indian empire. They consider that late events have proved the benefit of having distinct armies for Bengal, Madras, and Bombay; and that to disavow the native from the local European forces by the fusion of the latter with the line army, would be to deteriorate the position, and destroy the esprit de corps of officers serving with native troops, who would feel themselves reduced to a level below that of their brother officers of the line.

"The minority, bearing in mind the limited amount and inelastic nature of the revenues of India, the present financial difficulties of its Government, and the great additional burden which they conceive the system advocated by the majority must impose, object earnestly, on economical and financial grounds, to an arrangement which, in their opinion, would practically diminish the control of her Majesty's Secretary of State and of the Government of India over the application of its revenues. The minority do not admit the validity of the unqualified objections raised to double recruiting, neither do they concur in the opinions expressed as to the alleged deterioration of local European troops, subjected to like discipline and organisation with the line, or the crippling of the available resources of the State, by the existence of a local European force in India. They consider such a force to be a wholesome check on the precipitate withdrawal of European troops from India, in cases where the home Government might happen to find itself under the pressure of political emergencies in Europe; and they feel confident that the transfer of the Indian armies to the Crown will prove a source of present and future security to her Majesty's empire in India, in proportion as radical and organic changes are few, and the weight and stability of the local armies are maintained by largely, but economically, increasing their European element.

"The minority will not add to the length of this report, by entering into any further discussion of the opinions of their colleagues, as embodied in previous paragraphs, neither do they deem it necessary to set forth any more detailed exposition of their own views on the subject, or to recapitulate any of the powerful and, to them, most convincing arguments, by which the expediency (not to say necessity) of maintaining a purely local European as well as native force, for the protection of our Indian possessions, has been manifested and upheld in the evidence adduced before your Majesty's Commissioners. In support, however, of the views which the minority take of this question, they would wish to call special attention to the evidence (vidæ voce or written) of the Governor General of India, of the Earl of Ellenborough, of the Governor and the Commander in Chief of Madras, of the Commander in Chief at Bombay, the Military Secretary to the Government of India, Sir John Lawrence, and the Punjab Commissioners, Sir James Outram, Sir R. H. Vivian, Sir Frederick Abbot, the Adjutant general of the Bengal army, Colonels Holland and Durand, J. P. Willoughby, Esq., and others, as containing irrefragable arguments and powerful reasons for maintaining the policy which they advocate. There are, it is true, some able men who espouse the opposite side of the question; but it will scarcely fail to be remarked that, with two or three exceptions, they are of much more limited Indian experience than those who concur in the views of the minority of the Commission and comprise only three officers, Sir George Clerk, Sir A. Wilson, and Sir Charles Trevelyan, of the late East India Company's service, the remainder, with the single exception of the Governor of Bombay, being all officers of her Majesty's army of the line. It may be added, that the minority of your Majesty's Commissioners are quite agreed that a portion of the European force, to be maintained in India hereafter should be supplied from the army of the line, to the extent, perhaps, of one fourth, or even one third of the whole.

"On the fifth question, 'The best means of providing for the periodical relief of the former portion, and securing the efficiency of the latter,' your Majesty's Commissioners observe that if it be determined that the European force be partly of the line and partly local, the periodical relief of the former portion may be effected as has hitherto been done; but they strongly recommend that the tour of service in India should not exceed twelve years. The efficiency of the latter may be secured by the establishment of depot battalions, composed of the officers of one company from each regiments, having a double proportion of non-commissioned officers attached, to which all newly appointed officers and all recruits should be sent and thoroughly instructed in their duties, previous to proceeding to India; the depot battalions to be disciplined under the orders of the general commanding in chief, and to be considered available for service within the United Kingdom in cases of emergency.

"The establishment of a convalescent station at the Cape of Good Hope, for the invalids belonging to European regiments serving in India, is worthy of consideration.

"With reference to the sixth question, 'Whether it be possible to consolidate the European forces, so as to allow of exchange from one branch of the service to the other; and what regulations would be necessary and practicable to effect this object, with perfect justice to the claims of all officers now in the service of the East India Company,' your Majesty's Commissioners are of opinion that, although there are many difficulties in so amalgamating the local European forces with those of the line, such an arrangement would be advantageous, if it could be effected without prejudice to existing rights.

"There is no obstacle to at once allowing the officers of the junior ranks (second lieutenants, cornets, and ensigns) to exchange from one branch of the service to the other; but there is a great difficulty in the higher ranks, arising from the seniority system of promotion which exists in the armies of India. If no other interests were concerned than those of the two officers who proposed to exchange, the question might be settled between them; but it is obvious that in a seniority service the interest of every individual, junior to the exchanging officer, must be affected for better or for worse, by every exchange that took place, unless (which is next to impossible) the ages, or rather the value of the lives of the two parties could be ascertained, and proved to be exactly the same. Much difficulty would also arise from the complicated nature of the arrangements under which officers and their families hold beneficial interests in the funds maintained by themselves, and aided by the local Government of India.

"Your Commissioners see no means of removing this difficulty, except by the Government taking upon itself the management of the funds, and guaranteeing all their liabilities, past, present, and future.

"Officers hereafter entering the service may do so under such regulations as your Majesty may prescribe, as already stated; but if the Government should not take on itself all the liabilities and engagements of the funds, it will be necessary to continue the present system of requiring all officers to subscribe to them from their first entering the army, or the insolvency of these admirable institutions, and their consequent inability to keep faith with their present and future annuitants (widows and orphans), must be the eventual and inevitable result.

"On the seventh question suggested for inquiry in your Majesty's warrant—viz., 'Whether there should be any admixture of European and native forces, either regimentally or by brigade,' the preponderance of evidence is, that any admixture of the two forces, regimentally, would be detrimental to the efficiency and discipline of both, but that the admixture by brigade would be most advantageous.

"Your Commissioners concur in this opinion.

"On the eighth point, 'Whether the local European force should be kept up by draft and volunteers from the line, or should be, as at present, separately recruited for in Great Britain,' your Majesty's Commissioners are of opinion that the European force, if local, may be partially kept up by volunteers from regiments of the line returning to England; and that the recruiting in England should be carried on under the same authority and regulations as for regiments of the line, officers of the local force being employed on that service.

"As regards the ninth question, your Commissioners consider that it would not be advisable to raise any regiments in the colonies, composed of men of colour, either for temporary or permanent service in India.

"With regard to the tenth point, 'Whether the native force should be regular or irregular, or both, and if so, in what proportions,' your Commissioners are of opinion that the irregular system is the best adapted for native cavalry in India, and recommend that it be adopted.

"That the number of European officers attached to an irregular cavalry regiment should be—

"One commandant.

"One adjutant.

"One European officer per squadron, and a medical officer.

"Your Commissioners also recommend that the pay of the irregular cavalry be increased to such an extent as will enable them to purchase and maintain horses and arms of a superior description, rendering them in every respect more efficient.

"In the regular cavalry at Madras and Bombay, your Commissioners would, for the present, make no change, but recommend that the existing interests, both of the native officers and men, be most carefully respected; and if hereafter the irregular system should be extended to those presidencies, your Commissioners recommend that the change should be introduced gradually and with caution.

"That the native infantry be mainly regular, but that such number of regiments be maintained and organised on the irregular system as the Governor General and the governors of the presidencies may respectively recommend for the sanction of her Majesty's Government.

"The number and organisation of irregular regiments being thus left to the discretion of the local authorities, your Commissioners are unable to fix a proportion between them and the regular native infantry, but are of opinion that the regular regiments should preponderate.

"On the eleventh point, 'Whether any native artillery corps should be sanctioned,' your Commissioners would refer to the opinion already expressed in reply to the third question.

"Your Commissioners, however, submit, that every consideration should be given to those corps of native artillery which have proved their loyalty during the late events in India.

"Your Commissioners are of opinion, with regard to the twelfth point, 'Whether cadets sent out for service with native troops should in the first instance be attached to European regiments, to secure uniformity of drill and discipline,' that such officers should be thoroughly drilled and instructed in their military duties in this country, as recommended in the reply to question 5, before they are sent out to India.

"Your Commissioners, having disposed of the questions specially referred for their inquiry, beg to submit the following recommendations on certain important points, which in the course of examination of evidence have come under their notice:—

"1. That the native army should be composed of different nationalities and castes, and, as a general rule, mixed promiscuously through each regiment.

"2. That all men of the regular native army, in your Majesty's Eastern possessions, should be enlisted for general service.

"3. That a modification should be made in the uniform of the native troops, assimilating it more to the dress of the country, and making it more suitable to the climate.

"4. That Europeans should, as far as possible, be employed in the scientific branches of the service; but that corps of pioneers be formed for the purpose of relieving the European sappers from those duties which entail exposure to the climate.

"5. That the articles of war which govern the native army be revised, and that the power of commanding officers be increased.

"6. That the promotion of native commissioned and non-commissioned officers be regulated on the principle of efficiency rather than of seniority, and that commanding officers of regiments have the same power to promote non-commissioned officers as is vested in officers commanding regiments of the line.

"7. That whereas the pay and allowances of officers and men are now issued under various heads, the attention of her Majesty's Government be drawn to the expediency of simplifying the pay codes, and of adopting, if practicable, fixed scales of allowances for the troops in garrison or cantonments and in the field.

"8. That the commander in chief in Bengal be styled the commander in chief in India, and that the general officers commanding the armies of the minor presidencies be commanders of the forces, with the power and advantages which they have hitherto enjoyed.

"9. Your Commissioners observe that the efficiency of the Indian army has hitherto been injuriously affected by the small number of officers usually doing duty with the regiments to which they belong.

"This evil has arisen from the number withdrawn for staff and other duties and civil employment.

"All the evidence before your Commissioners points out the necessity of improving the position of officers serving regimentally. For the attainment of this object, and for the remedy of the evil complained of, various schemes have been suggested, viz.:—

"1. The formation of a staff corps:

"2. The system of 'seconding' officers who are on detached employ, which exists to a certain extent in the line army:

"3. Placing the European officers of each presidency on general lists for promotion.

"Your Commissioners, not being prepared to arrive at any satisfactory conclusion on this point without further reference to India, recommend that the subject be submitted without delay for the report of the governors and commanders in chief at the several presidencies, with a view to the framing of regulations which will ensure the greater efficiency of regiments.

"Previous to closing their report, your Majesty's Commissioners would respectfully beg to state that they have felt themselves precluded from entering into minute details, on many subjects referred to them for inquiry, from an apprehension of fettering the free action of the authorities in India, on points of a purely local nature, which, they conceive, must ultimately be decided in that country.

MELVILLE,	H. G. SMITH,
G. A. WETHERALL,	P. MONTGOMERIE,
WILL. BURLTON,	THOS. F. TAIT.

"I have signed this report as a matter of duty, and, speaking generally, concur in its recommendations.

"There are two points, however, on which I am at issue with my colleagues, and I desire, therefore, to state in this form that I still adhere to the opinions which I recorded in my minutes of the 11th of October and 30th of December last, as to the proportion which European should bear to native troops in India, and that I look with much apprehension to the number of the latter which is contemplated, or may be considered as sanctioned by the terms of the fifth paragraph of the report.

"I am also of opinion that the proposed measure of requiring all men of the regular native army, without exception, to be enlisted for 'general service' (including embarkation on board ship), is one not only of very doubtful expediency, but, in the case of the Bengal presidency especially, highly calculated to produce serious detriment and difficulties, with comparatively small advantages to the public service.

"The arguments by which I support these views will be found in No. 79, p. 245, of the Appendix, and I abstain, therefore, from any recapitulation of them here.

"WILL. BURLTON."

BOOKS.

The Historical Reason Why. English History. London: Houlston and Wright.

By a judicious application of the interrogative pronouns and adverbs, the youthful student of history is taught not only facts, but their causes and consequences. This is, in itself, an immense improvement upon all earlier catechisms and manuals of history, and alone sufficient to entitle the present work to favourable notice. But in other respects, also, it is an excellent and useful compilation, and eminently calculated for the purposes of home instruction.

Our Eastern Empire; or, Stories from the History of British India. London: Griffith and Farrar.

We gladly welcome a second edition of this pleasant little book, which now embraces an account of the late disturbances, and concludes with the Royal Proclamation. The merits of this agreeable introduction to Indian history are too well known and too generally recognised to need commendation, or to apprehend censure. Especially suited to young inquirers after knowledge, it may be read with advantage by children of an older growth, who can only be induced to seek instruction when duly sweetened by a fair proportion of amusement. To such easy-going readers these Stories will be peculiarly acceptable.

DRESS IN JAPAN.—The dress of the Japanese women is simple, but graceful. The robe which crosses the breast, close up to the neck, or a little lower, according to the taste of the wearer, reaches nearly down to the ground, and has loose sleeves, leaving the wrist free. This robe is confined round the body by a shawl, which is tied behind in a bow, the ends flowing. Everything in Japan, even to dress, is regulated by law, and the sumptuary laws have been very strict until lately, when contact with Europeans appears to be bringing about a relaxation. The colour worn by all classes of men in their usual dress is black, or dark blue of varied patterns; but the women very properly are allowed, and of course avail themselves of the privilege, to wear brighter dresses. Yet their taste was so good that loud and noisy colours were generally eschewed. Their robes were generally striped silks of grey, blue, or black; the shawl some beautiful bright colour—crimson, for instance; and their fine jet-black hair was tastefully set off, by having crimson crape, of a very beautiful texture, thrown in among it. Of course we speak of outdoor dress of the women—their full dress within doors is, we believe, far more gay.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Captain C. ADDISON, late H.M.'s 59th Regiment, and Captain J. ADDISON, H.M.'s Indian Forces (retired list), beg to inform their friends in the two services, and the Army generally, that they have established the above firm, and trust, by carrying out such business transactions as may be confided to them, in a spirit of honour and plain dealing, and with strict regard to the interests of their clients, to obtain their confidence and support.

BANKING DEPARTMENT.—Remittances to or from India, Pay, Pensions, and Fund Allowances received and remitted, as instructed. Investments in, and sales of, British, East Indian, and Foreign Securities effected; approved Indian Bills bought and sold; dividends received; advances on property in possession or in expectancy, or on approved personal security; insurances effected, and every information on the subject given.

OUTFIT AND SHIPPING DEPARTMENT.—A List of the articles REALLY required by Officers and Cadets proceeding to India has been carefully prepared by Messrs. Addison from their own long experience as Officers. The estimates of the best London outfitters have been collated; and opposite each article the price which ought to be paid for it, and the name of the tradesman by whom it is supplied of the best quality, are given. This list will be forwarded gratis on application. Parents unable to accompany their sons to town will effect a saving of 10 per cent. by confiding the care of providing their outfit to Messrs. Addison.

Parties proceeding to India, either by sailing vessels or the overland route, will have their passages negotiated on the most advantageous terms, and the best accommodation secured. Baggage collected, shipped, and insured. Boxes and parcels for the overland route should reach Messrs. ADDISON on the 1st and 16th of each month.

Indian orders executed, and Produce received on consignment for sale. The purchase and sale of every description of Property conducted on behalf of parties unable to attend to the same personally.

MAPS OF INDIA &amp; CHINA.

MAP of INDIA; showing the British Territories subdivided into Collectorate, and the position and boundary of each Native State; chiefly compiled from Trigonometrical Surveys, executed by order of the Honourable Court of Directors of the East India Company. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 6 in. high; 5 ft. 8 in. wide. £2; or, on cloth, in a case, £2. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, £3. 3s.

The object kept in view in compiling this map has been to render it available to the greatest possible extent for popular use. For this purpose the names of all stations, civil and military, are inserted, as well as those of all towns and places of note likely to be looked for. To make clear the subdivisions of the whole of the country, both British and native, the limits of the various districts and collectorates, with their names, are distinctly indicated. The railways and telegraphs are laid down, and the trunk roads conspicuously coloured. The newly-acquired district in Burmah is included. To avoid, however, the confusion consequent upon over-crowding, and make the map clear and easy for reference, the names of many small villages, and places of no present importance, have been omitted, and thus a very wide measure of comprehensiveness has been attained, while needless diffusiveness has been avoided.

A GENERAL MAP of INDIA; compiled chiefly from Surveys executed by order of the Honourable East India Company, with the railways and telegraphs. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 3 in. wide; 5 ft. 4 in. high. £2; or, on cloth, in a case, £2. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, £3. 3s.

MAP of the ROUTES in INDIA; with Tables of Distances between the principal Towns and Military Stations. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

In this map are given the whole of the military and civil stations, together with the principal towns, the villages being omitted, so as to make the stations more prominent. The colouring defines the boundaries of the three Presidencies, and shows also the railways and telegraphs.

MAP of INDIA and CHINA, BURMAH, SIAM, the MALAY PENINSULA, and the EMPIRE of ANAM. On two sheets—Size, 4 ft. 3 in. wide; 3 ft. 4 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £1. 5s.

MAP of the PUNJAB and SIKH TERRITORY. On one sheet, 5s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 6s.

MAP of AFGHANISTAN, and the ADJACENT COUNTRIES. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

MAP of CHINA, from the most Authentic Sources of Information. One large sheet—Size, 2 ft. 7 in. wide; 2 ft. 2 in. high. 8s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 11s.

MAP of the BURMAN EMPIRE, showing the Annexed District of Pegu. One sheet, 3s. 6d.; or, on cloth, in a case, 5s.

A MAP of the WESTERN PROVINCES of HINDOOSTAN, the PUNJAB, CABOOL, SINDE, BHAWULPORE, &c., including all the States between Candahar and Allahabad. On four sheets—Size, 4 ft. 4 in. wide; 4 ft. 2 in. high. 30s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £2; rollers and varnished, £2. 10s.

MAP of ARABIA, from all the most recent Authorities, by order of the Court of Directors of the East India Company. Size, 3 ft. 3 in. high; 4 ft. 3 in. wide. On cloth, in a case, £1. 5s.

HAND-BOOK to the MAPS of INDIA, giving the Latitude and Longitude of all places of note. By Major H. V. STEPHEN, late of Bengal Army Revenue Survey Department. In 18mo. bound, price 5s.

MAP of INDIA; from the most recent Authorities, showing the railways and telegraphs. On two sheets—Size, 2 ft. 10 in. wide; 3 ft. 3 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £1. 1s.

MAP of the STEAM COMMUNICATION and OVERLAND ROUTES between ENGLAND, INDIA, CHINA, and AUSTRALIA. In a case, 14s.; on rollers, and varnished, 18s.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

THE INDUS and its PROVINCES; their Political and Commercial Importance considered in connection with Improved Means of Communication. Illustrated by Statistical Tables and Maps.

By W. P. ANDREW, F.R.G.S., Chairman of the Scinde and Punjab Railways, and Indus Steam Flotilla; Author of "Indian Railways as connected with the Power and Stability of the British Empire in the East," &c., &c.

"The Indus and its Provinces" is really as interesting to the general reader as it is essential to the merchant, the trader, the politician, and the historian."—Morning Chronicle, May 27, 1858.

"Not contented to repose on his laurels as the early advocate for the construction of Railways in India, Mr. Andrew has steadily persevered in developing his original idea, and now, after twelve years of incessant application, we find him concentrating his energies on the improvement of land and river communication in Scinde and the Punjab, though with ulterior views, extending far beyond the immediate benefit of those Provinces."—Allen's Indian Mail, June 12, 1858.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

ENGRAVED BY ORDER OF THE HON. EAST-INDIA COMPANY.

AN ATLAS of INDIA, on a scale of four miles to an inch. From Trigonometrical Surveys made for the purpose, being intended to form a complete Map of the whole of India, on a uniform plan, the Sheets being issued separately as they are completed, at 4s. each, or on cloth, in cases, 7s. each.

The following Sheets are published, viz.:—

WORKS IN THE HINDUSTANI LANGUAGE,

BY

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

PROFESSOR OF ORIENTAL LANGUAGES IN KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON; MEMBER OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, &amp;c.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

The indisputable superiority of this Series of Works to all others of the same kind having created a demand very far beyond their most sanguine expectations, the Publishers take the opportunity to testify their gratitude for the public favour so unequivocally manifested, by making a considerable REDUCTION IN THEIR PRICES. They are further encouraged to take this step by the consideration of the greatly-increased number of Europeans who will henceforth be located in India, and to whom the possession of these Works may be regarded as indispensable. Serviceable to all, they will be found especially adapted to meet the requirements of Officers of her Majesty's Army serving in India.

DICTIONARY, HINDUSTANI-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-HINDUSTANI. Second Edition, greatly enlarged, and revised throughout. By D. FORBES, LL.D. In One Vol., royal 8vo, price in cloth, £2. 2s.; or, half-bound, £2. 5s. 6d.

*.* This edition of Dr. Forbes's Dictionary contains a greater number of words, with their explanations, than are to be found in any other dictionary in the language; and here, for the first time, the whole of the Hindue words have been printed in the Devanagari as well as in the Persian characters.

A ROMANISED DICTIONARY, HINDUSTANI-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-HINDUSTANI. By DUNCAN FORBES. Royal 8vo. (Nearly ready.)

A SMALLER ROMANISED HINDUSTANI DICTIONARY. By DUNCAN FORBES. (In the Press.)

GRAMMAR of the HINDUSTANI LANGUAGE in the Oriental and Roman Characters, with numerous Copper plate Illustrations of the Persian and Devanagari Systems of Alphabetic Writing. To which is added a copious Selection of Easy Extracts for reading in the Persi Arabic and Devanagari Characters, forming a complete introduction to the Bagh-o-Bahar, together with a Vocabulary and Explanatory Notes. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Octavo, cloth, 10s. 6d.

HINDUSTANI MANUAL; a Pocket Companion for those who visit India in any capacity, containing a compendious Grammar, Exercises, and Vocabulary of Useful Words. 18mo, 3s. 6d.

BAGH-O-BAHAR; consisting of Entertaining Tales in the Hindustani Language. By MIR AMMAN, of Delhi. A New Edition, carefully Colated with Original Manuscripts, having the essential vowel points and punctuation marked throughout; to which is added a Vocabulary by DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo, cloth, 12s. 6d.

*.* The Bagh-o-Bahar is the text book in which Cadets and Assistant-Surgeons have to pass an examination in India. This edition was prepared under the authority of the Honourable the East India Company.

BAGH-O-BAHAR, Roman Character with Vocabulary. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. 12mo. (Just ready.)

*.* This book is being printed in a clear and distinct type, and will be very moderate in price.

BAGH-O-BAHAR. Translated into English. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. With Notes by the Translator, illustrative of the Manners, Customs, and Ideas of the Natives of India. A New Edition, Revised and Corrected throughout. Octavo, cloth, 8s.

THE BAITAL PACHISI; or, the Twenty-five Tales of a Demon. A New and Corrected Edition, with a Vocabulary of all the words occurring in the Text. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo, 9s.

*.* Military and Medical Officers have to pass in this work.

TOTA-KAHANI; or, Tales of a Parrot. In Hindustani. A New Edition, with the vowel points, &c., carefully marked, and accompanied by a Vocabulary of all the words occurring in the Text. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo, cloth, 8s.

ORIENTAL PENMANSHIP; an Essay for facilitating the Reading and Writing of the Ta'lik Character, as generally used in the East in Persian and Hindustani Manuscripts and Printed Works; consisting of various Specimens of Fine Writing, accurately lithographed from Original Native MSS., accompanied by letter press Descriptions, together with Explanatory Notes and Observations. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Quarto, cloth, 8s.

GRAMMAR of the PERSIAN LANGUAGE, with Reading Lessons and a Vocabulary. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo, 12s. 6d.

A GRAMMAR of the BENGALI LANGUAGE, with Reading Lessons and a Vocabulary. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo. (In preparation.)

THE ARMIES OF THE GREAT POWERS

(AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA, FRANCE, RUSSIA, ENGLAND).

By LASCELLES WRAXALL.

The information he (Mr. Wraxall) is able to lay before his readers comes rather opportunely at the present hour, when continental ambassadors are summoned from Paris to attend our Cabinet Councils, and every day we hear louder rumours of a general European war. The information that our author is enabled to lay before his readers, though only, perhaps, an approximation to the truth, is particularly valuable at the present time.—Leader.

No work could possibly be more opportune, or more likely to be in general request at the present moment. Mr. Wraxall does not confine himself, indeed, to a simple Homeric catalogue of the forces each State can bring into the field, although even this would be worth knowing on the brink of a general war. He goes far beyond a dull recital of figures, and comments with an air of easy authority on the peculiar characteristics of Austrians, Prussians, English, French, Sardinians, Russians, and Turks. The author appears, moreover, to speak from personal knowledge and experience. He has seen with his own eyes the troops whose good and bad qualities he impartially describes; and during the Crimean war he enjoyed many opportunities of judging from personal observation of the comparative excellence of the forces warring in the Thracian Chersonese. The result is a most useful and compendious work, at all times interesting, but especially so when the question of peace or war is trembling in the balance. No young officer's kit can be considered complete without this key to the relative homicidal properties of the European Powers.—National Standard.

He has certainly given us an apparently complete and concise analysis of the chief European armies, and so far he is entitled to our thanks and approbation.—Literary Gazette.

A very readable and instructive volume. But better than his opinions are his facts. His description of the Austrian, Russian, Prussian, French, Sardinian and Turkish armies is exact and interesting. He is also very accurate in his delineation of the composition and details of the British and Anglo-Indian armies.—United Service Gazette.

A more reasonable contribution to current literature than Mr. Lascelles Wraxall's account of "The Armies of the Great Powers" cannot be imagined. In an octavo volume he has condensed all the information every one desires to possess on the subject of the armaments of the great military powers—and he is a most reliable guide. Their means of aggression or defence are set forth clearly and perspicuously, and aim at at a glance the general reader is enabled to form a correct idea of the relative chances of success in the event of a protracted war. Not only the numerical strength of each army is given, but also the fullest details of its organisation. The different systems of discipline, the dress and accoutrements, the rewards and punishments, and the general internal economy of the European armies, are described in plain language.—Leeds Times, March 5.

THE SERAMPORE MISSION.

Just published, in 2 vols 8vo., price 25s. cloth.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF CAREY,

MARSHMAN, AND WARD: Embracing the History of the Serampore Mission. By JOHN CLARK MARSHMAN.

"This is a work which no missionary, or statesman, or student of Indian affairs can safely dispense with or honestly ignore. It is the moral history of North India, and of the Indian Government, illustrated by and interwoven with a strange tale of enterprise, almost incredible mental prodigies, and eminent Christian graces. It is well told. The author has the advantage of perfect familiarity with the scenes and persons to which his narrative relates. The work has the double advantage of history and biography,—the elevation and gravity of the one with the liveliness and personal interest of the other. The variety of incidents, the dovetailing of events, the shifting of the scene, are all admirably managed; the personages are made to live before the reader without formal descriptions."

Already the lives of Carey, Marshman, and Ward are a wonder; in a few centuries the tale told in this book will be considered a part of the history, no of the Baptist domination or of Bengal, but of the human race."—London Review.

THE MILITARY ENCYCLOPEDIA; a Technical, Biographical, and Historical Dictionary, referring exclusively to the Military Sciences, the Memoirs of distinguished Soldiers, and the Narratives of Remarkable Battles. By J. H. STOCQUELER, Esq.

"Mr. Stocquer's former works, and his well-known proficiency in the military sciences, will insure a favourable reception for this very useful book, which possesses the advantage of compressing into one portable volume a vast mass of information on military subjects, arranged especially for reference. No one could be better qualified than Mr. Stocquer for such a task, and certainly he has accomplished it in a very able manner. In a volume which occupies but little room, the officer and soldier may here command at a glance the cream of many valuable works, and obtain information on almost any point of interest. This work, indeed, forms for the camp and barracks what Maumder's 'Treasury of Knowledge' represents in the counting-house; and we cannot doubt that it will obtain corresponding success."—United Service Magazine.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand. "Anckland, N.Z., Nov. 19, 1858."

"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them as their highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, from Messrs. Treacher and Co. Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraven on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

At the SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING, held on the 25th November, 1858, it was shown that on the 30th June last—

The Number of Policies in Force was..... 6,085
The Amount Insured was..... £2,551,136. 6s. 6d.
The Annual Income was nearly..... £120,000

The New Policies issued during the last five years are as follows:—

5,411 Policies for £2,509,658, yielding £110,624 in Premiums, showing an average yearly amount of new business of more than HALF-A-MILLION STERLING.

The Society has paid claims on 1,062 policies, assuring £126,014 since its establishment in 1841.

Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at as moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.

Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European Life in that Colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on the lives of military officers holding civil appointments, for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the Assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.

Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

Policies issued free of stamp duty, and every charge but the premiums.

In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH.

New Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygeian agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygeian system of medicine introduced by James Morison, the Hygeist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—Melancholy, low spirits, and sluggishness of mind and body are proverbially attributable to England's climate, aided in some measure by our habits and by all-powerful fashion. The first symptoms of depression of spirits are always referable to the digestive organs. If Holloway's Ointment be well rubbed over the liver and stomach twice a-day, their action will be roused, the food will be better digested, and the Pills, simultaneously taken, will purify the blood and regulate every function, instantly dispelling gloom and weariness from the mind. These purifying and restorative remedies penetrate every fibre of the frame, restoring vigour, regularity, and health alike to all, whether anxiety, climate, or pleasure has undermined the strength and constitution.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

—We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken. —Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s. — F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

DEATH FROM CUTTING CORNS.—Ask

for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and UNION PLASTERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have Young's—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. 1s. per box, or 13 postage stamps. Address H. ## OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The second number of this new candidate for public favour is unquestionably an improvement on the first. This is, in itself, a merit to be appreciated, as it augurs that the organisation on which the future of the "REVIEW" depends has within it the elements of that completeness which can alone ensure stability. We have only space to direct attention to the articles on "Philosophy as an Element of Culture," on "Realistic Novelists," and "Christianity in India," but we venture to say that the whole number is well worthy of thoughtful consideration. In this addition to our periodical literature there is every mark of careful conduct, and there is every reason in the present number for a prediction that it is destined not merely to an existence, but to a useful and enduring life.—Illustrated London News, April 9, 1859.

If it proves to be, what from the first number seems likely, a publication appealing more to the higher class of readers, whose wants are at present only supplied by the Quarterly Reviews, its chances of success will certainly be very considerable. There is no conceivable reason why articles written by and addressed to thoughtful men should only make their appearance four times in the twelve months; but, on the contrary, every reason to suppose that a monthly collection of such would meet with a ready and extensive sale. . . . The purely political articles are on "Indian Finance" and "Parliament and the People." The last especially very ably written.—Globe, March 2, 1859.

The new number of the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" may be pointed out as an excellent specimen of that which a publication should be—learned, witty, powerful, and occasionally caustic, but always devoid of pedantry, slang, ponderosity, or personality. It may be said to supply a long-existing and widely-felt want in periodical literature. Its politics are Conservative—not the rabid, blatant Toryism which roars and bellows in the pages of certain publications, from Blackwood downwards, but Conservatism of a liberal and comprehensive spirit (the terms are not misapplied), such as guides the principles of many thinking young men of the present day. In their literary likings the conductors of the new "REVIEW" are singularly catholic, welcoming every disciple of any "school" who shows originality and talent. There are ten articles in this month's number; all are readable, and most are interesting, which is saying a great deal. The first article does tardy justice to the memory of a most excellent man, the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, of Brighton, an earnest, single-minded, clear-headed, upright clergyman, whose life was made a burden to him, and who was hunted to death by the persecutions of his religious brethren, because he pursued his own straightforward course, preaching a healthy doctrine with singular vigour and effect; and because he would not give in to the vagaries of either of the sects whose open conflicts are the disgrace of that hotbed of religious fanaticism in which Mr. Robertson's labours were cast. "Women neither Nice nor Wise" is a well-stricken blow at the noisy trumpetings of the advocates of "Woman's Cause," and comments very sensibly on many of the absurdities prevalent among that class of strong-minded foolish women of which the two ladies who have recorded their travels as "unprotected females" may be taken as types. The writer touches the whole sense of the question when, after mentioning the now-prevalent desire of women for manly employment, he says, "What we now wish our countrymen to believe is this—that it is far more important to the whole world that women should be good wives and mothers than that they should excel in any one art or science, which men can achieve as well as they. If for no other reason than this obvious one, that though men can do at least as well as women in the capacity of doctors, lawyers, &c., yet they could never do at all as wives and mothers." The other pleasant papers in the number, to my mind, are the review of M. Michelet's "L'Amour," and a most sound, judicious and clearly-written article on "French Dramatists and English Adapters." The writer is, however, mistaken, I think, in supposing that critics do not make a point of exposing the origin of any adaptation, if they happen to be acquainted with it.—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, May 7, 1859.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL ARTICLE EVER KNOWN IN THE GROWTH AND IMPROVEMENT OF THE HUMAN HAIR IS

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL, proved beyond question by its results for more than Half a Century past, and when other specifics have failed. It prevents Hair from falling off or turning grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandruff, and makes it beautifully soft, pliable, and glossy. In the growth of the Beard, Whiskers, and Mustaches, it is unfailing in its stimulative operation. For CHILDREN it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR. Its invaluable properties have obtained the Patronage of Royalty, the Nobility, and the Aristocracy throughout Europe; while its introduction into the Nursery of Royalty, and the high esteem in which it is universally held, with numerous Testimonials constantly received of its efficacy, afford the best and surest proofs of its merits.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.; Family Bottles (equal to four small), 10s. 6d.; and double that size, 21s.

CAUTION.—On the Wrapper of each Bottle are the words, "ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL," &c., in white letters, and their Signature, "A. ROWLAND AND SONS," in Red Ink. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, London, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS
PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of Chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of action is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unobtainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 11, Gays-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 13th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

TANTIA TOPEE has paid the full penalty of rebellion and blood-guiltiness. His capture, as we stated in a former issue, was effected through the treachery of his former comrade, Maun Sing. On the 13th of April he was marched into Sepree under escort of Major Meade's force, by whom he was handed over to the safe custody of the 3rd Bengal Europeans. Two days afterwards, as we learn by the Bombay Mail of the 26th April, he was brought before a drum-head court-martial, found guilty, and sentenced to death. During his imprisonment and trial he is said to have conducted himself with courage and dignity. He made no defence, nor any attempt to justify his opposition to the British Government, though he positively disclaimed all complicity with the Cawnpore massacre. The Nana Sahib, he alleged, was equally innocent with himself, being at the time placed under duress by his own soldiery. For himself he admitted that he commanded at the action on the Betwa with Colonel Greathead's column, and also at Calpee. At Cawnpore he was fourth in command. When the Mhow and Indore mutineers—not the Gwalior Contingent, as is generally stated—were surprised at Agra, on the 10th October, it was Tantia Topee who was their leader. Under his instructions, though not under his leadership, was fought the battle of the Jumna, which Sir Hugh Rose regarded as the best-contested action in the campaign against the Gwalior Contingent. Tantia, however, was more distinguished for the rapidity of his flight than for daring in battle. For ten months he contrived to elude the numerous detachments of British troops which had enveloped him as in a net, and at last only fell into their hands through an act of foul treachery.

The sentence of the court-martial was carried out in the afternoon of the 18th, when this rebel chieftain was hanged by the neck like a common felon. His death was merited, and yet it is difficult to repress a feeling of regret that he did not die in action rather than on the scaffold. If Tantia Topee, however, has suffered worthily, the Nawab of Furruckabad must not be permitted to escape. In every respect he is the greater criminal, and deserves not the slightest commiseration.

Several skirmishes are reported to have taken place on the Oude frontier. On the 4th April the rebels were defeated by Brigadier Horsford, when they broke into two divisions. One of these parties, after pursuing an uncertain course, suddenly struck into the road from Fyzabad to Gonda. Here they were encountered, on the 13th, by Lieut. col. Cormick, with a wing of H.M.'s 20th, 200 of the 1st Sikh cavalry, and a squadron of Hodson's horse. The mutineers, mostly belonging to the 1st, 53rd, and 56th regts. N.I., were quickly routed, and upwards of 300 of their number left dead upon the ground. Capt. Jones, of the Sikh cavalry, was slightly wounded, and two troopers were killed.

The other division, the remains of the old Nusseerabad brigade, crossed the Raptee, under Oomrao Sing, somewhere below Rankee, and proceeded in a westerly direction. They gave out, indeed, that they were going to join Tantia Topee, and possibly some of them may be constrained to keep their word in a manner they little intended.

Two rebels of some note, Mahomed Hassun and his nephew, Mahomed Newas, surrendered themselves with 300 followers and six elephants on the 31st March, and about the same time ninety Afghan and Persian horse gave themselves up to Colonel Kelly. The Nawab of Fyzabad and one of the Lucknow Begums have also consulted their safety by a tardy surrender. The Amazonian Begum of Oude, however, still remains in Nepal, coquetting—in a political sense—with that illustrious Knight Grand Cross of the Bath, Sir Jung Bahadoor, of whom it may be said, as of another "faithful ally,"

"Only the Devil knows what he means."

The Bombay papers mention, with suitable expressions of regret and reverence, the death of the Parsee Baronet, Sir Jamesetjee Jejeebhoy. That truly benevolent gentleman is known to have dispensed no less than £250,000 sterling on charitable purposes, in addition to vast sums privately distributed. It is gratifying to learn that he did not in vain cast his bread upon the waters, for, notwithstanding his life-long munificence, he was able to leave to his family between two and three millions sterling.

Now that the country is restored to peace and the semblance of security, the time has arrived for the inauguration of many practical reforms in the law courts, the police force, the currency, and, before all others, in the Legislative Council. We trust that the attention of the local governments will be specially directed to these all-important matters, and we doubt not that any remissness on their part will draw down upon them the just displeasure of H.M.'s Secretary of State for India.

BENGAL.

THE INCREASED COST OF RICE.

The great rise which has taken place in the price of all articles of food, the consumption of both native and European, is very extraordinary, and is pressing severely on everyone but the fortunate landed proprietor, the zemindar, under the permanent settlement in Bengal.

This is a matter which is now attracting attention and speculation, and for which we hear many causes given, which do not appear to us to reach the truth. If the advance were limited to a few articles of local production, it might be assumed that the diminution of supply had enhanced the value, and that this arose out of the disturbed state of the country from the rebellion. We may thus account for the rise in price of sugar, cotton, gram, dhali, sheep, &c., which being the produce of the provinces west of Bengal, were naturally much affected by the anarchy in the districts from whence they are exported. But this explanation fails when we refer to the produce of Bengal, and more especially to the produce of the eastern districts of Bengal, which have enjoyed undisturbed tranquillity throughout the terrible years of 1857-58.

We find that the produce of those districts, rice, oil seeds, firewood, &c., have all equally shared in the great rise in prices with all the other articles we have noticed.

The great addition to the population of Calcutta, in Europeans, soldiers, and railway staff, may have had some effect in raising the price of the articles they consume. The demand for building material, timber, and skilled labour, as well as labour of all kinds for railways, in and near Calcutta, has no doubt caused a greater expenditure, and raised prices in our neighbourhood, as well as in the neighbourhood of the lines of railway; but the question which requires solution is, more particularly, why the price of the food of the millions of Bengal has nearly doubled in price. Rice, which a few years ago sold at 1-4 and 1-8 per maund, is now 2-4 and 3 rupees per maund.

There have been no failures of crops or reduction of cultivation. On the contrary, large tracts of land have been cleared, and the harvest has never been finer than this year in Burisal and the great rice districts to the eastward of Calcutta. In some of the other districts there have been complaints of drought, but there has been no serious damage to the crops. It is idle to say that the quantity exported can be the cause of the rise in prices, for we find that though the quantity has increased more than double since 1850,* the largest quantity exported is a very trifle when compared with the production and the consumption in the country. In fact, the export only acts as a fair stimulus to cultivation. The census we possess of the North-West Provinces of 1848 gives a population in the richest districts of 500 per square mile, and an average over the whole thirty-one districts of 322 per square mile; and a more accurate census of 1852-53 gives a higher, and probably a more correct, average of 420 per square mile. We have no statistics or census on which we can place any reliance for Bengal; but if we estimate the inhabitants at the same number as that of the North-West Provinces—although we believe it is higher—and take the whole superficies of Lower Bengal at 100,000 square miles, we have a population of 42,000,000, whose food is almost entirely rice. If we only allow one pound of rice per head daily, we have the enormous consumption of 181,500,000 maunds, or 6,700,000 tons. The largest quantity exported is 9,186,000 maunds, equal to 340,200 tons, or about five per cent. of the quantity consumed.

Rice is, to the people in Bengal, what the potato was to the Irish before the disease made its appearance in the tuber. No cheapness could increase, and no dearth, except famine rates, reduce the consumption amongst the people. To say then, as was said at the late meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, that the zemindars calculated their prices at the rate attainable abroad, and not at the cost of production, is a great mistake, for this can only mean that exportation regulated the prices, and that the foreign demand increased the price materially. It has been argued that the continuous influx of silver has had the effect of enhancing prices, of making everything dear; this, with the rise in prices, which has enriched the producer, may have had some effect in supporting prices when they once rose against the effects of heavy crops; but, considering the difficulties of intercommunication, we do not believe that the universal rise in the price of food throughout the length and breadth of the land can be ascribed to that cause alone. We are far more inclined to believe that the cause will be found in the increase of population, which, we suspect, has increased in a larger ratio than the production of food.

When we remember that one of the tenets of the Hindoo religion is to increase and multiply, and this is made so imperative that the most awful curses are invoked on the father who fails to provide a husband for his daughter as soon as she becomes marriageable; when there is not, perhaps, an instance of a woman, except from physical disease, remaining unmarried after reaching maturity; that of the men there is not, as Macaulay remarks, one who has become a soldier; that they never emigrate; and that women become mothers at twelve years of age;—if we further consider that there have been none of those awful scourges of famine or pestilence of late years which used to decimate Bengal, though there have been one or two bad seasons of cholera and small-pox in certain districts some four or five years ago; that for the last four years Bengal has been wonderfully free from all these terrible causes of loss and destruction to the population; moreover, that food hitherto has remained cheap, all other articles of export having brought high prices, so that there has been neither moral nor physical check to the increasing numbers more than in the case of rabbits in a protected warren, or fish in a preserved pond;—we believe, when all this is summed up, that it will be found that the population has increased at a ratio which philosophers and economists have never dreamed of, and that only now, when some additional millions of mouths are every year growing up and requiring to be fed, has any disturbance of the ordinary course of prices in the prime article of food been felt. We are confirmed in this view from the circumstance that wages have not risen; the people find difficulty in procuring employment at the present rates.

There is one article of universal consumption which, strangely enough, has not risen in price, and that is salt. Being a strict monopoly, if the Government would furnish statistics of the deliveries for a series of years, the correctness of the theory we now suggest would be tested. If the consumption has increased progressively there can be no question but that the population has increased; for the impost on salt is in reality a strict poll-tax, and would give a far more reliable return of the population than a census made by officers appointed by Government. Were there a tenant-right in Bengal, or a fair protection for the ryot, the present state of things would offer a brilliant prospect for him; but under his present circumstances, liable to the extortion and oppression of his zemindar, he has no stimulus to exertion nor any desire to endeavour to improve his condition, by extending or improving his cultivation.

The pressure of his proprietor, and the necessity of existence, compel him to work, and to extend somewhat; but unless the ryot is properly protected, and enabled to retain the profit of his labours by better laws and the administration of justice, we see little prospect of any improvement in his condition, or that extension, and those improvements in cultivation which the increasing population would appear to demand.—Englishman.

BENGAL IS TO BE SOLD.

The effect of Lord Stanley's promise to commute the land-tax seems to be scarcely understood. Men see that it will enable Europeans to settle on the wild lands, with greater hope of permanent advantage than before. But they do not see that the commutation, if carried out in Bengal, remedies every ryot grievance, modifies every ryot difficulty, changes radically every relation of native society. It is forgotten that every zemindar who has redeemed his land can sell his land, a power of which, except in certain very exceptional cases, he is not at present possessed. He owns, we will say, an estate of ten thousand acres free of tax. His three sons divide it at his death, and, after the usual practice in such cases, fall into debt. The existing remedy is to heap mortgage on mortgage on the land at exorbitant interest, until the estate can bear no more, and the judgment debtor steps in as lord. He is usually a mubajun intent on minute profits, who squeezes the ryots without improving the estate. The result socially is the farther impoverishment of the people, politically a widespread and burning discontent. New blood is a benefit when the new man brings new energy and new capital to bear upon the land. But it is not an advantage when the new man is an absentee usurer, often a Bengali money-dealer, differing from his predecessor only in a trained, and therefore irresistible capacity for extortion. Under the new system all this will be changed. The owner, instead of mortgaging the entire estate to money-lenders, will sell bits to his own tenantry. The hereditary ryot, the only man who has at present a chance of saving, can buy his own farm out, and spring at once from a cottier into a landed yeoman. The worse the estate, and the more extravagant the landlord, the more rapidly will this process be consummated. It may take years, as it has done in France. It may take centuries, as it has done in England, but the ultimate result is as certain as that while families perish the people must endure. Men with no rent to pay, despite traditions, and the personal authority the zemindar may still retain, will be free men. No men on earth are probably more free than the Bengali artisans. They are more free even than Englishmen, for no law of settlement binds them to the soil, or denies them permission to carry their industry whither they may please. Relieved of rent, the Bengali peasant would be simply an artisan in soils, tenacious of his independence, able to resist threats by combination, and as little disposed to submit to unjust demand as the veriest John Bull. So far from suffering under the new rule, as some admirers of the ancient system seem to fear, it will immensely increase the ryot's independence. His fear now is not of a direct increase of his rent. Public opinion is too strong for that except under special circumstances, but of an attack upon his status as a hereditary ryot. There are estates within the metropolitan counties in which every separate khodkhasht ryot has been separately attacked, and in most cases beaten. The rent once redeemed, that source of oppression will be at an end. "Punjum" and "huftum" will be words without meaning, and the ryot, for the first time since those laws were passed, will become a free man.

Similarly, the position of a European holding under a zemindar is permanently changed. At present he is only a tenant-at-will. No matter how clear his lease, or how accurate his payments, the zemindar, by a benamsee sale, can turn him out of his possessions. As many large proprietors already keep their land in other names, protected by secret trusts, the annoyance of a collector's sale is reduced to something almost inappreciable. For the future, the European may buy a patch of a redeemed estate at once; or, if he prefers a lease, he may rest content with his deeds; for over a redeemed estate the collector has no power, and sale will not extinguish the subtenures. All the objects of Mr. Grant's Bill, the one bit of effective statesmanship we have had for some years, and all the objects of the Bill for impeding transfers which Mr. Ricketts withdrew a fortnight since, are achieved at once. The social annoyance of transfers ends; for the peasantry, instead of being rack-rented by a new buyer, have the chance of purchasing themselves. The political difficulty also terminates; for the peasantry, who hate the "new" money-dealer, are not likely to rise and turn out themselves. Their material interests, indeed, instead of being opposed to our rule, are clearly and decidedly bound up in it. A native rule means for them, instead of the extinction of claims, the re-imposition of excessive taxes.

But, we are asked, what motive has the zemindar for accepting the commutation? By keeping his money in Company's paper he remains nearly as free from risk of failure to pay, and retains his capital in his own hands. Why, then, should he commute? Simply, among other reasons, because he thus increases the value of his land. The European, who is in some districts the most profitable tenant, will unquestionably pay more for land on a redeemed estate. So will every punnedar. So even will the ryot in the end, for he will find that the landlord free from pressure from above is less disposed to plunder those below. Moreover, the zemindar gains certainty. His fate is in his own hands. He can stand up against a bad year, or even afford to wait for his tenantry. It was the passion for freehold, for land the collector could not seize, which caused half the discontent at the resumptions. Even now men will lose half their properties in litigation sooner than give up a patch of debuttra soil. In truth, we know not why we even record these arguments; if security be better than care, certainty than fear, freehold than leasehold, power than suffering, the zemindars of Bengal fairly treated will redeem their lands.—Friend of India.

CHEAP GOVERNMENT.

In Lord Stanley's speech on the affairs of India, he is reported to have said that he expected to make a considerable saving of expenditure by the substitution of cheap native agency for dear European agency. If his lordship refers to the higher public offices, he will soon find out his mistake. Cheap native agency is largely employed at present—with what results we all know. Men whose salaries will scarcely pay their palankeen hire, are such skilful economists, that they soon save enough out of their pittances to buy estates. Whether native or foreigner, no man so underpaid can afford to be honest. To secure the services of respectable men, salaries must be given adequate to the offices they hold. Their appointments must be made too valuable to risk their loss by misconduct. Cheap agency is like most other cheap things—worthless. But it is worse than cheap razors, or other cheap commodities made for sale. These cannot entail a greater loss than the money laid out in the purchase; but cheap native agency is a loss to the public of many times the salary paid by Government. It was shown some years ago, by the Landholders' Society, that the extortions of the police in one small district amounted to more than would have amply paid a thoroughly efficient and trustworthy body of public officers.

We do not mean to say that many persons are not overpaid, that the duties of their offices might not be well performed for half the salaries now given; but the reduction requires discrimination. It is hardly possible to overpay a judge, on whose knowledge and character the lives and fortunes of so many depend; but we can see no reason why the legislative councillors, who sit once a week to register the Governor-General's decrees, should be more highly paid than their clerk, who finds them brains. The native is, there, evidently the best man of the lot; and if paid in proportion to the value of his services, ought to have the largest allowances. The just complaint of the public is, not that public servants are overpaid, but that they do not properly perform the work they are paid for; and that one class enjoys practical immunity for delinquencies and negligences, which would cause the dismissal of the men of any other class from all public employment whatever.

There are many, very many offices which a native can fill better than a stranger; but to have the duties properly performed, the holder, whether European or native, must be fairly paid according to the nature of the service he renders to the public.—Englishman.

TANTIA TOPEE.

SEPRE, April 18.—I had expected before this to have reported the execution of Tania Topee; but he is still alive, under a strong guard of the 3rd Bengal Europeans in the fort. But the electric flash may transmit to you his exit long before this reaches you. The telegraph appears to transmit orders concerning Tania with its usual rapidity. On Thursday last an escort was told off to accompany him, some reports said to Goonah, others to Jhansi, others to Gwalior, where his family are at present confined in the fort. In a few hours these orders were cancelled. Tania was to have been hung on Saturday, at 5 P.M., a scaffold having been erected on the encamping ground, in front of the old sepoy lines; but reports say this is intended for a couple of malefactors—father and son—who have lately been amusing themselves by plundering the mail.

Maun Sing, who has his tent and his guard under some trees close by the encampment of the European detachment, and Tania Topee are the lions of Seprae at present. Maun rides out on his prancing charger or smart-going elephant, driving the latter himself, iron spike in hand, followed by his limited retinue and the tagrag and bobtail of the station. No natives are allowed to approach Tania,—by his own wish, it is presumed. Europeans only are allowed to have a peep at him. A respectfully-dressed native merchant requested to have a look at him. The baboo said he wished to see Tania, as it would be all he would get for Rs. 900 which the rebel chief had some time ago made him disburse. Tania looked glum, and the baboo shook his head.

Tania answers questions put to him in Hindustani curtly and apparently straightforwardly; he appears not to understand much English, and to inquiries of him in English or by tyros in Hindustani he quietly answers, "maum nai." A glance of quiet contempt is noticed in his countenance when following the departure from his presence of mediocre superiors. For Burra Sahib, Major Meade, Tania appears to have considerable respect. Meade is reported by his own men and all who know him to be a kind man and a good soldier. We have generally noticed that a brave, courageous, and considerate soldier is never a martinet, consequently is respected by those who serve under him, and ultimately succeeds in his profession. It would be well for the army were there more of such men.

Tania had his charge read to him on Wednesday and Thursday, to which he made a statement, which was afterwards prepared and read to him by a moonshee, he listening attentively, now and then correcting the moonshee. He afterwards signed this latter document in good English writing, "Tania Topee." He disclaims all participation in the massacre at Cawnpore, or in the killing of Europeans, except in fair fight; and he also absolves from the same imputation the Nana Sahib, who, Tania says, was at one time made a prisoner by his own men, because he would not proceed with them to Delhi. Tania attributes the massacre and subsequent murders to the unrestrained, infuriated soldiery. He states that he himself put provisions, &c., on board the boats at Cawnpore, and that no orders were given to commit the atrocities that ultimately took place. Tania says he was fourth in command at Cawnpore; and was afterwards in command at Calpee, where he was four months. At the battle of the Betwa he had the greatest rebel army which had been under his command—22,000 men, with 130 pieces of artillery, but afterwards at Koonch it had dwindled down to 8,000. When the Gwalior Contingent came down on Agra, on the 10th of October, Tania commanded, and had then 8,000 with him. He says he would then have given Greathead more to do had he not been deceived by the red jackets of the 3rd Bengal Europeans and the noise they made, thinking the reinforcement was greater than it really was. Sir Hugh Rose in his Gwalior despatches gives Tania Topee credit for the skilful disposition of his troops when Sir Hugh attacked them and made the rebels so quickly fly from Gwalior. The last affair which Tania states he was engaged in was at Dowsa, in January last, when Brigdr. Showers came on the rebels by surprise one morning just before daylight. Tania was at some distance in rear when Showers made the attack; but ultimately in this affair had a splendid gray charger shot under him. The rebels were then completely disorganised, disputes were high among their chiefs, and guards were bolting with the scanty ways and means, which were now beginning to be more difficult to get hold of than they had hitherto been. Since then Tania Topee has been a wanderer and a vagabond until the betrayer, Maun Sing, assisted Meade in capturing him.

Tania was under trial by a court-martial nearly the whole of Friday at Captain Field's bungalow. When the officer told him the previous day to prepare for his trial, Tania said that he knew for fighting against the British Government his punishment would be death; he wanted no court, and he therefore wished to be despatched (holding up his manacles) from this misery either from a gun or by the noose as quickly as possible. He did not wish to see his family, but the only thing he asked the Government was that they would not punish his family for transactions in which they had no concern.

Tania Topee is a native of Poona, which he left thirty years ago, and it is stated he was a Government pensioner, having been at one time in the Company's military service. Latterly he was in the service of the Nana at Bithoor, as a keranie. He is forty-nine years of age, stands about five feet six, is stout and well made, has a pretty large head of great breadth from ear to ear; it is covered bountifully with strong grey hair, with beard, moustache, and whiskers to match. His cheek-bones are slightly elevated, and his black eye, under sharply-arched eyebrows, is clear and piercing. Altogether his features are intelligent and expressive, denoting decision, energy, and ability. Tania is a Brahmin, and the Brahminical cord is always very religiously placed over the ear when he goes out of his tent to prepare his meals, &c. He performs his ablutions, goes through his genuflexions, and prepares and devours his khanna once a day with all the strictness and religious ceremonies of his caste, having members of the Brahmin caste there to attend him.

I have now given you all I can at present glean concerning the celebrated rebel chief, Tania Topee, whose military skill and ability were worthy of better troops in a better cause. I suppose his charge, proceedings at his trial, and statement will ultimately be given to the public for their information. The execution was announced as about to take place as I was writing (4 P.M.), so I proceeded to where the scaffold was erected. The ground was kept by some men of the 24th and 9th N.I., and some of Meade's horse. Tantia was brought from his tent in the fort by an escort of the 3rd Bengal Europeans; and then a considerable square was formed with the gallows in the centre. The companies of the 24th and 9th N.I. formed one side; the men of the 14th dragoons and 17th lancers, who had come into the station that morning and the previous day, were drawn up on another side; the detachment of the 3rd Bengals and Meade's horse, in considerable strength, formed the two remaining sides. A considerable number of natives were scattered all over the plain, and any little elevation commanding a view of the scaffold was thickly studded with white-clad spectators. Tantia had expressed some anxiety to know his fate, and to have it expeditiously executed. Consequently at 12 (noon) it was intimated to him that he was to be executed that evening. He again feelingly expressed a wish that, as they were about to take his life, the Government would see to his baba in Gwalior. Major Meade read the charge, that he, being a resident of Bithoor, in British territory, was guilty of rebellion in waging war against the British Government. The finding of the Court was Guilty; and the sentence, that he be hanged by the neck until he was dead. The mistree then knocked off the leg-irons, he mounted the rickety ladder with as much firmness as handcuffs would allow him, was then pinioned, and his legs tied, he remarking that there was no necessity for these operations, and he then deliberately put his head into the noose, which being drawn tight by the executioner, the fatal bolt was drawn. He struggled very slightly, and the "mehters" were called to drag him straight. A sergeant of the 3rd Bengals acted as hangman. Thus finished the career of the rebel chief Tantia Topee, with all the due solemnities of British military routine. When the suspended body became motionless, the troops were all marched off, and the body remained hanging for the remainder of the evening. After the troops left, a great scramble was made by officers and others to get a lock of hair, &c.—Bombay Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXPORT DUTY ON RICE.—A writer in the Phoenix has some remarks on the policy of imposing an export duty on rice. He holds that it is in Calcutta alone and the districts from which, by means of internal communication, it draws its supplies, that the grain has been trebled in price. In four years the total exports have risen from fifty-two to eighty-two lakhs of maunds. It is impossible to increase the area of cultivation save by means of roads, and as the demand for exportation increases the price must go up. It is farther kept up by the native traders, who, acting in concert with each other, buy up all supplies, and drive competition out of the market. A heavy export duty would neutralize their arrangements, and bring down prices to their natural level. Those districts which produce rice for the export trade are already overpressed, and until more land is brought under cultivation, and means of communication are increased, an export duty, he says, will prevent excessive export and famine.

MOVEMENTS OF THE REBELS.—Since the 3rd April the rebels, who were turned out of the hills by Jung Bahadoor, have been giving trouble on the frontier of Oude. After being repulsed by Brigadier Horsford, in front of Toolseepore, they crept westward under the hills, and attacked the police post of Bunhounce. The police being in a defensible position were able to hold their own. They then threatened the Kumaon battalion under Major Ramsay, at Musha, on the 4th and 5th, and appear to have broken up into several parties, three of which have burst into the plains. One party passing near Bingah crossed the Raptée and attacked Akonah, where the small party of police resisted gallantly until overwhelmed by a second body of rebels coming up. They were then defeated, and Akonah was looted and burned. The rebels then passed to the south-east, along the banks of the Koanee river, and were last heard of in the jungles about Bunkussia and Etona. They have been joined by a second and third party, and probably altogether muster 2,000, under (it is said) Baneé Madho, Hurdut Sing of Boundee, the Gondah Rajah, and Baneé Sing of Hurra. Another party attempted to cross the ford near Sidhona Ghaut, on the Raptée. They were first driven back, but eventually crossed lower down, under Oomrao Sing, collector. They are chiefly cavalry, and give out that they intend to join Tantia Topee! Other parties remain under, or just inside, the lower hills, and the Begum, Nana, and their followers, are still in the neighbourhood of the Goruckpore Terai. It is said to be their intention to move westward also. Some Sikh sowars surrendered at Nanpara, and one or two of the Oude irregulars and 1st light cavalry at Toolseepore. They all looked half starved, and report that the rebels are quite done up and broken-hearted. Our troops have not been idle all this time, and those at Gonda, Baraitch, and Nanpara have all been moving. It is expected that they must have attacked some of these rebel bands before now. The Bays have been moved from Nawabgunge Bara Dunkee to Secroora, and Sir Hope Grant, accompanied by Major Bruce, chief of police, left Lucknow for Fyzabad on the 11th. The general, I presume, intends personally to undertake the direction of the operations necessary for the expulsion of the rebels from the Gondah district, which they seem bent on resorting to. It is said that they are digging up some guns that were previously buried in the districts. The remnant of the Nusseerabad camp under Sir Hope Grant's old opponent, General Dabee Deen, forms one portion of the rebels. The disposition of our troops, by latest accounts, was as follows:—The Bays and two guns were at Secroora. One regiment of Hodson's horse and two guns en route to Fyzabad with General Grant. One regiment of Hodson's horse, a detachment of 1st Sikh cavalry, and her Majesty's 20th regiment, with some guns, at Gondah. A column had also moved out to Manickpore. A small column has likewise gone from Azimgurh to Gondah. On the frontier, Brigadier Horsford had left Toolseepore with a column—moving westward. Major Ramsay was at Bingah, in the neighbourhood of that place and Akonah, there are the Kamaon battalion, the Morabad levy, 400 Jezzailchees, two guns, detachments of 1st Punjab and Oude police cavalry, and 100 police infantry. Colonel Hill was still at Baraitch, and Major Vaughan's column at Sidhona Ghaut. There is a regiment of police infantry at Durreabad, and the Ghauts on the Gogra from Byram Ghaut to Fyzabad are watched by police sowars. A party of rebel sowars went down to the Kyree Ghaut, opposite Mullapore, on the 8th or 9th of April, but finding the boats on the other side of the river, and the banks well guarded, they passed up the stream to the westward, and were last heard of at Zalimuggur, endeavouring to find boats to cross the Gogra. On the 11th, Colonel Cornick, with his force, came upon a body of them at Muchlagaon, east of Gonda, killed some twenty or thirty, and drove the rest into the jungles. On the 13th, the same officer attacked and routed a party on the road from Gonda to Fyzabad, about four miles from the former place. Between three and four hundred of the enemy were killed; the remainder dispersed and took refuge in the jungles. The casualties on our side were very trifling. The telegraph wire between Gonda and Fyzabad was cut on the 11th, but has since been repaired. Beni Madho, Bala Lao, the Begum, and Nana are believed to be still on the borders of Nepal, among the lower hills, on the Oude and Goruckpore frontier.—Lucknow Herald.

MAHOMED HUSSEIN was a person of some importance amongst the rebels, and his surrender is likely to prove an example which will be very largely followed. He is an uncle of Mehudee Hussein, late chuckladar of Salone, who played so conspicuous a part during the Oude disturbances, and was himself a chuckladar once of a large district in the Goruckpore division. Mehudee Hussein, and some of his relatives, who came in some time ago under the amnesty, have, however, been making themselves scarce lately, and we believe inquiries are being made as to what has become of them. Some say (but we doubt it) that Mehudee Hussein himself is in attendance on Major Barrow, while his relatives are "gone into the country."

DEATH OF COMMISSIONER YEH.—The public is reminded of the once notorious Commissioner Yeh, by the intelligence of his death. He died at Calcutta on the night of the 9th of April, after a not very alarming illness of some three weeks' duration. The Englishman says he was jolly to the last, retaining his genuine Chinese type of stoicism. "So far," continues our contemporary, "from compunction of conscience for having, at the very lowest computation, beheaded one hundred thousand fellow-creatures, his only regret seems to have been his inability to take the lives of all the rebels and their kindred." Yeh seems to have been a fair specimen of his nation—shrewd, arrogant, cold, and cruel; indifferent in regard to his own life, and ready to sacrifice the lives of others in hecatombs on the slightest provocation.

SERVICE MESSAGE from Officiating Secretary to Government, N.W. Provinces.—April 7, 2.45 P.M.—The Magistrate of Mirzapore reported yesterday that Singowlie rebels crossed the Soane and entered the Southern Pergunnahs on the 3rd inst.; that they proceeded via Manchee, and descended the north side of the Kymmoo range, and on the 4th inst. were plundering the country, Tuppah, Resowlie, Pergunnahs, Brijingarh. This morning news has been received that Lieut. Knivet, with the Mirzapore police cavalry, attacked this party, and destroyed eighty of them. The rebels have not returned to the first range of hills. Those under Bala Rao and the Nana were still between the first and second range of hills, suffering greatly from scarcity of food. The Begum is still further back. Colonel Kelly intended proceeding to Tuleah, to act with Colonel Ross against the rebels. The Gonda Rajah and Nusseerabad brigade have gone westward.

GORUCKPORE FRONTIER, April 2.—A portion of Brigadier Horsford's brigade had a fight with a body of rebels the day before yesterday between Toolseepore and Siswa. The particulars of the action have not reached us, but it is said the enemy fought with more energy and vigour than ever, and that Gordon, second in command of the 10th Punjab infantry, was killed, and his adjutant severely wounded. It is reported that when poor Gordon's body was found his head was gone, taken away of course by the rebels. The Begum, with nine or ten thousand men, and two horse artillery guns, is encamped at a place called Bishwah, about five miles from Siswa, close to the hills, and has told her men that they must conquer or die; that if they are caught they will be all hung like dogs. She has also given instruction that, should the British troops appear likely to overpower her force, every woman in her camp is to be killed—herself to be the first despatched. The report of an European female and several other Christian women being in the rebel camp is contradicted by all the villages the rebels have visited. A force of about 600 men of all arms and two guns, under the command of Colonel Brasyer, Ferozepore regiment of Sikhs, left Dokreeah last evening to pay their respects to the Begum, and as Colonel Brasyer is a very polite and gallant officer, I have no doubt that he will meet with her highness, and that there will be a warm reception on both sides. Colonel Kelly has had two "goes" at the rebels. The first was on the 24th of last month, when the Sikhs and Jat horse took four guns. The second was on the 28th, in which her Majesty's 13th regiment and 34th highly distinguished themselves, by pitching into the rebels in true English style. The enemy lost five elephants, a lot of horses with their trappings, and other valuable property.—Lucknow Herald.

OUDE REBELS.—Mahomed Hussun and his nephew Mahomed Newas, with 300 followers and six elephants, surrendered on the 31st March; some ninety Affghans and Persians, mostly cavalry, also came into Colonel Kelly's camp, and laid down their arms. The rebels are said to be working through the jungle at night to westward; every exertion is being made to stop them, and the posts along the frontier have been strengthened.

BUXAR, April 11.—Rebels still moving about in different parts of Shahabad, and a report this morning says that from 120 to 150 of them were surprised yesterday by one of our parties from Arrah, and had all surrendered, after burning a village called Roopsaugar, near Dooniaon. I hope this is the case, and that the other fellows may soon be caught.

THE UNCOVENANTED.—It is understood that, as a preliminary step towards opening promotion generally to distinguished members of the Uncovenanted Service, a few extra joint magistracies, on Rs.800 a month, are to be created for them, and that hereafter, on the reorganization of the North-West Provinces and the assimilation to a certain extent of its system of administration with those of Oude and the Punjab, the officers who hold these joint magistracies will be eligible for collectorships. To what extent exactly, and under what limitation promotion is hereafter to be the mead of desert, without reference to the distinctions between the two services, we have yet to learn, but it is unquestionable that the Home Government is favourably inclined to this reform, and that instructions for its initiation have been issued.

THE SIKHS.—Every year in the Punjab the learned pundits issue a pothee, or extract, from their Granth, or Holy Book. As their religion is greatly mixed up with astrology, astronomy, legends, and mystical allusions, the eclipse of the moon, sun, &c., are given by these pundits with great exactness, and by the aid of astrology these pretend to prophesy great events. These pothees, as I said before, are early circulated in manuscript. A pothee of this description has lately been circulated in Lahore, describing that Khalsa rule would be established in 1916 of their era,—now this is 1915, so that only a few months are wanting for 1916 to appear; therefore the Friend of India's assertion that 1863 is predicted for the regaining the Khalsa rule is an error. Besides, Colonel Cheyt Sing was not the only Sikh who had this pothee; a great many, if not almost every Sikh family had it with the same prediction. The fact of only two persons, viz. Cheyt Sing and Bood Sing, having been implicated, is explained by the fact, reported and believed by the Sikhs at Lahore, that a certain party (stated to have great influence with Sir John) desired some presents from these two men, who refused, and this case was trumped up against them. It is true, Rajah Tejah Sing and Mool Sing were brought forward as evidence against them; but an old feud is said to have existed between the witnesses and the persons implicated. However this may be, one thing is certain, that many other families had the document. Why did not the informants enlighten the authorities as to the existence of its wide circulation? As soon as the papers of Cheyt Sing and Bood Sing were seized, the Sikhs destroyed all the pothees in their possession, so that there should be no evidence against them; and it is reported that the informant himself and the witness had them also, but destroyed them. Our Government, therefore, cannot be too cautious how it takes native evidence, which frequently springs from interested motives.—Lahore Chronicle.

THE "SECUNDRIA PRESS."—On the recommendation of the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces, the Government of India have sanctioned the disbursement of Rs. 80,000 for the purchase of printing materials for the Secundria Press, which has lately been purchased by Government. The entertainment of an establishment for the above-mentioned Press, involving an expense of Rs. 8,800 per month, has also been sanctioned.

PERJURY IN BENGAL.—Our new judge, though evidently both learned and acute, is a very green hand in India. In his charge to the grand jury, he said that in the six weeks of his incumbency on this bench, he had seen more perjury and forgery than in eighteen years' practice at the English bar! If he saw this in the supreme court, what would he say to those of the Mofussil? Here, in Calcutta, there is some little fear of detection and punishment; but none whatever in the Mofussil courts. There perjury and forgery are trades; and a lawsuit is a game of skill, in which any kind of cheating is permissible, provided it is not detected. Not long ago we heard that a Mofussil judge, addressing a gentleman who was frequently a suitor in his court, said to him:—"I see these witnesses of yours in all your cases: this is rather too strong, for I am now quite familiar with their faces." The reply was:—"If you desire it, sir, I will bring others next time; but I have taken great pains to train these men, and they are now well acquainted with their business!" It is to be hoped that Sir M. Wells will soon thoroughly understand the nature of the courts to which it is proposed to trust the lives of Englishmen, and the sort of evidence upon which their innocence or guilt is to be determined.—Englishman.

RAJAH OF KUPPOORTHULLA.—The Kuppooorthulla Contingent at Hurdul has been disbanded; so have the Delhi Pioneers at Lucknow, their services being no longer required. The Rajah of Kuppooorthulla returns to his dominions in the Punjab in a day or two. He seems to entertain the notion of visiting Europe, but has been advised, we believe, to postpone doing so for the present. His services have been most handsomely rewarded by the Government of India. The districts of Doondiah Khara and Bondee, in Oude, yielding an annual revenue of some three lacs of rupees, have been assigned to him and his heirs in perpetuity. He is also to receive a khillut, or dress of honour, of very great value.

GRANTS OF LAND IN OUDE.—We are informed that Government intends to offer to British subjects grants of land in Oude, on very liberal terms, and that some of those gentlemen who are best acquainted with the country have already made applications. If Oude were completely tranquilized, there is no part of northern India which would offer greater inducements to agricultural speculators. The soil is rich, and the facility of sending produce to the Calcutta market very great, and labour can easily be obtained. Whether an occupier will be very safe on his grant is another matter, but the experiment must be left to his own discretion.

PUNJAB RAILWAYS.—We hear that owing to some misunderstanding between the Consulting Engineer to Government in the railway department and the railway officials in the Punjab, orders have been received from the Supreme Government suspending further operations on the line. We trust, however, that it is only of a temporary nature, and that the work will shortly be proceeded with again.

AZIMGHUR, April 11.—Here is a specimen of Lord Canning's peace. Three nights ago, a strong party of Europeans, some native cavalry, and about 100 of the new police, left secretly for some place in the interior. Next night, two guns royal artillery, with full detail of men and ammunition, with some more troops, left at night. The natives say that a strong party of rebels have crossed over from Goruckpore. Be this true or not, troops have gone out, and there must be something to call for the exposure of Europeans in this weather.

MR. TAYLER'S CASE has been considered by the Supreme Council, and it was decided that if he intends to resign the public service, there is no occasion for any further investigation, unless Mr. Tayler himself wishes it. The Governor General was of opinion that in the course of Mr. Tayler's proceedings, men had been condemned and executed on insufficient evidence, but did not think it necessary to refer his proceedings to the Sudder judges, unless he himself desires it. It therefore remains with the ex-Commissioner to decide whether he desires enquiry.

GORUCKPORE, April 10.—Colonel Kelly reports, under date the 9th April, that no rebels remain anywhere near the foot of the hills, in the vicinity of Ruttunpore. The villagers say that the rebels were all moving westwards, and the main body between the two ranges had intended coming out of the hills somewhere east of Terawliah. The jungle at the foot of the hills is said to be full of arms thrown away by the rebels. The Ranees of Gonda, aunt of Dabee Bux, with 140 men, 50 women, 2 elephants, and 15 horses, gave herself up to Captain Jackson, Lahore light horse. They say they have seen no rebels in larger bodies than from ten to twenty, who were proceeding westward. It is added that the fair at Ajoodia, held on the 11th, passed off very quietly.

INDIAN NAVY MEN IN BENGAL.—Nearly a hundred of the command of Capt. Hurlock halted at Dinapore on the 7th April, being on their way from Julpaigoore to Calcutta, via Rampore Bauleah. Several of the men are ill, and one was drowned in a tank whilst diving. The men, we are told, are very orderly, and have given no trouble. We (Englishman) question the policy of their removal whilst the rebels and the mutineers are hovering about the skirts of Nepaul, and reaching so far as even Bhaugulpore. What should prevent them from making irruptions into Purneah, Dinapore, and Maladah? Their advent may be a mere flitting across from place to place, but they will inevitably leave traces of plunder, cruelty, and devastation wherever they have been.

FAVETE LINGUIS.—A circular has been issued by the chief engineer of the North-West Provinces to all officers in the public works department, quoting a letter from the Secretary of State for India to the Local Government, forbidding officers in Government employ from entering into correspondence with the projectors of schemes which have been referred for the consideration of Government, or from expressing in any way opinions which may be employed by the directors of companies in England to gain the support of the public to their proposed undertakings. The occurrence that led to the issue of this prohibition was that Colonel Goodwyn, chief engineer, Lower Provinces, Bengal, gave a professional opinion to the North of India Tramroad Company regarding the merits of their scheme. The order is a reasonable one, that is, on the supposition that the principle upon which Government acts towards its officers is, "what's yours is mine, and what's mine is my own."

THE MAHOMEDAN KAZES in the North-West Provinces have been hitherto in the habit of receiving khilluts and other presents at the occurrence of the festival of the Eed. Government has ordered that the practice be discontinued, as making an invidious distinction between Mahomedans and Hindoos.

BRIGADIER STUART CORBETT, C.B., left Meer on the 2nd April, under the usual salute, en route to Calcutta and England, having made over the command of the Lahore brigade to the next senior officer, Colonel A. C. Errinton, H.M.'s 51st. K. O. L. I.

COLONEL SMITH'S COLUMN. SISWAH, OUDE, 12th April, 1859.—Colonel Smith's column, composed of the Lahore light horse, under command of Captain Jackson, 7th Punjab infantry, under command of Captain Stafford, and Vivian's pathans, arrived at Siswah on the 7th from Dhukuhree. Two companies of Her Majesty's 73rd and two guns Bengal horse artillery joined the above force on the 10th. Colonel Brasyer, with his Sikhs, and a troop of Bengal yeomanry cavalry is at Bussorah, two koss north-west of Siswah. The Ranees of Gonda (aunt of the present Rajah Dabee Bux) gave herself up at Bunniah Barree to Capt. Jackson, when on his way with the 7th Punjab infantry to join Col. Smith's column at Dhukuhree. The Ranees had with her about 300 followers, but no regular sepoys. She appeared very pleased at the prospect of returning to her home, and was treated with every consideration in camp, which she accompanied to Dhukuhree. She is said to be upwards of 100 years old. Amongst her suite were some handsome women, but their countenances showed signs of having suffered from the effects of the erratic life they have of late been leading. One of Dabie Bux's wives was also with the Ranees, but being young and beautiful she kept herself studiously behind the Purdah. The weather at present is cool and pleasant, and the troops are healthy enough. The villagers, however, give a very bad account of the sickness that prevails in this neighbourhood at some seasons of the year. Dabie Bux, with several thousand men, is within ten miles of Siswah; strong hopes are entertained of his coming in and giving himself up to Colonel Smith. A patrol of the Lahore light horse surprised a party of rebels a short distance from camp a few days ago, and succeeded in capturing two prisoners with arms, who proved to be sepoy of the 2nd Oude local infantry.—Delhi Gazette.

CAMP CAMPBELLPORE, April 14.—The 5th European light cavalry, under command of Lieut. Colonel Moore, left Peshawar on the 9th, and arrived at their new station, Campbellpore, on the 14th, the men are in capital health, nearly all mounted, and promise to make first-rate dragoons. About seven o'clock in the evening of the 13th inst., a private of H.M.'s 98th regiment, named Francis Moon, was struck with lightning, which ignited his clothes, and scorched him all over; he was sent to the hospital, where he died in a few minutes. The head-quarters of the 98th regiment proceed to Nowshera. This is one of the healthiest stations in India, but it is not to be a permanent one, as it is off the grand trunk road.

BARRACKPORE, April 13.—The Governor General arrived here on Monday last, and I believe is to remain for some days; Lady Canning also came on Monday, having preceded his lordship by a few hours; the grand demonstrations made to do honour to the Viceroy on his arrival were all thrown away, owing to the time of his coming not having been reported; guard of honour, band, banner-rolls, after taking an airing (luckily the sun had some compassion and hid himself), returned to their quarters, no salute was fired, so that for some time we were all unconscious of the proximity of this great personage. Lord Harris is a guest of his lordship's. It is quite a relief to witness the activity of several gangs of natives employed levelling, draining, and otherwise brushing up the vicinity of the barracks; I also noticed that some of the roofs, or rather those scientific ventilators, before alluded to, had disappeared, whether owing to the high wind of the other night, or the storm raised by Brigdr. Christie about the ears of the functionaries whose duty it is to look to these matters I cannot exactly say, but I should give the preference to the brigdr. Every article of consumption in the station, from being very dear, has become almost unprocureable; everything is sent to the Calcutta market; it is not to be wondered at that natives should take their produce to the best market; but with all these additional expenses, and the new tariff, Lord Canning might with great justice withdraw that obnoxious rule with regard to half batta; a rule, moreover, that is left at present entirely to the arbitrary enforcement or not of the auditor general. To give you some idea of the preposterous measure, I have only to mention that an officer of a regiment which mutinied beyond the two hundred miles' circle, if on leave in Calcutta, draws full batta; if doing duty with a native regiment, or one of the new European regiments at this station, he draws half batta; whilst if interpreter to, or doing duty with, a Queen's regiment, he draws full batta—a distinction truly, and with a great difference.—Delhi Gazette.

UMRITER, April 12.—The works of the Great Baree Doab C. L. P. are so far advanced that the waters of the Ravee were admitted at Madhopoor on the 11th April, with perfect success. It was understood that Mr. Cust, the commissioner, would be called on to perform the ceremony of opening the canal, but there appears to have been some mistake, and Mr. Temple took his place. The great work being so far forward, two of the chief officers connected with this fine undertaking, Captain Dyas and Captain Crofton, proceed at once to England.

PUNJAB ITEMS.—Major Becher, deputy commissioner, Hazara, has been directed to proceed to Cashmeer, to act as referee for European travellers during the ensuing hot season. Captain Adams, officiating deputy commissioner, Goojrat, has been transferred to Hazara as officiating deputy commissioner. Mr. Hardinge, assistant commissioner, Murree, has been transferred to Goojrat, as officiating deputy commissioner. Captain Baker, assistant to the chief engineer, Punjab, has obtained two months' privilege leave. Government have sanctioned a staff allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem to Mr. Murphy, ex-assistant Delhi division, for the period he acted as interpreter during the State trials.

MIRZAPUR.—The band of rebels who murdered the railway engineers at Banda, and were subsequently thrashed at Rewah by Osborn, made their way into Singrowli, the southernmost pergunnah of the Mirzapoor district. There they loitered for about a fortnight, putting sundry villages under contribution, after which they moved eastward towards Sasseram. Colonel Turner then came to meet them, while Captain Graham, from the South West frontier agency, closed in on the South, and the Mirzapoor levy came down on them from the North. The rebels then crossed the Soane and ascended the Kymore range. They were followed by Lieut. Knyvett, the commandant Mirzapoor levy, and Mr. Simson, the joint magistrate, with some fifty police cavalry. Our party came up with them in the north of Pergunnah Bidjaygurb, and forthwith attacked, the result being eighty rebels left dead on the field and two prisoners taken. The details of this gallant action have not yet reached us, but it is known that we had the Rissaldar Naib Rissaldar and six sowars severely wounded. The rebels then fled down the course of the Kurumnassa, and appeared yesterday at a railway station called Gulimur, twelve miles west of Buxar, where they nearly killed Mr. French, the overseer, and were all last night crossing to the left bank of the Ganges. It is impossible to say what these ruffians intend to do, whether to make for the Nepal Terai and join the Nana, or whether to try and throw the districts of Azimgurb and Ghazepore into disorder, as they did last year; but one thing is certain, that travelling at the rate they do we cannot catch them up.—Delhi Gazette.

LIEUT. W. C. GRANT, 2nd dragoon guards (Queen's bays), has been appointed to the command of the 1st regiment of Hodson's horse, vice Brevet Major Sir H. Havelock, Bart., H.M.'s 18th regiment, proceeding to Europe on leave of absence.

PHILIBRETT, April 18.—The rebels, about 20,000 strong, have arrived in the Khayreeghur district, and are encamped from Nanparah to Zalimnuggur Ghat, on the Komala river. The Begum and Benee Madho are with them: it was expected they would engage Horsford's brigade at Baraitech. Another party, about 10,000, under Gunga Sing, is about six miles below Maudho Ghat, on the Sirdah river. Colonel Smyth's force moved from Siswah Ghat yesterday, 17th, after them. This place has sent a force out to strengthen Siswah Ghat, and some cavalry came in from Bareilly this morning to reinforce the 17th Punjab infantry here. There are no troops between the Sirdah and Nanparah. De Kantzow, with his Mooltan cavalry, is at Pulleeah, but had to fall back for want of support. Another hot weather campaign certain.

MUTTRA.—On Sunday evening, the 10th of April, one of the barrack rooms provided temporarily for the use of her Majesty's 6th dragoon guards at Muttra was totally destroyed by fire. The conflagration commenced about 8 p.m., and spread with such rapidity that in spite of the exertions of the men of the Bengal horse artillery and her Majesty's 6th dragoon guards, it was found impossible to save any part of the building, which was completely destroyed in little more than an hour after the alarm was given.

The men, however, were rewarded for their hard unpleasant duty in smoke and heat, which would frighten away any ordinary soldier, by preventing the fire from spreading to any other building. A high wind in gusts was blowing generally from the west, the thatches of the neighbouring barrack-room and hospital were well wetted, and the men deserve much praise. We (Delhi Gazette) are sorry to say that one of the men of the 6th dragoon guards was severely injured by a fall from the burning roof while endeavouring to arrest the progress of the flames. The scene is described as frightful, and the heat in the neighbourhood intense. The heavy rolling masses of lurid red smoke, and the crashing sound of falling timbers, might have brought to the remembrance of some of the spectators another Sunday evening, which was also the 10th of the month, and which few who witnessed can ever forget. It is asserted that there is no doubt that the fire originated in accident, though the exact cause is not ascertained.

DELHI, April 9.—NOTICE, DELHI MASSACRE.—Persons of limited means, desirous of erecting mural tablets to the memory of deceased relatives or friends murdered at Delhi in 1857, are informed that in such cases the Lord Bishop of Calcutta, at the request of the chaplain at Delhi, has consented to allow mural monuments to be placed in St. James' Church, free of all faculty fees, provided the mural monuments shall not exceed in dimensions 24 inches by 18 inches, or 21 inches square (superficial), and that no tablet obtrudes more than 3 inches from the plaster or coating of the wall of the interior. A copy of the intended inscription is, however, always to be previously submitted for the bishop's or archdeacon's approval through the Chaplain.

THE 31ST REGIMENT N.L.I. left Saugor on the 2nd April, for Calpee, which place they intended reaching about the 23rd or 24th. The regiment is nearly 800 strong, of whom more than 100 are in hospital. The officers present were Major W. P. Hampton, commanding, Major Legard, Lieutenant Fellows, adjutant and acting quarter master, Lieutenants T. H. Lewin, and C. R. Cock, doing duty, and Assistant surgeon Taylor.

ANGLISH SPIK HEERE.—My dear Baboo,—“Will you be good enough to send our pay with the bearer so soon as he arrived to you, as the office closed at 12 o'clock, and no one stopped there; if you will send the pay after past 12 o'clock the money should be scarcely kept in good order, and perhaps may be stolen by no doubt; so I hope you having considered properly of what told, do as you like better.”—Yours truly, Baboo GHOSE.

MUSSOORIE, April 14.—The rangers are still in expectation of being finally disposed of in some way. Their present commandant, Major Need, has been directed to join his regiment, the 6th Europeans, at Hazareebagh, and Major Woolen has got the command pro temp. Have you heard of the valuable mineral discoveries lately made by a gallant son of Mars in the Upper Dhoon? Lead, copper, salt, and iron; the latter of the finest ores. All that is wanted is coal, and, no doubt, that but requires looking for to be brought to light. Captain Hutton, Invalids (under Government orders), is superintending the breeding of silkworms at Jheree Paunee, half way down to Rajpore. It has lately been found out that the worms eat and thrive famously on oak-leaves. Visitors continue flocking up, and it will be, as usual, a bumper season.

NORTH OF INDIA TRAMROAD COMPANY.—The directors of this company have received a letter from the Council of India declining the agency of the company, on the ground that the Government itself had determined to carry out the proposals originally made by the company. The directors have therefore decided on immediately dividing the assets in hand, amounting to 1s. 3d. per share. This amount will be paid to the scrip-holders at the office of the company, on surrendering their scrip or banker's receipt.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEELLORE EXHIBITION.—The General Exhibition in this district has been postponed till March or April, 1860. Government have sanctioned the erection of a permanent building for the exhibition, to serve also as a local museum. The cost of the building, the total expense of the cattle show to be held in December, and of the exhibition in 1860, is not to exceed Rs. 5,000.

THE PENITENTIARY.—Government have sanctioned a proposal of the Commissioner of police to purchase works of a moral, instructive, and engaging nature, such as "Dickens' Household Words," "Chambers' Edinburgh Journal," "The Leisure Hour," "Sunday at Home," for the use of the European inmates of the penitentiary. Col. Boulderson stated that a large number of Europeans are at all times in confinement in the penitentiary; some are convicts under sentence passed on them at the Supreme Court or by other magistrates; others—and by far the largest and most fluctuating number, many of whom are intelligent men, who have received some degree of education,—are imprisoned for breach of one or more of the provisions of the Merchant Seamen's Act only. All hands are, however, subjected to hard labour daily, and therefore all are employed for some hours; but there still remains some time, which, in the absence of sources of mental improvement, is passed in idleness, and for this he thought it desirable that a remedy should be provided. At present the prison is supplied with books of a strictly religious nature only, and these the prisoners seldom take up, except when visited by the chaplain. Colonel Boulderson thought that the introduction of the books suggested by him might be productive of great benefit to some of the inmates, in a mental and reformatory point of view.

NABOB OF THE CARNATIC.—The hearing of claims against the estate of the late Nabob of the Carnatic, under Act XXX. of 1858, has lately been occupying much of the time of the Supreme Court at Madras. As yet nearly all the claimants have been successful, the chief dispute being as to who shall pay the costs of the suit. The Advocate General contended that costs should not be given against the Government, as they would fall, not on the heirs of the Nabob, but on the public purse; and as the Government was acting under Act XXX. of 1858, and its position was not analogous to that of an administrator or executor. The court decided that the successful claimants were entitled to their costs in the usual manner, unless there was anything special in the facts of the case which disentitled them.

SIR C. TREVELYAN AND THE DEPUTY COLLECTORS.—Madras has been agitated by a rumour that Sir Charles Trevelyan had recalled from the Mofussil, for the purpose of undergoing an examination, a batch of deputy collectors appointed and sent out in the last days of his predecessor. By some the measure is condemned as "unusual" which in the circumlocution office is a synonym of "improper." Others admit that it may be justified by special and very cogent reasons. The Athenaeum informs us that the friends of the deputy collectors and of the late governor are exceedingly indignant that appointments once made should be called in question, and naturally enough the friends of the least qualified are the loudest in complaint. Judging from the facts of the case, however, and supposing the truth of the exciting report, there can be no doubt that the new governor is acting with perfect propriety. It appears that the appointment of deputy collectors is an experiment, designed to prove whether uncovenanted aid may not be successfully introduced into the revenue department, thus lessening the expense without diminishing efficiency. There are many who, for obvious motives, desire the failure of this experiment, and it does not appear that even the late governor was very anxious for its success. Appointments made through interest alone, and without reference to qualification, would be a very ready means of ensuring failure; and these appointments were made by Lord Harris just before he resigned office, in order, we may suppose, to provide for a few humble hangers-on with strong recommendations to his favour. He had, in truth, no right to appoint men who were to work not under him but his successor; he ought to have left all such appointments to that successor. We think, then, that if Sir Charles Trevelyan has really recalled the deputy collectors for examination, he has, under the circumstances, and seeing the important results dependant on the efficiency of these men, done perfectly right; and we trust he will, without mercy, send to the right-about every one of them who fails to prove his qualification for the office to which he has aspired.—Bombay Gazette.

COMPULSORY HIRE.—The Government of Madras, under Sir Charles Trevelyan, in passing a long-standing Bill for cart hire, records its opinion as follows:—"The Government regard the present as another instance of the wasteful character of the evil system of compulsory hire. It is to be hoped that the time will soon arrive when the system will be entirely abolished, for it is impossible that the character of the people can improve, or the resources of the country be developed, while subjected to the blighting and depressive influence of such an infliction, which is multiplied a hundredfold through the opportunity for exaction so given to the numerous native subordinate officers." There is much said in few words here. The liability to find himself dragged from his own ordinary work, and compelled to do the bidding of Government officials at an arbitrary rate of hire, must act as a blight on the feeble energies of the Indian labourer, upon whom, after all, so much depends for the development of the resources.

THE NEW TARIFF.—The recent order of the collector of sea customs, that duties levied by the new tariff should be paid on all goods landed after the 12th March, has been set aside by the Board of Revenue. The collector had dated the operation of the new bill from the day when it became law at Calcutta; but the Board of Revenue have dated it from the day when the bill was promulgated in Madras. Accordingly the cargoes of all vessels, which anchored in the Madras Roads on or before the 24th of March, must be landed free of all duties chargeable by the new tariff, and where such duties have been paid they must now be remitted to the consignees.

GOVERNMENT CORRESPONDENCE.—A paper, referring to an important subject then under discussion by the Madras Government, had been made public; a minute by the Governor on the reform of the system of correspondence with the Home authorities, in the reduction of the amount of writing. Such a reform is a task for which Sir Charles Trevelyan must be peculiarly qualified from his long official experience at home; and its introduction seems to be regarded as a prominent object of his mission to India. Messrs. Pycroft and Bourdillon, in a joint memorandum, propose that for the future only such subjects should be reported as are deemed important by the secretaries in their several departments, and that each should be reported in a separate letter; that letters and reports be less prolix, but that each should tell its own story, without necessitating any reference to the documents accompanying them; and that all papers prepared in a slovenly manner be sent back to the writer for correction. These proposals have been generally sanctioned by the Governor, and will, we suppose, be carried into effect. They will cause a vast saving of time and trouble, here and at home, as also of paper, writing, and printing, with the expenses thereof. Finally, they will tend to facilitate and expedite public business to an extent which is worthy of consideration.

THE 1ST MADRAS FUSILIERS.—Under instructions from Sir Charles Trevelyan, the officer commanding the fusiliers issued the following address to the regiment on Friday, April the 1st:—"Colonel F. J. Fisher cannot permit Lieut. Seton to quit the regiment without publicly expressing his satisfaction at the zeal and ability with which he has conducted his department. The commanding officer has much satisfaction in publishing, for the information of the officers of the regiment, the following very flattering letter addressed to him by the new governor of Madras:—"Governor, Madras, 19th March, 1859. My dear Sir,—The first Madras Fusiliers have done so much honour to the Madras presidency, and so much good service to our nation, that I am glad of an opportunity of showing my appreciation of their gallantry, and I have, therefore, in consultation with Sir Patrick Grant and with his full approval, determined to propose to your adjutant, Mr. Seton, to become a member of my family as one of my aide-de-camps.—Believe me, my dear sir, yours very truly, (Signed) C. TREVELYAN."

UNIVERSITY OF MADRAS.—The Madras Spectator gives a long account of a convocation of the senate of the University of Madras for the purpose of conferring degrees in Arts and Medicine. Lord Harris presided as chancellor. It is important to notice the form adopted and to be adhered to in all time coming. There were seven native candidates for the bachelor's degree, and one Christian, Mr. G. W. Flynn, who is the first Indian graduate in medicine. The whole affair was managed with due academic dignity and pomp. The Lord Chancellor called on the registrar to read the names of the candidates and the reports of the examiners as to their fitness. The Chancellor then addressed each. "Do you sincerely promise and declare that if admitted to the degrees for which you are severally candidates, and for which you have been recommended, you will in your daily life and conversation conduct yourselves as becomes members of this university? Do you promise that to the utmost of your opportunity and ability you will support and promote the cause of morality and sound learning? Do you promise that you will, as far as in you lies, uphold and advance social order and the well-being of your fellow men?" To each of these questions separately put the candidates severally answered, "I do promise." The candidate for the M.D. degree replied in the same terms to the question, "Do you promise that you will faithfully and carefully fulfil the duties of the medical profession, that you will on all occasions maintain its purity and reputation, and that you will never deviate from the straight path of its honourable exercise by making your knowledge subservient to unworthy ends?" The candidates were then presented to his Lordship, who said to each, "By virtue of the authority vested in me as Chancellor of the University of Madras, I admit thee to the degree of (stating it) in this University, and in token thereof I present unto thee this diploma, and authorise thee to wear the hood ordained as insignia of this degree." Proclamation was then made that the candidates had been admitted to the degrees. The ceremony concluded with a long address.

A NEW SANITARIUM.—A correspondent of the Madras Athenæum calls attention to a neck of land running out to the seaward ten miles north-east of Cocanada, and eight from Samulcottah, as well adapted for a sanitarium or location for European troops. It is sheltered from the hot land winds even in March, April, and May, so that the thermometer seldom stands higher than 80°. There is no surf, and there is capital anchorage 500 fathoms from the beach. The soil is well adapted for brick-making, and lime is cheap, so that barracks might be built on the small hills close by. The place is named "Woopada."

AJMEER.—A prison is to be constructed at Ajmeer, where some of the principal leaders of the rebellion are to be confined.

RAJAH OF GOOND.—The Governor-General has confirmed the sentence of confiscation of the property of the Rajah of Goond.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OFFICIAL APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. F. Leggett, the assessor to the municipal commissioners, having obtained two months' leave on sick certificate, Mr. J. F. Hutchinson will act for him during his absence. Capt. H. Wallace, brigade major of artillery, has been appointed to act as town major, until further orders, vice Lyons. Capt. E. A. F. Bacon, of the 25th regiment N.I., has been appointed fort adjutant of Bombay, in succession to Capt. Newham of the 23rd regt. N.I., proceeding to Europe. Consequent on the retirement of Brevet Major H. J. Willoughby, of the 2nd European regiment light infantry, Capt. D'Oyly Compton, of the 29th regiment N.I., is appointed Paymaster of the Poona division of the army, and Capt. R. P. Warden, of the 16th regiment N.I., is appointed to act as Paymaster of the Southern division.

ENTERTAINMENT TO THE 25TH REGIMENT BOMBAY N.I.—A number of gentlemen at Mahabeshwar having expressed a desire to give an entertainment—a burra-khara and nautch—to the 25th N.I., in acknowledgment of their stanch loyalty and devoted gallantry throughout the recent campaign, a subscription list for that purpose is now in circulation, and is being well filled. Sir Henry Somerset has headed it with Rs. 200; Sir Hugh Rose, Rs. 150; Major gen. Woodburn, Rs. 100; Mr. Bettington, C.S., Rs. 100; Major Gen. Wyllie, Rs. 50; Capt. Armstrong, Rs. 30; Capt. Cooke, Rs. 10; Capt. Green, Rs. 5; and a dozen or so more in fiftens and tens. It is the intention of the subscribers to this entertainment to send an invitation to the regiment at once, through Brigadier Hale, commanding the station of Poona, leaving it optional with the native officers and men whether they would prefer an early day being fixed, or the 15th of June next, when Poona will be full of residents.—Poona Observer.

SNAKES.—Extract from the Digest of Intelligence of the deputy collector of Shabunder, for the week ending 12th March, 1859:—"The return of snakes destroyed numbers 485, for which the sum of Rs. 60 was awarded. For the week ending 19th March, 1859.—Snake-killing appears to be greatly on the increase; 760 this week, the rewards for the same amounting to Rs. 93-6.—Sind Kossid.

INLAND STEAM NAVIGATION.—We learn from the Sindian that Mr. Bourne, the inventor of the articulated river train for inland navigation, has arrived at Kurrachee for the purpose of superintending the practical working of his invention under the auspices of the Oriental Inland Steam Navigation Company, of which Mr. Bourne was the projector.

FORE-WARNED, FORE ARMED.—The following curious paragraph appears in the editorial columns of the Sind Kossid:—"A gun was discharged at us or close under our window at midnight of the 10th; this is no dream, for many others, including a party of police, heard the report. Our premises were searched, but no trace whatever was discovered either of gun or party who fired it. If the gentleman wishing to do for us understands English, and happens to see this issue of our paper, it will, perhaps, ease his conscience to learn that we were neither frightened nor hurt. He must not, however, repeat the freak, for we happen to have a quick eye, a steady hand, and a capital revolver. We would suggest to our friend the propriety of his giving us a little warning before he has his next shot at us. A gentle tap at our window, count three, and then he may blaze away so long as he is let."

BURNING OF THE "CATO."—The American ship Cato, Capt. J. S. Attwood, which arrived at Bombay from Calcutta, laden with sugar and rice, and was lying at anchor in the middle of the harbour, caught fire on the morning of the 9th of April, between one and two o'clock, by which serious damage has been occasioned. The fire appears to have originated in the hold of the vessel in consequence, it is supposed, of a lighted cheroot being carelessly thrown there by one of the crew. The destructive element had been quietly performing its work of undermining, and a long time elapsed before the flames burst forth to proclaim their sway over the combustible fabric, when an alarm was raised, and the captain and crew exhausted every means in their power to quench the raging flames, but with very little effect. The flames still raged with fury, and immediate assistance was sought for from the water police and the men of H.M.'s vessels in the harbour, who came with the fire engines, which were kept working until the steamer Berenice towed the vessel from her moorings, for the safety of the ships lying close to her, to the Mazagon harbour. Here the burning vessel was scuttled to prevent her being wholly devoured by the fire. The cargo was consigned to some Mahomedan merchants at Bombay, and nearly half of it was reduced to ashes, while the other half has been damaged by water.

NATIVE SPIRITS.—The rise of duty on native spirits from nine annas to three rupees a gallon, has stopped the great distilleries at Bhandop and Ooran. From these two, about 100,000 gallons of spirits used to be distilled annually from the Mhowra flower, the only plant that yields from its blossoms starch and sugar sufficient to ferment. The arrack manufactured in Bombay is derived entirely from toddy, and pays a tax of so much a tree. There are believed to be above two hundred stills on the island engaged in this species of manufacture, of which there is no register, and over which there is no supervision of any sort. The likelihood now is, that dates and Mhowra flowers will be mixed with the toddy, and thus distilled as if the produce of the palm tree, without any means of preventing fraud on the revenue being practised through this artifice, on the most gigantic scale.

BELGAUM, April 15.—Brigadier-General Jacob arrived here on the evening of the 13th from Kolapore. A salute of eleven guns from our battery announced the gallant general's arrival. Kulladghee has been evacuated by the Bombay army. It is henceforth to be garrisoned by the Madras troops. A company of the 56th pompadours and some of the 18th N.I. arrived here from that station. Two companies of the 56th, stationed at Sattara, are daily expected at Belgaum to rejoin their head-quarters. Another severe hail-storm visited Belgaum on Saturday last; the stones were of a large size, and the plants in gardens have suffered great damage thereby.

STEAMER "LAWRENCE."—We have to report the loss, on the 10th April, of H.M.'s steamer Sir Henry Lawrence, one of the newly-built steamers for the Indus flotilla, she having struck on a snag or sunken boat, when proceeding with troops above the Ajumuree; but no lives were lost.

THE POISONED TEA.—We (Poona Observer) are glad to learn that Lieutenant Willoughby, the acting deputy assistant commissary general, has caused the tea contractors' contract to be cancelled, and their deposit, amounting to the sum of rupees four thousand two hundred, has been forfeited to Government. This is after all but very inadequate punishment for so grave an offence as that of supplying poisoned tea to the European troops; but it is no fault of Lieut. Willoughby's, to whom much credit is due for the steps he has taken in the matter.

CAPTAIN HAMET.—Government has presented to Captain Mahomed Bin Hamet, in the service of his highness the Imam of Muscat, a handsome mounted sword, and a pair of naval commander's egauettes, in commemoration of the launch of H. H.'s corvette Iskunder Shah from the Mazagon dockyard.

MR. JERVIS, the ex-chaplain of Bombay, has published his reasons for returning to the Catholic church. According to the Bombay Gazette, his greatest achievement is to show that the Romish church is the only true church, because it is the only one which ventures to declare itself so. In all such cases the less said about reasons the better.

DEATH OF SIR JAMSETJEE JEJEEBHAY, BART.—It is with deep regret we announce the death, early on the morning of the 15th of April, after a few days' illness, of the worthy Parsee baronet, Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy. His remains were conveyed to their last resting-place at nine o'clock the same morning, followed by an immense crowd of mourners. The third-day ceremony consequent on the death of Sir Jamsetjee, according to the customs of the Parsees, took place on the afternoon of the 16th, at three o'clock, when nearly the whole of the Parsees of Bombay assembled at the family mansion in the fort, where the rites were performed by the priests. At the end of the ceremonies the sons of the deceased expressed their determination of carrying out the noble wishes of their much respected father with regard to certain charitable works. Sir Jamsetjee had for some time in mind the intention of crowning his benefactions by the following charitable donations. First, the rebuilding and enlargement of the Parsee fire-temple of Godavra, in Bombay. Secondly, a contribution to the fund for the benefit of the old and disabled artificers and workmen of the dockyard, Rs. 5000. Thirdly, the purchasing of a piece of ground near the Parsee cemeteries at Chowpattee Hill, in order to construct a carriage-road leading direct from the level plain to the cemeteries on the hill, for the convenience of all Parsees attending funeral processions, and those visiting the fire-temple near the cemeteries on holy days. The fourth contribution is by Lady Jamsetjee in respect to the memory of her deceased husband. It is the construction of a bridge at Nowsaree, leading to the Parsee cemetery, for obviating the inconvenience often felt by the Parsees of that city in carrying their dead to their resting-place during the inundations in the rainy season. It is said that the whole of these works will cost somewhat more than a lakh of rupees. The well-known Parsee mail contractor at Poona, Mr. Pestonjee Sorabjee, has made a donation of Rs. 3,000 in respect to the memory of Sir Jamsetjee. The interest accruing from this sum will be yearly expended in the performance of certain religious rites at the fire-temple of Poona, on the anniversary of Sir Jamsetjee's death. We learn that the late Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, a little before his death, set apart a sum of Rs. 40,000 for the benefit of the indigent Parsees of Persia, who are compelled by the Shah to pay a capitation tax; and we are informed that his sons have devoted a sum of five lakhs of rupees to be expended during the first year after the death of their father, in the performance of religious ceremonies, and for charitable purposes, such as the distribution of alms among the poor, donations to the priests, and supporting religious places of worship of the Zoroastrians. Among the bills on the list for their third reading in the Legislative Council at Calcutta on Saturday, the 9th April, was one "for settling a sum of money and a mansion house, called Mazagon Castle, in the island of Bombay, the property of Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Baronet, so as to accompany and support the title and dignity of a baronetcy lately conferred on him by her present Majesty Queen Victoria, and for other purposes connected therewith."—Bombay Gazette.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—The head quarters wing of the 8th regiment N.I., under the command of Major Thomas, arrived at Bombay from Baroda on the 12th April, by country craft from Cambay, and proceeded to Sattara. H.M.'s steamer Semiramis, with a country craft in tow, left Bombay for Kurrachee on the 12th, having on board Major T. Anderson; Lieutenant T. Lukes; Ensigns H. Davies, W. H. Ashe, and C. H. Sams; Surgeon J. G. Inglis; and 400 rank and file of H.M.'s 64th regiment. H.M.'s steamer Victoria also left Bombay for the same port the same evening, with Colonel Adams, C.B., 28th foot; Lieut. Forbes, Scind horse; Lieut. Fletcher, Bombay artillery; Lieuts. Griffith and Hallett, and 153 rank and file of the 1st grenadier regiment N.I. A detachment of H.M.'s 78th highlanders arrived at the Presidency on the morning of the 17th, by train. H.M.'s steamer Berenice left Bombay for Kurrachee on the 18th, with Capt. H. Francis, Capt. S. D. C. O'Grady, Lieut. Benson, Ensign F. J. Wilson, Assist. Surg. G. P. Walls, Ensign Hobson, and 200 men of H.M.'s 64th regt.; Capt. Trower, and seventy-six men 1st fusiliers; and about 150 deck. The head-quarters wing of H.M.'s 80th regiment, consisting of Colonel R. H. Lowth, Captain G. H. Adams, Lieutenant and Adjutant W. Knipe, Lieuts. J. G. Dartnell and C. Keane, Ensign W. Sanders, Surgeon J. Sawyers, 312 rank and file, 15 women and 19 children, embarked on the 18th on board the transport ship Genhis Khan. The remaining portion, consisting of Lieut.-Colonel Stuart, Captain J. J. Gordon, Lieuts. A. R. Ord, J. Creagh, and J. N. Sewell, Assistant-Surgeon C. Brown, 306 rank and file, 16 women, and 29 children, have embarked on board the Kennington, which sailed on the 23rd. H.M.'s 61st regiment is expected shortly to arrive from Mhow en route to England. Forty-nine men of H.M.'s 83rd and 89th regiments, under the command of Lieut. Haldane, of H.M.'s 14th light dragoons, proceeded on the 21st from Khandalla to Mhow, en route to join their regiments in the Central India Field Force.

SERVICE MESSAGES BY TELEGRAPH.—The Governor-General has passed a new code of rules for the transmission of service messages by electric telegraph. Henceforth all service messages, except those of officers commanding troops in the field, are to be paid for in cash in the same way and at the same rate as those of the general community. The privilege of precedence in despatch is taken away, except in cases of pressing public emergency and importance. The Superintendent is directed to bring to the notice of Government any case of a public officer insisting on priority of despatch without reason.

LIEUTENANT STRETTELL, late of the 11th Regiment Bombay N. I., who was removed from the service some fifteen months ago, by a decree of a general court martial, is about to be restored to the service. The opinion of counsel on the trial of that officer was, that any instructions issued by the Commander-in-chief to Brigadier Shortt, otherwise than by warrant to convene a court martial, was illegal, and, consequently, all their proceedings were null and void. The question is one of great importance to the army, as the sentence passed by the court martial on Lieut. Strettell, which was supposed to be legally constituted, and defined by the Act to be under the authority of his warrant, ought to be confirmed or remitted by the Commander-in-Chief. Verbal instructions to hold a court-martial are totally inadmissible, and the Commander-in-Chief is under no legal obligation to do either. Counsel was further of opinion that great irregularities existed on the trial, and that the absence of the rules of taking evidence was quite sufficient to obtain a new trial, even were it taken before a court at Westminster. And finally, he concludes that the evidence was decidedly in favour of the acquittal of that officer. Under these circumstances, we think that Lieutenant Strettell has been most unjustly treated, as well as illegally tried. An officer of his services certainly deserved more honourable treatment at the hands of his unconstitutional judges; and nothing would afford us more gratification than to learn that a brave and meritorious officer had been restored to his former position.—Telegraph and Courier.

EUROPEANS AND NATIVES.—If it be true, as we believe it is, that the natives of this country form their judgment of our national character from the conduct of individual Englishmen, the last criminal sessions here must have darkened our faces considerably in the opinion of our indigenous fellow-subjects. The calendar contained the names of no less than five Europeans charged with violent offences, three of them having caused the untimely death of as many fellow-creatures. There was, first, the sad case of George Bease, who, as few doubt, shot his wife and wounded her paramour. The case will tell heavily against us as furnishing occasion to think and speak lightly of our national morality. Then there was the young man White, who, under the influence of terror, or the excitement of liquor, fired his revolver right and left among a crowd in a village bazaar, wounding several people, in some instances mortally. Next we have another young man, W. J. Bullock, firing at and killing his butler, because the man would not confess to the theft of some brandy. Lastly, there is the murderous assault committed under slight provocation by the sailors Melvill and King on their chief officer. It is seldom, happily, that a session produces such an array of violent crimes committed by Europeans as this; perhaps we may venture to say, that such a display was never made before. We fear, however, it will tell against our national reputation as if it were an ordinary thing. Cases of violence towards natives, leading to their death, are always sadly too common, and they must have a large effect in prejudicing the people against us individually and collectively.—Bombay Gazette.

ACTION FOR CRIM. CON.—We are informed that Mr. Bease is about to file an action against Mr. H. Foster for crim. con.

GRADUATES.—The undermentioned students of the Grant Medical College have been pronounced qualified for the honour of holding diplomas of the College, by the examiners this year:—Rustomjee Cowasjee, Edaljee Nasarwanjee, Barjorjee Framjee, Manekjee Aderjee, Pestonjee Bomanjee, Jejeebhoy Bejonjee, Bhickajee Amroot, Waman Wasudew, and P. A. D. Andrade.

KURRACHEE.—Government have sanctioned fifteen lacs of rupees for the commencement of the harbour improvements, which are calculated to cost altogether, according to Mr. Walker's estimate, no less than sixty lacs. They are to be commenced immediately, and will be prosecuted with the utmost vigour.

H.M.'s 86TH REGIMENT.—The embarkation for England of H.M.'s 86th regiment, which was to have taken place on the 14th, has been unavoidably postponed for a few days.

THE FLY AND MOSQUITO TRAP.—Messrs. Dosabhoj Mervanjee and Co., the American agents at Bombay, have just imported this novelty. The trap was patented in America in October, 1856, by Gilbert. The contrivance is a very simple one, consisting of a clock work, which, on being wound, turns a roller attached to the box. The cloth on the roller has to be saturated once or twice a day with molasses and a little vinegar, or dissolved sugar; and the flies and mosquitos that settle on it, are drawn imperceptibly within the box, whence they have no means of egress. A slide is drawn over the wheel while running; and if flies are left in over night, you shut the slide to prevent them creeping out in the dark. For killing the flies, you detach the top after closing the slide, and stifle them in smoke or fumes of brimstone, or hold over a quick blaze. For catching mosquitos, the machine is kept running at night. We understand that Lord Elphinstone was one of the first purchasers of this curious and useful contrivance.—Bombay Times.

THE MERCHANT SEAMEN'S ACT.—Government has appointed a Board of Examiners to conduct the examination, and to grant the certificates of masters and mates of merchant ships, in accordance with the provisions of sections 9 to 18 of Act 1 of 1859. It is to consist of the Master Attendant or Conservator, Captain Gillett, of the Customs Flotilla, Mr. Dixon, Lloyd's surveyor, the Indian naval draftsman, the Indian naval instructor, the chief engineer, and the assistant ditto. We should hardly suppose that this board will be overburdened with work.

REWARD FOR MERITORIOUS SERVICE.—The Right Hon. the Governor in Council has the satisfaction to announce that her Majesty has been pleased to authorise a commission as lieutenant on the Veteran Establishment, to be conferred on Acting deputy commissioner of Ordnance J. McKean, for meritorious services in the office of the Inspector general of Ordnance.

VAKEELSHIPS.—Of the seventy-five candidates who appeared at the examination for the situations of vakeels and law officers, fifty-two have been pronounced qualified, and will be granted sunnuds to practise as vakeels in the Mofussil courts.

Services of the Officers of the Bengal Engineers during the Mutinies.

Military Department, Fort William, April 12.

No. 493.—H. E. the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct the publication, for general information, of the following documents regarding the services rendered by the officers of the corps of Bengal engineers during the mutinies:—

TO THE HON. THE COURT OF DIRECTORS OF THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

Hon. Sirs,—I beg leave to lay before your hon. Court a list of the engineer corps of Bengal, setting forth briefly the aggregate services rendered by its officers during the mutinies, and the casualties among them, up to the month of June last.

2. This list has been compiled from official documents by Captain Yule, an officer of the corps.

3. It shows that more than one-half of the officers have been actually engaged with the rebels, and that of those so engaged, more than one-half have met their deaths or have been wounded.

4. It mentions shortly the chief duties upon which the officers have been severally engaged, and amongst these your honourable court will recognize the construction of works of great magnitude and importance which have been carried out with invariable success in the face of many difficulties.

5. The record is very honourable to the corps of Bengal engineers, and cannot, I think, fail to be interesting to your honourable court.—I have, &c., Allahabad, Aug. 19. (Signed) CANNING.

Extract of letter from the Secretary of State for India, No. 109, dated Dec. 31, 1858, paragraphs 8 and 9:—

8.—I entirely concur with you, considering this record of the services of the officers of the corps of engineers, during the late eventful occurrences, as highly honourable to that distinguished corps. I deeply regret that so large a number of these officers, viz.—more than one-half of those engaged with the rebels, have met their death, or have been wounded. The public has thus sustained a loss which is most deeply to be deplored.*

9.—The compilation of this lucid statement is highly creditable to Captain Yule.

The 25th Bombay N.I.

Hd. Qrs., Mahabeshwur, April 20.—The 25th N.I. having returned to Poona after a protracted service beyond the limits of the Bombay presidency, the C. in C. considers it a duty publicly to notice in G. O. his approbation of the conduct of this distinguished regiment.

2. The regiment as part of a field force under the command of Maj. gen. Woodburn, c.b., left Poona on the 8th June, 1857, in the height of the monsoon, to aid in the suppression of mutiny at Aurungabad. It subsequently moved on Malwa, and shared in the privations, dangers, and difficulties, as also in the honours of the campaign in that district and in Central India under the command respectively of Brigadier C. S. Stuart, c.b., and Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, c.b.

3. The sieges of Dhar, of Chundaree, and of Jhansi, the actions before Mundisore, of the Betwa, of Golowlee, of Calpee, and of Gwalior, speak of the distinguished services of this regt., which has never been in action without earning warm acknowledgment for its gallantry.

4. The recent despatches of Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, c.b., testify that the 25th regt. has abundantly added to the reputation it gained in Scinde, at Meeanee and Hyderabad, under the late Gen. Sir C. J. Napier, c.b.

5. The 1st N.I. regt. of Bombay to meet the mutineers and rebels, its loyalty has never been questioned, while the forwardness of officers and men in action has proved the trust and confidence of the one, and the fidelity and loyalty of the other.

6. When the H.Q. are moved to Poona it will afford the C. in C. much pleasure to see this regiment that he may personally express his acknowledgments for the honourable service it has rendered to the State, and his thanks for the reputation it has gained for the army he has the honour to command.

Plurality of Appointments.

Hd. Qrs., Mahabeshwur, April 13.—Instances having recently occurred of regimental officers being appointed to a plurality of appointments with a force on active service, the C. in C. directs the discontinuance of the practice, as it is quite impossible that an officer can efficiently perform the duties of more than one appointment at the same time.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

FRIDAY, May 20, 1859.

REORGANIZATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

UNDER the impression that few subjects possess greater interest for Anglo-Indian readers than the question of reorganizing the Indian army, we propose in the present article, and others yet to follow, to analyse the minutes of evidence adduced before the Commission; and also to give the substance of the several opinions of the individual Commissioners. In working out this purpose, we shall abstain, as far as may be possible, from offering any unpleasant remarks upon the testimony of the different witnesses, though, in truth, it is scarcely creditable to men of experience and fair ability that they should be unable to form, or at least to express, any explicit views with regard to a question that must so long have been uppermost in their minds.

The first witness examined was Sir George Pollock, but, as we have no intention of ignoring the reverence that is due to grey hairs and past services, we shall dwell lightly upon the discrepancies and contradictions that disfigure the testimony of that gallant old officer. After beating about the bush in a random manner, Sir George gave his vote in favour of the proportion of one European to three natives, exclusive of artillery. He thought that the Bengal Presidency ought to have 15,000 European infantry, 5,000 cavalry, and 7,000 artillery. He was decidedly against the employment of natives in the scientific branches, except to clean the guns and act as sappers. The artillery even of the contingents should be manned by Europeans. It might happen that they would suffer more than natives if campaigning in the hot season, but after all "a man is less affected when he is on service than when he is idle and has nothing to do, if exposed." This, however, is only true for the moment. The excitement may carry a man through anything for a time, but the flesh is weaker than the spirit, and when the reaction sets in the effects of exposure and over-exertion become lamentably conspicuous. Sir George was partial to irregular cavalry for outpost duties and other duties of that description, but had doubts of their charging home unless more numerous officered. There is likewise the danger of a trooper who has to find his own charger being too cautious about risking the animal's life. The native infantry should be of different castes, and even nationalities; for instance, there would be no objection to the enlistment of Africans and half-castes, or even to give two flank companies of Europeans to every native regiment. These European companies could always be assembled and formed into distinct corps if necessary, as was done at Cawnpore in 1809-10, when an excellent light regiment was thus formed under Major Mansell, a line officer. But then Sir George would arm the natives with an inferior weapon, and yet expect them to follow their officers with as much alacrity as the better-armed Europeans. Of course, all recruits should be enlisted for general service. At Jellalabad they did not hesitate to assist in destroying the buildings round the fortress, but they do dislike going to sea, because they cannot bathe or cook in their usual fashion, and they are very particular about the water they drink. He had known a Hindoo refuse to drink water that had been cooled with ice made in the ice-pits, because it had been handled by Europeans—which, probably, would not be the case, and there is no doubt that Hindoos readily make use of American ice which is touched by Europeans. The Marquis of Tweeddale here observed that he had known high-caste men decline to drink any water on board a ship except distilled water, which was produced by machinery and not polluted by the human hand. With regard to the separation of the Bengal army into two distinct armies, Sir George saw no reason for the adoption of such a measure nor any particular objection to it—overlooking the danger that might arise from having an army of Punjabees. However, he preferred keeping things as they are. He was more decided as to the advisability of having native commissioned officers, though at present their numbers might be too great. The real defect was in the seniority system. Still, a senior man ought to have the preference if equally capable of doing the duty: selection should be the exception. Commanding officers should have more power within their regiments. They are, in fact, powerless either to reward or punish, and consequently are little thought of. In the irregular corps the evil is not so great, but in the regular corps a sepoy can petition, or if sentenced to a few days' drill can claim a court-martial. It is quite necessary at times to inflict corporal punishment, but the necessity does not often occur. Each company should have its own captain. Much mischief has been done by officers obtaining civil employment. Instead of attending to their military duties, they apply themselves entirely to the acquisition of the native languages to fit themselves for magisterial duties. In Lord Hastings's time an officer joined his regiment as colonel after twenty years' absence, and frankly told the marquis that he could not manœuvre the regiment, but that the major would do so. A colonel was therefore put over his head, but he himself was not removed. A staff corps would be an improvement. A native regiment should have as many officers as a European one.

The second witness was Major general Low, who expressed a desire to see for the future one European to every two natives in the regular service. At present there should not be fewer than 45,000 Europeans in the Bengal Presidency, though after a few years 35,000 might be sufficient; but the reduction should be effected by allowing each regiment to decline in strength rather than by reducing the number of regiments. A European corps, 800 strong, has the same moral effect in cantonments as one 1,000 strong, and thus a good appearance would always be kept up. To the 45,000 Europeans there might be 90,000 natives including the irregulars, but exclusive of the police. The artillery should be maintained in the highest efficiency, the natives only being employed as gun lascars; and in every regiment fifty or sixty men should be taught to work field guns to provide against emergencies. As the efficiency of a regiment depends rather upon the qualities than the number of its officers—except, possibly, in battle—General Low would give the preference to irregular corps furnished with selected officers from both the Queen's and the Indian service. It might also be advantageous to induce native gentlemen to join the infantry regiments as they do the irregular cavalry. He had never known but one instance personally where any objection on the score of caste was made on active service. In the Java campaign the men who had been killed were lying near the bivouac, and an order was issued to have the corpses carried off and buried; but the officer commanding the Bengal pioneers demurred on the ground that his men being of high caste could not touch a dead body. Sir Samuel Auchmuty, however, the commander in chief of that expedition, soon brought the officer to his senses by saying, "If those men are not buried within one hour, I will send you back under arrest to India." The dead bodies were immediately buried. Different castes should be mixed up together in every regiment, either shoulder to shoulder, or in distinct companies. Minor punishments should be left to the discretion of the commanding officer. There would be no advantage in splitting the Bengal army into two, but several drawbacks; among others, the costly necessity of increasing the staff establishment. It would be very unwise to attach European companies to native regiments; it would be a minor evil to attach a couple of native companies to a European regiment; but the least objectionable plan is to mix them by brigade rather than regimentally. The native soldiers should be well armed, but not with the Enfield rifle.

Colonel Welchman, of the 1st Bengal fusiliers, was next examined, and for the most part concurred in what fell from General Low. He suggested, however, that the payment of the troops should be done through native bankers, by allowing the latter a small commission. By this means the army would be relieved from a very harassing duty, and one most injurious to discipline: this is a course which we ourselves have more than once advocated. The police should not be a military force, but armed only with a tulwar; the general disarming of the population having rendered firearms unnecessary. There must be regular as well as irregular regiments, and the latter should be more efficiently officered than at present; three officers may be very good, but six officers would be better, especially as there is always a chance of sickness, absence, and death in action. European non-commissioned officers in the proportion of two to each company might be beneficially attached to the native infantry. Yet more desirable would it be to induce native gentlemen to enter the service. In case of mutiny, the rebels might thus, perhaps, obtain better leaders, but, on the other hand, there would be less danger of mutiny and disaffection. A division of the Bengal army would be highly advantageous. The system of weekly guards had crept in of late years, and should not be allowed to continue.

Lieutenant-colonel Wylie was then called before the Commission, and also agreed with General Low as to the strength of the European force hereafter necessary for the Bengal Presidency and its proportion to the native. East Indians in small numbers might be had as mounted corps, though physically unfit for marching regiments. Serious inconveniences might arise from dividing the Bengal army, partly from its being a seniority service with regard to European officers, but more so from confining the up-country and Punjab men to their own immediate provinces, instead of their being moved about from one district to another. There was no order against enlisting men of a low caste, but in practice commanding officers gave the preference to high-caste recruits just as in England a farmer's or a tradesman's son would be preferred to a man taken from the streets. Two European sergeants to each native company would decidedly be an improvement; the native officers are practically of very little use. The practice of the inspecting officer asking the troops if they had any complaint to make, encouraged the native soldiers to get up trivial grievances and undermined the authority of the commanding officer. There should be no intermixture of Europeans and natives in the same regiment—only in the same brigade.

Colonel Becher, quartermaster general of the Bengal army, next gave his evidence, and was in favour of a properly-organized military police force, in order to reduce the native army. The "contingents" which have mutinied should not be re-established. The army should be a regular force, with a certain number of irregular corps, chiefly cavalry—the latter to be better paid than heretofore. On no account should the native gentry be encouraged to take service. The men should look solely to their European officers, who must be "the influential men and not native officers." Native officers at present are a mere cypher, but the pay and position are something to look forward to, and thus act as inducements to enlistment. In a small body like the irregular cavalry good native officers are valuable, and from the paucity of their numbers not likely to be dangerous. Every company should have a European officer of experience, but not necessarily a captain. A staff corps is very desirable. The present system of staff employment has contributed to the neglect of the native army, as officers have been apt to regard their regimental duties as quite a secondary consideration. The engineers are too much employed in civil duties. All castes should be admitted, but the Brahmins rather discouraged than otherwise. There would be no advantage in dividing the Bengal army, quite the contrary: if a fourth presidency were constituted, a separate army would follow as a matter of course. The commander in chief should have "the free use of his legs," and not be tied to any particular post or station. Calcutta is the most convenient position for the Bengal depots or magazines, though a large fortified arsenal is being constructed at Ferozepore, to be supplied from Kurrachee. The native troops should not be too well armed for some years to come; the percussion musket is quite as good a weapon as they can require in any service upon which they are likely to be employed. The native troops should be taught unmistakably their subordination to the European. Africans might, perhaps, be enlisted with advantage: it matters very little whether the natives would like them or not,—"we are going to rule India." Malays, being foreigners, would probably be more trustworthy than Sikhs, but it is not certain that they would make good soldiers.

Major Sir D. Baird, Bart., lately serving as A.D.C. to Sir Colin Campbell, was of opinion that there ought to be one European for two natives; hereafter, perhaps, one to three or four; the Sikhs held their heads very high, but fought wonderfully well; there should not be fewer than 80,000 Europeans in India, of whom 50,000 to be in the Bengal Presidency; the artillery should be entirely European, with the exception of a few natives to wash the guns, &c.; the native riders of the Madras artillery behaved as well as any soldiers could do; the irregular cavalry as individual horsemen and swordsmen are better than our own; the native horsemen very partial to the spear, and more afraid of our lancers than of the dragoons; had an idea that Sir Colin fancied that permanent head-quarters should be somewhere in Central India, but occasionally to move about the country; believed that doubts were entertained whether the low-caste men lately levied down country will fight at all.

Captain G. F. S. Browne, 24th Madras N.I., for the last six years in civil employment in the North-Western Provinces, would be satisfied with one European to four natives when the country is again settled; had no objection to employ half-castes as drivers in the artillery; the half-caste militia fought well at Agra; there should be 40,000 European troops in Bengal; the police battalions should be armed only to act against internal enemies; would arm the native troops with the percussion musket, and one company in each regiment with the ordinary rifle; had seen Madras troops make excellent practice with the ordinary rifle—the multigrooved rifle would, of course, be better; the ball is decidedly a size too large for the two-grooved rifle, and hence a difficulty in loading; would have no regular cavalry, and the infantry half regular, half irregular; would have the irregular corps officered as in the Punjab irregulars, with a commandant, a second in command, an adjutant, and two officers doing duty; the Gwalior contingent with only three officers were splendid on parade; in Coke's regiment the men are divided into companies according to their nationalities—the Affghans under a native Affghan officer, the Patans under a Patan, the Sikhs under a Sikh, and so on; emulation thus excited, and combination rendered more difficult; European non-commissioned officers do not get on well with the natives; two quite sufficient in each regiment, one as drill-instructor, the other to take charge of the stores; the better the native officers the more dangerous they might become, but at present they are useless; many of the older native officers cannot read or write; a good native officer is very valuable, a bad one worse than none; the Bengal sepoys took greater liberties than would have been allowed in the Madras service; the Sikhs excellent soldiers; had heard that they said, "the time will come when we will settle with you, we hated the Hindostanees and have killed them;" also, "the Raj will be yours to-morrow, but who can say whose it will be in another year or two?"—this was said half in jest, half in earnest; they serve us not from good-will, but from hatred to the sepoys, and from love of greed; if any Punjabee chief were to rebel against us, he would have many followers; would prohibit the importation of sulphur; railroads might be made impassable in a few hours; Bengal sepoys in the Madras service go on board ship without a murmur; a Bengal Brahmin in Madras will eat without bathing, because he sees others doing it; the Madras army was sound because the majority of the men come from Southern India, and are a different sort of men altogether to the Bengal rajpoots and brahmans; in the infantry about one-third are Mahomedans, and in the cavalry four-fifths, which is very inexpedient; would not object to Africans, but the Malays are very bigoted Mahomedans; saw no advantage in dividing the Bengal army; thought the C. in C. should be more centrally stationed than at Calcutta; would like to see native gentlemen in the irregular, but not in the regular corps, because it might produce discontent from there being no such practice in the Bombay and Madras armies; in the Bombay army men are promoted too young; every company should have at least one efficient European officer—that is, one of quite three years' standing; would not recommend limiting the period for which officers could be away from their regiments on staff employment, because there would always be so many only learning their duties, and therefore inefficient, and the officers returning to their regiments would become discontented from having nothing to do; European officers should be made to do duty with European regiments before joining the native corps, but in India rather than at home, because they would have an opportunity of acquiring the language and be saved from the temptations of a garrison town.

Sir George Clerk, K.C.B., thought that one European to four natives would be sufficient, exclusive of police, but including irregulars; had heard (evidently from Sir John Lawrence) that the Punjab alone would require 20,000 Europeans to hold in check its native troops; rather inconsistent with our educational zeal to exclude natives from the scientific branches of the army, but they might be kept away from the laboratories; was of opinion that the artillery might consist of two Europeans to one native; considered the chief danger had arisen from allowing the natives to hold our arsenals and walled towns; the natives were provoked to rebellion by our interference with their religious prejudices; if there were no such provocation they would not risk their lives and property by having recourse to arms; if Hindostan Proper had not been so denuded of troops the rebellion would not have taken place; no risk in having native artillery, if greatly inferior to the European; would not object to give the natives the Enfield rifle, because they are always indifferent marksmen as compared with Europeans; would have 50,000 Europeans in the Bengal Presidency; would reduce the Punjab levies to 30,000 men; the Sikhs remained loyal from their lust of plunder, they wanted to plunder Hindostan (but, surely, they could have gratified this desire had they turned against us); the Punjab was maintained in peace through the large European force stationed there; after a time Bundelcund and Saugor should be made over to Madras; would have both regular and irregular regiments of foot and horse; the irregular cavalry have not hitherto been adequately paid; would enlist all castes and nationalities promiscuously; no caste should be allowed to predominate, as it facilitates combination; the Ghoorkas will not enlist; there is not a single Ghoorka in the 66th, though they are descended from the Ghoorkas whom the Nepaul Government permitted to take service under the British Government in 1817; a system of reserved battalions, beneficial in supplying suitable positions for native officers of rank; the regular regiments should be reduced to 600 men each, for the sake of discipline; European officers too exclusive, do not sympathise enough with their men; no occasion to divide the Bengal army even if a fourth Presidency were created; Africans not required, or any other barbarians to coerce the Indians, if properly governed; after a while, by avoiding unnecessary irritation, and maintaining an efficient army, India will be restored to confidence and tranquillity.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MAURITIUS APPOINTMENT (Downing-street, May 16).—The Queen has been pleased to appoint H. M. Cooke, Esq., to be postmaster of the Mauritius.

ARRIVAL OF SICK AND WOUNDED TROOPS FROM INDIA.—On the 17th inst. a large number of sick and wounded troops arrived at Fort Pitt Hospital from India, having disembarked at Gravesend from the troop-ship Hotspur, which sailed from Calcutta on the 20th of January. The troops belonged to the 2nd dragoon guards, 7th hussars, 9th lancers, 6th carabiniers, 38th, 97th, 60th rifles, 77th, 37th, 19th, 23rd royal Welsh fusiliers, 54th, 64th, 5th fusiliers, and royal engineers, to the number of seventy-six men of all ranks, together with fifteen women and children, the whole under the command of Lieutenant Greatrex, 73rd regiment, and Lieutenant Scott, 24th regiment. Three deaths occurred during the voyage. On the troops disembarking at Gravesend, they were conveyed in vans and omnibuses to Fort Pitt, where they were medically inspected, when sixteen non-commissioned officers and men, who were still suffering from wounds or disability, were ordered into hospital, and the remainder sent to St. Mary's invalid establishment. The troop-ship Walmer Castle, 1,200 tons burthen, also arrived at Gravesend from Calcutta, having on board nearly ninety sick and wounded troops, who were wounded at Lucknow, Cawnpore, and Delhi. The Walmer Castle sailed from Calcutta on the 24th of January. The invalid troops belonged to nearly every cavalry and infantry regiment now serving in the Bengal Presidency. Two births and seven deaths occurred on board. The troops, who were in charge of Capt. Murray and Lieut. Macneil, on being inspected at Fort Pitt, were removed to the invalid depot to await their discharge from the service, with the exception of sixteen, who were admitted into hospital for surgical treatment.

PROFESSOR OF ORIENTAL LANGUAGES IN KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON; MEMBER OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, &c.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

The indisputable superiority of this Series of Works to all others of the same kind having created a demand very far beyond their most sanguine expectations, the Publishers take the opportunity to testify their gratitude for the public favour so unequivocally manifested, by making a considerable REDUCTION IN THEIR PRICES. They are further encouraged to take this step by the consideration of the greatly-increased number of Europeans who will henceforth be located in India, and to whom the possession of these Works may be regarded as indispensable. Serviceable to all, they will be found especially adapted to meet the requirements of Officers of her Majesty's Army serving in India.

THE ARMIES OF THE GREAT POWERS

(AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA, FRANCE, RUSSIA, ENGLAND).

By LASCELLES WRAXALL.

The information he (Mr. Wraxall) is able to lay before his readers comes rather opportunely at the present hour, when continental ambassadors are summoned from Paris to attend our Cabinet Councils, and every day we hear louder rumours of a general European war. The information that our author is enabled to lay before his readers, though only, perhaps, an approximation to the truth, is particularly valuable at the present time.—Leader.

No work could possibly be more opportune, or more likely to be in general request at the present moment. Mr. Wraxall does not confine himself, indeed, to a simple Homeric catalogue of the forces each State can bring into the field, although even this would be worth knowing on the brink of a general war. He goes far beyond a dull recital of figures, and comments with an air of easy authority on the peculiar characteristics of Austrians, Prussians, English, French, Sardinians, Russians, and Turks. The author appears, moreover, to speak from personal knowledge and experience. He has seen with his own eyes the troops whose good and bad qualities he impartially describes; and during the Crimean war he enjoyed many opportunities of judging from personal observation of the comparative excellence of the forces warring in the Thracian Chersonese. The result is a most useful and compendious work, at all times interesting, but especially so when the question of peace or war is trembling in the balance. No young officer's kit can be considered complete without this key to the relative homicidal properties of the European Powers.—National Standard.

He has certainly given us an apparently complete and concise analysis of the chief European armies, and so far he is entitled to our thanks and approbation.—Literary Gazette.

A very readable and instructive volume. But better than his opinions are his facts. His description of the Austrian, Russian, Prussian, French, Sardinian, and Turkish armies is exact and interesting. He is also very accurate in his delineation of the composition and details of the British and Anglo-Indian armies.—United Service Gazette.

A more reasonable contribution to current literature than Mr. Lascelles Wraxall's account of "The Armies of the Great Powers" cannot be imagined. In an octavo volume he has condensed all the information every one desires to possess on the subject of the armaments of the great military powers—and he is a most reliable guide. Their means of aggression or defence are set forth clearly and perspicuously, and almost at a glance the general reader is enabled to form a correct idea of the relative chances of success in the event of a protracted war. Not only the numerical strength of each army is given, but also the fullest details of its organisation. The different systems of discipline, the dress and accoutrements, the rewards and punishments, and the general internal economy of the European armies, are described in plain language.—Leeds Times, March 5.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand. Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 19, 1858.

"A lady to whom I gave some of your in- valuable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS
is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer,

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH, New Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygiean agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygiean system of medicine introduced by James Morison, the Hygieist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

SCALDS—BURNS—BRUISES.—No preparation ever before presented to the public can compare with this incomparable Ointment for the ease and comfort it bestows on the painful class of accidents alluded to. When Holloway's Ointment is applied early it frequently arrests the inflammatory stage, but always moderates it, and relieves the pain. In childhood its use is doubly necessary, as severity of suffering is then prone to produce convulsions, which in infancy and childhood are ever attended by danger, if not to body, at least to mind. Where many young persons are assembled, Holloway's remedies should always be available to relieve accidental injuries or to stop the morbid consequences too often springing from the neglect of trifles.

DR. JAMES'S POWDER for FEVERS.

INFLUENZA, MEASLES, RHEUMATISM, and all Inflammatory Disorders. No Medicine Chest is complete without it. So simple and certain, so mild and peculiar, is its action, that it is fitted alike for domestic or professional use. The genuine has "F. NEWBURY, No. 45, ST. (the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. ## OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The second number of this new candidate for public favour is unquestionably an improvement on the first. This is, in itself, a merit to be appreciated, as it augurs that the organisation on which the future of the "REVIEW" depends has within it the elements of that completeness which can alone ensure stability. We have only space to direct attention to the articles on "Philosophy as an Element of Culture," on "Realistic Novelists," and "Christianity in India;" but we venture to say that the whole number is well worthy of thoughtful consideration. In this addition to our periodical literature there is every mark of careful conduct, and there is every reason in the present number for a prediction that it is destined not merely to an existence, but to a useful and enduring life.—Illustrated London News, April 9, 1859.

If it proves to be, what from the first number seems likely, a publication appealing more to the higher class of readers, whose wants are at present only supplied by the Quarterly Reviews, its chances of success will certainly be very considerable. There is no conceivable reason why articles written by and addressed to thoughtful men should only make their appearance four times in the twelve months; but, on the contrary, every reason to suppose that a monthly collection of such would meet with a ready and extensive sale. . . . The purely political articles are on "Indian Finance" and "Parliament and the People." The last especially very ably written.—Globe, March 2, 1859.

The new number of the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" may be pointed out as an excellent specimen of that which a publication should be—learned, witty, powerful, and occasionally caustic, but always devoid of pedantry, slang, ponderosity, or personality. It may be said to supply a long-existing and widely-felt want in periodical literature. Its politics are Conservative—not the rabid, blatant Toryism which roars and bellows in the pages of certain publications, from Blackwood downwards, but Conservatism of a liberal and comprehensive spirit (the terms are not misapplied), such as guides the principles of many thinking young men of the present day. In their literary likings the conductors of the new "REVIEW" are singularly catholic, welcoming every disciple of any "school" who shows originality and talent. There are ten articles in this month's number; all are readable, and most are interesting, which is saying a great deal. The first article does tardy justice to the memory of a most excellent man, the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, of Brighton, an earnest, single-minded, clear-headed, upright clergyman, whose life was made a burden to him, and who was hunted to death by the persecutions of his religious brethren, because he pursued his own straightforward course, preaching a healthy doctrine with singular vigour and effect; and because he would not give in to the vagaries of either of the sects whose open conflicts are the disgrace of that hotbed of religious fanaticism in which Mr. Robertson's labours were cast. "Women neither Nice nor Wise" is a well-stricken blow at the noisy trumpeting of the advocates of "Woman's Cause," and comments very sensibly on many of the absurdities prevalent among that class of strong-minded foolish women of which the two ladies who have recorded their travels as "unprotected females" may be taken as types. The writer touches the whole sense of the question when, after mentioning the now-prevalent desire of women for manly employment, he says, "What we now wish our countrymen to believe is this—that it is far more important to the whole world that women should be good wives and mothers than that they should excel in any one art or science, which men can achieve as well as they. If for no other reason than this obvious one, that though men can do at least as well as women in the capacity of doctors, lawyers, &c., yet they could never do at all as wives and mothers." The other pleasant papers in the number, to my mind, are the review of M. Michelet's "L'Amour," and a most sound, judicious and clearly-written article on "French Dramatists and English Adapters." The writer is, however, mistaken, I think, in supposing that critics do not make a point of exposing the origin of any adaptation, if they happen to be acquainted with it.—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, May 7, 1859.

TEETH.

No. 2, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the month exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TEETH

WITHOUT SPRINGS.

110, REGENT-STREET, and 33, LUDGATE-HILL, Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans.

In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots; the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, whole, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accepted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, and may be had gratis, for stamped envelope.

The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores decayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OBSERVE THE NUMBERS.

PREPARED WHITE GUTTA PERCHA ENAMEL, the best Stopping for Decayed Teeth or Toothache, 1s. 6d. per box, obtainable through any Chemist in town or country, or direct Twenty Stamps.

"Messrs. G.'s improvements in Dentistry are really important, and will well repay a visit to their establishments."—Sunday Times, Sept. 6th, 1858.

THE Calcutta papers received by the Mail of the 22nd of April describe the state of India as being far from satisfactory. The great rebellion, indeed, is at an end, but so also is the prestige of the Europeans. Though beaten at every point, and by vastly inferior numbers, the natives generally have lost their former respect for their English rulers, and conduct themselves in an insolent and hostile manner. According to the Englishman, sepoys often remark to their officers :—" Yes, we are

BENGAL.

THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

The results of the examinations for the degree of Bachelor of Arts have been declared. The subjects submitted were, English, a second language, History, Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, Physical Science, and Mental and Moral Science. With a few exceptions, the questions were what they ought to have been, such as to test culture as well as knowledge, such as even native students could not cram for, and in their difficulty quite up to the standard of an English Bachelor's degree. They were generally free from those useless curiosae which we have had occasion more than once to condemn in examinations of this kind. One of the papers in History was too easy, and unfortunately wanting in questions on the Constitution and Government of England, to which the attention of natives is too little directed.

The number of candidates was twenty. Of these ten passed, three who obtained more than half the total number of marks being in the first class. The highest gained 352 out of 600 marks. Of those who were rejected, one did not come up to the examination, six failed in English, two in Bengali, six in Mathematics, six in Physical Science, two in Mental and Moral Science, and none in History. Of the six subjects in which they were examined, two failed in four, one in three, four in two, and two in one. Thus, the greatest proficiency was shown in History, and after that in Mental Philosophy. The successful graduates all belonged to three colleges—

Presidency College	..	..	8
Free Church Institution	..	..	1
Bishop's College	..	..	1

Of these ten, one is an East Indian, and all the others Hindoos.

The Calcutta University has now sent forth twelve graduates. Its reputation will depend very much on the ability that they manifest, and the position which they acquire for themselves in life. There is a disposition to push them on, and they will have a fair chance. Let them see to it that they use the intelligence and power which education may have given them, in the cause of their countrymen, doing what they can to spread enlightenment, to destroy error, and to advance truth and righteousness in the land.—Friend of India.

THE HYDERABAD ASSIGNED DISTRICTS.

The General Report of the Administration during the year 1857-58, just issued, contains a detailed account of the Government and revenue of the Hyderabad Assigned Territories. The rumour that Berar, Dharaseo, and the Raichore Doab are to be restored to the Nizam, as a reward for his unshaken loyalty during the rebellion, gives an additional interest to the statements of the report. The rumour may have arisen as much from the wishes of the Nizam's Court, and the existing feeling against the annexation policy in certain doctrinaires, as from any expressed or understood intention on the part of Government, but still it exists and is widely diffused over South India. Currency is farther given to it by the action of Lord Stanley in restoring Dhar, and of the Supreme Government in India in bestowing large jaghires on such faithful adherents as the Rajah of Kupporthullah, and in proposing to give a slice of the Terai to Jung Bahadoor.

The treaty which Lord Wellesley formed with the Nizam, it will be remembered, provided that the latter should maintain a military contingent, to be officered by Europeans appointed by the Governor general, and to assist the British in the field when required. In return for this the Nizam was guaranteed against attack. But it was soon found that the pay of the contingent was seldom forthcoming, and that after the death of Chundoo Lall there was no pretence to regularity. Lord Ellenborough for a time settled the matter by paying the force out of the British Treasury, and debiting the Nizam with the amount. But year by year the account swelled, until shortly after Lord Dalhousie assumed the Government it was evident that some other steps must be taken, not only to pay for the contingent, but gradually to wipe out the immense debt incurred. A material guarantee was demanded in the shape of the districts of Berar, Raichore, and Dharaseo, yielding a revenue of forty-one lacs, out of which thirty-six were required for the contingent, and the rest to discharge the interest on the debt, and by degrees also the principal. Any surplus was thereafter to be paid into the Hyderabad treasury. After considerable delay the Nizam signed the treaty on the 21st of May, 1853, the country was cleared of the Rohillas and Arabs who infested it, and forthwith British rulers proceeded to develop the resources of these rich but hitherto-neglected districts.

Since that time nearly six years have elapsed, and the results of British administration are now seen on a large scale. During the first year of our occupation in 1853-54, the gross revenue was a little above thirty-seven and a-half lacs of rupees. The cost of collection was not much above three and a-half lacs, about twenty-five lacs were expended in payments provided for by the treaty, and the arrears due to the contingent were reduced by upwards of sixteen lacs. In 1854-55 the revenue had risen to 43 lacs, and in 1857-58 to 51 lacs, so that there was a balance in favour of the Nizam of upwards of four lacs. On the 1st May, 1858, there was a balance in favour of receipts of all kinds of Rs. 28,86,975, after deducting the civil and local expenditure, an improvement of at least thirty per cent.

The criminal returns show a very moderate number of heinous offences. In the four districts there were 127 cases during the year, involving the punishment of 220 offenders, by imprisonment for long periods, transportation and death. For grave offences 2,714 prisoners were punished, and for petty offences 4,685, but as of these more than 2,000 were in one district for "abusive language" it is evident that there is an injurious tendency to over-government. The whole population is calculated at about two millions; there has been little emigration from the districts, and it is probable that more people have come into them than have left. In the Raichore district 41 new schools have been started, making 351 in all, and 2,000 class-books distributed. In North Berar the number of scholars is stated at 2,048 in Marhatta and 563 in Persian, but returns from South Berar and Dharaseo are not given. The construction of a first-class military road was fast progressing between Sholapore and Hyderabad, and thirty-nine miles of this pass through the assigned districts. As it is expected that the Bombay Railway to Sholapore will be finished in May, Hyderabad will then be within three days' distance of that city. Village roads have been laid out over the whole country, but a loan on the revenue of the districts will be necessary ere public works are carried out with the requisite energy and speed. The cultivation of foreign cotton has been introduced to some extent, and with a very fair prospect of success.

The great necessity of the district is a revenue survey. We have been but six years the rulers, and such a survey would require at least seventeen. Meanwhile the land-tax is collected in such a way as to relieve the ryot from over-assessment, even if the just claims of Government be not fully secured. When we first undertook the administration, we found a zemindaree, potailee and ryotwar system all mixed up together, a system which Col. Davidson represents as suiting the people and embracing the best features of the ryotwarree.

In South Berar the settlement is made with the potail or headman of the village, who is responsible for the whole amount, but in the other three districts on each holding, each ryot being responsible for his own rent and no more. Where a permanent or quasi-permanent settlement is made, on an average calculation, the profit of one year compensates for the loss of another. But when the settlement is with each ryot, when it varies with the decisions of the collector, and when it is more usually raised than lowered, the gross result is likely to be less. And yet in Dharaseo and Raichore, where the ryots are represented as poverty-stricken, out of 70,000 ratepayers there is hardly a single defaulter. Most probably the villagers make up the village total among themselves. Col. Davidson notices the tendency in officers to introduce the ryotwarree system throughout the districts, and urges them carefully to guard against it.

While the rebellion was raging all around, the assigned districts continued in peace and security. Though Berar is notorious for its fighting hordes, no sympathy was shown with the mutineers. All along the Bombay frontier rumours prevailed of the approach of some great man at the head of an army. But these were common throughout Hindostan; they were originated by emissaries of the Nana, and eventuated in nothing. The people of the assigned districts illustrated the truth so often seen during the rebellion, that our most recently-acquired provinces were the most loyal. Only in one case, the Raichore Doab, was there an attempt on the part of the budmashes to rise and join the rebels.

The Hyderabad Assigned Districts have advanced under our short rule. Everything in their present condition, as compared with their past, urges that the good government which they now enjoy should not be thoughtlessly withdrawn, that the civil government at present so successfully organised should not be disturbed. Having once taken the administration of these provinces into our hands, we are bound not suddenly to abandon them. The importance, besides, of this territory to the empire cannot be overrated. Placed, as a large part of it is, between Central and South India, along the Bombay frontier, and to the south of the Saugor and Nerbudda territories, it commands the valleys of the Kistna and Toongaboodra, and is the very country through which the main line of railway between Bombay and Madras must run. As a cotton-producing country it rivals in its capabilities the richest soil of Guzerat. The claims of the Nizam on the British Government are great, and none have more fully admitted and urged them than ourselves, but it is easy to reward him in a much more rich and suitable manner than by restoring the Assigned Districts. Salar Jung will not live for ever; there is no prospect of another Seraj-ool Moolk; the policy of the Hyderabad Court is not like the laws of the Medes and Persians. We fail to see in what way the restoration of these Districts will benefit the Nizam. We know not the amount of his debt yet unpaid, but it would be much better for himself were we to cancel that, and pay over the surplus yearly accruing from the provinces into the exchequer, than to make over the Districts to him as they were before, when the profits went into the pockets of needy and rapacious princelings, and the peasantry were ground down to the dust. Were this done, the Nizam would obtain all the benefit of the honesty and vigour of European rule, and the British Government would still continue to extend to two millions the blessings of justice, peace, security, and education.—Friend of India.

OUR OFFICERS.

Nothing is so hard to remove as a ruin, and the Bengal army, mutinied, defeated, and destroyed, still officially exists. Two years all but a month have elapsed since the army rose in insurrection, and still there are sixty-eight regiments left on paper. The unsightly gaps in the "Army List" have been filled up, and there is not a native regiment of the line with less than twenty officers nominally attached to it. Few have less than twenty-one, exclusive of the ornamental colonels residing in England. In August, 1858, with six regiments since extinguished still on the list, there were only 1,412 infantry officers of the line. There are now 1,421. Of this number no less than 706, or one-half, are on staff and civil employ, the remainder, or 715, being on furlough, sick, or supposed to be doing duty with extinct or disbanded regiments. What they are really doing it is not very easy to imagine, as for example in the 74th Regiment which mutinied at Delhi. No less than twelve officers of this corps are apparently doing nothing, or at least only such temporary work as the general of division may extemporise on their behalf. We presume they are doing something, but had the army been abolished by decree in December, 1857, and all these officers thrown together into one vast corps, they would have been just as useful, and very considerably less expensive. As it is, no scheme short of the creation of an Indian army will suffice to meet the just claims of the officers of the extinct force.

The number of sepoy has remained less stationary. In August there were still about 25,000 men drawing pay. The order permitting all who would to retire was, however, accepted as a boon. In some regiments almost the entire corps took its dismissal. In all, the discharges are counted by hundreds, and there are now not 6,000 disbanded sepoys upon the rolls. The remainder, under any scheme of reorganisation, ought to be dismissed, and then the number of officers will be the single obstacle to thorough and effective reform. That difficulty will not now be great. If, as reported, we are to have thirty European regiments, and twenty native regiments, the entire number will be at once absorbed without loss of rank, pay, or prospects. They will, then, have only to regret a delay of two years, without motive, or purpose, or excuse.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A SMART AFFAIR.—A correspondent of the Hurkaru gives an account of a rebel-hunting expedition in Shahabad, headed by the magistrate, Mr. Herschel. Seventy of them were entrenched in a village called Permananpore. He went out against them with twenty-eight Europeans. The message he sent them, calling on them to surrender, being sent back twice, pierced through by a bayonet, he set fire to the village; eventually he reached the house in which the sepoys were, and manifested much courage in exposing himself during a long conference he held with them. Twenty-four of them finally surrendered. Mr. Herschel then set out after another party towards the west. Colonel Turner is out after them from the Trunk Road, and Captain Baker, at the head of some Sikhs, is marching up the line of railway.

NADIR SHAH REDIVIVUS.—A correspondent of the Englishman says that the natives have a curious idea about the visit of Lord Clyde to Delhi. They believe that he has come for the purpose of taking vengeance on them, and on a certain day he will take his seat on the steps of the Jumma Musjid, and in person superintend a loot to last three hours, and a massacre equalled only by that of Nadir Shah. The supposition is not unnatural, Nadir Shah having received far less provocation than ourselves. His garrison massacred by the inhabitants, had no women. Bastions of sixteen heavy guns each are to be erected where the Lahore and Delhi gates of the palace now stand. The inside of the palace has been cleared of houses and huts from the Delhi gate to Selimgurh, so that it will form an admirable fortress, and command the city on all sides.

THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY seems to have commenced its work in right earnest. Operations have already been begun by the contractors, Messrs. Brassey, Wythes, and Sir Joseph Paxton, near Barrackpore. The whole line has been surveyed in detail, and marked out to Kooshtee on the Ganges. There is a better prospect of our being able to travel by rail to that place (near Pubna) by the beginning of next year than to Rajmahal. We trust the Eastern Bengal Railway Company will not commit the disastrous mistake of the East Indian Railway, of having hundreds of miles ready for rails, but no 'permanent way' available. The former have wisely resolved to postpone the festivities usual on the turning of the first sod to the time when the first train shall run along the line.

THE COUNCIL OF THE ASIATIC SOCIETY of Bengal have at last resolved to recommend the reduction of the quarterly subscriptions, with the view of increasing their numbers so as to improve their financial position. The admission fee is to remain at Rs. 32, as at present, but the quarterly payment of Rs. 16 to be reduced to Rs. 12 in the case of members who reside within thirty miles of Calcutta, and Rs. 6 for those who are beyond that limit, and are therefore considered non-resident members. This will not do. The entrance fee must be abolished, and the subscription reduced to Rs. 32 annually, as in the Agricultural Society. If by the entrance fee the Asiatic Society wish to maintain a little of their exclusiveness still, they may rest satisfied that their objects and pursuits are quite sufficient to do that as far as may be beneficial. None but well educated gentlemen will take any interest in a society whose glories are all of the past, whose journal has been for a long time unreadable, and whose only recommendation is its splendid library.

OPEN LOANS.—Some official correspondence has been published between the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce and the Government, in which the latter urge an application for the publication of a monthly statement of the amount of subscriptions to open loans. After demanding a statement of reasons, the Governor General in Council consents "to the publication quarterly, along with the cash balance return of a statement of subscriptions to the open loans of the day." The Committee of the Chamber express themselves sensible of the value of this modified concession.

APATHY OF THE CALCUTTA PUBLIC.—The annual report of the Bombay Mechanics' Institution for 1858-59 appears in the Bombay papers. It seems to be the model of such an institution as Calcutta wants, adding to the benefits of a large general library and meetings such as those of the Asiatic Society, lectures by the best men, like Drs. Wilson and Buist. The lecturers are remunerated at the rate of Rs. 100 each, of which Government contributes one-half. The income of the institution last year was Rs. 8,571, and its expenditure Rs. 6,264. It has 321 members, of whom 31 are Parsees and 236 Hindoos. In Calcutta concerts are failures; it has been found impossible to keep Young Men's Societies in vigorous existence; the Bethune Society is but poorly attended; the Asiatic Society is almost dying of inanition, and the Public Library is alone patronised. In the total absence of healthy amusement and innocent means of excitement, our young men resort to dissipation, and the old to the late dinner system.

ITALIAN AND AGRA MARBLES.—To the Editor of the Delhi Gazette.—Dear Sir,—Among the various marbles used by the ancient Romans to embellish their city, and of which the quarries are now unknown, I have met with one of the most rare which I have often seen at Agra. It is of a rich yellow filled with thin white shells, all of one species, I believe—a bivalve. The most learned in marbles here are quite at a loss as to where it comes from; and Faustino Corsi, who has written the most learned disquisition on this subject, calls it Lumachella d'Astracana, adding in regard to its origin as follows:—"There are only two columns of this shell marble in Rome; they are to be seen in the garden of the Corsini Palace. Brongniart, on the authority of Signor Patria, assures us that no such marble is to be found in the neighbourhood of Astracan; and Signor Brard mentions that the city of Agra contains the quarries of this precious ornament; but Venuti, who wrote in the time of Clement XI., calls it Astracan marble, and mentions that a block of it was discovered at the marble wharf on the Tiber, when that spot was cleared from the ruins which encumbered it." There are two varieties of yellow marble found among the ruins of Agra, one a pure yellow, the other full of oval pistachio-looking spots; but the variety which had reached Rome is a shell marble, or lumachella; and if any of your readers can assist me in ascertaining precisely where the marble comes from, it will be one step in the development of these researches. I recollect making inquiries at Agra on this very subject, but believe the only answer I could obtain was, that the marble came from the Deccan or Rajpootana, rather a wide field. It has now struck me that, through the medium of your paper, I may find some more satisfactory information.—Yours faithfully, CHAS. GUBBINS.—Rome, February 17th, 1859.

NATIVE "DODGES."—The Delhi Gazette draws attention to the speculation and trickery which are rife at Government sales of confiscated estates and property, with the view of preventing them at the Nawab of Furruckabad's sale on the 20th April. So carelessly are these sales conducted, that purchasers are in the habit of reselling their lots at an advance of cent. per cent. Some buy up lands rapidly, and sell them again to their original proprietors, who dare not attend the sale themselves. Thus men proclaimed and outlawed still hold their estates benamce, and are well able to purchase them from the proceeds of their immense plunder. None but special European agents, alive to the value of the property and the tricks of the natives, should be appointed to conduct such sales.

MR. HALLIDAY.—The Calcutta papers contain an account of the distribution of prizes and diplomas by the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal to the successful students of the Medical College. After reading the annual report, the principal presented an address to the Lieutenant-Governor, in which he thanked his honour for the countenance and support extended to the college, and expressed regret at his approaching departure from India. Mr. Halliday, in reply, said he felt much pain and sensible depression at the very thought of giving up the administration of a country in which he had passed the best of his days. He had never knowingly shaped any of his actions for popularity, the most fleeting and unsubstantial of all rewards.

SALT.—At the monthly sale of salt held on the 16th of April, 32,000 maunds of Khoorda and Chilka salt were disposed of by lottery amongst the Mahajuns. The Hurkaru says that the restriction as to applications on stamped paper was done away with on the occasion.

THE MAURITIUS.—The Phoenix notices the prosperity of Mauritius. The labour market is so well supplied from India, that some of the journals of the colony express a fear that it will be overstocked. In 1858 there was an addition of upwards of 20,000 to the coolie population. The revenue for the last year was £553,073, showing an increase of £101,864 on the previous year. Trade is in a satisfactory condition, and the planters are contented. Mr. Stevenson has already proved himself an able and popular governor.

CALCUTTA OMNIBUS COMPANY.—According to a correspondent of the Englishman, the carriage nuisance in Calcutta, of which we have so often complained, has reached such a height as to lead to the formation of a project called "The Calcutta, Suburban and Mofussil Omnibus and Carriage Company, 'Limited,'" for passengers and goods.

DUTY ON TOBACCO.—The Hurkaru states that the Superintendent of Abkaree for Calcutta has been called on by the Board of Revenue to give his opinion as to the amount of excise which should be levied on native tobacco. He has recommended eight annas per maund.

M. ADOLPHE SCHLAGINTWEIT.—At the last meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, a despatch was read from Captain Henry Strachey, regarding the measures taken by the Indian Government to ascertain the fate of M. Adolphe Schlagintweit. The paper was communicated by Lord Stanley. Adolphe crossed the Para-Lassa Pass from India to Thibet, on the 31st of May, 1857. His last letter was sent on the 24th June, from Chang Chemo, in Ladak. From the evidence of some merchant travellers, it appears that he passed the winter of 1857-58 in the border of Khoten. It is supposed that he joined some insurgent Turks against the Chinese, on his arrival in Kashgar and Yarkand, and on being repulsed retired to Khokand, our few dealings with which have been friendly. Of the various possible routes from Khokand, he would probably take that to the north-west, so as to reach Fort Aralsk, the Russian outpost on the Jaxartes. As yet all is doubt and mystery, and we fear the chances are against the traveller's safety. The British Government have shown more interest in the scientific German than in their own officers, Connolly, Stoddart, and Wyburd. The Schlagintweits were selected by Prince Albert.

THE KOORJAH SKELETON.—To the Editor of the Friend of India.—Sir, In your issue of the 17th March the following passage occurs in your review of a work on the Indian mutinies published by Messrs. Chambers: "Such apocryphal incidents as those of Miss Wheeler and the European skeleton of Khoorjah are repeated, long after it has been shown that there is no evidence for the former, and positive evidence against the latter." As the publisher of the facts connected with the discovery of this skeleton, I feel myself responsible for their accuracy, and have no wish to evade that responsibility. The only evidence I have seen against what I published in my narrative was Mr. Sapté's letter in your paper of the 11th November, 1858, in which he says "that the skeleton was that of a rebel sepoy, whose life had been lost a few days before in an affray with Hallidat's men of Mullighur." Passing over the fact that the deceased must have been dead some months, probably the fatal month of May, I had hoped that my reply in your journal, I think of 9th December, 1858, would have satisfied you, as it has many who have written to me on the subject, that Mr. Sapté was mistaken, and that mine was a correct account, framed as it was, on medical authority. My belief is that, unintentionally overlooking my reply, you have been guided entirely by Mr. Sapté's account. Be that as it may, you have given to the world an erroneous opinion as to the accuracy of my statement; I therefore send you the following from the medical officer I referred to in my former letter. Statement of Dr. Bowhill, late in charge of No. 17 Battery. "In company with two other medical officers, I examined, at Khoorjah, the bones of a skeleton, which was most certainly that of a woman who had been deceased some months; that she had met with a violent death was certain. The head had been severed from the body, the hands and portions of the wrists had been hacked off, there were deep cuts on front of the spine. The shin bones had been hacked and the feet cut off. From the length of the spine, the size of the bones, the shape of the jaw-bone, and appearance of the teeth, we all were of opinion that most probably the bones were those of a European woman about thirty years of age. There were doubts expressed as to whether the skeleton was that of a European or native, but it would be an insult to doubt what every tyro in anatomy can so easily tell—the fact of its being a female skeleton—and we ventured an opinion that it was that of a European." I have by me, just received, a similar statement from Captain Fisher, of the 2nd Punjab infantry, describing also the erect position in which he found the skeleton at the entrance of the village; but if Dr. Bowhill's statement will not satisfy you, it will require that the dead bones should come to life.—Yours sincerely, GEO. BOURCHIER, Lieut.-Col., horse artillery. Meean Meer, April 11.

EASTERN RAILWAY.—The Englishman states that the projectors of the Eastern Railway from Calcutta to Dacca will lay down a branch line to Jessore. From Barrackpore it will strike off to the Matabanga, skirt that river, and terminate at Kooshtee on the Ganges a few miles above Pubna, at a distance from Calcutta of 108 miles. At Kooshtee, the banks of the Ganges are sixty feet high on both sides, and have remained unaffected by the currents of the stream since 1780. A bridge will accordingly be built there, and the whole completed in 1861. It is intended to run extension lines from the bank opposite Kooshtee to Darjeeling via Dinapore with branches to Malda and Rajmahal, also to Serajunge, and by a curve to Gohatty in Assam. This scheme will tap the whole of the districts of East Bengal.

ANGLO-INDIANS.—The Englishman states that Mr. A. W. Wilson Steel, who was educated in the Calcutta Martinière, and went four years ago to try his fortune at Cambridge, has succeeded in gaining for himself the position of second Wrangler, and has obtained one of the fellowships of Caius College. Such cases as his, and that of Mr. Sutherland, now in the Civil Service, should incite more of the Anglo-Indian youth to complete their studies in England.

GRANTS OF LAND.—Government intends to offer to British subjects grants of land in Oude, on very liberal terms, and that some of those gentlemen who are best acquainted with the country, have already made applications. If Oude were completely tranquillised, there is no part of Northern India which would offer greater inducements to agricultural speculators. The soil is rich, and the facility of sending produce to the Calcutta market very great, and labour can easily be obtained. Whether an occupier will be very safe on his grant is another matter, but the experiment must be left to his own discretion.

THE NEW LEVIES.—The Mofussilite mentions that orders have been issued by the Commander in Chief that all the new levies be inspected and reported on. There is now some likelihood that we shall at least know the extent of our new native army, and the elements of which it is composed.

PRIZE-MONEY.—The Bombay Standard consoles the many expectants of prize-money throughout India for the seeming delay in its distribution, by the following information: Prize property is regulated by a Government General Order published in 1822, which directs that all booty captured from an enemy by the Company's troops becomes the property of the Company, and similarly by the Queen's troops, of the Crown. The prize-money for the Scinde battles of 1843 was sanctioned in 1845, and distributed in 1848. Mooltan surrendered in 1848-49, but it was 1854 ere the money was distributed. The process of sanctioning, ordering, and distributing has thus, in these cases, taken five years.

PERSIA.—Accounts from Teheran state that the Shah has ordered that courts of justice, pretty nearly on the European plan, shall be established in all the provinces of the empire, and he has ordered the minister of justice to select as divan-begs, or principal judges, the ablest functionaries of his department. Special instructions, and a sort of legal manual, in thirty articles, have been drawn up for the use of the new judges. The letters add that the Shah has presented Furuck Khan with a belt richly ornamented with precious stones, and a valuable cashmere dress, as a mark of his satisfaction.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, April 22).—The market has continued without much animation since the departure of the last mail. With exception of Corats, in which a fair amount of transaction has been done at full former prices, business in all other descriptions of produce has been limited, owing to the great caution on the part of shippers, and to the small supplies and high prices still ruling in our market.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, April 22).—The market has been very active since the last mail, both as regards Twist and Grey Cottons of all descriptions, consequent on the demand for the Upper Provinces and Lower Bengal, and considerable business has been done in invoices to arrive, at prices higher than those current at the date of our last issue. White Cottons, of almost all descriptions, have been in steady demand, and, owing to light stocks, at well-maintained prices. Metals, especially Copper, have also improved in consequence of inquiries for the Upper Provinces.

MADRAS.

THE QUARRELS BETWEEN THE RIGHT AND LEFT HAND CASTES IN SOUTH ARCOT.

The quarrels between the Right and Left Hand Castes have been renewed in the improving district of South Arcot. From a Government record which appeared in our columns of yesterday, it appears that the acting magistrate of that district has reported to the Madras Government that the disputes between the two Hands are frequent, each one endeavouring to restrain the other from the most ordinary and inoffensive proceedings by pleading mamool, or custom. He therefore wishes to be informed whether mamool is to be maintained, or a common sense procedure is to be enforced more in accordance with European ideas.

Most of our readers are aware of the fierce and bloody battles which have frequently arisen between the Right and Left Hands; and even those writers, including the Abbe Dubois, who have defended the caste system and even lauded it to the skies, have one and all condemned the distinction of the two Hands as most injurious to the tranquillity of the state and peace of the citizens,—as the perpetual fountain of disturbances and insurrection amongst the people, and a continued principle of endless jealousy and animosity amongst all members of the community.

The distinction between the two Hands is said to be of recent origin, as no mention is made of them in any of the ancient books of the country. Moreover it is almost unknown in the North, and is, indeed, chiefly confined to a part only of the Southern Provinces. In the latter districts, most of the Hindoo castes are thus separated. The Left Hand includes the whole tribe of the voisya or merchants, the panchala or five castes of artisans, together with some other mean tribes of the Sudras, and especially the caste of chakili or cobblers. The Right Hand includes the most distinguished castes of the Sudras, but its strongest bulwark is the pariah caste, which still glories in the title of "Friends of the Right Hand."

The opposition between the two Hands arises from certain privileges to which they both lay claim; and in olden time when any encroachment was made by either it was instantly followed by tumults which frequently spread over whole provinces, and which were accompanied with every excess, and generally with bloody contests. Under such circumstances the timid Hindoo appeared to change his nature. To maintain what he termed his right he was prepared to make any sacrifice, and encounter any kind of danger, even to the hazard of his life. Perchance the sole cause of the contest was about his right to wear slippers; or whether he might parade in a palanquin or on horseback on the day of his marriage; or whether at public ceremonies he might have trumpet sound before him, or be accompanied by country music, or carry flags of certain colours, or display about his person the resemblances of certain deities. Dubois mentions a contest so dreadful that many of the peaceable inhabitants began to leave their villages, just as if a Maharratta invasion were impending. This terrible commotion arose from a chakili, at a public festival, sticking red flowers into his turban! At this present moment nothing but the strong arm of the police prevents Madras itself from being frequently the scene of fearful outrages.

According to the report of Mr. Ratcliff, the disputes in South Arcot are of an exactly similar character. In the village of Kippapaloor, the members of the Right-Hand prevented a member of the Left-Hand from riding in his own coach along a public street and highway, under the plea of its being "contrary to mamool." The Left-Hand subsequently retaliated by preventing, their opponents from building an upstairs house in the same street, declaring that that proceeding was also "contrary to mamool." Each Hand of course loudly asserted the truth of its own plea and the falsehood of the other's allegations. The matter has become more threatening in consequence of the progress of a Gooroo of the Left-Hand through South Arcot, and the attendant disputes as to whether the holy individual has a right to pass along this or that street, or whether he may do so with flags or other demonstrations. Thus the question has arisen, whether such cases are to be dealt with according to European ideas or native mamool.

The question is an important one as a caste decision. Forty or fifty years ago the Brahmins and some other neutral castes were frequently called upon to arbitrate between the two Hands, they themselves being in the enjoyment of all the honours and privileges attached to both Hands, and taking no part with either. The British Government now occupies the position of the neutral castes so far as it is itself perfectly neutral in the matter. At the same time it is bound so to decide as to maintain the public order, defend one class from the oppression of the other, protect all from the bondage of mamool, and promote the progress of rational ideas amongst the masses.

The wisdom and justice of the decision of the Madras Government cannot be gainsayed. The principle laid down in the orders on the Tinnevely riot was duly set forth and carried out on the present occasion. In those orders, it had been declared that the public streets in all towns were the property, not of any particular caste, but of the whole community; and that every man, whatever might be his religion or caste, had a right to the full use of them provided that he did not obstruct or molest others in the exercise of their right. Thus every man must be regarded as possessing the right of proceeding along the public highway in his usual conveyance, or of adding an upper story to his house, or of using the highway as suits his comfort or convenience, or of dealing with his own property as he pleases, provided always that he does not give any real annoyance to others, or outrage public decency or public law.

But whilst Government is prepared to carry out this principle when necessary, it is not prepared to go out of its way to enforce its application. Thus the Gooroo is fully at liberty to pass along the public streets in the same manner as other people, but it does not follow that he should be permitted to traverse the street in procession with flags and such like insignia; and we are told that if such a proceeding seems likely to create a disturbance, the magistrate, as the guardian of the public peace, should prohibit it.

These orders are very cautiously, and we were going to say obscurely worded. They seem to intimate that the magistrate is not to prohibit occasional processions, with flags, music and other similar demonstrations unless he has reason to believe that such proceedings are calculated to create a tumult, or lead to a breach of the peace. This is throwing a large amount of responsibility upon the magistrate, but this discretionary power is absolutely necessary in such matters; and if a magistrate shirks his responsibilities, it is plain that he is not fitted to exercise the magisterial office. But by a wise exercise of the discretionary power much good may be effected. Each party may be taught to bear and forbear. Tolerance in matters of caste and religion may become the rule and not merely the exception; for the practice of toleration will inevitably produce the disposition to tolerate, and eradicate the seeds of dissension, and at the same time the culture of the Hindoo will be advanced in the direction in which it has hitherto found its greatest obstruction and its strongest barrier. —Madras Spectator.

THE NEW MADRAS POLICE.

For once it is in our power, thoroughly and cordially, to applaud the Government of Madras. In defiance of all Indian precedent, of the remonstrances of practical men, and of the ill-concealed hostility of most old Indians, that Government has succeeded in carrying a project for the scientific organisation of the police. A Bill for that purpose has passed its first reading, and like the project itself is a most workmanlike affair. Nothing has been left unprovided for. The new principles introduced are carried straight out to their logical result, and for once we have a scheme of reform not clipped to meet individual whim, and not spoilt by deference to private interests or old Indian fears. The reform, in its thoroughness and its workmanlike character, is more like one of Sir Robert Peel's measures, than the slipshod efforts after statesmanship to which we have of late been accustomed.

The principle of the new scheme may be briefly explained. Hitherto in Madras, as in the North West, one man called magistrate and collector has performed all duties, and exercised all powers, judicial, social, revenue, and police. For the future, the police is to be completely separated from the judicial and revenue function. This end is not, however, to be attained by the separation of the combined office into two, as in Bengal. The head of the district is still to be magistrate and collector, but his magistracy, like that of a London stipendiary magistrate, will be a purely judicial office. A police force, as separate as an army, but strictly subordinate to him, will relieve him of all police duties, of thief-taking, and keeping the public peace. This principle is extended to every grade of the administration. Every officer in Madras, from the head of the division to the head of the village, has united all powers. For the future, the head of police, even in the villages, will be a separate officer.

The system to be adopted may be described as follows:—All local forces, divisions of zillah or district police are at once abolished, and the police of the presidency collected into one single body of 22,000. The head of this force is the commissioner of police, with powers of appointment, punishment, and dismissal. Subject to the general control of the Governor in council, this officer will frame such rules and regulations for the force as he may deem fit, decide on all questions of residence, distribution, and concentration, compel attention to drill and accoutrements, and, in fact, act as commander-in-chief of the police. Under him is a superintendent of police, usually, we imagine, but not necessarily, a military officer, exercising all the police powers now exercised by the magistrate, and invested, besides, at the discretion of the chief commissioner, with the power of enlistment and dismissal. The superintendent is absolute master over the external economy of the corps, and responsible for the public peace. He is, moreover, to conduct all inquiries into grave crime, act as public prosecutor in getting up cases, and be his own chief, if not sole recruiting officer. Under the superintendent will be an inspector in every talook, who, besides his duties with the force, will perform all now entrusted to the darogahs. He will drill the men, and inquire into all cases of crime, report on accoutrements and act as a detective, see that discipline is maintained, and watch all important cases through the courts. Under him is the village inspector, to whom the village watcher is alone responsible. This functionary, therefore, who in Madras, where the village system is still alive, is the basis of the police, is linked in with the general organisation. He is not left as a separate authority to act on his own will, or that of the zemindar. He is responsible to the regular police officer, who, moreover, is always personally on the spot, acquainted with him and his habits, and subjected, as we shall soon see, to the most rigorous and inquisitorial supervision. Under the officers are the constables themselves, a body to be carefully selected, composed as far as possible of picked men, and subjected to a discipline which, though not military in its details, is to be military in its rigour. Absolute obedience, strict as that of an army, is demanded from all classes; failure to obey, or frequent personal complaints, being followed by immediate dismissal. Power to flog by sentence of a court composed of the superintendent, one inspector, and one constable, might have been usefully added, but we may let that pass. All grades are to be well paid, the first requisite of a good police. The privates receive first Rs. 5, then 6, and then Rs. 7 a month, the sergeants Rs. 10 and Rs. 14, and the inspectors from Rs. 40 to Rs. 200. The village inspector, being a village officer as well, is differently paid, and the village watcher receives a minimum of Rs. 2 8, the one grave blot in the scheme. A superannuation fund is to be formed by deductions of one anna in every rupee from the pay of all grades, which is to be formed into a regular superannuation fund—a clumsy provision, opposed to native ideas, and not justifiable even by financial exigency. Pensions, to be of the slightest value in a native's eyes, must be given, not bought, more especially as he can invest his savings at about eight times the official rate of interest. Every man will be provided with uniform, to be permanently worn at all times, side-arms, and the light carbine of the Scinde horse. Each, moreover, is liable to summary punishment before the magistrate for every breach of duty, to an extent not yet decided, but involving imprisonment and fine.

Such a police can only be inefficient from internal mismanagement. Scattered over the entire country, and controlling the village watchers, nothing can escape its attention, or elude its grasp. No force existing in any district of Madras could defy some eleven hundred men thoroughly trained to arms, partially drilled, accustomed to obey orders, and liable to be called together at any moment. Every man, moreover, is, for his station, well off, able to rise to a position, of comparative wealth and influence. Each, therefore, must have some interest in the position, promotion, and success of the entire corps, a feeling totally absent in Bengal. This esprit de corps immensely increases strength, and renders the entire body at least a match for any ordinary form of crime. A gang of dacoits, for example, would have little chance either of plunder or escape if the police were resolved on their suppression.

The immediate objection in Bengal will be that the police will be too strong. This is the objection invariably raised by native zemindars, who feel instinctively that an efficient police will control them as well as meaner folk. The objection occurs also in Madras, and it is in the provision for supervision that the merit of the scheme consists.

Every officer from the highest to the lowest is watched and controlled by an officer of a different, and to some extent antagonistic, department. The superintendent is immediately subject to the magistrate collector, carries out his orders, keeps him informed in all police questions, applies to him for warrants, sends up to him all cases of misdemeanors among his police, and generally acts as his executive subordinate. The magistrate can, moreover, of his own motion bring the police up for trial and punishment. Similarly the inspector will be watched by the tehsildar, whose orders and warrants he will execute, before whom he must send all complaints, and from whom he must receive all warrants. The village inspector stands in the same relation to the village moonsiff, and neither of these officers, tehsildar or moonsiff, are likely to leave their duty of supervision a sinecure. It is through their police that the low revenue officers have exercised all their oppression. It was the policeman who tortured the defaulting ryot, or harassed the tehsildar's cousin's foe. The removal of this power will be resented by every tehsildar, tehsildar's relative and tehsildar's dependant throughout the country, and for a time, at all events, every act and omission of the new force will be watched with the most jealous eyes. Every fact, good or bad, will be reported by two services, by the Inspectors anxious to excuse, and the revenue officers anxious to condemn, and the truth ought therefore to be occasionally made known. Every complaint is sure of a fair hearing at the least before a local authority, and unless the police is strong enough to overawe the whole judicial and revenue machinery, any misuse of its authority undetected will be nearly impossible.

On one or two points only we differ from the policy adopted. The village watchers, judging from the Bengal standard of village life, seem inadequately paid. Unless they have fees beyond their pay, Rs. 4 a month, would be no excessive provision. They are not however represented as so hopelessly inefficient as in Bengal, and perhaps the villagers may exercise more control. We fail moreover altogether to perceive the use of the carbine. Trained men, armed with sword and bayonet, ought to be more than a match for any mob, and the excellence of a police is no guarantee for its loyalty. If they must have firearms to keep their courage up, we would give them pistols. The old double barrel is a sufficient weapon for a melee and of very little use against the Enfield. A few more prizes too in the force would not be inexpedient, and though obedience is partially secured, a penal power in the officers may be necessary. These, however, with the exception of the firearms, are matters of detail, which may be modified with time. The scheme, as a whole, is thorough, practical, and coherent. The constitution of the force, forming as it does a civil army, admits of indefinite improvement, and we are rid of the old localized system, in which the policeman obeyed everybody, worked in all departments, oppressed in all ways, and was exempted from special professional control.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

RAILWAY SLEEPERS.—The Madras papers contain a letter from Lord Stanley to the Madras Government on the subject of sleepers for Indian railways. Those at present in use, even when thoroughly saturated with creosote, seldom withstand the ravages of white ants and rot longer than four years. A Mr. Ommanney draws attention to the forests of Jarrah or mahogany timber in Western Australia. This wood has all the requisites for preservation in a climate like that of India. It is impervious to white ants, damp and sun do not affect, and age only improves it. If it can be easily worked, it would in India be invaluable for beams and all kinds of furniture. A timber trade with Western Australia would benefit the colony, and supply the market of India with a substitute for teak, which now sells at an exorbitant price.

JENKINS AT MADRAS.—The Madras Spectator is careful to note and comment on any incidents connected with the voyage of Sir Charles Trevelyan to the Presidency. He "proved himself as bad a sailor as the immortal Nelson in the matter of sea sickness." In company with all the passengers of the Nubia he attended a ball at Galle given by Lord Elgin, and "escaped the wiles of the fair syrens" there. There was no ice on board, so that "the first glass of iced water quaffed by the fortunate Governor after landing at Madras was the most delicious draught of cool liquid happiness which he had experienced since leaving Cairo." So agreeable was he to the ladies on board that "they wept bitter tears on seeing him go over the side, and enter the uninviting massoolah boat." It is seldom that our contemporary condescends to imitate the Morning Post or Court Journal, but we fear that a little more of this rubbish may lead "Indophilus" to change his opinion about the Indian press.

MOONSIFF OF TINNEVELLY.—The Government of Madras have dismissed the village Moonsiff of Tinnevely, as it was by his orders that the shops were closed during the recent riots. The head of the police is dismissed the service, because he used no influence or authority to disperse the mob, or to persuade them of the risk of resistance. Tinnevely is now perfectly quiet, and the question of the right of all classes to a common use of the public road is considered as finally settled.

PETITIONS.—The Government of Madras have issued revised rules respecting petitions. All persons who have cause of complaint against any servant of Government, must first address the local authority, and if dissatisfied, appeal to the intermediate authority, and finally to the Government. Petitions will be received only from principals, not from vakeels or agents. No petitions will be received on matters which form the subject of judicial proceedings. "As the right hon. the Governor in Council never interferes with the distribution of subordinate appointments, applications for situations in the gift of heads of departments will remain unnoticed." It is evident that Sir Charles Trevelyan will not "take care of Dowb."

OBSERVANCE OF THE SABBATH.—The Madras Government have issued an order on the subject of Sunday labour in the Talook public offices in the revenue department. It appears that in nine districts all these offices are closed on Sunday, except for emergent business; in three some of them are closed. In Tanjore they were closed so long as a certain sub-collector who had given the order was in the district, but opened when he left. The collectors of five districts, and Mr. E. Malthy, object to the closing of these offices, "on the grounds that it would cause inconvenience to the public, and would excite suspicion of a design to enforce on the natives a compliance with English religious observances." All offices have always been closed on Sunday in Bengal.

BOMBAY.*THE LATE SIR JAMSETJEE JEEJE-BHOY.(From the Bombay Times, April 16.)

Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy is no more. The venerated and patriarchal old man died yesterday morning, at his residence in the Fort. Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy was born in this island, of poor but respectable parents, on the 15th of July, 1783, and had consequently reached the advanced age of seventy-six years. Left an orphan when he was yet a child, he was brought up in the family of his father-in-law, Mr. Framjee Nusserwanjee, in partnership with whom his career in business began. He seems to have made five successful voyages to China before completing his twenty-fourth year, and to have afforded early promise of that enterprise and sagacity for which he became so conspicuous in after life. It must have been at a period subsequently to these early voyages that Sir Jamsetjee was made prisoner by a French cruiser and carried into Mauritius. Upon the capture of that island in 1810, he regained his liberty, and after visiting the Cape, sailed for Calcutta, where he stayed long enough to acquire some knowledge of Bengalee. We believe the incident now related is not generally known in the community, but is of sufficient interest to be remarked. Sir Jamsetjee seems to have been peculiarly fortunate in his partnership relations, the names of the gentlemen with whom he was associated in business during his long career being familiar as household words in Bombay. Moteechund Amichund, Furdoonjee Sorabjee, and Mahomed Ali Rogay are names which will be long held in veneration by the Parsee and Mahomedan communities, as identified with that of Sir Jamsetjee himself, in every honourable and benevolent enterprise of the century. But the greatest of them all was their survivor, who has now rejoined them in the other world. The dealings of Sir Jamsetjee were confined to no particular branch of trade or class of countries. The produce of Bengal, Madras, and the whole Eastern Seas attracted his attention by turns, and within less than twenty years of his entrance upon business he had amassed a large fortune. For many years past, however, we believe the transactions of the firm had been chiefly confined to China, Sir Jamsetjee employing his own ships largely in the trade. It is impossible to form an estimate of the wealth that the family inherits. The baronetcy, for the maintenance of which £250,000 was set aside in Sir Jamsetjee's lifetime, in accordance with a special Act of the Legislative Council, devolves upon his eldest son, Mr. Cursetjee, who assumes, under the provisions of the entail, the title of Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy the Second. The venerable baronet is survived by the partner of his early fortunes as of his later greatness. Lady Jamsetjee is now upwards of seventy, and occupies, for her many virtues, the same place in the consideration of her numerous friends as her lamented husband held in public estimation.

Simple in his tastes and manners, and dignified in his address, the personal appearance of Sir Jamsetjee, in later years, was a picture of greatness in repose. He had done his work, and entered upon the sabbath of his life; a conception which the sculptor has expressed with much felicity in the massive statue subscribed for as a testimonial by all classes in the island, and for which a resting place is now being prepared in the town-hall of this city. The well known figure of the old man will be vividly recalled to memory by every visitor of the town-hall who was familiar with it in life.

To write a history of Sir Jamsetjee's benefactions would be to write a book, and not the obituary notice of a journal. No man will ever know the extent of his charities. We know enough, however, to be in doubt whether to wonder more at the princely fortune that sustained them or the princely heart which bestowed them. Sir Jamsetjee did not give as other men give; for where other men were satisfied to subscribe, he seemed only intent to endow. The first notice we find of any public gift of magnitude bestowed by him, is recorded in the papers of 1822 and 1826, in each of which years we find him releasing all the prisoners lying for debt in the Bombay jail, under the decrees of the Small Causes' Courts. Having once tasted the pleasures of well-doing, he never turned back, and from that period until his death the flow of his bounty was unprecedented and unceasing. The fame of his strange munificence was borne to the English throne, and in 1842 the honour of knighthood was conferred upon him, and Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy became a name of curious and affectionate interest in England.

In the same year the friends of Sir Jamsetjee resolved to make a formal recognition of his merits, by bestowing on him a testimonial, and a subscription of Rs. 15,000 was accordingly raised to be disposed of as he should think most fitting. The élite of the European and native communities, from the Governor and Members of Council down, accordingly assembled at Mazagon-castle, one of the mansions of Sir Jamsetjee, on the 15th of June, 1842. It was intimated that the sum subscribed for as a testimonial was to be sunk as a fund, the interest of which was to be expended on the translation of the most popular and improving works from European or Oriental writers into Goozerattee, the chief language of the Parsees. An address to this effect, noticing the numberless claims of Sir Jamsetjee to the homage of his countrymen, having been read, the worthy knight replied in a manner somewhat wide of that sanctioned by usage on such occasions, when empty civilities from the recipient are returned for the solid pudding of the givers. Sir Jamsetjee, in acknowledging in fitting terms the compliment that had been paid him, intimated that to the £15,000 subscribed as a testimonial, he had determined to add three lacs of rupees, the interest of which was to be expended in the procuring of translations for the extension of knowledge and promotion of intellectual culture amongst the Parsees.

On the 15th of December, 1843, the Governor of Bombay, Sir George Arthur, invited a select party to Government-house, to be present on the occasion of his presenting Sir Jamsetjee with a gold medal set in diamonds, a gift from her Majesty. In referring to the subject, Sir George stated that he had inquired into the amount of Sir Jamsetjee's past benefactions, and found them to have amounted within twenty years to more than £90,000; while the amount of his private charities could not be learned, but were understood to form a very considerable proportion to his gifts to public institutions, which could not be concealed.

The stranger who passes through the native town on his way to Byculla or Parell, will be struck as he emerges from the Bhendy Bazaar with a long low range of Gothic buildings on the right side of the road, with two advancing wings, forming three sides of a quadrangle, with a handsome clock-tower in front some thirty yards in advance; and a massy structure still further forward, sixty feet high, of the same style of architecture, but still more richly decorated. The one is the Sir Jamsetjee Hospital, for the reception of native patients of every caste and creed; the other the Grant Medical College, erected in commemoration of the late Sir Robert Grant, one of the most amiable, able, and upright men who ever ruled in India. Sir Jamsetjee's contribution to the foundation of this hospital was £17,000, and at this very time we find his attention occupied by two other princely works of public utility—the construction of the Velard and bridge connecting Bombay with Salsette, and the embankment for securing a supply of water to the Parsee quarters of the city and the cañtonments at Poona. The former of these works was constructed at a cost of £17,000, and was gracefully presented to the community in the name of Lady Jamsetjee. The first bund across the Moota Moola at Poona was completed in the year 1845, but the river came down a fortnight earlier than was usual, and before the cement was hardened to withstand the shock, and the whole gave way. The second bund was not completed until the year 1847, when the river once more burst through the barrier, and the work had to be recommenced a second time, to be finally and successfully completed in the year 1850, at a cost of nearly two lacs of rupees.

The largest of Sir Jamsetjee's donations is the endowment of the Parsee Benevolent Institution, for the education and maintenance of poor Parsee children in Bombay, with the sum of between four and five lacs of rupees. Within the last few years, too, he has established a School of Design in the island in connection with the Elphinstone College, and endowed it with the sum of £10,000. But we should only weary the reader by enumerating the charities of this great man in further detail. They were, as far as they were known to the public, published a few months ago in Mr. Dossabhoj Framjee's "History of the Parsees," to which we are indebted for the following tabular statement:—

	Rupees.
Sum paid for the relief of poor debtors in 1822, 1826, and 1842 .....	3,040
Endowment for the performance in Bombay and Guzerat, of various Parsee rites and ceremonies .....	1,80,000

Subsequent to the publication of the above list, Sir Jamsetjee endowed the hospital at Nowsaree with Rs. 75,000, and the last of his public donations was the subscription of Rs. 1,000 at the beginning of the present year to the contemplated museum. He has left none equal to himself behind, and India may put on mourning for the greatest of her sons. But let none be discouraged from following him, with however unequal steps.

The death of Sir Jamsetjee will exercise, in all probability, a marked influence upon the Parsee community. There is no man, now he is gone, to stand up in his place; and it is not unlikely that the veneration with which Sir Jamsetjee was regarded amongst his people may have exercised an influence in his lifetime not unmingled with evil, from the reluctance which all felt to move where Sir Jamsetjee stood still. This is no reproach upon the memory of the patriarchal old man who has gone, but is rather a testimony to the excellence of a nature, in opposition to which men hesitated to move, even where their convictions led. With Sir Jamsetjee closes an era in Parsee history, and we are not without anxiety for the turning of the page.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ENGLISH, THE TRUE BRAHMINS.—The Bombay Times thus notices a lecture delivered by Dr. Bhownjee, on the 5th April, at Bombay. It will be seen that the lecturer considers the English of the same race as the Hindoos,—“like ourselves the true Brahmins”:—

“The object of the lecture was to show that the Aryas and aboriginal tribes of India had from time to time travelled singly or in bodies into distant climes, before the caste system assumed its present oppressive phase ; and that even at this day Hindoos were to be found throughout the chief cities of Central Asia, Arabia, Egypt, and that some were even domiciled so far off as Jamaica. Every Hindoo student he said was enjoined to travel, but they looked on India as the whole world, and on Benares as its brightest cynosure. But a new era has dawned. By strange providences this teeming land had come under the control of a race at the extremity of the earth; a race which had distanced all others in all that is great and good in civilisation, which ceaselessly perseveres in rooting out from civilisation all that is enervating and vicious; which is fired by an indomitable resolve to bestow the blessings it enjoys on all nations, and the connection of which with this country, if wisely cemented, will, by the grace of God, be productive of incalculable advantage alike to India and to Great Britain. And who are these wondrous Anglo-Saxons? Strange it is, but true it is, they are our own brothers in the flesh. Aryas as we are; fairer and stronger than ourselves, also truer and stouter of soul. They are Aryas who have travelled to the far west, and returned to us with their far-brought wealth of commercial, political, social and religious truth and sturdy healthfulness of body and spirit; and whose sincerest aspiration is to guide us to the acquirement of those qualities and the exercise of those functions which have placed them foremost among mankind: such is at once their prerogative and duty; and whatever opposition, malcontent monopolies may incite, or ignorance offer to its use, while steadfast to her mission through evil and through good report, and while firmly resisting the delusive seduction of sordid gain, the sovereignty of England must ever extend and become stronger with each extension. The only danger that can possibly menace England here, is from English statesmen being turned from their duty, as instruments in the hands of God for our elevation, by the selfish representations of vested interests, or by the lust of self-aggrandisement. Power, alike to empires and to individuals, is given to raise and better man by teaching him the truth of God, and when power forgets its purposes as the agent of God, God paralyses it. We cannot in any way look on the English as foreigners; they are like ourselves, the true Brahmans, who from the era of the Vedas have progressed under the invigorating influences of the North, not retrograded under the sun of the South, and are entitled to rule us at once by birthright and the endowment of superior abilities. True to them, we are true to ourselves; false to them, we are false to ourselves. After a long and profoundly interesting account of the migrations of the Hindoos, and their present geographical distribution, the lecturer concluded amid great applause by expressing the hope that many of his native hearers might be incited to enlarge their minds by travel, and above all, to bend their steps to that small western isle at the end of the world, in search of that wisdom which their elder brethren had found there, and which they here exercised as our rulers, so much to their and our own prosperity."

FREE AND EASY.—The Bombay Telegraph and Courier notices two incidents of the banquet lately given to the 64th and 86th Queen's regiments at Colaba. As Sir Henry Somerset, the Bombay Commander-in-Chief, was gliding quietly among the tables to see that the men were well supplied, one of the "County Downs" recognized him, and on observing him retire into the background said "Come to the front, your honour, and let us have a look at you; we have not seen you since the wars began." The remark excited a hearty laugh, in which the object of it joined. Another soldier laid hold of a tall staff officer, and earnestly entreated him to mount upon a table, and favour the company with a few words on the merits of "Giniral Outram."

RAILWAYS.—The Bombay Standard urges the immediate completion of the railway lines in progress, so as to connect that Presidency as speedily as possible with Madras on the one side, and Calcutta on the other. The great Bombay and Madras line is to run through Arcot, Cuddapah to the Raichore Doab, Sholapore, and Deksal to the Toombudra. But of this only forty-two miles are completed from Madras to Arconum. The line from Cuddapah to Raichore is only sanctioned, and the point of junction between the Bombay and Madras lines not settled. Meanwhile all the energies of Madras are directed to the south-west line. The railway through Agra to India has not yet been sanctioned. The true policy, of course, is to complete all main lines before any extension or branch is allowed.

"ORDER OF RELEASE."—The Bombay Telegraph and Courier has an account of the mode in which a debtor confined in the county gaol obtained his freedom. Shortly after the man was imprisoned, in default of a debt of Rs. 175 declared against him in the Small Cause Court, a native female presented what appeared to be a genuine order for his release, signed by the clerk of the Court. The man was set at liberty. The creditor, who was a Marwaree, observing him abroad next day, fancied that the debt had been paid, and presented himself at the Court for the amount. The clerk was astonished; no money had been paid, no order for release issued. It subsequently appeared, that during the vacation-time the clerk had been in the habit of leaving blank orders for release, signed by himself, with the marshal of the gaol, with a view to effect the release of prisoners in the event of the amount being paid. The woman must have managed to obtain one of these. The Marwaree is of opinion that as the gaoler set his debtor at liberty, he is bound to pay the amount, and is about to institute proceedings against him.

and is about to be put into effect. MEN AND BRETHREN.—The Bombay Gazette says that a change has been made in the mode of impelling the petty jury in the Bombay Supreme Court. Instead of Europeans, Portuguese, Parsees, Hindoos, and Mahommedans being kept distinct from each other in the box as heretofore, they are to be seated indiscriminately. In one case a Parsee was accordingly foreman. Bease's case, we presume, has led to this change, with the view of preventing class or race feelings influencing the verdict.

THEATRICALS.—In Bombay there seems to be a "Zoroastrian Theatrical Club." The "eminent performers" who compose it advertise a performance of Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen of Verona" in the Goozerattee language with Italian dress.

CHINA.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

HONG KONG, April 13.—The London mail of the 26th February arrived here on the 10th.

Baron Gros, the French Plenipotentiary, left this on the 7th, in the Audacieuse for Singapore, from whence he returns to Europe. M. de Bourboullon, at present at Macao, is now the French Minister, and the Legation will be removed to Shanghai next month. The Bishop of Victoria has also left, on a visit to Australia.

From Cochin-China there are more particulars of the taking of Saigon, which does not seem to have cost a single life to the allied French and Spanish force. The booty is said to have been immense, both of arms and copper cash.

From Shanghai there have come rumours which may possibly have some influence on the course to be pursued by the British minister to China. It is said that the Russians have established their legation at Peking, and that their Minister has been attended there by a large retinue, but that he has already had a difference with the Chinese Government, from his refusal to communicate officially with anyone but the Emperor himself. This is a Chinese story, but these stories have always some truth in them, and are not unfrequently substantially correct. It is also reported that Tien-tsin (where the treaty was concluded) has been occupied by a large number of Chinese troops, and "difficulties" are apprehended when our Minister advances to Peking with the ratified treaty. To that last report, however, no importance need be attached, the Chinese being a timid people, and given to foreboding evil.

Business is almost entirely suspended at Canton, and the rumour that the city is about to be evacuated by the Allies is one great cause of fear. No teas are making their appearance, and almost no purchases are made of our imports, except of manufactures used in Canton itself and the immediate neighbourhood. It is reported that the rebels, who hold the possession of the passes to the tea districts, have intercepted the small remaining quantity of this season's tea, which was on its way down, and are interfering with the cultivation in some districts. It is feared by the Chinese that immediately after our evacuation of the city it will be seized by the rebels, and so they are unwilling to engage in commercial operations which may only serve to enrich others. Both in the east and on the north-west of the province of Kwang-tung, the rebels have been successful of late, and are pressing towards Canton. In 1846 they nearly took that city, and were driven back with some difficulty; but now there is no determined Yeh to govern the province, or to intimidate the rebels by wholesale executions in the event of the foreign troops being withdrawn.

At all the ports business has been dull during the last fortnight; but the resumption of the immigration of Chinese to California has slightly increased the demand for shipping. The continued dryness of the spring has caused a considerable rise in the demand for rice at all the ports and at Macao.

The subject of piracy on the coast of China has been exciting much discussion of late, the immediate cause being a naval expedition which, at the instigation of Mr. Caldwell, the Registrar General of Hong Kong, was sent against a Chinese town asserted to have committed an act of piracy, but which, there are reasons to suppose, had not done anything so bad. While on the one hand it is evident that piracy cannot be efficiently dealt with through the forms of an English court of justice, it is equally plain that operations against it should only be conducted by intelligent men of good judgment, and whose characters are above suspicion.

There have been lately many and gross instances of kidnapping Chinamen, in order to send them as contract coolies to the Havana. This slave trade has not been carried on at Hong Kong, but on the mainland, especially in the neighbourhood of Canton and Whampoa, and the Chinamen thus kidnapped are said to have been taken down chained in lorchas, to the neighbouring Portuguese settlement of Macao, where they are placed in barracoons and shipped off, chiefly in French vessels, for Cuba. We understand that it is almost impossible for kidnapped coolies to be shipped from Macao, and are glad to learn that the Governor of Macao has taken further steps to put a check on this infamous traffic, so far as Macao is connected with it, and has appointed an officer to examine the Portuguese lorchas on the Canton river. The Chinese themselves visit the offence with the severest punishment. Both at Canton and at Whampoa men detected kidnapping have been seized by the people and crucified, while one man was killed lately on the mainland opposite Hong Kong, on the mere suspicion of being engaged in the traffic.

Our estimate of the export of tea for this season, 1858-59, amounts to 52,894,000 lbs., against, to same period last year, 59,527,300 lbs., showing a decrease for season 1858-59, of 6,632,400 lbs.

To the United States the export amounts to 28,547,400 lbs.

Of silk, the export to Great Britain amounts to 61,026 bales, against 53,110 last season, or an increase for 1858-59, of 7,916 bales. To Marseilles, the export amounts to 7,186 bales. The outgoing steamer Aden takes about 1,205 bales for Southampton, and 353 for Marseilles.—Overland China Mail.

PORTUGUESE NEWSPAPER.—The first number of a Portuguese newspaper, called the Echo do Povo, written by an intelligent young Macaese, has appeared in Hong Kong.

INTRODUCTION OF GAS TO HONG KONG.—There is some prospect of Hong Kong being lighted by gas, a proposition to that effect having been made by an American company, which has already introduced gas to Mauritius and the Havana. This proposal has been sent in to the local Government, but it will require to be sent home before an answer can be given, and we understand that the terms asked are rather high, having probably been drawn up in ignorance of the price of coal here. It has been remarked that the introduction of gas would be dangerous, owing to the probable carelessness of Chinese servants, but there is no ground for the fear. The probability is, that the Chinese would be very careful in the matter—more so at least than the Indians of Calcutta and the negroes of Havana, where no catastrophe has ensued from the use of gas.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.—The Roman Catholic Church in Wellington Street, Nossa Senhora do Conceição, has been for some time undergoing enlargement and repair, it having been found too small for the increased number of worshippers who go thither. Both in front and at the back it will be extended, while a new altar-piece will be raised, and small chapels are being made on each side. It is expected that the enlargement will be completed in a few months, and that the new building will be an ornament to the place. The cathedral is to have two towers—one for a public clock, and the other for the bells. The want of a public clock has long been felt, and it is better to have one in Wellington Street than one nowhere, which latter appears to be the conclusion of the subscription got up for a public clock in Hong Kong and entrusted to Mr. Mercer.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, April 29th. The weather has been very unsettled, and for the past week stormy. We have now, however, the promise of an interval of sunshine, sufficient to enable coffee preparation to go on. The exports of our staple during the fortnight have been as follows:—To London four vessels have sailed, taking 24,277 cwts. plantation coffee, and 4,783 cwts. native; one to Sydney took 263 cwts. of native; and one to Bordeaux, 1,637 cwts. of this latter kind. So that the total exports of the fortnight have been 30,060 cwts., in the proportion of 24,277 plantation to 6,683 native. The aggregate export of plantation kind is 23,128 cwts. below that of the corresponding period of last season, while native is in excess to the extent of 32,507 cwts. Every advantage will be taken of such glimpses of dry weather as may offer, but for the next two months operations can proceed but slowly in the face of the copious Monsoon rains. Our average rain fall at Colombo in May is 15 inches: in June 5½; say 20 in the two months: the annual rain fall being 72 inches.

THE GOVERNOR and a considerable number of the leading members of society are still at Newera Ellia, but with the advent of the May rains many will quit the Sanatorium. The Governor will, doubtless, celebrate the anniversary of the Queen's birthday at Kandy.

OUR OBITUARY includes the name of Mr. Lavalliere, late district judge of Kandy. Consequent on this event and the departure on leave of Messrs. Morris and Twynam, a large move in the Civil Service has taken place.

MR. VANE, the deputy collector of customs, has suffered so severely from dysentery, contracted at the late fishery, that he proceeds to England for eighteen months, Mr. Stephen acting for him at Colombo.

A SCHEME has been submitted to the civil servants of Government for establishing a widow's pension fund.

THE IMMIGRATION ORDINANCE still remains unsanctioned, but we believe the steamer Manchester will be purchased and immediately set to work. Capt. Graham, it is understood, has reported favourably on the chances of obtaining labourers.

ADMIRAL SEYMOUR has arrived at Trincomalee, en route to England. Some sensation has been created by the arrival here in an Arab vessel from the Red Sea of the Hon. Mr. Stanley, who is stated to be a son of Lord Stanley of Alderley, and who, as a professed Mahomedan, has been fraternising with our Moormen.

THE POSITION OF THE RAILWAY QUESTION has formed the great and exciting topic of discussion during the fortnight. For some time back the whole of the railway staff, including the agent and the chief engineer, have been devoting themselves to the most careful examination of the line, especially in the hill region beyond Gordon's Bridge. The result is, the conviction, openly avowed by Mr. Doyne—the agent being in perfect accord with him—that the engagement which now exists between the colony and the Ceylon Railway Company cannot be carried out. To insist on it would be merely to involve both parties in litigation and ruin. If a railway is to be made at all, a compromise must be entered into, and the present engagement revised. Mr. Doyne, as an honest man, feels bound to declare that the expense of making a line to Kandy would very far exceed the outside sum which the Company are bound by their agreement to expend.—Overland Observer.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Our Cabul advices are from the 21st March to the 4th April.

On the 22nd the Ameer said in a public durbar, that, in the course of a few days, he will send all his camp to Cabul, and himself march at the end of the month, as forage was not procurable at Jellalabad. The Ameer heard from one of his servants that Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, ruler of Balkh, had sent an agent to the King of Bokhara to make peace between them, but the latter declined to come to any terms of friendship, saying that the ruler of Balkh was a tyrant and oppressed his subjects. On the 24th a letter was received from Sirdar Shere Aly Khan, ruler of Kandahar, stating that he had received news from Heerat, that the forces and artillery, which were coming from Mushed to that place, had been ordered by the King of Persia to march back to Mushed. On the 26th, the Ameer had it proclaimed in his camp that whoever wishes may return to Cabul whenever he likes, as there was a scarcity of forage for horses. On the 28th Mirza Ma-homed Hossein Khan was ordered to write to Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, and inform him that the Ameer will shortly march to Cabul, and when there he will write to him again. On the 31st a cossid brought papers from Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, ruler of Balkh, stating that as the King of Bokhara intends shortly to come and pay his respects to a shrine which is situated within the boundary of Balkh, the Ameer should therefore place all his forces at the Sirdar's disposal, and himself make haste and return to Cabul. Consequently, the Ameer next day ordered all his forces to precede him towards Cabul, while he himself marched on the 4th of April. Shah Murv Khan has contracted the Jellalabad territory, by paying 8,000 rupees more than the previous contract.—Lahore Chronicle.

BURMAH.

KING OF BURMAH.—Every succeeding act of the present King of Burmah Proper assists in establishing the fact, that in intelligence and in administrative ability he is vastly superior to his predecessors. His large and daily increasing intercourse with the English people, his generous treatment of the British visitors, his readiness to engage the services of British talent, whenever procurable, and his munificence towards us, are among the striking and happy features of his character. Nor is the King dead to a sense of the useful and the beautiful. He has two steamers already plying between this port and his capital, and he has even treated himself to a vessel for his special use.—Rangoon Times.

GENERAL D'ORGONI.—The notorious D'Orgoni has turned up once more, and on the borders of the country which seems to have some mysterious attraction for him—the kingdom of Burmah. He lately, as we learn from the local Times, arrived at Rangoon from Ceylon. This time he presents himself in the unpretending capacity of agent between certain artisans of Bordeaux and the King of Burmah. These artisans, it appears, entered into a contract sous le haut patronage de son Suprême Excellence le General D'Orgoni to proceed to Burmah, and for a certain annual hire to work in a manufactory about to be established there. But they will not proceed beyond the British frontier, and it appears they intend to justify their breach of contract by questioning D'Orgoni's titular dignity, and pleading that a deception was practised upon them in regard thereto.

WRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE.—The barque Jane Mary Teizera from Rangoon to Chittagong, foundered off Cape Negrais in a severe gust of wind on Sunday the 6th March. The commander, his wife and family, and the entire crew save one lascar have been lost.

A NEW CHURCH.—It appears from the Rangoon papers, that at least there is a chance of the inhabitants getting the long talked of Church. Four years ago Lord Dalhousie promised them the shell of the building if they would undertake to finish it. Lord Canning has now followed out the wishes of his predecessor and granted them 20,000 rupees, "when the finances are in an improved condition," which proviso renders the period somewhat indefinite.

SMALL-POX.—We have Rangoon papers to 30th March, small-pox and fever were very prevalent, the deaths among the native population very numerous, and the disorder seems to be on the increase.

THE REVENUE RETURNS of the Province of Pegu show an increase of about seven lakhs of rupees over those of the preceding year. The exports of rice continue steadily to advance, the present return showing a total of 186,494 tons, being an increase of 60,000 tons over the last year. The paddy cultivation is sedulously pushed, and Burmah threatens to become yearly a more important rival to Bengal, in the Chinese and other markets.

THE EXPORT OF BULLION to Bombay on the 27th of May, was £200,000, of which £150,000 was for Government.

The 84th Foot.

Fort William, April 8.—No. 483.—H.M.'s 84th regt. of infantry will embark from Calcutta on their return to England.

Of all the regiments of the royal army which, in 1857, were drawn to Bengal from distant stations, the 84th is that which was first in the field.

The good work of this regiment is recorded in many gazettes, from the first outbreak of mutiny, through the capture of Lucknow, and finally, in the arduous and exhausting campaign of Behar, during the summer of last year.

The Governor General in Council requests the officers and men of her Majesty's 84th regiment to accept his best thanks for their valuable and protracted service, and he cordially congratulates them upon having closed their career of seventeen years in India with marked distinction and honour.

The 84th regiment will be saluted from the battery of Fort William upon leaving Calcutta.

Allowances of Chaplains.

Fort William, April 8.—"Read an endorsement from the Home dept. No. 806, dated the 23rd ult., forwarding for consideration and orders a despatch from the Government of Fort St. George, No. 86, dated the 3rd idem, submitting a question connected with the leave of absence to chaplains and assistant chaplains."

Resolution.—With reference to the order of the late Hon. the Court of Directors, dated August 15, 1855, o. 23, which directs that no deduction be made from the allowance of a chaplain or assistant chaplain in the Provinces during the leave granted anterior to embarkation on sick certificate, provided that the extent of the leave is in proportion to the distance to be travelled to the presidency, the Madras Government now inquires whether chaplains and assistant chaplains stationed at the presidency, and proceeding home on medical certificate, are entitled to leave preparatory to embarkation, and if so, on what terms.

The Gov. Gen. in Council considers it reasonable in such cases to allow chaplains and assistant chaplains preparatory leave for fifteen days on full pay.

Farewell to H.M.'s 9th Lancers.

Fort William, Mil. Dept.—No. 502 of 1859.—April 13.—After a long and brilliant career in India, the 9th "Queen's Royal," lancers are on the eve of leaving Calcutta for England.

From the beginning of the hostilities in which the British army in India has recently been engaged, this regiment has held a foremost place in the contest.

Its name is inseparably connected with the siege of Delhi, during which the services rendered by its officers and men were various and most important; and in the later campaigns in Rohilcund and Oude it has closed its term with much honour.

In taking leave of the 9th lancers, the Viceroy and Governor Gen. in Council desires to offer to this distinguished regiment his hearty thanks, not only for its good service before the enemy, but for the admirable example which it has presented to the young soldiers of the Indian army by its perfection of discipline, conduct, and efficiency.

The regiment will be saluted by the guns of Fort William on its departure.

By order. R. J. H. BIRCH, Maj. General,
Sec. to Government of India.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SATURDAY, May 28, 1859.

EAST-INDIA COMPANY.

A CERTAIN Proprietor of India Stock appears to entertain a very gloomy opinion of the probable state of Indian affairs between the 1st of September next and the year 1874. We know not what may be the precise nature of the danger he apprehends, but it is evident that he anticipates nothing short of national bankruptcy. Moved by these dismal forebodings, he has given notice of a Motion to the effect that a Special General Meeting of Proprietors be convened for the purpose of discussing the advisability of calling upon the Government of this country to pay, within three years from the above date, the sum of £200 sterling for every £100 of East-India Stock. The value of this Stock at the present moment is £215; so that in order to allay the terrors of an individual alarmist, the Proprietors generally are invited to forfeit  $7\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on their capital, in addition to  $10\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. interest for the next fifteen years. Surely it would be a more simple and natural proceeding on the part of the panic-stricken gentleman in question to take his own shares upon 'Change and dispose of them at the current price of the day, instead of exciting groundless disquietude in the minds of his fellow-Proprietors. We can assure the latter, however, that the worst that can befall them is to go on receiving £10. 10s. on every £100 Stock until the year 1874, when the Government will either pay them the same amount as they could now claim, or enter into an arrangement still more to their advantage. In any case it is in the power of every Proprietor to dispose of his shares without having recourse to the absurdity of asking the British Parliament to give £15 less on every share than he can obtain in the market. We cannot, therefore, imagine that the Proprietary will be so blind to their own interests as to entertain for a moment the proposition of this extremely timid shareholder.

LORD CANNING AND THE BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION.

In a recent number we published an address to Lord Canning from an association calling itself the British Indian Association, congratulating his lordship in very high terms of praise on the termination of the rebellion in the Northern Provinces of Hindostan. This address is signed by the president, vice-president, and members of the British Indian Association, and nearly fifteen hundred other inhabitants of Bengal. In it they tender their congratulations to his lordship on the magnitude of the results obtained, which "reflect the highest credit upon those in whose hands lay the direction of active and administrative measures." They further say that this success is "in no small degree due to the soundness of the policy which, uniting firmness with discrimination, reassured the timid, fixed the wavering in their allegiance, and proved to the population of the revolted provinces that resistance to constituted authority was certain ruin and destruction, while ready submission thereto ensured safety." Lord Canning, in reply, said he was "Glad to know that the policy that has been pursued by the Government of India in the suppression of rebellion has been appreciated" by them. His lordship adds, "Justice and mercy have been the guides of it, and no other policy would have been worthy of England."

The English reader who remembers the recorded disapproval of the policy of Lord Canning by the European inhabitants of Calcutta, and the severe criticisms on his overstrained clemency, which to the present day appear in nearly all the European papers of the Bengal Presidency, will hear with wonder of this apparently extraordinary change in the opinions of his countrymen. Nor will he be less surprised at the gracious complacency with which the address has been received and noticed by the Governor General, when his marked hostility to Europeans is borne in mind. This surprise, however, will cease when we inform him that the British Indian Association is composed entirely of natives of Bengal. It does not include among its members, as far as we have been able to learn, a single European. Whether Lord Canning's policy has been right or not we do not propose at present to discuss, but we think it proper that it should be known that the British Indian Association does not represent the English community of Calcutta or Bengal, or any section of it.

"PALMAM QUI MERUIT, FERAT."

THE Friend of India takes great credit to itself for having advocated the creation of an allodial tenure throughout India so far back as five years ago. The fact is unquestionable, but not so the inference desired to be drawn, that the proposition was an original one. Our contemporary, we observe, claims to have been in advance of his age. He speaks, like a martyr, of the ridicule to which he was subjected for recommending a measure which a mature experience has since pronounced to be both expedient and practicable. The old school laughed at him as a visionary, and even the new school hesitated to run counter to institutions that had existed for three thousand years. But our far-seeing contemporary was not thus to be discouraged. Wisdom had not cried to him in vain from the corners of the streets. He felt assured that in the fulness of time he would be understood and appreciated, and so, possessing his own soul, he patiently waited till the inevitable course of events should open the eyes of obstinate and purblind rulers. The redemption of the land-tax accordingly became one of the five points of his policy, and the quintessence of his scheme for the regeneration of India.

But if any credit is due to the man who anticipated the judgment of his fellows by five years, to what honour and glory is not he entitled who was eighteen years in advance? If our excellent and much-respected contemporary will turn to the last volume of the Asiatic Journal for 1841 he will find many cogent arguments set forth, in a letter bearing the signature of

"Verus," in favour of "the redemption of the Indian Land-tax, at twenty or twenty-five years' purchase, by the zumeendars," who would thus be converted "from the character of perpetual leaseholders to a body of independent freeholders." The writer of that letter—Major Munro, of the Bengal army—further insists upon the accession of strength that would accrue to the Government from the formation of a powerful middle class. Identity of interests, he says, would unite them firmly and indissolubly to that Power on whose duration alone would their tenure depend. The objection, that if the tax on land were redeemed by purchase, the prospective rights of the Crown would be compromised, is summarily disposed of by showing the impossibility of the immediate redemption of a tax producing fifteen millions per annum, which would require for its purchase no less than three hundred millions sterling, at the lowest computation of twenty years.

In vol. xxxvii. Major Munro recommends the extension of the privilege "to such European gentlemen of respectability and capital as might be induced to invest their funds in land." He points out the advantage of inducing European capitalists to settle in the country, in order that their enterprise and intelligence might be directed to the increased cultivation of sugar, silk, and cotton, and the improvement of their quality. This he thinks might best be done by allowing them to redeem the tax on such portions of land as they may select for their speculations, and by assigning to them grants of waste, uncultivated lands. The benefit to the native community from enjoying free intercourse with Europeans permanently residing in the midst of them, he justly estimates at a very high point, and particularly alludes to the restraint their presence would exercise on the native police.

In a third letter Major Munro advocates the policy of giving these European landowners "commissions of the peace, with power to commit offenders, to take depositions, and forward them direct to the magistrate, reporting to him any instances of oppression or corruption on the part of the darogah, or native officer of police."

It thus appears that the gallant major whose name we have taken the liberty to divulge, rather than our self-complacent contemporary of Serampore, is entitled to the honour of having anticipated by many years a measure which is now promulgated with considerable ostentation and blowing of trumpets.

REORGANIZATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

SIR GEORGE CLERK having retired, Lieut. col. T. L. Harington presented himself for examination. In his opinion one-fourth of the troops in the Bengal Presidency should be Europeans, and, on service, one-third; natives might do duty as sappers and miners, but not as artillerymen; 100,000 natives quite sufficient, namely, 60 regiments of regular infantry, 40 irregular, and 20 veteran battalions—corresponding to Sir George Clerk's "reserve regiments"—consisting of men unfit for service in the field, but still capable of garrison duty and of escorting treasure and guarding gaols; of Europeans there should be 30,000 infantry, 10,000 cavalry, and 10,000 artillery; native princes to have only a gun or two, to fire salutes; the natives would not attempt to fight if they had no guns, for they place their chief dependence on the artillery; in action, regular cavalry are superior to the irregular, for the latter spare their horses; formerly the irregular horsemen were enlisted from the native cavalry who had fought against us, but latterly they have been taken from the same class as the regulars; the irregulars are usually involved in debt to their regimental bankers—a corps disbanded at Peshawur last year owed £10,000; the irregulars not so well horsed as the regulars; in a cavalry regiment of 500 sabres there should be always five or six officers present, in addition to commanding officers and staff; there should be a distinct staff corps, though it would be difficult to form; never heard any objections to the uniform, though the natives would certainly look better in their own dress; regulars manage their horses better than the irregulars, who, after a charge, are often scattered like a flock of sheep; recruits should be enlisted without reference to caste; nationalities, such as Sikhs and Punjab Mussulmans, to be kept in separate regiments—the others distributed promiscuously; not in favour of low-caste men; on foreign service, the commissariat must provide for the irregulars also, but they find their own tents and carriage; irregulars not equal to the regulars in action, because of the paucity of European officers; in the field a regiment of 500 sabres should have one lieutenant colonel, one major, six captains, eight lieutenants, and four cornets; irregulars very good for outpost duty; their dress should be fixed by regulation, and not left to the whim of commanding officers; their appointments, arms, &c., should be in conformity to native, not European, taste; the regimental banks should be abolished, and the pay of the troopers increased to Rs. 25 a month; would do away with regiments of regular cavalry, but would attach one squadron of native to three of European; the experiment has been tried at Peshawur, and found to answer; in hot weather the natives would thus save the Europeans from exposure; would give to the native horse as good a carbine as to the European, only lighter; the regulars are mounted too expensively, the irregulars being quite good enough for native cavalry; an irregular horseman costs the State Rs. 20 a month, or Rs. 1,440 in six years, including every charge, while, in the same time, a regular horseman costs Rs. 2,170, exclusive of clothing, tents, arms, pensions to syces and grasscutters; the items are, a horse Rs. 600, net pay, at Rs. 9 a month, Rs. 648, a syce for three horses Rs. 96, grasscutter Rs. 252, grain 4½ seers, at 30 seers the rupee, Rs. 328, contract for shoeing, stable gear, &c., at Rs. 3, Rs. 216, saddle, Rs. 30; commanding officers should have more power; would not enlist for service beyond sea; would still call for volunteers, as the natives have such a deep-rooted antipathy to the sea; would make them serve anywhere on the mainland, in Afghanistan, or elsewhere; present allowances quite sufficient; the Bengal army should not be divided; non-commissioned officers of inferior caste have little influence over the men; remembers a Brahmin private threatening a non-commissioned officer, who was of the Bunya caste, with the licking of the shoe as soon as he left the cantonment to go home, and the Bunya was afraid to report the Brahmin to his commanding officer; selection alone would not answer, because of favouritism; native soldiers generally forty to forty-five before they become officers; the annexation of Oude displeased the soldiers because they lost the privilege of having their law cases recommended by the British Resident at Lucknow to the Prime Minister, who settled them free of all charges; after the annexation they had to appoint attorneys, petition on stamped paper, and wait till their turn came round, like other subjects; religious feelings of the sepoys always respected; since Lord William Bentinck's time commanding officers have had no power, not owing to the regulations, but to circulars from the Adjutant general's office; a confidential letter three years ago from the Commander in Chief confined flogging to cases of theft and such like offences; the native officers gave no information whatever regarding the mutiny; there should be no native officer for the future above the rank of havildar, and if he did not keep the European officers well informed as to the feelings of the sepoys he should be reduced again to the ranks; two European non-commissioned officers quite sufficient for each regiment; was altogether in favour of flogging; in former times if a man misbehaved on parade, he was dismounted, and a trumpeter called from the ranks, who laid on a dozen cuts or so with a cane, and it had the very best effect; Europeans and natives should be mingled by squadrons in the cavalry, and by regiments in the infantry.

Major W. L. Merewether had served fifteen and a half years with the Scinde horse; would recommend 12,000 Europeans for Bengal, and 20,000 for the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and Scinde; would make the native troops equal in number to what the Bengal and Bombay armies now are together, and then divide them into three equal parts, one for Bombay, one for Scinde and the Punjab, and one for Bengal; good native army indispensable; the Europeans not required to keep the native soldiers in check; if native army is not to be trusted, India cannot long be held; European army only necessary for supervision, and as an example to the others; moral power must be used more properly for the future; the neglect of moral power before the outbreak rendered necessary the application of physical power; the system must now be improved; the officers must have more power, and be looked up to by the sepoys as their real benefactors; the weakness of the European force rendered the mutiny possible, but did not cause it; the present outbreak has been suppressed by physical force, but a moral influence must be brought into play to prevent the new army from falling into the same state as the last; is of opinion that 50,000 Europeans are enough for the whole of India, exclusive of artillery; considers the organisation of the Indian army an imperial, not a local question; the irregular system should be adopted, both for infantry and cavalry; there are three regiments of Scinde horse, and four European officers to each regiment, the commanding officer, the second in command, the adjutant, and assistant surgeon; each regiment is 800 strong, divided into four squadrons and troops, as usual; each troop is commanded by a native officer, called rissuldar, or rissaidar; the commanding officer is supreme; the native officers feel that they hold important positions and are strictly responsible for the efficiency of their men; in case of neglect of duty the rissuldar is reported to head quarters, and summarily dismissed the service; promotion entirely by selection and merit; the commanding officer selects the men and officers for promotion, and his recommendation is always complied with; the native officers all rise from the ranks; owing to the smallness of the pay there are not many native gentlemen now-a-days in the Scinde horse; thinks the Bengal irregular system very objectionable; the pay of the Scinde horse is Rs. 30 a month, or Rs. 10 more than the Bengal pay; they never spared their horses in action; 250 of them charged, broke, and dispersed 4,000 of the flower of the Afghan cavalry at the battle of Goojerat; they have been under artillery fire at Mooltan and Goojerat, and at Meeanee they were exposed to a heavy fire while the army formed up behind them; the Government pays a certain sum towards mounting and arming the corps, and the deficiency is made up by stoppages from the pay of the men; their arms are a double-barrelled carbine, and a curved sabre made at Birmingham; the sowars are delighted with the sabre; it is worn in a wooden scabbard covered with leather, which preserves the edge from being blunted; the double-barrelled carbine had been found very effective; on one occasion 132 men engaged 700, who resisted manfully, but were all shot down except 120 who surrendered, and a few who made their escape on horseback; the lance a useless weapon in war; Scinde horse are enlisted for unlimited service; there is always a body of "expectants" at head-quarters, and when a vacancy occurs, the commanding officer examines their thighs and sinews; having passed thus far, the expectant is mounted on a bare-backed horse, and made to gallop over a course in which are several sharp turnings; if he rides boldly, and without falling off, he is admitted as a recruit; he is then taken to the orderly room, and agrees to obey all orders whatsoever, to pay all stoppages required by the commanding officer, and to submit to the forfeit of these stoppages if at any time he be dismissed the service; the only cases of desertion have been where two men fled after committing murder; if a horse dies the owner receives 100 rupees from the regimental fund, and makes up the difference from his own means; he goes into the market, buys a horse, and brings it to the commanding officer for approval; the price of a horse used to be 175 rupees, but last year it went up to 300 rupees; the regulars are better mounted than the irregulars; would recommend a greatly-increased pay, to cover everything; the regular cavalry are too expensive, each trooper costs 82 rupees per mensem; if better pay were given the Scinde cavalry would get their horses from the Persian Gulf; offenders are tried by regimental punchayets, consisting of five native officers; these record their finding, and recommend such or such a sentence to the commanding officer; most of the men come from the Delhi district; the artillery is such an expensive arm that it should be of the very best, and therefore confined to Europeans, with the exception of a small native force to serve in such unhealthy places as the north-western frontier of Scinde; there should be a company of gun lascars to each company of artillery; the native troops should be as well armed as the European; a man should be enlisted for his thighs and sinews, and not because he is a Brahmin or a Patan, a Sikh or a Ghorka; a soldier must be a soldier and nothing else; a man's feelings may be respected, and yet the service of the State perfectly executed; much mischief has been done by investigating and discussing little peculiarities of the sepoys, and so giving them an undue importance; men of all nationalities and creeds should be mingled together indiscriminately; the enlistment should be for general service; the present Articles of War not suitable to the Indian army, the commanding officer should be absolute; his position should be patriarchal, like that of an Arab chief; very advisable to form a fourth presidency, and therefore to divide the Bengal army; all commanding officers should be appointed by selection; there should be an indiscriminate list of officers, from which the best men should be selected for commands; in the irregular corps the commandant should rank as colonel, the second in command as lieutenant colonel, and the adjutant and quartermaster as captain. Europeans and natives should not be further intermingled than by being brigaded together; the irregular infantry should have 10rs. a month and pay for their own arms; very desirable to add to each regiment of Scinde horse a rissuldar major, the same as subadar major in the line, and a kote duffadar major, corresponding with our sergeant major.

Lieut. colonel R. A. Master had hardly given the subject a thought, but supposed that 40,000 to 50,00 Europeans would be necessary for the future in the Bengal Presidency; sixty regiments of native infantry will be quite enough; a native army is necessary on account of the climate; the native sappers and miners are equal to any in the world; irregular corps could do all the duty that would be required of regulars, besides being less expensive; five European officers, independently of the surgeon, enough for any regiment—namely, a commandant, an adjutant, and three squadron-leaders; the native officers unfit to command squadrons; the horses of the irregulars not very good—the Government might supply them with stud animals that are too slight for the regular cavalry; a squadron of native cavalry attached to three squadrons of European would save the latter much exposure in the hot season; the irregular horseman is a better soldier than the other; the irregulars are apt to plunder when on active service, because they have to find themselves; would enlist all castes, but only a limited number of Brahmans in every corps; objects to national corps, as constituting a sort of clique; sepoy for the future should be enlisted to go anywhere and everywhere; perhaps a good many might desert when ordered to embark on board ship, especially Brahmans; sepoy often addressed complaints and petitions to the O. in C. direct, without the knowledge of their commanding officers; would certainly not mix Europeans and natives in the same regiment; five commissioned and twenty non-commissioned native officers were annually allowed to go to their homes, besides ten men per troop.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

At the SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING, held on the 25th November, 1858, it was shown that on the 30th June last,—
The Number of Policies in Force was..... 6,055
The Amount Insured was..... £2,551,136. 6s. 6d.
The Annual Income was nearly..... £120,000
The New Policies issued during the last five years are as follows:—
5,411 Policies for £2,599,658, yielding £110,624 in Premiums, showing an average yearly amount of new business of more than HALF-A-MILLION STERLING.
The Society has paid claims on 1,062 policies, assuring £426,044 since its establishment in 1841.
Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at as moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.
Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European Life in that Colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on the lives of military officers holding civil appointments, for the term of such appointments.
Immediate reduction to English rates on the Assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.
Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

Policies issued free of stamp duty, and every charge but the premiums.

In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH, New
Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygiean agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygiean system of medicine introduced by James Morison. The Hygieist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.
—PALPITATION—SHORTNESS OF BREATH—DROPSY.—This last named disease is commonly preceded by irregular action of the heart and difficult respiration, which symptoms are always severe, and even go from bad to worse, unless the proper means of cure are resorted to. In Holloway's unrivalled Ointment and Pills the dropsical patient will ever find succour; the present relief derived from the use of these remedies is marvellously quick, and perseverance in the steady application of this noble Ointment invariably results in a lasting and satisfactory cure. They act with such energy in the circulation and absorbent system that the dropsical fluid vanishes, and the sufferer finds all the oppressive symptoms daily decline till natural health returns.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.
—"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry, each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—P. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

THE FOLLOWING IS AN EXTRACT
from the Second Edition (page 185) of the Translation of the Pharmacopœia of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. P. Collier, published by Longman and Co.:—"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of the Pharmacopœia) that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes; yet we know that hæmorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS, which chiefly consist of pines, scammony, and colocynthis, which, I think, are formed in a sort of compound extract, the acidity of which is obviated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a patent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best made pill in the kingdom; a muscular purge, a mucous purge, and a hydrogogue purge combined, and their efforts properly controlled by a detergent and coarctant. That it does not commonly produce hæmorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."

DEATH FROM CUTTING CORNS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLAINERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have Young's—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. 1s. per box, or 13 postage stamps. Address H. YOUNG, 1, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

CHALLENGE TO THE WORLD.—The Hair dyed perfectly natural by Mr. TAYLOR, 6, Glass-house-street, Regent-street. The dye sold at 6s. 6d. Sent to all parts. Mr. Taylor defies the world to produce a better.

FRESH IMPORTATION OF PURE TEAS.
THE Finest Imperial Pure Black TEA (the right sort for everybody). Four Shillings and Eightpence the Pound; the Finest Pure Imperial Small leaf Gunpowder, and the Finest Pure Imperial Hyson, at Five Shillings the Pound. These Teas are ripe, rich, and full of flavour, and are confidently recommended to Invalids and others as being the most wholesome that CAN BE PRODUCED. Compare and judge. One trial will prove that they are the best, purest, and cheapest. To be obtained ONLY of TROWELL and Co., 93, St. Martin's-lane, Charing-cross, London. Delivered Free to all parts of London and suburbs, on receipt of Post-office Orders payable at Charing-cross.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The second number of this new candidate for public favour is unquestionably an improvement on the first. This is, in itself, a merit to be appreciated, as it augurs that the organisation on which the future of the "Review" depends has within it the elements of that completeness which can alone ensure stability. We have only space to direct attention to the articles on "Philosophy as an Element of Culture," on "Realistic Novelists," and "Christianity in India;" but we venture to say that the whole number is well worthy of thoughtful consideration. In this addition to our periodical literature there is every mark of careful conduct, and there is every reason in the present number for a prediction that it is destined not merely to an existence, but to a useful and enduring life.—Illustrated London News, April 9, 1859.

The third number of the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" may be pointed out as an excellent specimen of that which a publication should be—learned, witty, powerful, and occasionally caustic, but always devoid of pedantry, slang, ponderosity, or personality. It may be said to supply a long-existing and widely-felt want in periodical literature. Its politics are Conservative—not the rabid, blatant Toryism which roars and bellows in the pages of certain publications, from Blackwood downwards, but Conservatism of a liberal and comprehensive spirit (the terms are not misapplied), such as guides the principles of many thinking young men of the present day. In their literary likings the conductors of the new "Review" are singularly catholic, welcoming every disciple of any "school" who shows originality and talent. There are ten articles in this month's number; all are readable, and most are interesting, which is saying a great deal. The first article does tardy justice to the memory of a most excellent man, the late Rev. F. W.

Robertson, of Brighton, an earnest, single-minded, clear-headed, upright clergyman, whose life was made a burden to him, and who was hunted to death by the persecutions of his religious brethren, because he pursued his own straightforward course, preaching a healthy doctrine with singular vigour and effect; and because he would not give in to the vagaries of either of the sects whose open conflicts are the disgrace of that hotbed of religious fanaticism in which Mr. Robertson's labours were cast. "Women neither Nice nor Wise" is a well-stricken blow at the noisy trumpeting of the advocates of "Woman's Cause," and comments very sensibly on many of the absurdities prevalent among that class of strong-minded foolish women of which the two ladies who have recorded their travels as "unprotected females" may be taken as types. The writer touches the whole sense of the question when, after mentioning the now-prevalent desire of women for manly employment, he says, "What we now wish our countrymen to believe is this—that it is far more important to the whole world that women should be good wives and mothers than that they should excel in any one art or science, which men can achieve as well as they. If for no other reason than this obvious one, that though men can do at least as well as women in the capacity of doctors, lawyers, &c., yet they could never do at all as wives and mothers." The other pleasant papers in the number, to my mind, are the review of M. Michelet's "L'Amour," and a most sound, judicious and clearly-written article on "French Dramatists and English Adapters." The writer is, however, mistaken, I think, in supposing that critics do not make a point of exposing the origin of any adaptation, if they happen to be acquainted with it.—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, May 7, 1859.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of action is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; is and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the month exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE tranquillity of India, as we learn by the Bombay mail of the 12th May, continues to be interrupted by local and partial disturbances. Several small engagements have taken place on the frontiers of Oude, invariably resulting in the discomfiture of the rebels and in the capture of numerous prisoners. In Central India, again, Adil Mahomed Khan has been roughly handled by the Hoshungabad military police under Lieut. Foote, and his followers destroyed or dispersed. A rebellion on a minute scale is stated to have broken out in the Nuggur Parkur district, a small peninsula jutting into the Runn of Cutch. At first it was reported that Mr. Chatten of the Electric Telegraph department had been murdered, but it is now believed that that gentleman is alive and well, though a prisoner. A body of troops was immediately despatched to quell the disturbance, and no doubt with complete success. The Nana has once more put himself forward prominently as a leader of the disaffected. Summoning courage from the desperate state of his affairs, he ventured within twenty miles of Major Richardson's camp, and sent in a paper couched in the following terms:—

"To Officers, civil and military, of the British Government; to Governors; to the Council of India; to the Governor-General; to the Queen of England and the British Parliament.—It is well known that the rebellion was caused by the sepoys of the British army, who have done all the mischief they could. It is also known that when the mutiny broke out in Cawnpore the Government treasure and magazine had been forced into my keeping. It was only on this account, and the preservation of my family, that I did not go with the Europeans into Gen. Wheeler's entrenchment. It is also known that I had no power over the mutinous sepoys or my own troops, as they were not my countrymen, and that I had nothing to do with the murder of the Europeans at Cawnpore. Nevertheless, it is singular, that, with the large British army in the field, and with Jung Bahadoor for their ally, they have not been able to do anything against me. The British Government has pardoned all mutineers—all chiefs—even the Nawab of Furruckabad; yet I will not give myself up, but will rather die, and am therefore determined to fight it out. In a short time I will have such an army to fight the English that will make their blood flow; and the men who are now fighting for them will fight against them, and then what will the British do?"

The erratic movements, however, of rebel chiefs and their disorganised followers are of little importance in comparison to two great facts—a money panic at Bombay, and a mutiny of European troops at Meerut.

"Trade," says the Bombay Times, "is at a stand, from the spasm which has seized the currency; and there seems nothing left for the place, but to fall back upon a system of barter, and weigh out silver by the shekel. The mint certificates are issued at fifty days' date, but the tenderer of bullion has to wait a fortnight or three weeks before the certificate is granted, on the ground, or the pretence, that the mint authorities are unable to weigh it earlier. It is useless to sell to the bazaar, for the native buyer is unable to redeem his purchase. The stream has dried up and disappeared, and the currency is nowhere. The losses entailed upon holders of securities or goods, in these circumstances, are perfectly crushing, and the extent to which prices have been affected may be estimated from the fact, that cotton has fallen fifteen rupees a candy within the last ten days without finding buyers; while securities are unsaleable at any price. The paroxysm may subside in a few days, but there can be no effectual relief, while the Home Government is remitting silver to this country. The operation makes exchange business so hazardous, that the banks could only buy upon a large margin, even had they funds at command; while the bullion importations are so far in excess of the coining power of the mints, that they only embarrass us with riches we are unable to use."

But the most serious and even alarming intelligence which has reached us for some months past is, undoubtedly, the announcement that English troops have been driven into Mutiny by the inconsiderate conduct of the Indian Government. An impartial and perfectly trustworthy correspondent has favoured us with the subjoined letter which demands the attention of the Home Authorities. It is dated the 5th of May:—

"I have been at Meerut the last four days. On muster day the whole of the artillery and the 2nd European cavalry mutinied, refused to obey their officers, and demanded their discharge. The best men, the old soldiers, heartily joining. The men have been angry a long time. They showed their teeth when the Royal Proclamation was read. Their officers have denied the existence of any bad feeling, and the Government ignored it. The correspondence, however, has extended, and all the Company's European troops on this side are in concert, and the Bombay 3rd Europeans are known to be similarly disposed. They allege that they were enlisted by the East India Company, and insist either on their discharge, or a new enlistment and a bounty. The Government have been lately informed of the temper of these Europeans, and Lord Canning referred their claim to the law-officers of the Government, who pronounced it to be illegal and inadmissible. The men declined to accept this answer, and loudly declared their intention not to submit to such treatment, while the Pandies were pampered and petted. A few words of compliment would have satisfied them at the time of the transfer of their services to the Crown, but as this was not done they objected to being handed over like "a lot of horses." So, on Monday, the 2nd of May, they refused to go to parade, and when the officers went to the barracks they found them looting on their charpaees, and determined to take the matter into their own hands. The artillery, 1,000 strong, proposed to start off to Delhi with their guns, and join the 2nd Europeans and artillery there. The Royal regiments appear to sympathise with them, and think they are quite right. At Meerut the authorities are afraid to employ the 75th against them, and it is said that they refused to load. On the 3rd Gen. Bradford was obliged to station pickets of native sowars at different points, to prevent the Europeans straying into the city and pillaging, or dispersing and going off to Delhi. The electric telegraph has been tabooed to the public, the dakhs stopped, and the press requested to be silent. Up to the present time the men are quiet enough, and perfectly respectful to their officers; but there is imminent danger of their breaking out any moment into a row with the natives, and plundering Meerut. The fact is, they are exasperated by the preference shown on all occasions for the Pandies, and constantly say, 'If those fellows had been Europeans, they would not have been so well treated.' This mutiny settles the question as to whether the European forces in India shall all be royal regiments, and under the Horse-guards. There must be no more local European corps. Unless your politicians take more pains to understand India, it will be the ruin of Great Britain. At present all is confusion, blundering, and haphazard, finance worse than ever, and all classes dissatisfied. Our rulers here are unequal to the occasion, and the support they receive from England makes matters still worse. Even the Royal army is irritated at the favouritism shown in sending back certain regiments that have only been a short time in the country. In this they are unreasonable, but their irritation is not the less dangerous."

INSULTS TO THE NATIVES.

From the Delhi Gazette of the 30th April:—

"By general orders just arrived as we were going to press, we observe that Lieutenant Allen, H.M.'s 82nd foot, has been sentenced to four years' imprisonment in the Agra Gaol, for the crime of manslaughter, for killing a native, his syce. He was tried at Shahjehanpore, on the charge of murder, but found guilty of the lesser offence. The sentence may be a just one, but it is unusually severe, and we suppose there must be some aggravating circumstances in the case that do not appear on the face of the proceedings. Four years' imprisonment in the Agra Gaol we should think tantamount to a sentence of death."

The punishment is very severe, all precedents considered, but we suppose with our contemporary, that there must be some aggravating circumstances in the case. It is wonderful to find a court martial sentencing an officer to such a punishment, and we suspect Lieutenant Allen must be a bad subject altogether, or he would not have been visited so heavily. Severe examples of this nature, however, are much required to check the barbarous habit of striking and maltreating natives, often at the expense of their lives. Indignant as we may all be at the charges preferred by Russell, Layard, and others of limited Indian experience, against the Anglo-Indian community, as to the way in which its members regard and treat the natives, it is not to be denied that the accusation is not altogether unfounded. There are features in the native character provoking enough even to the most patient of us; but it is only low and cowardly natures that retaliate these provocations by violence, which they would never think of using even under exactly parallel circumstances to an European. They dare not assault the European; they can assault the native without the least fear of retaliation,—hence the difference. No better than these are they who profess to hold all natives in the same contempt because they are natives, or because of their colour, and who think as little of insulting a man respectable in position and intelligence as of giving gallee to a coolie. We heard of one of these the other day, in appearance a "gentleman," and possibly a military officer, who, at the public dinner table of one of the hotels in the fort, summoned the parsee manager to his side for the purpose of asking, in a very audible voice, a most insulting question regarding the domestic usages of his "caste." The parsee, very properly, showing no disposition to submit tamely to this insolence, the indignation of the "gentleman" burst all bounds, and he continued for some time to abuse him and all his race as "a parcel of d—d black fellows," and so forth. These are the unworthy members of the Anglo-Indian community who bring it into evil repute both here and at home; a repute which, as a body, it does not deserve. Not only should the courts of justice severely punish in every proved case of maltreatment, but society at large should steadfastly discountenance those who are guilty of insolence to the natives. Only thus can we hope to put down in any degree these barbarous habits of low and vulgar Europeans.

In connection with this subject we may extract the following from the Bengal Hurkaru:—

"The same journal (the Hindoo Patriot) contains a violent article against what is said to be a class of Europeans introduced into this country by the progress of public works, 'in whose conduct is often realised the worst fears of those who deprecated the unrestricted admission of Europeans into the interior parts of India.' We are told that it is 'no wonder that a simple tribe should be driven into rebellion by the outrages of lustful road-makers; that hundreds of villages should be thrown into misery by the location in their neighbourhood of a single European.' After referring to certain recent events on the Bombay side, and to a case which occurred very lately in Beerbhoom, the writer, speaking of the latter case, says:—'The engineer had the audacity to write to the magistrate himself of his intention to commit further violence. The previous story was, that the Zemindar of the village had threatened to kill the engineer unless he removed. We can believe it. We hope no Bengal Zemindar has yet fallen so low as not to risk his all for the protection of his tenants from such insolence and oppression as this.' Really very pretty and spirited language this for a mild Hindoo! And so is the following, which is the concluding sentence of the article from which we are quoting. 'We submit that the strongest measures are necessary to coerce and keep within bounds violence of the kind habitually practised by the class of Europeans whom a native orator has fitly denounced as the sweepings of Europe.'

It appears to us that there is in this rather too much of the spirit which we have been reprehending.—Bombay Gazette.

RAILWAY PROGRESS.

India is waiting for permanent way. Until the great triangular system is completed, and the three Presidency cities are united, we can have no perfect sense of the security of our empire. With the power of planting a thousand Europeans in any district of India within six hours, and of pushing on reinforcements from the great military centres at fifty miles an hour, successful revolt will become an impossibility, and the Asiatic cease even to dream of that anarchy to the hope of which he yet clings, notwithstanding his utter defeat. However important, therefore, the speedy and extensive development of our railway system may be to the settler, the landowner, and the merchant—however anxious an advocate and promoter of public works like Lord Stanley may be to see the iron horse in every valley of Hindostan—it is primarily as a state necessity, as a movement essential to the very existence of our sovereignty, that the railway system must be looked at and carried out. If we are unable to cover every large producing district of India with railways at once—if capital is raised so slowly and only under a guarantee—if labour is found with such difficulty and is often so inefficient—then it ought to be our object to complete the great lines of communication between Calcutta and Bombay, and Madras, &c we attend to the smaller branch and extension lines which must ultimately become the great feeders of the triangular system. A line from Calcutta to Dacca, with a branch to Jessore and Pubna, may be most profitable, and it may be most desirable to carry it out at once; but a through line from Calcutta to Allahabad, Agra and Bombay would save the empire in the event of a second mutiny. We do not say, stop all extensions until the main lines are complete. But we urge that in the impetus given to the former because they will pay large dividends, and in the increased interest taken in them by the moneyed classes at home and the non official classes here, the State should not lose sight, as Lord Stanley seems to do, of the necessity, the pressing obligation, to carry out and complete the great triangular system.

From the half-yearly report of the East Indian Railway just issued, we are enabled to see the progress already made, and to form some idea of the time when we may be able to travel by rail from Calcutta to Peshawur on the north and Bombay on the south. That time depends wholly on the supply of permanent way. On this side of Benares the rail has been opened only to Beddiah, a village twenty-one miles from the Burdwan junction, from which the branch line runs to Raneegunge. Starting from that point, let us take the whole district by district. In South Beerbhoom, containing forty-five miles, four great bridges with the necessary earthworks over the Adjai, Copai, Backersal and More, will be completed by the end of the year. In North Beerbhoom, of thirty-three and a-half miles twenty-six are ready for the permanent way, but it is not expected that trains will run over the district till June, 1860. The south and middle Rajmahal divisions of fifty miles bring the line to the Ganges, but the whole will not be ready for traffic till after July, 1860, and that depends on the speedy supply of permanent way. The engineers on the North Rajmahal, Colong, Bhagulpore, Jehangeerah and Monghyr divisions, covering a distance of 134½ miles and terminating in the Monghyr station, record progress as "lamentably slow;" of the tunnel at the last place, which is to be 900 feet long through quartz, 666 have been completed. From Monghyr to Patna, a distance of fifty-five and a-half miles, the mere preliminary brick-burning, brickwork, and earthwork are going on. In the Soane district, notwithstanding the ravages of the Behar rebels, much more energy has been shown, so that forty-three out of seventy-eight and a-half miles will be ready for rails before the rainy season, and yet only seven miles of rail have been delivered. The universal cry is for permanent way—for a supply of rails. Of the 371 miles from the More to the Kurrumnassa, 174 are ready for the rails, and ready they will probably remain for the next three years, unless rails are despatched from England in greater quantities, and when they have reached Howrah, sent up country with greater speed. We may go by rail to Rajmahal and so reach Darjeeling by the beginning of 1861; but cannot hope to reach Benares in the same way till 1862, with the present careless indifference to forwarding supplies from England and Howrah.

Beyond Benares the same story has to be told. In the Benares district "everything is ready for laying in the road" for fifty-six and a quarter miles. So in the Mirzapore districts for ninety-one and a half miles. The Touse and Jumna bridges and the works up to Allahabad are heavy, and will cause delay. At Allahabad a great railway city is fast progressing, covering an area of 150 acres, to which seventy more will probably be added. There will thus for a long time be a break in our railway communication from Rajmahal to Allahabad. From Calcutta we may go to the former in 1861, but we fear the old river steamers and dāk gharrees must for some years yet continue to outrage civilisation as the only means of transit from Rajmahal to the latter. The section of 126 miles from Allahabad to Cawnpore is completed. From the Kurrumnassa to Delhi there are 282 miles perfectly ready for the permanent way, of which 130 are below Allahabad and 152 above Cawnpore. But no permanent-way materials have reached the N. W. P. division since July, 1857. Except a bridge for the Sutlej, the line from Delhi to Lahore and thence to Peshawur has yet to be surveyed.

On the Bombay and Madras side matters are worse. In Madras the cry is for extensions to Vellore and Bangalore, for the union of the Coromandel and Malabar coasts. But of the main line to the North only forty-two miles have been completed. At the present rate of progress our grandchildren may see the completion of the triangular system, but not we. While the wealth and resources of the empire may be best developed by local lines in large producing districts, let us not forget that we can have no empire at all in a state of permanent peace and security, without complete main lines. For them the chief want is a supply of permanent way, which ought to be furnished with a hundred times the speed and energy now manifested. Are there no colliers in Sunderland or tubs in Glasgow, that material cannot be despatched?—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE EXAMINATION MANIA.—A Calcutta paper gives an amusing account of the agony of mind endured by an unfortunate Baboo who went to the Town-hall for the purpose of appealing to the Commissioners against the rate at which his house had been assessed. This unhappy individual accidentally got into the wrong room—that in which the University examinations were going on—and found himself suddenly pounced upon by a Sahib, who, giving him a printed paper of questions, commencing with "Define satiric poetry," desired him to sit down and write his answers. Little less distressing must have been the position of some of the candidates who went in recently for the B. A. Pass Examination, especially when they came to deal with the "English" paper. The only wonder is, that they did not one and all write after each of the "English" questions, as the Baboo we have alluded to, did after the one about satiric poetry and those which followed it—"Sir, I am a poor man, and cannot answer this question."

OPPIUM.—The Board of Revenue is said to have received a statement of the produce of the Opium crop of the year 1858-59, which is reckoned at 35,000 maunds, or 20,500 chests of Patna; and 14,000 maunds, or 8,000 chests of Benares; total 28,500 chests. Out of this produce 2,000 chests are to be kept apart for the Abkaree Department, so that there will remain 26,500 chests for the market. This account shows a deficit of 1,000 chests from the out-turn of the drug of the year 1857-58. This report was laid on the Board's Table prior to the 14th instant, the day on which the last Opium sale took place. It had, however, very little effect in raising the price of the drug on that day, as the Mohajuns believed that the produce would be larger than that of the last year. Since that day the price has greatly advanced in the market, and will advance further as the report of the deficiency of this year's out-turn spreads.

BEHAR, April 17.—Another storm is fast approaching. I am not a political weather-cock, but still, when the horizon is daily becoming gloomier around us, I must say my say. I should be glad to know what has become of the Jugdespore jungles. We were once told that they were in the act of being cut down. Is it entirely destroyed? The rebels are returning to Shahabad. True it is that they come in small bands; but as they continue pouring in, we cannot but fear that their number ere long will again become formidable. This is the state of affairs on the right bank of the Ganges. On the left, our troops are returning from the frontiers, and blind politicians imagine that the back of rebellion is broken; that the rebels are entirely discouraged, and that with the submission of one of the obscurest Begums, the partial defeat of Bala Row, and the capture of Tantia Topee—the mutiny is in its last stage. I would ask, where is the Nana and the principal Begum of Oude? Report says in the Goorkha Fort of Bathuck, beyond Bootwal. Where is Deboe Baksh? Gone to the west again. Where is Ummer Singh and Ally Kurreem? Here, there, and everywhere. Where is Bala Row? With 2,000 men at Ruheempore. Where is Seedha Sing? Slipped from Shahabad, and gone to the Terai, crossing the Gunduck by giving out that he and his party were sent on Government service. Do all these show that the rebellion is over? Far from it. In Chaprah itself, in Pergunnah Chowbarah, the enemy is in force. Tirthoot is not quite safe. A hot weather campaign has already commenced in Behar; when will it end? Weather strange, now a storm, now a shower, and now as warm as ever.—Hurkaru.

FYZABAD, April 14.—The events of the day show that the body of rebels who were advancing on Fyzabad have been turned westwards, from the impracticability of their getting here without interception. They cut off our telegraphic communication with Goonda, but it has been restored since. The fair at Ajoodya has terminated peaceably, and thousands of men, women, and children are now streaming back to their homes, carrying a delusive belief of being purged of their sins. The assemblage has been a monstrous one, and as is common in such masses, petty crimes of an irregular character seemed to be rife; if such were purse-cuttings, bundle liftings, in fact every act in the way of larceny was not left unattempted, and not a few of the women had their noses actually torn, for the sake of the ring worn by them. Summary punishment of a corporal character was administered by the judicials on the spot, so as to deter the cut-purse craft; but withal their attachment for it seemed unconquerable, and the temptations too great for them to forego, as on the second morning the list exhibited a large number of delinquents. That notable rebel, Nurput Sing, of Binra reputation, arrived here yesterday afternoon, under an escort of some Sikhs. I presume he has surrendered under the amnesty, when he found that he could no longer struggle against his reverses. Discomfited on all sides, he does not consider it unwise to throw himself on the clemency of the Government, who will no doubt fix an annuity on him, although he inflicted such heavy loss on us at the capture of his fort. The extremities and straits the rebels are reduced to seem to run parallel with our own desire to quell this rebellion at any cost and pardon, though the atrocities of '57 be still so painfully fresh in our memories and convulse one's frame to think of them.

April 27.—The rebels appear to have been totally driven away from this quarter, but as the eyes of the public will still be on them, the following might be of interest. Remarkable to say, that after they have been dispersed, beaten and almost annihilated on this side, it now oozes out that their descent is attributable to information supplied them by some very loyal native doctor, a true Moslem, who represented that we were entirely without troops, and the coast free of every danger. This luckless fellow by some means has had his letters intercepted, the whole conspiracy has been unmasked, and he now awaits the result of his trial. Our crochety Government will, perhaps, after all find nothing in his conduct to visit him with condign punishment; the door for an escape will be thrown wide open, and though a searching examination will expose the wretch's perfidy, yet he will in all likelihood get off. It is no use to rail, so we will cheerfully bow with submission to the will of our gracious Government, and acknowledge its infinite wisdom; but there may be a day when this clemency act will have become extinct, and an after generation will no doubt lament the cause of its benevolence. Small bodies of runaway sepoys are reported to be escaping from all sides, and returning to their homes unwatched and unmolested. A body of some fifteen men attempted the passage of the Gogra a few days ago; seven were lost by drowning, but the others being expert swimmers got over, and crossed our district to their homes, without any let or hindrance. All sepoys now at their homes should be made to present themselves to the district commandants of police, who ought to prove their identity with their pass certificates, or have some satisfactory reason given for their being abroad. Begum Shiko Mehal died here the day before yesterday, and was interred in Soojad Dowla's cemetery, at Fyzabad. This great lady appears to have been harassed out with the Oude Begum, and had been so prostrated by it that shortly after her arrival here she expired. The news of the day is the report of the capture of the Bhang Rajah's karinda, Guzadur, a rebel captain, and some 200 sepoys. After laying waste a number of villages in their flight, they seem to have been intercepted by a detachment of our troops from Toolsepoore.—Lucknow Herald.

CAMP DUKHUREE, GORUCKPORE, April 20.—We were disturbed from our slumbers last night by a report brought in by spies, that it was the intention of the rebels to attack our camp, and that their main body was approaching and their advanced guard was within a few miles of us. Two patrols of the Bengal Yeomanry Cavalry were sent out to reconnoitre in different directions, under the commands of Cornets Watkins and Phillott, the former returned saying that he could neither hear nor see anything of the rebels, but the latter officer heard from the villagers, that five hundred armed men had left the hills, and were marching south. So I suppose we may say they are gone. Colonel Smith heard at Toolsepoore that our camp was to be attacked and sent off to Brasyer, at Bishwa, near Siswa, to go back to Dukhuree sharp with his Sikhs, the Bengal Yeomanry, and Garrett's two bullock guns; he has not yet made his appearance, and we are not much alarmed if he does not come. It is highly amusing, though very detrimental to the efficiency of our force on the Goruckpoore and Oude frontier, to hear the question daily asked who is in command? And if, as the Scriptures say, we cannot serve two masters, how in the name of goodness are we to serve six? I will give you their names, and when I tell you their orders are always at variance one with the other, you can easily imagine the game of cross purposes we are playing. First comes the big man General Sir Hope Grant, second Brigadier Horsford, third Colonel Smith, fourth Colonel Pinkney, fifth Brigadier Rowcroft, harmless enough, who tells us, through his Brigade Major Morgan, to "keep our heads cool and feet warm," a thing impossible under canvass, and last, but not least, General Campbell, who hopes we shall keep our heads above water during the coming rains, and to eschew rum, which causes toothache, and marriage, which is a subaltern's ruin. The truth is we have no proper head to the force, no systematic plan for the capture or repulse of the rebels, and this, no doubt, accounts for the large force which lately entered Baraitch and Gindan, and for the five hundred that left the hills yesterday for the south. I am so disgusted, that unless we come across the Nana I shall scarcely think it worth my while writing to you again. One word more. In a tank close to our lines, and where our fellows bathe, they this morning caught an otter, described as follows:—colour, black and shiny, like a Paris gossamer hat, body, three feet long, with a tail the same length, immense teeth, and eyes and head like a tiger. Remember I have not seen it.—Mafussilite.

GONDAH.—Information having been received that the rebels were in some force at Bunkussia, a column composed of 200 H. M.'s 20th, 280 Hodson's horse, and 3 horse artillery guns, all under command of Captain Vaughan, H. M.'s 20th regiment, was marched out on the 16th of April. The rebels, who were in the jungles on the banks of the Biswee Nuddee, were taken by surprise, but owing to the density of the jungle managed to effect their retreat. The horse artillery guns from the same cause could not be brought into play; but the cavalry, who were sent round to cut off their retreat at Dutowlee Ghat, pursued for some distance, and cut down a few, without suffering themselves. Sir Hope Grant reports from Gonda, on the 28th of April, that the force sent to the jungles, met with complete success. Surda Sing, with 150 of his men, were killed. The remainder all dispersed. The following is supplied by Government to the Calcutta Press:—"The rebels are reported to be retreating westward up the banks of the Gogra; they amount only to about 400 men, many having dispersed. General Sir Hope Grant is following them up. 127 sowars, with forty-five horses in wretched condition, and seventy-six camp followers, gave themselves up to Major Henry at Lotun on the 21st April, and more are expected to come n."

GORUCKPORE FRONTIER, April 26.—News arrived this morning that a body of armed sepoys had robbed our gram carts at Bisheawa, a village fourteen miles from our camp, and stripped and plundered the Baboo in charge. The quantity lost is 45 maunds, which the sepoys put on elephants and took away. I heard one loyal Briton say that he wished it had been a Government treasure chest, with lacs of rupees in it, as that would have convinced the authorities of the insecurity of the roads. It is to be hoped that the next mutiny will bear on its rolls of killed a governor general, a member of council, and a bishop—a prince of the blood, too, would not be amiss. Then, possibly, the Government would see the necessity of punishing murderers, instead of forgiving them. A tent was despatched for one of our officers from Allahabad, on the 1st of the month, on camels, and was to have come via Sultanpoore and Fyzabad to Siswa, but nothing has been heard of it since, so that this also must have fallen into the hands of the rebels, as the distance is easily travelled by a cart in fifteen days, and by camels in twelve. A letter from Siswa states that twenty-seven sowars and seven sepoy have given themselves up to Colonel Brasyer. The sowars brought their arms and horses with them. A sepoy of the late 53rd native infantry, which mutinied at Cawnpore, came to our camp this morning, and surrendered himself to Major Richardson.—Lucknow Herald.

JUBBULPORE, April 30th, 1859.—The last instalment of the 3rd Madras European regiment marched into this station two mornings ago, after having been out for eighteen months, and having gone over upwards of 4,700 miles. Few regiments, perhaps, have had severer marching than that one has had, and whenever they have had the chance have shown the Pandies what British bayonets are made of. Men and officers have both suffered much, but did it with a will as long as there was a chance of revenging their beloved country, women and children. For the last eight weeks a part of this corps has been lying idle on the burning plains of Nagode, scorched with sun and smothered with dust. That useless exposure is now telling severely on the men, as the hospital roll now shows nearly eight inmates. Two days ago the regiment lost one of its best sergeants, another poor lad is in the last stage of liver complaint contracted in the field. The men are now under shelter, though somewhat crowded; but far better off than in tents; they have to thank their good old Colonel (now Brigadier) Apthorp, and the field surgeon of the division who never rested till they induced the general to send the men into quarters. They well remembered the scenes that were enacted this time last year at Banda, where so many sank under exposure, but then all knew it was necessary, and bore it with a will. The officers of the third are doubled up in houses as well as they can, but protected from the sun; but the general thinks this is too good for officers who have worked with a will, and been exposed to all weathers for the last eighteen months, who this time last year were obliged to sit all day with wet towels on their heads, with a thermometer ranging at 120 degrees. He has been obliged to yield and let the men into quarters, and now he has ordered all the officers married or single to pitch their tents in the vicinity of the barracks, and live in an open plain covered with deep sand, not a tree to be seen. He can give no excuse for this, for the houses are but little farther away from the barracks than houses usually are in cantonments, so that that excuse cannot be pleaded. The Third has a very large number of young officers who have never yet felt an Indian sun in the hot weather; what will it be to them? Surely the commander-in-chief will never allow such things to go on, and if this meets his eye he will at once call for an explanation. It would be well, too, if he called for a roll of the officers present with the regiment—he would open his eyes a little. Four captains present—all the rest away. The regiment gave a grand farewell dinner to their late colonel as he passed through Jubbulpore to take up his brigade. All the ladies and gentry of the place honoured the regiment with their presence. Brigadier Apthorp was much beloved and respected by all ranks of the corps.—Delhi Gazette.

ALLAHABAD, 4th May.—The weather has again become very hot, and cholera appears to be on the increase, having appeared among the non-military Christian residents of the station, though at present almost entirely confined to those living in the entrenchment near the fort; unless some change takes place in the condition of the atmosphere, it is to be feared it will soon become general. I understand that cases have become much less numerous in the Chatham and Wellington barracks, where it first made its appearance; but many have lately suffered from it in the Clydesdale and Mansfield barracks. The long-expected notification regarding reductions of salary has just appeared in the Government Gazette. It is applicable only to future appointments in the civil department, although this proviso is omitted in the garbled version published by the Government North-West Provinces in the local Government Gazette. So anxious was the Governor General to communicate this bad news to all concerned, that the purport of the notification was telegraphed to our Lieutenant Governor, with a view to its being published here forthwith; the clerks of the telegraph department have, however, made sad havoc of its sense.

THE BEGUM.—By letters from the Shahjehanpore district we learn that it was reported that the Begum had gone to Katmandoo, and that two parties of rebels had proposed to give themselves up. Major Hughes, 1st Punjab cavalry, had gone to meet them. If they did not come to terms they were to be attacked in the Nanpara jungle the next day. Sir Hope Grant had requested Brigadier Horsford to push the rebel fugitives in his neighbourhood into the Khyreeghur jungles.

THE NANA.—A letter from Chumparun mentions that the Nana was said to be at Souraghat between Deokaree and Bootwal, with a force equal to that of the Begum in fighting men, but encumbered with women and children. The rebels are greatly in want of food, and suffering much from sickness. Several sowars belonging to the rebel cavalry had come in, and said that others were anxious to come, but were prevented from leaving the rebel army. Several officers were still making efforts to communicate with the rebels. The districts of Tirhoot, Chumparun, and Sarum were perfectly quiet, but the presence of the rebels on the frontier caused considerable uneasiness, and gave rise to many absurd reports. It has been commonly reported on the frontier that Jung Bahadoor has assisted the rebels with supplies, and that he is by no means anxious to drive them from Nepal. These reports are not supported by any evidence.

CAWNPORE, 5th May.—The Cawnpore station has been enlivened with a serious fracas between Captain Musgrave's Hazara horse and Captain Cadell's Cawnpore police; the former are newcomers, en route to Sasaram. It commenced with some men of Hazara horse being imprisoned by the Sikh police for making a disturbance at a shop in the police lines. The wild Hazaras (Mooltanee) on hearing this, came down from their camp with sticks, stones, and swords; a serious row ensued; the police were soon hard to hand with their swords, and before the officers heard of it, two or three men were killed and seven or eight wounded. The two regiments soon mounted, and were on the point of charging each other, when Captains Cadell and Franks were on the ground and stopped their men, and Angelo, who lived near the spot, kept the Mooltanee back. The General was soon on the field of action, and has ordered a court of inquiry. I believe the Hazaras took their encamping ground near the police, contrary to orders. This, as you may imagine, caused a sensation among the protected females, who were seen flying to the fort with their fond masters.—Delhi Gazette.

COLONEL RICH'S COLUMN, May 4, 1859.—Sixty-one rebels, chiefly Mahomedans and Sowars of the 5th irregular cavalry, came into camp this morning and gave up their arms, comprising carbines, pistols, and tulwars, with ammunition; it is evident that percussion caps were not so scarce at Delhi as has been represented so often, for good serviceable caps were given up by those who had firearms, and in no small quantities either. It is said that other rebels (Hindoos) will also come in, and that Feroze Shah has a thought of following the example of the Resaldar, who, by the way, came in at their head this morning, and has promised to bring in the whole of the Baghees composing his force. Report says that these are the last of the rebels who have been giving such annoyance in the jungles, and it is therefore to be hoped that our general will move into quarters. The native general court martial has not come off yet. Two companies 92nd highlanders, mounted on camels (Barras's corps), joined the column yesterday morning; troops healthy.

CAMP SEOHUR, May 2.—The force under Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon returned here on the 31st April, after several days' dour, beating up the Bhinga and Terai jungles, in the vicinity of Musher and Chuipore. A detachment of our cavalry at the latter place had a skirmish with a party of rebels, who had looted and burned Chuipore; they killed the leader of the party and wounded seven or eight. Your (Delhi Gazette's) correspondent from Toolseepore is quite right in what he says with regard to the difficulty of obtaining intelligence; there cannot be a doubt but that the inhabitants of this part of the country are to a man heart and soul with the rebels. We have just heard that some 180, the remnant of Gurdjada Singh's force, passed about fourteen miles to the westward, en route for the Nanpara jungle. They are described to be in a miserable plight, wholly disorganized and frightened at their own shadows.

BOWANNYUNGE, May 2.—A small force, consisting of No. 14 battery royal artillery, 300 of H.M.'s 34th, 240 3rd Sikhs, and a troop of Hodson's horse, are clearing the Goruckpore and East Gonda districts of rebels, and driving them well to the westward. On the 27th April Captain Renny, commanding the 3rd Sikh infantry, gained information that the Nusseerabad brigade was in the jungles on the banks of the Biswa river, some four miles from his camp; leaving the camp standing, protected by the guns, one company of the 34th and one company of the 3rd Sikhs, Captain Renny entered the jungles with the remainder of the infantry, attacked and totally defeated the "fighting brigade;" after firing a few shots they fled in the utmost disorder, and the ground was strewn with their arms, accoutrements, clothes, food, &c., &c. Our force pursued them for five miles, killing and wounding a very great number.

KUSSOWLIE, May 1.—The storm lately noticed in your paper (Delhi Gazette) extended as far as Kalka. At Umballa it did considerable damage, and, amongst other things, split the roof of the church. All along the road are branches stripped from trees; and the thatched roofs of houses bear evident marks of its violence. A public garden is in course of formation at Umballa, at present it is in embryo—the only thing prominent being the "gardener's house," a sort of Swiss cottage, where the officers of the garrison assemble at Chota Hazree; and band time. There are now plenty of troops at Umballa. The range of barracks destroyed a month or two ago by fire are undergoing repair; but they present a melancholy picture. It was in these very barracks that the fugitive ladies and children were sheltered during the perilous time of 1857. A new range is fast approaching completion. The telegraph posts form a new feature in the scenery of these hills. The wire has taken a line of its own, and scorning both the new and old road, runs across khuds and up precipices in the most eccentric manner. Every two or three hundred yards a coil of wire lies at the roadside; but after ascending the hill some two or three thousand feet, all traces of posts and wire disappear, until they may be seen in the distance forming white streaks on the hill side, terminating with one post at the turn into Kusowlie, whence they take cross country again to Simla. The artificers appear to have commenced at Simla, and gone down to Kalka, as the wire is actually laid down a portion of the distance. The commander-in-chief met with another accident at Pinjore. It seems that the Puttealla Rajah's troops, with artillery, were drawn up to do honour to his lordship, and, as usual, the honour was neither required nor expected. Just as the chief, who was in advance of his staff, got abreast of the guns, the salute commenced. The chief's horse started, and threw his rider, who appeared at Kalka with sundry patches of plaisters across his forehead; fortunately it was no worse.

REBEL BANDS.—We heard yesterday, April 19th, that a large body of rebels was encamped on the left bank of the Gogra, opposite Ajoodia, and that another party of them, believed to be under Bani Madho, had burst into the Seetapore or Lukunpore division, and attacked some of the police chowkees. This latter item requires confirmation. It is, however, a fact that the several parties of rebels licked by our troops formed a junction in the Gonda jungles, and marched to within a few miles of Fyzabad, where it was expected they would have been attacked by Colonel Simpson's column on the 16th or 17th. They are said to be about 2000 strong, and in wretched condition. It is thought that they have two guns, which they are supposed to have dug up somewhere in the Baraich district. It was believed to be their intention to cross the Gogra and enter the Doab. The ghauts were guarded by small parties of our police only. The rebels who had been engaged by Colonel Cormick's column are said to have fought very desperately—moving along in column of sections, and not losing their formation even when swept by the fire from our guns. They were at length charged by the Sikh cavalry which, under Captain Jones, cut up the sepoys, of the late 53rd Native Infantry especially, almost to a man—capturing their standards and elephants, &c. Captain Jones lost sixteen men and a number of horses killed, and was himself slightly wounded. The rebels then fled westward, and were last heard of near the Goruckpore frontier. A force has moved out after them, and it is said that another body of troops is marching from within the Goruckpore boundary to intercept them. I have just seen three rebels captured by some of our police beyond the Gogra, opposite Durriabad, and if they may be taken as average specimens, the whole lot cannot be very formidable. They are apparently starving, and say they have suffered dreadfully in the Nepaul hills.—Lucknow Herald.

MEERUT, May 2nd.—Yesterday a man reported to the authorities that a meeting of Bengal Artillery and Cavalry had been held upon the subject of the attestation and fresh bounty money from the Queen, upon the transfer to her services of John Company's troops. A second meeting was reported to be intended for last night, which duly came off. I don't know what transpired at the meeting; suffice it to say it was arranged to test their loyalty this morning; good men and true were called upon to come forward, when two in three advanced to the front in the artillery. The General, Brigadier and Staff, then went to the 2nd cavalry, when few besides volunteers from old corps came to the front. The dissatisfied men are directed to confine themselves to their barracks, and hourly roll-calls have been ordered. The affair has been reported to head quarters, and Colonel Johnson, Assistant Adjutant-General of Artillery, has gone to represent matters. The men behaved perfectly respectfully, some did not like being made over like a "lot of ground," whilst others disliked to be transferred like a "horse;" some sea-lawyer has been putting them up, and they have not the sense to see their folly. Had they been called upon at the outset when the Proclamation was made to transfer their services to the Crown, they would have felt highly proud, and none of this business would have occurred.—Delhi Gazette.

CENTRAL INDIA, April 29.—On April 17 a body of between 500 and 600 rebels, mounted on tattoos &c., under Adul Mahomed Khan, crossed the Nerbudda, and were met and defeated near Futtehpoore by the Hosungabad military police under Lieutenant Foote. On their passage being known, the Kamptee column under Major Savage, consisting of two guns horse artillery, squadron 7th Madras light cavalry, and one company her Majesty's 91st, and one company 32nd Madras native infantry, were pushed up to Mooltye. At the same time the Nagpore irregular cavalry under Captain Shakespeare marched by forced marches to Amla—another small column under Lieutenant H. Dowker of 100 sabres Hyderabad Contingent, and 200 infantry Hyderabad Contingent, came to Sawulmainda. Captain Saunders, executive engineer Chindwarra district, with a force of the Nagpore Contingent, posted himself at the Doosawmy Ghat, and blocked up both that and the Mortoor Ghat with stone breastworks. The Baitool military police, under Lieutenant Twyford, 200 foot police and sixty sabres, marched towards Bindai, but learning that the passes had been blocked up, and that Mooltye was occupied by the Kamptee column, struck off through the hills to Shahpoor to prevent the rebels making their course westwards. There are 150 foot police at Sohajpoor in the Hosungabad district, and so we are all hoping to bone Adul Mahomed, who has some influential Mahomedans also in his camp. This morning news came in that a reinforcement had reached the rebels from the other side of the Nerbudda, which made their number up to 2,500, hitherto the small number which crossed on the 17th inst. had been lying concealed in the hills near Puchmurry. Now they are so large a number they must come out or starve. I have also just heard from Ellichpoor that a trooper of the 2nd cavalry Hyderabad Contingent had run a muck and wounded Captain Macintire, the Ressuldar major, and three troopers. He was instantly cut down and tried by a drum-head court-martial, and hanged whilst gasping.

Lucknow, May 1.—When I last addressed you (Delhi Gazette), I had no idea that the exactions, if not the downright extortions of the money-changers here would have grown into an evil of such magnitude as they have at present. They commenced by deducting half an anna on each rupee, then one and two annas, and yesterday the discount on silver amounted to three annas per rupee, equal to nearly nineteen per cent. The causes of this imposition are said to be various. The principal are, scarcity of copper coin, and the great demand for it to pay the vast concourse of coolies who are employed at the new barracks, under construction at the Dilkoosha. I cannot account for copper coin being more scarce now than before. For a contingency of this sort ample provision should have been made in time by the Treasury office here: somebody must be made responsible for this state of things, and I dare say if the matter were properly represented to the Chief Commissioner, he would soon obviate the evil, by one of those prompt and determined measures, for which Mr. Wingfield is already gaining a reputation. Payment of coolies can hardly be the cause, for since the bombardment, myriads of them were employed in the town and suburbs, in the work of demolition on the one hand and in that of raising fortifications on the other. So that if this was really a tangible cause, the evil complained of now would have existed a year ago. Moreover, what the coolies receive cannot be retained by them. It is their necessities that induce daily payment; and their daily wants, by the same token, throw their receipts daily into the market, and the copper coin consequently must be in circulation. I dare say, if the truth were known, the evil might be traced to a league entered into by the money-changers amongst themselves, aided, perhaps, by the collusion and connivance of certain ministerial native subordinates,—otherwise the cause is unaccountable. However, I understand that one step has been taken by our active deputy commissioner towards checking the nuisance, and that is that he has indented on some stations in the North West Provinces for 50,000 rupees worth of pice. But by the time they arrive, the money-changers here will have amassed a small fortune each, at the expense of the community at large. What with this depreciation in the value of silver, the new tariff and the high rates of articles consequent on its introduction, it is as bad as imposing a tax of 25 per cent. on one's income. It has more than once occurred to me that both at Delhi and at Lucknow, but more especially at the latter place, it would not be a bad plan to give English names to streets, lanes, and houses. While the extensive alterations and improvements here have in a great measure altered the oriental character and aspect of this immense city, we might go further and substitute Havelock-street, Neill-street, Outram-street, &c., for Huzrut-gunj, and such like Gunjes, by which fine and spacious streets are now known. The extensive entrenchments and fortifications around "Muehee Bhawun" and further on, might be styled Fort Lawrence (after the lamented and brave Sir Henry) or that castle itself, which, during the mutiny, was blown up under his directions, might be styled "Lawrence Castle," and by his name also let the stand be called, leading as it does by the Baillie guard to the said castle, with both of which places his name will be imperishably allied. The "Iron Bridge," as it is now called, might also be dignified by being designated Lawrence Bridge, for one can hardly have his name associated with two many places or things. Other heroes might likewise have their names linked with the numerous buildings and lanes. I mean heroes who have taken a prominent part in the relief of the Lucknow garrison, and in the subsequent bombardment, not forgetting Lord Clyde, by whose name or title the Kaiser-bagh might be denominated "Clyde-square," and the street leading from the Dilkoosha to the residency, might be called Clyde or Campbell-street. These are merely hints, on which I could amplify if I thought it essential. Houses should also be numbered, and the one occupied by the commissioner might not inappropriately be called Abbey-ville, occupied by abbots who are deservedly held high in the esteem of the Christian community at Lucknow. The Chief Commissioner's mansion is already known as "Banks's house," for after the annexation, it was occupied by Major Banks, the then Judicial Commissioner of Oude, and who was killed in the Baillieguard during the siege. The Barracks at the Dilkoosha are progressing well and rapidly, and the demand for labour and materials is immense. The horse artillery, now lying in the Civil lines, are frequently out in that direction for practice. As soon as the Military lines are ready, they will of course remove.

FUTTEGHUR.—We (Delhi Gazette) have been requested to draw attention to the fact that the house belonging to the late Mr. Madden at Futteghur near the butts, and now in ruins, in which the Eurasians were cut down when the ladies were shot, on the parade ground, is still left standing. The well into which the bodies of the poor ladies and children were thrown is in the compound of this house and within ten or fifteen yards of it, the house and compound being close to the barracks. It has been suggested to have the spot enclosed and made into a soldier's garden or grounds for their recreation. A decent monument should be erected over the remains of our slaughtered fellow-countrywomen; both here and at Cawnpore. As yet we have not paid that token of respect to the victims of the mutiny at Futteghur and Cawnpore and other places, that old Prince Llewellyn did to the mortal remains of his faithful bound Gelert.

COL. SMITH'S COLUMN, SISWAH, OUDE, April 12.—Col. Smith's column, composed of the Lahore light horse, under command of Capt. Jackson; 7th Punjab infantry, under command of Capt. Stafford; and Vivian's Pathans, arrived at Siswah on the 7th, from Dhukuhree. Two companies of Her Majesty's 73rd and two guns Bengal horse artillery, joined the above force on the 10th. Col. Brasyar with his Sikhs and troop of Bengal yeomanry cavalry is at Bussorah, two koss north-west of Siswah. The Ranees of Gonda (aunt of the present Rajah Dabee Bux) gave herself up at Bunniah Barree to Capt. Jackson, when on his way with the 7th Punjab infantry to join Col. Smith's column at Dhukuhree. The Ranees had with her about 300 followers, but no regular sepoys. She appeared very pleased at the prospect of returning to her home, and was treated with every consideration in camp, which she accompanied to Dhukuhree. She is said to be upwards of 100 years old. Amongst her suite were some handsome women, but their countenances showed signs of having suffered from the effects of the erratic life they have of late been leading. One of Dabee Bux's wives was also with the Ranees, but being "young and beautiful" she kept herself studiously behind the purdah. The weather at present is cool and pleasant, and the troops are healthy enough. The villagers, however, give a very bad account of the sickness that prevails in this neighbourhood at some seasons of the year. Dabee Bux, with several thousand men, is within ten miles of Siswah; strong hopes are entertained of his coming in and giving himself up to Colonel Smith. A patrol of the Lahore light horse surprised a party of the rebels a short distance from camp a few days ago, and succeeded in capturing two prisoners with arms, who proved to be sepoy of the 2nd Oude local infantry.—Delhi Gazette.

CAMP BARAITCH, April 30.—On the 25th Brigadier Horsford, with a small field force, found a number of the rebels napping in the vicinity of Pudinahat, and killed about 200. I have not been able to ascertain the particulars, however, nor can I give you a detailed list of his force. On or about the 27th a Pathan soldier in our service obtained leave from Gonda to go to Toolseepore, to recover some lost pony or other property of his. While on his way he either heard of or saw himself the encampment of some rebels under the leadership of Gujud Singh, at a village surrounded by a bamboo hedge. These were to the number of 500, and had been living here some days, supplying themselves with food and other necessities of life from villages lying in the vicinity. Very properly, the worthy Pathan immediately returned to Gonda with the information. General Grant moved out (with a force not known), surprised them, and, as precautions had been taken to cut off their retreat, there was no alternative left but to fight it out, and this at close quarters with bayonet at work. The consequence is that report gives the enemy's casualties at 350, while we had only fourteen hors-de-combat. Colonel Gordon's field detachment, from near Bingah, moved on to Musha on the 24th of April, and it is presumed is beating up some jungle lying between Bingah and the extensive plain which separates this part from the great belt of the Terai. That bugbear the Begum is in company with the Nana, who with 5,000 followers is still supposed to be lurking somewhere in that neighbourhood. Captain Cleveland's field detachment is still at or near Akowna, this side of the Kaptee. Baraitech is defended by three companies rifles, six companies Kumaon battalion, and about 100 police cavalry.—Delhi Gazette.

THE HON. JOHN PETER GRANT, member of the Legislative Council, has been appointed Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, subject to the approbation of her Majesty. We believe the appointment a good one. The Calcutta Phoenix of the 29th of April asserts that the salary of the Lieutenant Governorship of Bengal, just vacated by Mr. Halliday, is to be reduced from 100,000 rupees a year to 80,000 rupees.

DELHI, 5th May.—While disturbances have disquieted the public at Meerut, it is more satisfactory to observe what is going on here in its neighbouring station, where all is calm and peaceable. Our officiating brigadier having two medals for long service and good conduct to deliver to Sergeant Major Monks, and Provost Sergeant Corker, of the 2nd fusiliers, had the regiment out early this morning, and after presenting the medals, and commenting on the individual services of these two meritorious veterans, which, however, he said, he need not particularise, as they were better known to the whole regiment than to himself, proceeded to avail himself of this opportunity to compliment the regiment upon their orderly conduct during the present unsettled state of affairs, owing to the behaviour of some misguided persons at Meerut. He dwelt forcibly upon the folly of their proceeding, pointing out that even if a body of Europeans, such as those who are disaffected at Meerut, could get away with their arms, they could not survive in India without the support of Government in the shape of rations, pay, &c.; even the sun would be an enemy almost more than a match for them. As he had daily intercourse with Meerut, which was probably more than the men of the 2nd fusiliers had, he would tell them all that had taken place there, and he had the pleasure first to mention that all the old soldiers, the transfers from the 9th lancers, and other regiments, and the men of Tomb's troop, of world-wide renown, had stood faithful to the Government, and declined to mix themselves up with the disaffected. It was the recruits principally who had got some erroneous notions into their heads, and he was happy to know and to see that the 2nd fusiliers were of an age not to be misled by such follies. They had all the privileges of pay and pension which they had ever enjoyed, and much more than they would have had had they enlisted for her Majesty's service only, and he was very glad to see that they are content and happy. It had further afforded him much satisfaction to say (when called upon by the general commanding at Meerut to report how the troops, artillery and infantry of the late company stood at Delhi,) that they were as loyal and peaceable as could be desired. He added a good deal in praise of the discipline and orderly conduct of the men, and the fine body of non-commissioned officers which the regiment has the good fortune to possess; and he left the regiment gratified by his confidence and good opinion, and they proceeded to prepare for their sports, which had been fixed to come off to-day and to-morrow for the last ten days or so. We hear that it is all quiet again at Meerut. The discontented are content to sit still, and repent, no doubt, by this time, that they ever committed themselves to any open speeches, for their acts, we hear, have not been violent. At the same time, they might have led to bloodshed, and therefore are not to be commended.—Delhi Gazette.

GOOD SERVICE PENSION.—A good service pension of £100 per annum has been conferred upon Major-General M. C. Johnstone, late of the 87th Foot. He has been thirty-six years in the service, and was much employed in the Kafir war. Why did not the authorities add "and displayed unusual activity and gallantry in the pursuit of the Jullundur mutineers?" There only remains, as far as we can immediately call to mind, one other officer to be rewarded with some such trifle as a K.C.B.-ship, and that is Major-General Hewitt, "who extinguished the Meerut conflagration in the blood of the mutineers," or some such equally truthful remark. Officers who are desirous of advancing with speed up the ladder of promotion must make up their minds to blunder like Ellice, or creep like Johnstone, or run like Walpole.—Lahore Chronicle.

CAMP, BHIRTAPORE, via GONDA, April 30.—Followed the rebels to prevent their collecting boats and crossing the Kowreela river into Khayraguri jungles. Surprised between two and three thousand cavalry and infantry under Oomrao Sing between Kowreela and Gurwar river at their junction. Dispersed rebels with loss of upwards of two hundred men. Oomrao Sing, with two hundred sowars and one hundred infantry, escaped towards the hills. Casualties not numerous. No European officer wounded.

CAMP BENEPORE, via FYZABAD, April 20, 10 A.M.—We attacked the rebels, chiefly of the Nusseerabad brigade, under Dabee Dean, about one thousand in number, in the Chitanea jungle, to-day, about five miles north of Buniaon. Cavalry pursued and cut up some fifty of the rebels, and took two colours, killing two native officers. No loss on our side. Rebels driven south.

HOSHUNGABAD, April 25th.—On Sunday afternoon the 17th April, intelligence was received at this station that a large body of rebels had crossed over during the day from the Bhopal territory into the Hoshungabad district by a ford on the Nerbudda, some forty miles up the river. The military police (about fifty sowars and one hundred and fifty infantry) commanded by Captain Foote, started from Hoshungabad the same evening, accompanied by our Commissioner Captain Wood, and reached Sohajpore (thirty-two miles) next morning. The rebels had got a start, and crossed the Hoshungabad and Nursingpore road, a few miles beyond Sohajpore. It was reported that Adil Mahomed Khan, a relation of the Regent, of Bhopal, and brother of Fazil Mahomed Khan hanged at Rahutgurh, was in their camp. Our force pushed on that day (the 18th), and on the 19th came up with the rebels in the jungles near Futtelpore at the foot of the Mahadeo Range. Their picket fired upon the cavalry who were in advance, and the main body of the rebels three hundred yards farther on hearing the firing, at once sounded a retreat. The cavalry drove in the picket and pursued the fugitives so rapidly, that the rebels left their camp standing. About a hundred horses and ponies were captured; their baggage too and ammunition, numbers of arms of all sorts were picked up in the jungle. Several of the rebels were killed, and ten prisoners were taken. The rebels, about 500 in number, fled in the direction of Puchmuree in the Chindwara district. Among them were some of the 5th Irregular Cavalry, the 15th Irregulars, and the 7th Regular Cavalry. The position taken up by the rebels was a most formidable one. The "bund-mashes" were encamped on the south bank of a nullah, and were attacked from the north side at noon. There were large rocks in the river, the passage of which was rendered very difficult for horsemen. Had the rebels recovered from their surprise and resisted the attack, our loss would have been severe. As it was, one of our sowars and four horses were wounded. The cavalry were very ably and gallantly led by Cornet Durnford. As the rebels fled over the hills in all directions, it was impossible to keep our cavalry together. The infantry were a short distance behind, at a bend of the nullah, but were quickly brought up by Captain Foote. The rebels, however, escaping on horseback, and getting the start on comparatively good ground, it was useless to pursue on foot. A part of the cavalry joining, Captain Foote rode after the fugitives for two miles, but as the force was so much scattered in the hills, and the heat was great, further pursuit was abandoned. Cornet Durnford got a sunstroke, but happily recovered soon. Adil Mahomed Khan's tent fell into our hands. It was a sort of awning made with "durees." Amanut Khan Bukhshee was his right-hand man.

MUSSOORIE.—I see that somebody who evidently knows more of his neighbour's affairs than they do themselves, has stated that Captain Hutton has gone to Jeripanee, under instructions from Government, to superintend the rearing of silk-worms. As I believe I am quite as much behind the scenes, as a correspondent who signs himself "Visitor," I will undertake to inform you that Captain Hutton went to Jeripanee partly because he has an estate there, and partly to be free from the prying intrusion of visitors. He is moreover, not rearing silkworms under Government instructions, but is simply forming a mulberry plantation; while lastly, I can assure you on the very best authority that it has not yet been ascertained that the mulberry silk worm will feed upon the oak-tree, but on the contrary it is perfectly well ascertained that it will not touch it. So much for the correctness of "Visitor's" information.

CAMP SECORRA, 27th April.—"General Sir Hope Grant's arrival in this district has been the means of dispersing the rebels, and showing them and the zemindars that we have force to coerce the refractory, and will maintain our power by the sword if necessary. On the 24th a body of rebels under a noted Talookdar Guljadhur Sing crossed the Secorra and Gonda road, having been driven north west by the General. The Secorra force under Colonel Walker, Queen's Bays, pursued them until dark. The rebels got into a dilapidated fort, surrounded by a dense jungle. This place is called Bunganon fort, about eight miles from Secorra and twelve from Gonda. The General on his arrival at Gonda on the 26th immediately ordered out a force to Lalgunge on the Gorruckpore border, where it is supposed a body of 1000 rebels are. The force to consist of her Majesty's 20th regiment, two guns, and some of Hodson's horse. About seven p.m. an order was sent to form another column, under Major Duck, her Majesty's 53rd regiment, viz. 400 her Majesty's 53rd, two guns royal artillery, and 150 sabres, head-quarters 1st Sikh irregular cavalry, to march at midnight to attack the rebels, in conjunction with Colonel Walker, Queen's Bays, at Bunganon. They were reported to muster 400 or 600 regular sepoy, and the numbers on their arms and buttons showed that some of them had been engaged in the frightful scenes at Cawnpore. I hear the plan for surrounding the jungle with bays and 1st Sikh cavalry was perfect; indeed the whole force assembled at the several points assigned them after their long march. And about 2 P.M. the attack on the enemy's position commenced, the artillery opened, 53rd advancing under cover of the guns; there was a lull of a few minutes, and then you heard the cheer of that fine body of men, the fort was in their possession, the rebels driven into the jungle, and their leader Gudjadhur Sing lying a corpse on the ground. The 53rd then skirmished through the jungle, cavalry on the alert; numbers were killed by the infantry. A body of sepoys, well armed, tried to make their escape from the jungle. The 1st Sikh irregular cavalry, under Captain Jones, gallantly charged into them, killed numbers, and inflicted a severe punishment, a few made their escape into back ground, and into a deep nullah; they received no mercy from the 53rd skirmishers. The result of these operations reflect great credit on all concerned, and it is only by the summary punishment of the rebels (few escaped to tell the tale) that we can restore order and govern our possessions in Oude. There are some three or four columns now out in the Gonda district, and I trust we shall soon hear of peace again. We certainly shall, if we have such men as Colonel Walker, Queen's Bays, in command. It is much to be regretted more energy is not displayed in the dismantlement of these forts, and there ought not to be one in existence here, and yet here we have one not twelve miles from the Sudder station. Our loss is eight European soldiers wounded, six Duffadars and sowars 1st Sikh Cavalry ditto, and some twelve horses killed and wounded."

Exports (Calcutta, May 2).—Scarcely any change has taken place in the produce market. Supplies and stocks continue light, and prices keep up to almost their former figures, whilst great caution is used by shippers in their operations.

Imports (Calcutta, May 2).—The market continues favourable for Mell Teest, and almost all descriptions of Grey Cottons; and last week, and in the early part of the present, extensive sales of Grey Shirtings, Madapolans, and Jaconets had been made; but during the last two or three days, the money market having become rather tight, especially amongst the dealers, sales have fallen off, and prices have somewhat declined. In White Cotton, business has been done to a moderate extent throughout the week. Cotton has improved in demand and price. Iron without improvement. Swedish Steel and Spelter have slightly improved.

MADRAS.

AMALGAMATION OF THE COURTS.

The following Minute by the hon. the Governor, dated 25th April, 1859, relates to the amalgamation of the Supreme and Sudder Courts:—

The question relating to the establishment of a proper system of judicature for India has reached a point which renders immediate action necessary.

The key to the settlement of this question is the consolidation of the Supreme and Sudder Courts into a single High Court and the establishment of Provincial Courts of sufficient authority to protect the natives on the one hand, and, on the other, to secure European settlers, especially in criminal proceedings, against the consequences of the perjury and fraud which are unfortunately too rife in this country. All our hopes of improvement for India depend upon the satisfactory attainment of this object. Although what were the East India Company's Courts are now as much her Majesty's Courts as the Supreme Court itself, the old antagonism arising from the separate and often conflicting jurisdiction remains—and instead of the learning and independence, and admirable activity in the discharge of accepted duty of the English bench and bar being brought to the aid of the intimate acquaintance with local interests possessed by the officers of the Indian Governments, the powers of both are exhausted in mutual disparagement. When a combined homogeneous system shall once be established, every portion of the community, European and native, will be equally interested in its improvement.

The Legislative Council at Calcutta has lately passed a Bill to simplify the procedure in the Sudder and its subordinate Courts without making any provision for uniting the Supreme and Sudder Courts, or for extending the improved procedure to the Supreme Courts. It is to be hoped that her Majesty will be advised to disallow this Act, the confirmation of which would be a practical adoption of the old divided jurisdiction into the new regime, and would indefinitely postpone the establishment of an united system of judicature. It is, indeed, intolerable that an administration of justice should be considered good enough for the great majority of her Majesty's subjects in this country which falls short of the standard insisted upon for the minority, and that if the proposed alterations in the Code of Procedure are conducive to speedy and economical justice (which I believe they are), the inhabitants of the Presidency cities should not have the benefit of them in lieu of the present antiquated and expensive processes in use in the Supreme Courts.

In the Madras Presidency we have some advantages for the early establishment of an united judicature which do not exist elsewhere. The controversies arising out of the divided jurisdiction have never risen to the same height here as they have in the other Presidencies; in the Neilgherries and the Wynaud, as well as at Madras, there is a well-constituted European society living on neighbourly terms both with the European officers of the Government and with the natives, and there is no adequate occupation for the large and expensive establishment of the Supreme Court within the limits of the Presidency town. If the Supreme Court were consolidated with the Sudder into a single High Court, the judges and the greater part of the administrative establishment would have ample employment.

I have fully conferred on this subject with Sir Adam Bittlestone, my colleague, Mr. Morehead, Mr. Strange, of the Sudder Court, the Advocate general, and Mr. Norton; and we are all agreed that the best practical measure will be to appoint a small Commission, composed partly of experienced judicial officers of the Madras Presidency, and partly of officers of the Supreme Court, to prepare a statement of the arrangements under which the union of the Supreme and Sudder Courts and the remodelling of the Provincial Courts may with the greatest prospect of public advantage be effected, and to send this statement, with the opinion of the Madras Government and of the judges of the Supreme Court upon it, to the Secretary of State for India, in order that the plan, if it shall be approved by her Majesty's Government, may be embodied in an Act of Parliament.

Mr. Morehead, who is universally allowed to be one of the ablest and most experienced of the judicial officers of the Madras Presidency, has kindly consented to act on the Commission, and I propose that the other members of it should be Mr. T. L. Strange, one of the Puisne Judges of the Sudder Court, the Advocate general, and Mr. John Bruce Norton.

A copy of this Minute should be sent to the judges of the Supreme Court, and if they concur, the Commission may be at once appointed.

(Signed) C. E. TREVELYAN.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—The inhabitants of Madras are about to memorialise Lord Stanley for the re-organisation of the Legislative Council, so that Bombay will be the only one of the three Presidencies that has not done this. The Madras memorial is a very plain-speaking address. It does not mince matters when it discusses the merits or demerits of the Council in its constitution and operation. It asks more, however, than is likely to be obtained, a Legislative Council for each Presidency, as well as a Supreme Legislative Council, sitting, we suppose, at Calcutta. We doubt if the home authorities would sanction such an arrangement, however carefully the subjects of legislation might be divided into imperial and local. Nor are we quite sure that it would be well to have, say, looking to the future, some five or six councils making laws for different sections of the country, the boundaries of which might not always be well defined, or might be subject to constant changes. We fear, then, that pleasant as it would be to have our own special law-makers, especially when many of them were chosen from among ourselves, it is not a thing to be hoped for yet. But how otherwise shall Madras and Bombay share in the honour and advantage of supplying independent members to the Legislative Council,—if it is to sit at Calcutta only? We confess we cannot surmise; this is a problem the solution of which we must leave to time and circumstances. The inhabitants of Madras propose to ask that the Legislative Council shall consist, in addition to the official members, of three European members, one East Indian ditto, one Hindoo, and one Mahomedan, nominated by the Government, but not to be removable except by the unanimous vote of the Council. All things considered, we think this a fair proportion. The natives will probably assert that they ought to be more largely represented; but, setting aside our right to make use of our might in such a matter, we think we need only refer to the jury lists to prove that the relative proportions assigned to them and to the Europeans are pretty nearly correct.—Bombay Gazette.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.—Major Macintyre, of the Madras artillery, and commandant of the 2nd cavalry Hyderabad contingent, has been providentially preserved from assassination. Having for upwards of eighteen months past done good

"THE OLD BUFFER."—The Poona Observer tells a good story, "characteristic" of the Superintendent of telegraphs, Sir William O'Shaughnessy, but which our contemporary warrants to be "five years old at least." On one occasion, Sir William had telegraphed down a long distance from the station house at Bangalore, to Mr. —, an employé in his department. Mr. —, it appears, was not aware of the rank of the personage who was corresponding with him, and whose messages or questions he believed to be of a "chaffing" nature. He accordingly telegraphed the query,—"Has the Old Buffer returned yet?" to which the Superintendent returned the following,—"Yes, the 'Old Buffer' is here, and fines you ten rupees for your impertinence!"

IMPORTS (Bombay, May 11).—Cotton Piece Goods.—The difficulty of obtaining money has operated with great effect upon this branch of our imports, and purchases have lately been almost entirely suspended by the dealers. Grey Shirtings have been dispensed of to a very small extent, our closing rates for 40-inch being 6 annas per piece lower for 4½ to 6½ lbs., 8 annas for 6½ to 7½ lbs., and 4 to 8 annas for heavier weights; 45-inch must also be quoted as worth 4 to 8 annas less. Of Jaconets hardly any sales are reported, but prices have nominally declined 1 anna for 8 to 10 pick, and 4 annas for 12 to 17 pick qualities. Madapolams have been neglected, and a decline has taken place of 2 to 4 annas on all descriptions. T. Cloths are worth less by 4 to 8 annas; Longcloths have declined to a similar extent; while Domestics have sold in small quantities at somewhat falling prices. Nothing, we believe, has been done in Mulls. Bleached Fabrics, Shirtings and Madapolams, which are scarce, have nevertheless receded 4 to 6 and 2 to 4 annas per piece respectively. Jaconets have been quoted to a small extent, at only a decline in some instances of 2 annas. Mulls of the better descriptions are rather lower. Turkey Rels are neglected, and slightly declining. Cotton Twist.—A fair demand has existed for Turns, but few importers being willing to incur the risk of holding, the arrivals have been freely placed on the market, and only taken off at generally some slight concession in price. The chief sales have, however, been at better prices than our quotations, which it will be seen show a considerable decline for all counts except No. 20s. Mull and Water. An easier money market may, perhaps, cause a slight advance again. Woolens.—Nothing has been doing, and prices remain unchanged. Metals.—Copper has been in little demand. Brassiers and Sheathing are quoted 8s., and tile R 1 lower. The only sales reported are of the last description, at Rs. 6½ and Rs. 6¾ per cwt. Yellow Metal has fallen R. 1. Iron has been looking down in consequence of increasing stocks, and only our quotations are at present offered. Sales have been effected of 41 tons Swedish bars at Rs. 55-8, 505 tons British bars, at Rs. 30-8 to Rs. 32, 100 tons square rail rods at Rs. 32-8 per cwt., and 1,500 bundles sheet, at Rs. 5-14 and Rs. 6-4 per cwt. Several transactions have occurred in Swedish steel, and tubs are a trifle lower in price. Pig-lead is largely supplied, and has declined in value R 1 to 1-8. 50 bottles quicksilver have changed hands, at Rs. 47-4 per maund. In spelter sales have taken place at Rs. 13-12 and Rs. 14-2. Tin-plates have been disposed of at Rs. 14-8.

EXPORTS.—Cotton has had a declining tendency in consequence of unfavourable advices from England, 1-1½ arrivals, and the great scarcity of money, the last named cause chiefly operating to produce the decline, which has mostly taken place during the last week. There have been fewer purchasers in the market, and a further slight fall is not unlikely. Broach of good quality is rather scarce, and worth Rs. 147 to 148; diolera has to-day sold at Rs. 140; and Oomrawutti is quoted at Rs. 138 to 139. Ginger is scarce, and has advanced Rs. 3 to Rs. 4 per candy. Seeds.—Linsed is now offered by the dealers at Rs. 4-6 to Rs. 4-8, but without meeting many buyers, and the shipments going forward are chiefly on dealers' account. In Rape few transactions are reported, from a similar cause. Ground nuts have fallen to Rs. 16 per candy.

MESSRS VINAY, FILS, & Co., are said to have retired from business.

Medical and Commissariat Departments.

No. 423 of 1850.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council has much satisfaction in publishing the accompanying letter from the rt. hon. the C. in C., in which Lord Clyde warmly recommends the Medical and Commissariat Departments to the notice of the Govt. of India.

The Gov. gen. in Council desires to express to the Director gen., Dr. Forsyth; to the Inspector gen. H.M.'s hospitals, Dr. Linton, c.b.; to Col. Ramsay, late comsry. gen., and to Lieut. col. Thomson, c.b., the present comsry. gen. of the Bengal army, and to all the officers of the medical and commissariat departments who have been employed in the field, or who have elsewhere furthered the service by their exertions in providing for the welfare and the wants of the troops, the cordial acknowledgments of the Govt. of India for the important services they have rendered.

To H.E. the rt. hon. the Gov. gen.

Hd. qrs. Camp Lucknow,

21st Feb., 1859.

My Lord,—The military operations in the presidency of Bengal which ensued on the great mutiny of 1857, having happily been now brought to a close, I have the greatest satisfaction in recommending warmly to your excellency's protection two great departments of the military administration to which the troops and the officers who have commanded them in their long campaigns are under real and great obligations. I allude to the medical and commissariat departments.

No. 2.—The former being composed of officers belonging to the two services, has shone equally in the matters of general organisation and of regimental arrangements. The director gen., Dr. Forsyth, and the inspector gen. H.M.'s forces, Dr. Linton, c.b., in Calcutta, have worked successfully to meet the great requirements made on them, and the staff and regimental medical officers have well maintained the credit of their noble profession, and the reputation for self-sacrifice which belongs to the surgeons of H.M.'s armies—a reputation which is maintained in the field on all occasions, as well as in the most trying circumstances of the hospital.

No. 3.—It has been remarked throughout the army that from the time of the slender forces taking the field against Delhi, and from Allahabad in the summer of 1857, the system of the Indian commissariat has been found equal to the tasks imposed on it, in spite of the extraordinary circumstances in which it was suddenly placed, and of the actual loss of the resources, viz., the great contractors and agents, with which it had been the custom to work.

For the system the army is in great measure indebted to the late comsry. gen., Col. Ramsay, and his successor, Col. Thomson. The latter officer being in personal charge supplied the field force of Delhi under unexampled circumstances, when Sir A. Wilson stood before that city almost cut off from the rest of India.

The comsry. gen. has been nobly supported by his subordinates, and I do but speak the truth when I affirm that no department has ever possessed a more efficient staff of officers than those forming the establishment of the Bengal commissariat.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your most obedient and humble servant,

CLYDE, Gen.,

C. in C., East Indies.

JHANSI PRIZE JEWELS.—The Crown jewels and other valuable ornaments which formed the regalia of the late Ranees of Jhansi, captured by the Central India field force in April last, will be laid open for public inspection in the Town-hall from the 15th June until the beginning of August, after which they will be disposed of either by private or public sale. The prize agent to the Central India field force has invited the agents of the several native princes to attend in Bombay.

Elephants.

Milit. Department, Fort William, April 18.—No. 536.—H. E. the Gov. Gen. is pleased to direct that all elephants captured from the rebels by the British troops on the field which may be recognised and proved to be the property of friendly chiefs from whom they may have been taken by the rebels, shall be restored through the medium of the political authorities.

Clothing of H.M.'s Troops.

Adjt. Gen's Office, Simla, April 2.—Under instructions from the Horse Guards (it having been represented that some of the clothing supplied from England has been found to be too hot for the health and comfort of the troops), general officers commanding divisions will exercise their discretion in ordering the serge lining of tunics of H.M.'s troops under their command to be removed whenever regiments are located at stations where such a measure is considered desirable.

Deputation Allowance.

Financial Dept., Fort William, April 29.

Resolution.—H. E. the Governor General in Council is pleased to pass, experimentally, for one year, the following rules in respect to the Deputation Allowance receivable by the officers mentioned below:—

When covenanted officers, civil or military, officiate for uncovenanted officers, and when uncovenanted officers act for covenanted officers, civil or military, the Deputation Allowance in such cases will be regulated according to the principle laid down in chap. VI., sections 25, 26, and 27 of the Covenanted Civil Absentee Rules, it being understood, however, that section 27 shall not apply to ministerial officers acting for covenanted officers who are entitled to acting allowance from the date they commence to officiate, and not after the expiration of one month, as in the case of other uncovenanted officers of superior grade.

When an officer of the Uncovenanted Service acts for another of the same service, or when a military officer acts for another military officer, he shall be governed by the rules of the respective service to which he belongs.

In passing the foregoing rules, the Governor General in Council directs that the Audit offices in the several presidencies and governments should submit, at the expiration of the experimental year, for which the rules are sanctioned, a return showing in juxtaposition the amount forfeited by the absentees of the Military (so far as it is concerned with the Civil Department) and Uncovenanted Services, as well as that defrayed in the remuneration of their substitutes in the same manner as is done at present, with regard to the forfeited salary and the Deputation Allowance of Covenanted Civil Servants.

Order.—Ordered, that a copy of the foregoing resolution be sent to the Civil Auditors, Fort William, Fort St. George, Bombay and North-Western Provinces, for information and guidance, and to the Punjab Civil Auditor, in reply to his reference above adverted to.

Ordered further, that a transcript of the resolution be published in the official Gazette for general information.

C. HUGH LUSHINGTON,
Secretary to the Govt. of India.

Court Martial.

LIEUT. WILLIAM HENRY CRAVEN ALLEN,
H.M.'s 82nd FOOT.

Adj. Gen's Office, H.M.'s Forces, Calcutta, April 25, 1859.

Hd. Qrs., Camp Kumaul, April 15, 1859.—At a general court martial assembled at Shahjehanpore, Feb. 25, 1859, Lieut. W. H. C. Allen, H.M.'s 82nd foot, was arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge.—That he, W. H. C. Allen, on Nov. 24, 1858, at Shahjehanpore, he being then and there an officer serving in H.M.'s Indian territories, at a distance of upwards of 120 miles from the presidency of Fort William, did feloniously, wilfully, and of his malice aforethought kill and murder one Bidasse.

Finding.—Guilty of the charge preferred against him, with the exception of the words "of his malice aforethought," and of the words "murder," of which words it acquits him, and does therefore find him guilty of manslaughter only.

Sentence.—To undergo an imprisonment, without hard labour, for a term of four years.

Shahjehanpore, 28th February, 1859.

(Signed) EDWARD RAMSDEN PRIESTLEY,
Lieut. col. 42nd R.I.L., President.

CONFIRMED.

Camp Delhi, 9th April, 1859.

(Signed) CLYDE, General Commander in Chief.

THREE HUNDRED CHINAMEN DEVoured.—Cannibalism is very far yet from being extinct in the South Seas. The following account, extracted from the Sydney Morning Herald, of the devouring of more than 300 unfortunate Chinese who left this for Australia in June last, can scarcely be equalled except by the story of Sindbad the Sailor, who was a merchant, and whose tale was "prodigious."—The Chinese passenger of the St. Paul, who was rescued by the steamer Styr, and arrived on Tuesday, has furnished us with the following account of the massacre of the Chinese passengers by the St. Paul, wrecked at Rossel Island, through the medium of Mr. H. Leau Appa, who acted as interpreter:—"The ship went on shore during the night, and when she struck the passengers all rushed on deck, making a great outcry, upon which the captain drove them all below again. When daylight broke we landed by means of the boats on an island, where we remained two days without any water, when some of us went on board the ship again to get some, as also provisions. The captain left in his boat with some of the crew, and we were not disturbed by the natives for a month after he was gone; they then came over from the mainland, distant about three-quarters of a mile, and made an attack on us. Some of us had double-barrelled carbines, but we got frightened, and threw them away. The only white man left with us, after the departure of Captain Pennard, was a Greek, who, having armed himself with a cutlass, fought desperately, and killed a great many of the natives before he was overpowered. They then took all our clothing, &c., which they partly destroyed. Any valuables that they found, such as sovereigns, rings, &c., they placed in a net bag, which each man carried round his neck. A watch particularly excited their attention, as they were continually opening it to observe the reflection of their faces in the glass. At night we were placed in the centre of a clear piece of ground, and fires lit in several places, the natives keeping a regular watch over us, and during the day they would select four or five Chinese, and after killing them, roast the flesh and eat it; what was not consumed being deposited in their nets. Their mode of proceeding was as follows:—The victims being decided on, they were taken out, and beaten all over (excepting the head, with a kind of club, and then despatched by ripping the stomach open. The body was then cut up in small pieces and divided, the fingers, toes and brains being eagerly sought after. The bones were then collected, and either burnt or thrown away. I saw one of my fellow-passengers killed in this way. On one occasion some of the Chinese took a boat which belonged to the ship, and went over to the mainland at night to get water, but never returned, so we thought they had been killed. Every day they brought us coconuts, or some wild roots to eat, and appeared to be quite friendly with us. This state of things continued until I was taken off the island. When I left there were only four Chinese and the Greek alive, all the rest having been killed. I saw these five the day the steamer came in sight, but when the natives saw the boats coming on shore, they took them up the mountains. I was sick and lame, and they would not carry me, so that I watched my opportunity, and contrived to conceal myself among the rocks until the boat came on shore. They are very numerous, but do not appear to have any chiefs among them. They live on coconuts, of which there are large quantities, and a kind of yam, which they roast before eating; but beyond a few dogs, I saw neither animals nor fowls of any kind." The narrator of the above horrible details is quite a young man, particularly intelligent in appearance. Several of his relations were on board, but all have perished. Captain Pennard, of the St. Paul, came up in the Styr. He states that he was sixty-two or sixty-three days on board the Prince of Denmark before being landed at New Caledonia; that he begged of Captain M'Keller to take him to some place at once, so as to obtain assistance, but he refused to do so, giving as a reason that he had a party at an island gathering beche-de-mer, who would be out of provisions did he not attend to them first.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, June 6, 1859.

THE EXAMINATION MANIA.

OUR Calcutta contemporary, the Burkaru, lately wrote an amusing though sensible article on the absurd questions submitted to native candidates for University honours in that city, and on the ungrammatical structure of the sentences in which those questions were propounded. The Examination-paper, it seems, embraced eleven themes, each of which, if properly treated, would require the dimensions of an essay. For instance, "Classify the letters of the English alphabet according to their powers, and compare it as to fulness, force, and utility, with any one other alphabet that you know?" How many of our readers would like to take this subject in hand? For ourselves, we admit our utter inability to offer the shadow of an answer, and yet half-educated Bengalees were expected to dispose of the philosophy of a foreign language in less than twenty minutes—for eleven compendious questions had to be solved in three hours and a half. The next one was, perhaps, a little easier, though likely to fully occupy the allotted time. It is, "What is your impression of the style of Milton's poetry, the character of his imagery, and the mode in which he works out the story?" The following question, however, must have driven at least one half of the candidates into a state of hopeless despond. "Milton says, in his preface to his own edition (1669) of the 'Paradise Lost,' 'The measure is English Heroick verse without Rime, as that of Homer in Greek and Virgil in Latin; Rime being no necessary adjunct or true ornament of Poem or good verse, in longer works especially, but the invention of a barbarous age, to set off wretched matter and lame meeter.' Defend, or otherwise, the opinion he advances. Give an account of the leading measures, with examples." A tolerably wide field, certainly, but we do not clearly perceive the connection between defending, or otherwise, Milton's preference for blank verse, and such knowledge of the English language as is likely to be practically useful to native students. They were next asked to "sketch in brief but graphic language the argument and action of the Sixth Book of the 'Paradise Lost.'" Having in brief language disposed of this exercise, the candidates were desired to mention "what poets, especially Gray and Pope, have imitated or changed the following lines, and give the passages," &c., &c. The tenth and eleventh subjects were, "Contrast Milton and Gray, the days in which they lived, and the character of their poetry," and "Write an analysis of, and criticism on, Gray's 'Ode to Adversity.'" Thus, at least six out of the eleven questions by which it was proposed to test the young Bengalees' knowledge of English literature related to poetry alone, as if that were the best training for the native intellect. The majority, however, of persons acquainted with the character of the Hindoos, would probably be disposed to give the preference to prose, as being better calculated to strengthen and consolidate their mental faculties, and to regulate their somewhat prurient imaginations. In any case, it is difficult to understand why Milton should be so conspicuously selected. It could hardly be with a view to recommend his Latinised diction as a model for imitation, nor do we apprehend that any readers unacquainted with Greek and Roman letters can fully appreciate his allusions and illustrations. Besides, is it not just possible that the Hindoo and Mussulman students who have been taught to regard "Paradise Lost" with so much reverence, may come to look upon that poet's descriptions of heaven and hell and their respective inhabitants as the orthodox faith of the Christians? The battle, with its varying phases, which resulted in the overthrow of the host of rebel angels, will certainly be accepted by them as an historical narrative, and one not exactly calculated to inspire a very exalted notion of the Power and Wisdom of the God-head.

We regret that our contemporary does not favour us with the remaining questions on the Examination-paper. We are curious to know who were the prose writers most in favour with the examiners. No doubt the Spectator came in for a large share of distinction, although a book of mystery to the natives. A very intelligent young moonshee, educated at the Agra College, once inquired of ourselves if Sir Roger de Coverley was not formerly in the Company's service, and seemed sorely puzzled otherwise to account for the importance attached to his habits and opinions. His own favourite, however, was Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia, who, he was quite sure, must have been a Hindoo Rajah, whose story had fallen into Dr. Johnson's hands and been altered through his ignorance of India. The fact is, that scarcely a class-book now in use is fitted for Indian students. They are all grounded on English ideas and habits of thought, and thus the native students seldom acquire more than a very superficial acquaintance with our literature, and what they do know is rather a matter of memory than of the understanding. The "cramming" system is that which is most in vogue, because it facilitates a certain display of mock erudition, which dazzles and deludes the vulgar. The same thing prevails in this country also, and is unhappily encouraged by statesmen professing conservative views, but in reality aiming at nothing more than a vulgar popularity. The only possible result will be the admission into the public service of a number of ill-bred, half-educated, conceited coxcombs, apt to jump at conclusions, impatient of research, and unpreserved from meanness by hereditary feelings and traditional ideas of honour.

THE CAUSES OF THE MUTINY.

ON the principle that it is good to see ourselves as others see us, it cannot be otherwise than interesting to know the real opinions of the natives with regard to the British Government previous to the mutiny. This information is now readily obtainable by means of an essay or pamphlet published at Agra by Syud Ahmed Khan, Principal Sudder Ameen at Moradabad. According to this very intelligent native gentleman, the rebellion did not originate from any single cause, but from a complication of causes. Russia and Persia were equally guiltless in the matter, nor had the annexation of Oude much to do with it. There was no conspiracy on the part of the Mahomedans to preach a Jehad, or sacred war, against the infidels; and it is admitted that the atrocities committed by certain Mussulmans were altogether contrary to the tenets of their faith. It is denied that any organisation existed in the Bengal army to bring about the revolt, or any secret understanding between the soldiery and the King of Delhi. The chief and original cause of the outbreak, says Syud Ahmed Khan, was the non-admittance of a native as member of the Legislative Council. The exclusion of all natives from the Supreme Council of Calcutta has prevented, he asserts, the development of good feeling towards the Government, and has led to much mutual alienation and misunderstanding. The more immediate causes, however, may be classed under five heads.

In the first place, there was a wide-spread feeling of apprehension as to the supposed intention of Government to interfere with the religious customs and ceremonies of its subjects. The Orphan Institution at Secundra, though it was the means of saving the lives of many poor children in the terrible famine of 1837-38, in some measure fostered these misgivings. Besides, religious discussions had lately become all the rage. Covenanted officers mixed themselves up personally with missionary movements, and attended the examinations at their schools. The great interest evinced by Government in the success of the village schools excited the suspicions of a false and ignorant race. The introduction of female education fanned the growing distrust, as also did the preference shown to English students at Government colleges over all other candidates for appointments. The messing system established in jails, and Mr. Edmonds' uncompromising letters further increased and strengthened the alarm of the timid and superstitious.

In the second place, several laws and enactments highly objectionable in the eyes of the natives of all classes had been passed within the last few years, such as Act XXI. of 1850 and Act XV. of 1856, by which the emancipation of women was greatly promoted. Then the resumption of manees gave marked dissatisfaction, and likewise the public sales of zemindaree rights. The abolition of talookdaree rights, particularly in Oude, and the compulsory use of stamp paper, were also regarded as legislative errors and grievances.

Thirdly, much evil arose from the ignorance of the authorities as to the real feelings and opinions of the people. Poverty, too, was grinding down to the ground large sections of the community, especially Mahomedans, who were unable to obtain Government service to a sufficient extent. The absorption of native capital by Government loans tended to increase the difficulty of finding employment, owing to the restriction of speculation. Any change, therefore, was welcome to those who had nothing to lose and everything to gain.

We come now to the fourth head, or the neglect of Government in matters really of moment. Thus no trouble was taken to inspire the natives with a cordial and sincere attachment. On the contrary, they were treated with contempt as an inferior and subordinate race, and daily subjected to indignities through the rudeness and want of tact of local officers. The Mahomedans, hitherto a dominant and still a haughty race, could ill brook these constant and apparently wilful slights. Neither they nor the Hindoos were admitted to posts of honour or importance. The old system of Durbars, at which both substantial and honorary rank was conferred in the manner most grateful to personal vanity, was also entirely done away with, and no motive held out for the slightest exertion or ambition. However, the Royal Proclamation, if acted up to, is thought likely to remove many of these causes of complaint and to inaugurate a new and happier era.

Finally the insubordination of the Bengal army was one of gradual growth. The paucity of the English forces encouraged the hopes of the disaffected, and from the enlistment of Hindoos and Mahomedans into the same regiment a union of these antagonistic races was effected. The latter had no objection to the greased cartridges, and would not have objected to use them, but they naturally adopted the grievance put forth by their comrades. The arrogance of the native army was the inevitable result of the pampering and coaxing with which it had come to be treated; and thus the sudden severity exercised towards the Meerut mutineers alarmed their minds and aroused their pride. From that moment they lost all confidence in the professions of the Government, and were confirmed in their belief that some great blow was about to be struck at their religion and their privileges. Thus much the acute Principal Sudder Ameen of Moradabad. Without attaching undue importance to his opinions, some of which may appear somewhat exaggerated, it is impossible to deny that he has made out a good case for his countrymen, and largely palliated, if not justified, their revolt. Our rulers, however, have received a practical lesson, which they are not likely soon to forget. Assuredly, if they do not lay to heart the teachings of the past, their infatuation will amount to insanity, and their obstinacy to crime. There is a fair field now open before them; but let them take heed lest they close the gate against themselves.

REORGANIZATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

COLONEL ORLANDO FELIX, late Deputy Quartermaster general of H.M.'s Forces at Madras, had come to the conclusion that in Bengal there should be one European to two natives, in Bombay one to three, and in Madras one to four; would have ten regiments of cavalry, each 500 strong, sixty battalions of infantry, each 800, and eighty batteries of artillery—in all 60,000 Europeans for all India, and 180,000 natives; the police might be employed on escort duties more generally than heretofore; should be armed with common carbines; no native should have a rifle, but only the old percussion musket; the natives themselves would generally prefer the musket to the rifle, but in any case the superiority of the Europeans must be maintained; thus armed the native army would be good enough for service in Burmah or Persia; before the mutiny had every confidence in the native soldiery, but would not again trust them; if it were possible to do without a native army, would rather not have one, but its existence quite indispensable; a large native army necessary to hold the immense territories of the Indian empire, and a European army to control the native; moral force always more felt when backed by physical force; would not employ a single native as an artilleryman; guns need not be sent where the climate is fatal to Europeans; would allow the present native artillery force in Bombay and Madras to die out; the natives must not again be implicitly trusted; the European element must be maintained supreme in all respects; the Moplahs have been quiet since they were disarmed; in like manner the subsidised States, if deprived of their artillery, will remain tranquil; the artillery of the contingents which have not revolted should be allowed to die out; would not have any native sappers and miners in Bengal, but would keep them up in the other Presidencies, where they have continued faithful; the Madras sappers and miners are men of the lowest caste, but most excellent and trustworthy soldiers; would have all the native infantry regular, and the cavalry irregular, but with six officers instead of four, so that a detached squadron would always be commanded by a European officer; would have a full complement of officers to the infantry regiments; would not permit so many to be absent from their corps as up to the present time; it would not answer to have only eight officers with the infantry, because they cannot be selected; quantity must make up for quality; irregular cavalry preferable because less expensive; if really good cavalry corps could be got, the regular system would be preferable; as it is, the irregulars are more generally serviceable; the Nizam's irregular cavalry are precisely the same as the Scinde horse; the mutiny greatly attributable to the want of communication between the officers and the men; there will never be much sympathy till the native officers learn to speak English; a knowledge of English should be a qualification for promotion; if encouraged, the natives would eagerly learn English; in the Madras Presidency English much spoken, and natives proud of showing their knowledge of it; if the French had had India, the whole of the officials would now speak French; a sepoy averages fifty years of age before he becomes an officer; would ask no questions about caste; every soldier must be ready to handle the pickaxe or to go to sea when ordered to do so; would enlist for general but limited service; would give not increased pay, but increased pension; a great security in the sepoys having their wives and families with them, as in Madras; military movements thereby impeded, but the fidelity of the sepoys secured; would give a pension after twenty-one years; would enlist for twenty-one years; native officers to be selected; the Bengal army so enormously large that it might be divided with advantage; would join Scinde with the Punjab, taking the line of the Sutlej and Indus; would give the Madras army up to Saugor, and the Bombay army up to Mhow; would keep the armies of the four Presidencies on the same terms, by giving the same pay for the same appointments; the commanding officer should recommend the sepoys and native officers for promotion; that is the Madras system; the Court of Directors allowed appeals from officers against their superiors, and did not punish them when those appeals were frivolous, a very unmilitary proceeding and detrimental to discipline; perhaps it might answer, as an experiment, to attach four companies of natives to every European regiment in Bengal; native and European soldiers generally get on well together; the natives would take the day and police duties; in action the natives with their muskets would not be worse off than was the case in the Queen's army when rifles were brigaded with other regiments; there might be an objection on account of two kinds of ammunition being wanted.

Major general Sir Scudamore W. Steel considered that there should be 40,000 Europeans in Bengal to 120,000 natives, exclusive of artillery, which should be entirely European; there should be both regulars and irregulars; many duties might be discharged by the police, which should be a civil force; the natives not to be armed with any improved firearm; Madras sappers and miners, though low-caste men, particularly efficient; would have European superintendents; no objection to half-castes in the scientific branches; would recommend general service enlistment, but would certainly not recognise caste; Madras troops were always asked if they would cross the sea, but they never refused except in the case of one sepoy in 1825, who was therefore dismissed; sometimes Madras troops have demurred; general service should be limited to India, anywhere to the eastward, and as far westward as Persia inclusive; Madras troops entitled to rations on board ship; not many Brahmins in the Madras service, but a good many Rajpoots; more deference shown to caste in Bengal than in Madras; Madras troops rendered more soldierly from having been formerly employed against French troops; Bengal army might be divided, because of the difficulty of communicating with head quarters; there might be four armies, but there should be one C. in C. for all India; would approve of a staff corps if the present system of promotion could be remodelled accordingly; there should always be one officer to each company present in addition to the staff; in the Madras army the naik, or lance corporal, the lowest non-commissioned officer, is recommended from the ranks by the officer commanding the company; the first promotion always by selection, afterwards by seniority, unless there be a just cause for supercession; flogging inflicted only by sentence of court-martial; appeals have sometimes been made without going through the commanding officer; the Bengalees more lax in their discipline than the Madrassees; thinks it an advantage to have the sepoys' wives with the regiments, as a "material guarantee."

Major general Robert Alexander, formerly adjutant general of the Madras army, would have one European to three native regiments throughout India; no objection to native artillerymen in the proportion prevailing in the Madras army; would have three European batteries to one native battery; would arm all alike with the best weapons procurable; natives will not become better subjects by being made worse soldiers; would employ no Europeans in the sappers and miners except as non-commissioned officers; forces in India should be more concentrated; in the Bengal Presidency as now constituted it would be better to have three or four military bases; one at Meerut, not less than 8,000 strong in infantry, besides cavalry and the artillery head-quarters; Almora might be another position, and Loodiana a third; a strong force, again, at Lahore, and posts at Peshawur and Attock; at Allahabad there should be a large mixed force of all arms to command the valleys of the Jumna and Ganges; a grand military position also at Moorshedabad, with posts towards Nepal; with railway communication and the command of the rivers the whole country could thus be held; Calcutta to be the chief entrepot for receiving and forwarding military supplies; perhaps Jhelum might be preferable to Attock; twenty-five to thirty regiments of European infantry and five or six of cavalry required for the Bengal Presidency; European infantry regiments might be thus distributed—2 or 3 at Agra, 1 at Almora, 2 at Loodiana, 2 at Lahore, 1 at Peshawur, 1 at Attock, 2 or 3 at Allahabad, 4 at stations around Agra, 2 or 3 at Moorshedabad, 3 at stations around Moorsheddabad, 1 at Saugor, 2 at stations around Saugor, and 1 at Calcutta; of the European cavalry regiments there might be 1 or 2 at Agra, 1 at Loodianah, 1 at Lahore, 1 at Allahabad, and 1 at Saugor; would have each foot regiment 800 strong, with a reserve of 400 at home, carefully trained, and never sent out under twenty-one years of age; of artillery there should be four guns to every 1,000 men; hitherto the Indian artillery has been very inadequately horsed and manned, and also inadequately officered; would have the batteries of eight guns, because in India batteries are frequently divided; would have regular native infantry and cavalry, with auxiliary irregular corps; the contingency of encountering European cavalry should always be borne in mind, and for that purpose irregular cavalry would not do; the irregulars might be employed for foraging, covering baggage, and outpost duties; there might be some irregular infantry corps in particular localities, such as in hill countries; would enlist every man physically fit for service; caste should be respected, but not allowed to interfere with military duties; discipline in Madras not more severe than in Bengal, but more efficient and soldierlike; remembers a case in which low-caste people wished to carry a bride in a palanquin and the higher-caste men forbade it; the C. in C. ordered that if a palanquin or procession went quietly through the lines it was not to be interfered with, but if there was any question of caste they must settle it among themselves out of cantonments; at Penang a serious quarrel once arose through the commanding officer allowing the Hindoos and Mahomedans to get up a caste dispute about hanging bits of beef and passing through particular parts of the lines common to both—a common-sense order soon settled the affair; during the Chinese war the Madras troops ate, drank, and cooked on board ship, while the Bengal sepoys insisted on going on shore every evening to do so; a captain of a transport killed a cow or ox on board for his crew, and the Bengal men were transferred to another ship; the same thing happened on board a Madras transport, but the Hindoos quite satisfied with the promise that for the future the cattle should be slaughtered on shore; when Bengal and Madras troops were brigaded together in the Saugor division, the latter suffered much from the laxity of discipline of the Bengal army; quite enough European officers to each regiment, but the commissariat should be a distinct service; civil staff duties should be given to officers of high character who are physically unfit for military duties; withdrawal of officers from regiments should be confined to military staff, scientific, and political duties; the present system, however, induces officers to qualify themselves for every contingency; regimental officers not looked down upon, though undoubtedly there is a feeling of depression among old officers; a staff corps very desirable and quite practicable; would object to the enlistment for general service beyond the sea; Madras troops have the option of going or remaining, but they all go; probably not more than 2,000 Hindostanics in the Madras army; the war pensions and wound pensions should be restored to what they were; pay of army in Southern India too small, and the pension given too soon—after fifteen years' service; the men simulate chronic rheumatism and pains in the joints, and so baffle the medical officers; once out of the service they are all right again; pay should increase according to length of service; a common cooly working on the railway gets eight rupees a month, while the sepoy has only seven—he ought to have ten; recruits should not be taken under eighteen; since the time of Hyder Ali the native officers have been depressed, and deprived of all honourable ambition; would encourage native gentlemen to enter the army, by giving them commissions without passing through the ranks; in enabling men to gratify a lawful ambition would expect to find the best security against their attempting to indulge an unlawful one; would not divide the Bengal army; would promote by selection; preference given to seniority combined with merit; if native gentlemen are expected to enter the service, some higher prizes must be held out than the prospect of a jemadar's pension of twelve rupees a month, or even a subadar's of twenty-five rupees; English a good deal spoken by young sepoys; better to insist upon European officers learning more of the native languages than to insist upon the natives learning English; the Bengal army might have been made highly efficient had not caste been so much regarded, and discipline so much relaxed; would leave English to find its own way, only improving the regimental schools; quite fatal to mix up Europeans and natives in the same regiment—each would come to despise the other; Madras troops overworked, and so rendered discontented; in 1819 the artillery was stronger than it is now, with eleven more stations to hold; sepoys should be clothed more after the native style; cantonments badly laid out at present; barracks, magazines, and arsenals, all easily assailable, and without means of communication or support for a general defence; cantonments should be so located as to command the bazaars; would remove the principal magazines, arsenals, and gunpowder manufactories from the sea-coast to central positions in the interior.

Mr. J. F. Thomas, of the Madras Civil Service, was the next witness, and hesitated to give a decisive answer as to the proportion between native and European soldiers necessary for the future; it must vary in different localities; would not give the natives as good arms as to the Europeans; the sappers and miners, being low-caste men, are, in their own interest, closely allied to the Government; in the Madras army there are about 15 per cent. high-caste men, 35 per cent. Mahomedans, and the remainder low-caste men; when the troops are ordered to embark, any individual may decline to go, and claim his discharge; if a whole regiment happened to do so, it must, of course, be disbanded; there has never been any difficulty hitherto, because a man's regiment is his village; it would be better to enlist for general service beyond the sea; in the Madras army there are always five captains and six lieutenants present with the corps; would allow the native artillery to die out; low-caste men more likely to become attached to us; Mahomedans never sympathise with us; would give the natives full civil advantages, but would not trust them with military power, seeing the smallness of our own numbers; would prefer the seniority system of promotion, because it is not advisable to make the native army too efficient; formerly we were obliged to maintain large, well-disciplined forces to oppose the many enemies who were mixed up with us, but now there is no internal enemy; would increase the number of non-commissioned officers in the native corps; they marry Indian or East Indian women, and thus learn all that is passing around them; in the Madras Presidency—in the widest sense of the term—would have, as now, fifty-two native regiments, with twelve European foot regiments; would have no native cavalry if it must be seven-eighths Mahomedan, as now; if a Mahomedan be true to his own faith, he must be hostile to the supremacy of Christians; European influence far greater in Madras than in Bombay; Madras Brahmins are not military, and do not enlist; Europeans in the Company's service at times very disorderly; in the field their conduct was admirable, but previous to embarkation they were insufferable; the seniority system of promotion as bad for European as for native officers; by purchase, young men obtain the command, and inspire more energy into a regiment; decidedly opposed to mixing up Europeans and natives by companies in the same regiment.

PRESENTATION OF THE FREEDOM OF THE CITY TO SIR JOHN LAWRENCE.

On Friday afternoon, June 3rd, the Court of Common Council assembled at Guildhall for the purpose of witnessing the presentation to Sir J. Lawrence of the freedom of the City, in a gold box, value 100 guineas, agreeably to the resolution of the court of the 4th March, 1858. The box, which was designed and manufactured by Messrs. Sarl and Sons, goldsmiths, of Cornhill, is of a very elaborate description. The lid (or top of the box) is frosted gold, beautifully relieved with figures of palm-trees, elephants, Indian temples, and other Oriental subjects, which are richly chased and burnished, standing out in bold relief. In the centre, the arms of Sir J. Lawrence are engraved on a raised shield. In the front of the box the arms of the City of London, also those of Sir Robert Carden, are chased; at either end of the box are the orders and crest of Sir John Lawrence. The Lord Mayor presided. The council chamber had been handsomely fitted up for the occasion, an extensive dais having been constructed in front of the Lord Mayor's chair for the reception of the Court of Aldermen and illustrious visitors who might honour the ceremony with their presence. A crimson carpet covered this dais, and a long table in the middle of the chamber was also covered with cloth to match. A chair of state, in gilt and crimson velvet, was fixed on the Lord Mayor's right hand for Sir J. Lawrence, the aldermen being attired in their scarlet, and the common councilmen in their violet robes. The court was crowded to excess, many of the benches usually appropriated to members being on this occasion occupied by gaily-dressed ladies. Seats of honour were filled by Lady Lawrence, wife of Sir John; the two Misses Lawrence, his daughters; Mrs. Hayes, his sister; General Lawrence, c.b., his brother; and Mr. G. H. Lawrence, his nephew. The attendance of aldermen was full, comprising Sir P. Laurie, Sir J. Duke, M.P., Sir G. Carroll, Sir R. Carden, Aldermen and Sheriffs Hale and Conder, Aldermen Sidney, Mechi, Lawrence, Challis, Humphrey, Fennis, Gabriel, Salomons, and Phillips. The Recorder and other great officers of the corporation were also present. Sir J. Lawrence was introduced by Mr. Alderman Salomons (the mover of the resolution) and Mr. Dollond, amid loud cheers. The Master Warden of the Grocers' Company then presented a certificate of the fact that the freedom of that company had been accorded to Sir John Laird Mair Lawrence, and the resolution of the court for conferring the freedom of the City was then read by the Town Clerk, after which Sir John made and subscribed the usual declaration.

The City Chamberlain then delivered a rhetorical oration, more civico, to which Sir J. Lawrence replied as follows:—My lord, I thank your lordship and this honourable court for the high distinction which you have conferred on me this day—a distinction which, if possible, has been enhanced by the terms in which it has been conveyed. It is an honour which I share with some of the bravest and noblest of our countrymen—(hear, hear). The tribute paid by your Chamberlain to the memory of my brave and lamented brother Sir Henry Lawrence—(hear, hear)—was just and true—(hear, hear). He was an officer of the highest aspirations, and a man of unbounded benevolence—(cheers). During a long course of thirty-five years' service in Burmah, Afghanistan, the Punjab, and Rajpootana he maintained the honour of our country and upheld the reputation of our arms—(cheers). In the concluding scenes of his life, at Lucknow, he, if possible, outdid himself. So long as peace could be maintained it was maintained by his prudence, justice, and conciliation, while at the same time, by his sagacity and foresight, he made arrangements for the security of British interests, and I believe that but for him not one of our beleaguered countrymen or countrywomen in Lucknow would have survived—(loud cheers). My lord, I desire to say but little of myself on this occasion. If I was placed in a position of extreme difficulty and danger, I was also fortunate in being surrounded by some of the best, bravest, and ablest men which India could produce—(cheers). In times of peace we laboured so as to meet times of commotion, difficulty, and danger—(hear, hear). We worked to reduce a new country into rule, order, and system. We worked with a view to improve the material prosperity of the people, and endeavoured, to the best of our ability, to engage their sympathy and affections—(hear, hear). And thus it was that—by the help of God—when that storm broke out which threatened to overwhelm all India, we were able to withstand its fury and its violence—(hear, hear). My lord, I have received honours and distinctions from my Sovereign, and I have been received by all classes of my countrymen with the greatest consideration, and I may say affection—(hear, hear). And I hope, ere long, that some of those distinctions which I have received may fall to the lot of some of those who were my friends and coadjutors in the Punjab—(loud and continued applause).

PROMOTIONS IN THE SENIOR LIST OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

In consequence of the decease of the under-mentioned officers General Sir J. Russell, Madras Cav., 10th May, 1859; General A. Duncan, Bengal, 14th May, 1859; General Sir J. L. Lushington, Madras Cav., 29th May, 1859; Lieut. gen. W. H. Kemm, Bengal Inf., 25th May, 1859; the following promotions will take place in the Indian army, viz:—

TO BE GENERALS.—Lieut. general G. Swiney, Bengal Artillery, from 15th May, 1859; Lieut. general Sir G. Pollock, K.C.B., Bengal Artillery, 17th May, 1859; Lieut. general S. Goodfellow, Bombay Engineers, 30th May, 1859.

TO BE LIEUT. GENERALS.—Major general C. B. James, Bombay Infantry, 15th May, 1859; Major general M. C. Paul, Bengal Infantry, 17th May, 1859; Major general Sir J. Cheape, K.C.B., Bengal Engineers, 26th May, 1859; Major general J. Low, C.B., Madras Infantry, 30th May, 1859.

TO BE MAJOR GENERALS.—Colonel C. Wahab, Madras Infantry, 15th May, 1859; Colonel J. Manson, Bengal Infantry, 17th May, 1859; Colonel G. Twemlow, Bengal Artillery, 26th May, 1859; Colonel T. A. Duke, Madras Infantry, 30th May, 1859.

TO BE LIEUT. COLONELS.—Major T. T. Christie, Bombay 17th N.I., 15th May, 1859; Major H. Green, Madras 18th N.I., 17th May, 1859; Major D. R. J. Brett, Madras, 3rd European Cavalry, 26th May, 1859; Major S. C. Briggs, Madras, 81st N.I., 30th May, 1859.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DEATH OF SIR J. L. LUSHINGTON.—We regret to announce the death of General Sir James Law Lushington, G.C.B., which event occurred on Sunday afternoon, May 29th, at his residence in Dorset square. The deceased general was the son of the Rev. James Stephen Lushington, vicar of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and canon of Carlisle Cathedral, and brother to the Right Hon. Stephen Rumbold Lushington, who was for many years Chairman of "Ways and Means" in the House of Commons, and subsequently Governor of Madras. He was born at Bottisham, near Newmarket, in 1779. He was in the military service of the East India Company as colonel of the 3rd Madras Light Cavalry, and was made a general in the army in 1854. He was re-elected a director of the East India Company in 1827, and was deputy chairman in 1836-7, and chairman in 1838-9. He represented Petersfield, Carlisle, and Hastings, at various times in the House of Commons.

P. AND O. STEAM COMPANY.—The report of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company has been published. The fleet of vessels shows a total of sixty-four, including transport, store, and coal ships, with a tonnage of 84,326 Customs measurement, and 18,381 horse-power. In this list are comprised ships recently purchased and intended for service in India and Australia, and vessels building and under alteration. With regard to the four screw ships, the purchase of which was concluded immediately before the issue of the last report, it is stated that they have been named the China, Orissa, Ellora, and Behar. Three are at present in active service, but new boilers are in course of construction, and they will shortly undergo such alterations and improvements as will qualify them for permanent employment. The rest of one of them, the China, is already far advanced, and it is intimated that the cost of the requisite improvements was anticipated in calculating the price at which the purchase of these vessels was effected. The Emeu was handed over to the company at Sydney in February last; conditions for the purchase of the Columbian have likewise been agreed on between the directors and the parties interested, and this vessel has probably been delivered to the company's agents at the same time. The Delta and the Massilia are nearly ready for launching, and it is anticipated that they will prove very efficient. With the exception of the accident to the Emeu the postal service to Australia has been commenced auspiciously, and it is hoped it will progress with regularity. The fortnightly service between Malta and Corfu (the contract for which for one year has just been arranged with the Government), will be performed by the Alhambra as soon as her refit is completed, and meanwhile the Valetta proceeded to Malta to open it on the 1st of June. The result of Mr. Anderson's visit to Egypt to confer with the Pasha on the best arrangements to be adopted for improving the transit of passengers, merchandise, &c., in connection with the railway, has been satisfactory, and a new contract, the details of which will be shortly made public, has been arranged. A graceful tribute is paid by the directors to the memory of their colleague, Rear Admiral Thornton, who was unfortunately drowned on a late return voyage from Malta.

ORIENTAL GAS COMPANY.—The dividend declared on the 31st May at the annual meeting of the Oriental Gas Company was two per cent. on the paid-up capital, and the report and accounts, after some discussion, were adopted. The progress of operations is more encouraging, and although the rate of distribution at present appears small, it is fully anticipated that it will steadily increase. Gas, it is stated, can be produced wholly from the coal of India, but experience has proved that by an admixture of English it will be undesirable to manufacture wholly from the native material. With regard to operations in this respect it is found that, notwithstanding coke has not yet commanded so ready a sale as tar, the directors feel confident that as soon as the inhabitants of Calcutta have been accustomed to its use the demand will be sufficient for all the company's requirements, and that residual products will realise remunerating prices. Estimates have been sent in for lighting Fort William, its barracks, church, and offices. A gradual increase in the service has taken place, the number of public and private lights having steadily advanced. The accounts exhibit a profit of £2,211, which will enable the payment of the sum proposed, and leave a balance of £461. It is thought that the increased rental of the company, from the extensions in progress, will give the directors the opportunity of presenting in another year a revenue that will afford a remunerative dividend for the capital expended.

BISHOPRIC OF BRISBANE.—Her Majesty has been pleased to constitute the new colony of Queensland to be a Bishop's See and Diocese, to be called the Bishopric of Brisbane; and to appoint the Rev. Edward Wyndham Tufnel, D.D., to be ordained and consecrated Bishop of the said See.

HEALTH OF THE ARMY IN INDIA.—India Office, May 31. The Queen has been pleased to issue a commission under her Royal sign manual, appointing the Right Hon. Sydney Herbert, M.P., Maj. Gen. Sir R. J. H. Vivian, K.C.B., Col. Sir P. T. Cantley, K.C.B., T. Alexander, Esq., C.B., Col. E. H. Greathed, C.B., W. Farr, Esq., M.D., J. R. Martin, Esq., and J. Sutherland, Esq., M.D., to be her Majesty's Commissioners to inquire into, and report upon, the measures which it may be expedient to take for maintaining and improving the health of all ranks of her Majesty's army serving in India.

APPOINTMENT.—ALEXANDRIA.—Foreign Office, May 20. The Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint Sidney Smith Saunders, Esq., now H.M.'s Consul in Albania, to be H.M.'s Consul at Alexandria.

MADRAS IRRIGATION COMPANY.—It has been announced by the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company that the amount of £24,663 has been paid into the Indian treasury to the credit of this company, making, with the other payments of a like nature, a total of £299,004, or, in round numbers, £300,000, received by the Secretary of State for India in Council from this company on account of its capital, of which only £1 per share has been called up.

A NEW COLONY.—(Downing-street, June 3.)—The Queen has been pleased to erect the district of Moreton Bay, New South Wales, into a separate colony, to be called the Colony of Queensland; and to appoint Sir George Ferguson Bowen, K.C.M.G., to be Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief in and over the said colony and its dependencies.

INSPECTION OF THE EAST INDIA TROOPS AT WARLEY.—On Saturday, May 28, the whole of the troops stationed at the East India depot at Warley, near Brentwood, underwent a general inspection, in the presence of Lord Stanley, the Secretary of State for India, the members of the Indian Council, Sir John Lawrence, and other distinguished officers. Nearly two thousand men were on the ground. All were recruits, scarcely one of them having been more than four months in the service. Lord Stanley and the Council came down by special train on the Eastern Counties Railway, and were received by Colonel Leslie, the commanding officer at the depot. Upon reaching the ground the troops were put through various evolutions, and the way they acquitted themselves elicited the strong approval of the distinguished soldiers who were on the field. At the close of the inspection the visitors partook of luncheon, when Lord Stanley spoke of the great value of Government depots for the instruction and training of soldiers. They returned to town soon after three o'clock by special train. The review attracted a vast concourse of spectators.

BOOKS.

The Universal Review of Politics, Literature, and Social Science. No. IV. William H. Allen and Co.

The June number of the Universal contains an excellent paper on "The Capabilities and Productions of Southern India." The writer undertakes to prove, and not unsuccessfully, that within a given period Great Britain may draw her entire supplies of cotton from India, and thus become independent of the United States of America. The chief impediment to the full development of this great staple article is stated to be "the want of cheap and speedy conveyance." At present "the cotton is carried on the backs of bullocks, or in native carts, sometimes for a distance of five hundred miles, at a rate of about twelve miles a day, over roads sometimes obscured by clouds of dust, sometimes rendered impassable by rain. Carts frequently break down, the badly-packed bags burst, and, badly cobbled up, they are placed on the carts again. Then the cotton has as many enemies as the flying-fish. The cattle eat it, the ponies eat it, the carriers steal it, the women and boys steal it, travellers steal it. When it gets to the coast and is put on board the boats for conveyance to the ships, large quantities are abstracted from the bales by the boatmen, and the weight supplied with sand, mud, or salt water." From all these dangers and mishaps it will eventually be saved when the railways shall be completed from the cotton-growing districts to the sea-coast. At the lowest computation, the saving thus to be effected is estimated at one penny per pound, and as there is reason to anticipate that before the expiration of 1864 the export of cotton from Bombay will equal five hundred million pounds, the sum of two millions sterling would annually be saved in carriage alone. From the waste lands of Kandeish alone it is calculated that one-fourth of the total supply required for Great Britain may be produced without any difficulty. Large quantities, again, are sent from the neighbourhood of Jubbulpore to Mirzapore, and thence forwarded to Calcutta in native boats, a long and wasteful journey. According to Sir R. Hamilton, however, two hundred and fifty million pounds of cotton may be grown within a circuit of fifteen hundred miles round Indore, which could be delivered at Bombay, when the railway is completed, for 1½d. per lb. In that same district hemp of excellent quality is now being largely cultivated. Cotton may likewise be had in almost any quantity from Sholapore, Dharwar, Bellary, Guzerat, Coimbatore, Tinnevely, Cuddapah, Kurnool, Tanjore, Guntoor, and Madura.

Another of the products of Southern India is coffee, which may be grown to almost any extent in Mysore and Coorg, and on the Neilgherries. The profits are said to be cent. per cent., though three years must elapse from sowing the seed before any returns can be looked for. In Mysore, tobacco, silk, wheat, rice, spices, hemp, flax, vegetable oils, and a great variety of timber, may be cultivated with great advantage. Fruits and vegetables, both Eastern and European, grow luxuriantly, and the cattle are of a remarkably fine breed. The climate of this part of India is both pleasant and salubrious, equally removed from the extremities of heat or cold. Another consideration, too, may be mentioned which usually carries some weight with the Anglo-Saxon race—capital beer is brewed in the Neilgherries, and sold at tenpence a gallon. Coal, indeed, is unprocureable, and wood not sufficiently abundant to supply fuel for an increasing population; but a deus ex machina appeared at the proper moment in the form of an Irishman, whose instincts guided him to the discovery of immense tracts of peat. Many other interesting particulars are given in the article under notice; but for these we must refer the curious reader to the current number of the Universal.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

India Office, June 1, 1859.

THE SECRETARY of STATE for INDIA
in COUNCIL publishes, for general information, the following NOTIFICATIONS, which have been issued by the Government of India, and published in the Calcutta Gazette Extraordinary, of the 20th April, 1859.

Fort William, Financial Department, April 20, 1859.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 28. of 1859.

With reference to paragraph 14 of the Notification of this department, No. 14, dated 21st February last, notice is hereby given, that the Sub-Treasurers at Fort William, Fort St. George, and Bombay, the several residents at native courts, and the several collectors and other officers in charge of treasuries under the several presidencies and governments, and in the provinces subordinate to the Government of India, have been authorised to receive from the 1st of May next, any sums of money in hundreds of rupees, each being for not less than 500 of Company's rupees, which may be tendered on loan to the Secretary of State in Council of India, at an interest of five-and-a-half per cent. per annum, subject to the provisions hereinafter specified.

Subscriptions to this loan will be received from holders of Five per Cent. Promissory Notes of this Government, half in cash and half in the said promissory notes.

All authorised public demands, including audited bills for arrears of salary and bills of exchange on the public treasuries, these last being subject to a deduction at the rate of five and a half per centum per annum for the period they may have to run, will be received as cash at par.

The paymasters of the army under the several presidencies are also authorised to transfer any demands which may be payable by them respectively to this loan, and to grant drafts for the amounts in Bengal and Madras on the Accountant-General, and in Bombay on the Military Paymaster General, which drafts shall be received by those officers in payment of subscriptions to this loan, on being tendered to them for that purpose.

The several public officers authorised to receive subscriptions into this loan will grant acknowledgments in the following form for all sums received by them respectively:—

I hereby acknowledge that _____ has this day paid into the Treasury at _____ the sum of _____ Company's rupees for which _____ is entitled to receive a Promissory Note of the Secretary of State in Council of India, bearing interest from the _____ of the tenor, and subject to the conditions of the loan specified in the advertisement published in the Calcutta Gazette of the _____ 1859.

The Accountant General at Fort William will, on the said acknowledgments being delivered, forthwith cause to be prepared, and issued to the parties entitled thereto, Promissory Notes under the signature of the Secretary to the Government of India, in the following form:—

Fort William, the 31st May, 1859.

Promissory Note at 5½ per Centum for Company's Rupees.

The Governor General of India in Council does hereby acknowledge to have received from _____ the sum of _____ Company's Rupees as a loan to the Secretary of State in Council of India, and does hereby promise for and on behalf of the said Secretary of State in Council, to repay the said loan by paying the said sum of Company's Rupees to the said _____ his (or "her" or "their" as the case may be) executors or administrators, or his (or "her" as the case may be) or their order, on demand, at the general treasury of Fort William, after the expiration of three months' notice of payment to be given by the Governor General of India in Council in the Calcutta Gazette, and to pay the interest accruing on the said sum of Company's Rupees at the rate of five-and-a-half per cent. per annum, by half-yearly payments at the general treasury of Fort William to the said _____ or his (or "her" or "their" as the case may be), executors or administrators or his (or "her" as the case may be) or their order, until the expiration of three months after such notice of payment as aforesaid, when the amount of interest due will be payable with the principal, and (such notice being considered as equivalent to a tender of payment at the period appointed for the discharge of this note, all further interest shall cease. The Governor General in Council hereby further engages that the said loan shall not be paid off before the 1st of May, 1879.

Signed by the authority of the Governor General of India in Council.
Accountant General's Office,
Registered as No. _____ of _____ Secretary to the Government.

The several officers authorised to receive subscriptions will, on applications from the holders of acknowledgments, transmit them (free of every expense whatever) to the Accountant General at Fort William, to be exchanged for promissory notes bearing interest from the 31st of May or the 30th of November next ensuing after the date of subscription. The interest accruing on the broken period of the half year that may intervene between the date of subscription and the 31st of May or 30th of November next ensuing, as the case may be, will be paid up at the time of granting the acknowledgment.

Proprietors of notes or acknowledgments who may desire to have the interest payable at any other public treasury than at the General Treasury of Calcutta, shall be entitled to receive it accordingly, provided they notify their wish to the Accountant-General at Fort William, and transmit the notes or acknowledgments to him, to have an order for the payment of interest at the said treasury, written on the face of the notes under the signature of the said officer, or that of his assistant; and after such order shall, on the application of the proprietor, be inscribed on any note, the interest shall be payable only from the said treasury, unless the proprietor shall present the note, with an application for the purpose of transferring the payment elsewhere, to the Accountant-General at Fort William.

If desired, interest will also be made payable at the General Treasury at Fort William, for the period for which the loan is guaranteed, by coupons payable to bearer. Promissory notes, with coupons attached, will be granted on application, instead of promissory notes in the usual form.

Or, if it be desired, interest will be made payable at the East India House in London, by bills payable to order on demand, on the general treasuries of Calcutta or Madras, subject to the rules and regulations at present in force, or that may hereafter be issued by the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, or by this Government.

The promissory notes of this loan shall not be renewed, subdivided, or consolidated, except by the Accountant-General of Fort William. The practice and rules heretofore in use in regard to the renewal, subdivision, and consolidation of promissory notes will be adhered to in respect to the promissory notes of this loan.

This loan is limited to Five Crores of Rupees. No part of this loan will be paid off before the 1st of May, 1879, nor without a previous notice of three months, to be issued at any time after the 31st January, 1879.

The Five per Cent. Loan opened under notification, dated 16th January, 1857, will be closed from the 30th instant, after which date no further subscriptions to that loan will be received, except in the cases of parties resident in Europe, who may have forwarded by the mail which was to have left London on the 10th April, 1859, or by any previous mail that left London after the 3rd of March, 1859, written instructions for the immediate transfer to the said loan of promissory notes of the 4 per Cent. 3½ per Cent., and 4½ per Cent. Loans, or Transfer Loan Securities. Subscriptions to the said loan tendered under such instructions, on account of such parties, will be received at the General Treasuries of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, if the tender is made before the 1st of June next.

With the above exception promissory notes of the 4 per Cent., 3½ per Cent., and 4½ per Cent. Loans and Transfer Loan Securities, will not be receivable in subscription to any loan after the 30th instant.

Published by order of His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

(Signed) C. HUGH LUSHINGTON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 29. of 1859.

It is hereby notified that from and after the 1st of May, 1859, interest on Government Promissory Notes of the Loans noted in the margin, at the option of the holders, be made payable for the period for which the said Loans have respectively been guaranteed, either in the manner heretofore observed, or by Coupons payable to bearer, signed by the Accountant-General to the Government of India.

Promissory Notes in the form heretofore in use can be exchanged on renewal for Promissory Notes having Coupons attached. The Coupons will be in the following form:—

COUPON.

No. ....	Rs. ....	per cent.
The sum of Rupees _____	for interest, at _____	per cent.
per annum, for the half year ending on _____	upon the Promissory Note of the Government of India, No. _____
of the loan of _____, for Rupees _____	will be payable to bearer on presentation of this Coupon at the General Treasury of Fort William on or after the _____ of _____
Rs. ....	No. ....

(Signed) _____
Accountant General to the Government of India.

When the last of the Coupons attached to any note shall have become payable, the interest payable on the Note, until the expiration of three months after notice of payment of the Principal, will be paid at the General Treasury at Fort William to the lawful Holder of the Note, on his presenting the same and writing his receipt thereon; or, at the option of the lawful Holder, the Note may be endorsed for payment of interest at the East India House in London by Bills on demand on the General Treasuries of Calcutta or Madras, subject to the Rules and Regulations at present in force, or that may hereafter be issued by the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, or by this Government.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS,

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad. Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

THE FOLLOWING IS AN EXTRACT

from the Second Edition (page 188) of the Translation of the Pharmacopoeia of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. F. Collier, published by Longman and Co.:

"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of the Pharmacopoeia) that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes; yet we know that hemorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS which chiefly consist of aloes, scammony, and colocynth, which, I think, are formed in a sort of compound extract, the acidity of which is obviated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a patent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best made pill in the kingdom; a muscular purge, a mucous purge, and a hydrogogue purge combined, and their effects properly controlled by a dirigent and corrigent. That it does not commonly produce hemorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.—"Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 19, 1858."
"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them as the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.—Under the Provisions of an Act of Parliament, this Company now offers to future Insurers Eighty per Cent. of the Profits, with Quinquennial Division, or a Low Rate of Premium without Participation of Profits.

The next Division of Profits will be declared in June, 1860, when all Participating Policies which shall have subsisted at least one year at Christmas, 1859, will be allowed to share in the Profits.

At the Five Divisions of Profits made by this Company, the total Reversionary Bonuses added to the Policies have ex-cceeded £913,000.

At the last valuation, at Christmas, 1854, the Assurances in force amounted to upwards of £1,240,000, the Income from the Life Branch in 1854 was more than £200,000, and the Life Assurance Fund (independent of the Guarantee Capital) exceeded £1,700,000.

FOREIGN RISKS.—The Extra Premiums required for the East and West Indies, the British Colonies, and the northern parts of the United States of America, have been materially reduced.

INVALID LIVES.—Persons who are not in such sound health as would enable them to insure their Lives at the Tabular Premiums, may have their Lives insured at Extra Premiums.

LOANS granted on Life Policies to the extent of their values, provided such Policies shall have been effected a suffi-cient time to have attained in each case a value not under £50.

ASSIGNMENTS OF POLICIES.—Written Notices of, re-ceived and registered.

AN INTRODUCTION to the GRAMMAR

of the SANSKRIT LANGUAGE, for the Use of Early Students. By H. H. WILSON, M.A., F.R.S., &c. 8vo. Cloth, 18s.
London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 8d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c. for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAK-NESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each Postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH, New

Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygienic agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygienic system of medicine introduced by James Morison, the Hygienist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny sub-scription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Diseases of Hot

Climates.—Medical practitioners have hitherto but too frequently rendered the constitution of the Indian resident still more susceptible of disease by the violence of their remedies. Drastic purgatives and dangerous minerals, which effect temporary good at the expense of lasting evil, have been too commonly resorted to. Holloway's Pills do not debilitate and exhaust the powers of life in any case, or in any disease, or leave any injurious effects behind. They assist and sus-tain nature while conquering the maldy; and by this rein-forcement expedite the cure. They are especially efficacious in all bilious disorders, stomachic derangements, complaints of the kidneys, lungs, and viscera; while in jungle fever and sunstroke they act like a charm.

DR. JAMES'S POWDER for FEVERS,

INFLUENZA, MEASLES, RHEUMATISM, and all Inflammatory Disorders. No Medicine Chest is complete without it. So simple and certain, so mild and peculiar, is its action, that it is fitted alike for domestic or professional use. The genuine has "F. NEWBURY, No. 45, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD," London, engraved on the Government Stamp. Packets, 2s. 9d. each; Bottles, 11s. Be careful to ask for "NEWBURY'S," the Original Preparation. Estab-lished A.D. 1746.

PROPRIETOR OF THE COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

DEATH FROM CUTTING CORNS.—Ask

for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLAIS-TERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have Young's—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. 1s. per box, or 13 postage stamps. Address H. YOUNG, 1, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. may be had at all chemists' throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

CHALLENGE TO THE WORLD.—The

Hair dyed perfectly natural by Mr. TAYLOR, 6, Glass-house-street, Regent-street. The dye sold at 5s. 6d. Sent to all parts. Mr. Taylor defies the world to produce a better.

HAIR-CURLING FLUID, &c.—248, High

Holborn.—ALEX. ROSS'S Curling Fluid causes the hair to curl immediately it is used: 3s. 6d.—sent for 54 stamps. ALEX. ROSS'S Hair Destroyer, or Depilatory, removes superfluous hair from the face or hands, without in-jury to the skin; 3s. 6d. ALEX. ROSS'S Hair Dye; 3s. 6d. Private rooms for its use.

FRESH IMPORTATION OF PURE TEAS.

THE Finest Imperial Pure Black TEA (the right sort for everybody). Four Shillings and Eightpence the Pound; the Finest Pure Imperial Small leaf Gunpowder, and the Finest Pure Imperial Hyson, at Five Shillings the Pound. These Teas are ripe, rich, and full of flavour, and are confidently recommended to Invalids and others as being the most wholesome THAT CAN BE PRODUCED. Compare and judge. One trial will prove that they are the best, purest, and cheapest. To be obtained ONLY of TROWELL and Co., 93, St. Martin's-lane, Charing-cross, London. Delivered Free to all parts of London and suburbs, on receipt of Post-office Orders payable at Charing-cross.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The second number of this new candidate for public favour is unquestionably an improvement on the first. This is, in itself, a merit to be appreciated, as it augurs that the organisation on which the future of the "Review" depends has within it the elements of that completeness which can alone ensure stability. We have only space to direct attention to the articles on "Philosophy as an Element of Culture," on "Realistic Novelists," and "Christianity in India;" but we venture to say that the whole number is well worthy of thoughtful consideration. In this addition to our periodical literature there is every mark of careful conduct, and there is every reason in the present number for a prediction that it is destined not merely to an existence, but to a useful and enduring life.—Illustrated London News, April 9, 1859.

The third number of the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" may be pointed out as an excellent specimen of that which a publication should be—learned, witty, powerful, and occasionally caustic, but always devoid of pedantry, slang, ponderosity, or personality. It may be said to supply a long-existing and widely-felt want in periodical literature. Its politics are Conservative—not the rabid, blatant Toryism which roars and bellows in the pages of certain publications, from Blackwood downwards, but Conservatism of a liberal and comprehensive spirit (the terms are not misapplied), such as guides the principles of many thinking young men of the present day. In their literary likings the conductors of the new "REVIEW" are singularly catholic, welcoming every disciple of any "school" who shows originality and talent. There are ten articles in this month's number; all are readable, and most are interesting, which is saying a great deal. The first article does tardy justice to the memory of a most excellent man, the late Rev. F. W.

Robertson, of Brighton, an earnest, single-minded, clear-headed, upright clergyman, whose life was made a burden to him, and who was hunted to death by the persecutions of his religious brethren, because he pursued his own straightforward course, preaching a healthy doctrine with singular vigour and effect; and because he would not give in to the vagaries of either of the sects whose open conflicts are the disgrace of that hotbed of religious fanaticism in which Mr. Robertson's labours were cast. "Women neither Nice nor Wise" is a well-stricken blow at the noisy trumpetings of the advocates of "Woman's Cause," and comments very sensibly on many of the absurdities prevalent among that class of strong-minded foolish women of which the two ladies who have recorded their travels as "unprotected females" may be taken as types. The writer touches the whole sense of the question when, after mentioning the now-prevalent desire of women for manly employment, he says, "What we now wish our countrymen to believe is this—that it is far more important to the whole world that women should be good wives and mothers than that they should excel in any one art or science, which men can achieve as well as they. If for no other reason than this obvious one, that though men can do at least as well as women in the capacity of doctors, lawyers, &c., yet they could never do at all as wives and mothers." The other pleasant papers in the number, to my mind, are the review of M. Michelet's "L'Amour," and a most sound, judicious and clearly-written article on "French Dramatists and English Adapters." The writer is, however, mistaken, I think, in supposing that critics do not make a point of exposing the origin of any adaptation, if they happen to be acquainted with it.—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, May 7, 1859.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS
PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The aids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldonsquare, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TEETH

WITHOUT SPRINGS.

110, REGENT-STREET, AND 33, LUDGATE-HILL,
Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established
DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans.

In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE
GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots;
the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, wholesome, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accepted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 184, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, an may be had gratis, for stamped envelope.

The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores de-cayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OBSERVE THE NUMBERS.

PREPARED WHITE GUTTA PERCHA ENAMEL, the best Stopping for Decayed Teeth or Toothache, 1s. 6d. per box, obtainable through any Chemist in town or country, or direct Twenty Stamps.

"Messrs. G.'s improvements in Dentistry are really important, and will well repay a visit to their establishments."—

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 13th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

Books under 1 lb. 6d.; under 1 lb. 1s.; and for every additional 1 lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE news brought by the Calcutta Mail of the 3rd May is only one day in advance of that received by the last mail from Bombay. We are presented, however, with an earlier opportunity than we should otherwise have possessed of correcting a very serious clerical error which crept into the letter from Meerut inserted in our last Summary. It was there stated that the refractory artillerymen were one thousand strong; fortunately, they did not exceed one hundred in number. The mistake arose through carelessness as to the value of cyphers, and we commend the obvious moral to the consideration of our readers, claiming their indulgence for ourselves.

The monetary crisis still constitutes the chief topic of comment in the Calcutta papers. On the last day of April a Gazette Extraordinary notified the issuing of Treasury Bills from the 1st May, at the rate of 2 1/2 pie per diem for every hundred rupees. But, although the depression in the value of Government Securities continued unabated, fifty lakhs in cash, and the same amount in four per cent. paper were paid into the Treasury during the last week in April, on account of the Five per Cent. Loan.

The same Gazette contains a notification to the effect that, as Mr. Rickett's Report on Civil Salaries was then under the consideration of the Governor General in Council, all civil appointments made after the 1st of May would be liable to whatever reduction of salary might provisionally be proposed by the local Government, and ultimately sanctioned by the Secretary of State for India.

The Hon. John Peter Grant has been officially gazetted, subject to her Majesty's approbation, to the office of Lieutenant Governor of the Bengal division of the Presidency of Fort William—dating from the 1st May. His predecessor, the Hon. F. J. Halliday, on the same day retired from her Majesty's Civil Service in India, but as a mark of respect to his character and services, the Governor General directed that all honours and distinctions to which he was entitled as Lieutenant governor of Bengal should be paid to him until his embarkation for Europe. It is a significant fact that no address has been presented to Mr. Halliday by the European community, and that only a few English residents attended the farewell dinner given to his Excellency by a considerable number of Hindoo and Mahomedan gentlemen.

It is stated that there are at this moment 350 men belonging to the late naval brigade wandering about Calcutta in vain search for employment. The Admiralty would do well to send out immediate instructions to re-enlist these gallant and experienced seamen before they become utterly reckless and demoralised.

From Madras we learn that Sir Charles Trevelyan is steadily pursuing a course of social and economical reforms, which cannot fail to produce the most happy results.

The China news is in no way important. There are still vague rumours afloat as to the unwillingness of the Court of Peking to receive an English Ambassador; but if Mr. Bruce has anything of the firmness characteristic of his distinguished brother, it is not likely that he will pay much attention to the remonstrances or cajolings of the mandarins. A Ministerial crisis is said to have occurred at Peking, which ended in the Ministry "going out," in the metaphorical sense of the phrase—losing their heads as well as their places.

The telegraphic line from Suez to Aden was completed on the 28th of last month; but it is a disgrace to this country that as yet no national line has been even commenced between England and Egypt.

We take leave to direct the attention of our readers to a memorial to Lord Stanley which appears in another part of this paper, on the subject of an obvious act of injustice towards a portion of the Addiscombe cadets. We imagine, however, that his lordship will instantly take steps to correct the oversight.

We may also mention that Messrs. Allen have published an exact reprint of the "Field Exercises and Evolutions of Infantry," lately issued by her Majesty's command. This pocket edition, which is sanctioned by the authorities, contains all the plates given in the larger edition, and is both cheaper and more convenient.

BENGAL.

INDIAN FINANCE.

We were beginning to think that the Government of India at Calcutta, having achieved the coup de main of the New Tariff, and opened its 5½ per cent. loan, had exhausted its energies in the cause of financial amelioration, and that it had sat down to see the stream of debt flow past broad and deep,—

"Rusticus expectat dum defluat amnis."

We find, however, that it is beginning to talk about retrenchment, and to threaten the future holders of all civil appointments with reductions of salary. It says:—

"Mr. Ricketts' reports on civil salaries being now under the consideration of His Excellency the Governor General in Council, it is hereby notified that, in the case of all civil appointments made after the date of this notification, the salaries of such appointments will be held to be subjected to such reductions as may be determined upon by the Government of India provisionally, and permanently to such reductions as shall be ordered by the Secretary of State for India."

Mr. Ricketts' reports have been long in preparation, and they come before the Government more opportunely than it could have been expected they would when the inquiries on which they are founded were commenced some years ago. No doubt they recommend some clipplings, but we cannot suppose that the shears will be very closely applied in this quarter. The smallest contributions must be thankfully received in these times of need, but we do not hope that the reductions on civil salaries will do much towards equalising the revenue and expenditure of the State. Indeed, it is only when we think of the salaries thought sufficient for educated English gentlemen in the Uncovenanted Service that we see a possibility of any large reductions consistent with policy and justice. The Government of India itself admits, in its despatch to Lord Stanley of the 5th February last, that no large reductions can be looked for in civil salaries and establishments. By the way, we believe Mr. Ricketts' reports include the salaries of the uncovenanted as well as those of the covenanted, and of military officers in civil employ; the amount of any possible reductions here, however, must be very trifling.

The ruling authorities at Calcutta naturally adopt the readiest and easiest means of raising money first. The Customs were so convenient that the temptation was irresistible; and a loan is, of course, a very simple matter to open. It is easy, too, to talk about retrenchments, or even to make them when talk will no longer serve. It is time, however, that the Government of India should be addressing itself to the far more important question of a system of taxation that shall really tend to adjust the balance of income and expenditure. We may mention here that, from the despatch cited above, we learn that the new Customs law was the contrivance of the Calcutta authorities alone, though it is true that Lord Stanley, in a brief postscript to his reply to an earlier despatch, acknowledges the receipt of the one announcing the intention to adopt the measure, and says that her Majesty's Government were glad to see that the Indian Government was "considering the practicability of introducing new measures of taxation."

On this subject the Government in India expresses itself as follows:—

"Our only effectual resource, besides raising money by loan, appears to be the introduction of fresh taxation. We have no doubt that a new tariff might be made the means of securing an additional receipt from customs throughout India, without being felt as a material restriction upon any important branch of commerce. We are also satisfied that some additional revenue might be obtained from the enforcement of a stamp tax in the Presidency towns; and, as we believe that these taxes are less open to objection than any others which could be devised, and which would give us early assistance, we have resolved to take measures at once for their introduction."

"We also believe that an important addition to the revenue may eventually be obtained from a tax on native-grown tobacco, and we have called upon the local governments for their opinions in regard to levying a Succession-tax upon real and personal property. But this last is a question which will need to be very carefully considered before it can be safely made a subject of legislation."

The Government, it will be seen, had resolved on the New Tariff and the Presidency Stamp Duty, both of which would chiefly affect the European community. But it "funked" the succession tax, which would fall chiefly on the wealthy natives, and it sought delay in consulting the local governments on the subject. Indeed, it says the question will need to be very carefully considered before it can be safely made a subject of legislation. What is the danger apprehended? The discontent of those who will have to pay the tax? That is a matter of course, and not to be regarded for a moment; the Government thought not of the discontent of the European community when it imposed the new tariff. Is the fear that the measure might produce a rebellion? If so the fear is an idle one, we think. There will be no more "rebellions" in India for a long time to come on the subject of taxation or any other. Lord Stanley says of the supposed difficulty or impossibility of fresh taxation in India—"It has often been asserted that the imposition of new taxes, a task of difficulty in any country, is impracticable in India, where the revenue is principally derived from the land. Nevertheless, the exigencies of the present time are so emergent, that I wish the subject to receive your mature consideration. It is manifestly ruinous to continue a system of loans to meet the general expenditure of the State."

Even this does not seem to have incited the Indian Government to brave the visionary dangers of the succession tax; and we fear that its reference to the local governments will end, as councils of war are said always to do, in shunning the contest.

We shall probably soon hear more of the New Stamp Duty if it is to be levied only in the Presidency towns, as seems to be intimated. It will there fall chiefly on the Europeans, the victims of the new tariff, and there is no question about the safety of taxing them. We see no reason why it should not be universal, or at all events levied in all large towns. The stamps might be as easily distributed and accounted for as those of the Post-office.—Bombay Gazette.

REWAH.

There are no less than six grand cataracts in this hilly country. The grandest of all is at the village of Chachye. Its height is 450 feet. Three steps are cut out in the solid rock for visitors to descend to the base. Its depth is great, and the water expands as it reaches the basin into which it falls. From Rewah Dak Bungalow to Chachye is sixteen miles north-westward, on the road down to Allahabad, via the Sahaged Pass. The second cataract is at the village of Keotee, near the other one. It is formed by two rivers, the larger of which is the Mohana river. They unite only where they fall over a great precipice. The perpendicular height of this fall is not less than 400 feet. A stone thrown into it takes five seconds to reach the bottom, and the basin formed is about three stones' throw across. During the rainy season the effects of both these falls are overpowering. Though there is not a very great quantity of water during the months of April, May, and June, they are still not insignificant sights to behold; and the waters, as they fall down during the summer season, long before they reach the bottom lose their form, and roll down the hills like clouds of smoke. The third fall is at the village of Bamnee, twenty miles north-westward of the Dak Bungalow, and is similar to the second one. The fourth and fifth are at Huttah and Bowtee, seven miles westward of Mowgunj. The former is nearly as large as the fall at Chachye, and the latter about the size of the one at Keotee. The sixth is about a mile south of the Dak Bungalow at Gograh. It falls down from the rocky bed of the river Behar. Its depth is exceedingly great, and the sound of this fall is heard at a considerable distance during the rainy season. The fall of the water does not lose its form during that season of the year, and it is a grand sight. On the opposite side, near the edge of it, is a water-mill to grind corn. In the early part of 1833, Lord William Cavendish Bentinck, the then Governor General of India, with his secretary, the late Sir W. H. Macnaghten, while on a flying visit to his highness the Maharajah of Rewah, went over to Chachye and Keotee, to see the grandeur of the first two cataracts, with which they were highly gratified. The Hindoos at Rewah, which is ninety miles southward of Allahabad across the Jumna, have a foolish idea that the fort of Baundogher, on the summit of a chain of hills four days' march southward of Rewah town, was actually built by a demon in one night; and that it is so large and strong, that all the shot and shell of the English Government would be as harmless against it as chaff is before the wind. The whole population of Rewah are impressed with this idea, and it is difficult to persuade them of its absurdity. This country is full of mines of coal, copper, and lead, and marble quarries of the richest description; and sixteen mountain rivers contribute to its fertility. The present Maharajah of the Rewah house, twenty-nine years of age, understands English, and is liberal to the English. Before the rebellion numerous English resorted thither to see the beauties of nature, and the grand waterfalls of Keotee and Chachye alluded to above.

I might as well tell you of the "Hill of Diamonds," which I passed through when making my exit from the Bundelkand Rajwarra. In Punnah, which is three days' journey from the station of Bandah in the territory of Rajah Myheeput Singh Bahadur, there is a hill at the south-eastward of the town on the Cuckrytee-road, called the "Hill of Diamonds," which is said to contain beds of large-sized diamonds, where his highness and his ancestors have prohibited any person from digging in search of them, from a superstitious idea that if any one were to dig there the people would all vanish from the country. These diamond mines extend over a surface of twenty-four square miles, and four kinds are found. Native adventurers annually visit them from Lucknow, Cawnpore, Benares, and Mirzapore, and the stones are classified as follows:—

- 1st. The Bansputtee, or the white sort, one carat weight, is valued there at 50 Bundelkand rupees, equal to Co.'s Rs. 38-8-0.
- 2nd. The Motechoor, one carat weight, is worth 38 Bundelkand rupees, equal to Co.'s Rs. 26-4-0.
- 3rd. The Cullooa, with a dark-brown shade, valued at 16 Bundelkand rupees a carat, or Co.'s Rs. 14.
- 4th. The Gheea diamonds, value unknown.

The diamonds are found in ochreous yellow earth under rocks of grit stones, and also detached in the torrents of the hills during the months of July, August, and September. They are of great brilliancy and first water. In 1854 a German went there, and was hospitably received, and accommodated in a bungalow near a large lake. The country is hilly and picturesque, and abounds with all sorts of game. Tigers are as numerous as in any other part of India. Iron ore also abounds, but no attempt is made to smelt it.—Correspondent of the Lucknow Herald.

THE DEPARTURE OF H.M.'s 78th highlanders and 81st regiment of foot for England has been postponed for the present until further orders, in consequence of a telegram, from the Supreme Government.

MISCELLANEOUS.

GOLD CURRENCY FOR INDIA.—We hear that the Chamber of Commerce is proposing to address the Government, in recommendation of a gold coinage for India. That gold would be convenient as a remittance for all those who have large transactions is not to be doubted, but it certainly would not be available by those who have to make an infinitude of small payments, such as planters. It would not be applicable to the payment of troops, nor to the large establishments of servants, &c., kept by public officers. Even if a man's monthly pay amounted exactly to one or two of the new coins, they would be useless to him till they could be converted into silver. There cannot be a double standard; it is as impossible for a Government to fix the relative value of two metals as to compel people to take debased coin at the same rate as if it were metal of full weight and fineness. If gold were to be substituted for our present currency, an agio or batta would soon be established proportionate to the demand for silver, just as there is now in all the markets of the interior upon bank notes. If the remitter of gold paid his money in a single bag to the country merchant, he would be charged with this in the price of the goods he purchased; for the native merchant who has to collect the produce from a thousand growers must settle with them in silver. If the Government took gold in all revenue payments to the Mofussil treasuries, they would find it easier to send to Calcutta than silver, but when it arrived here they could not pay it to the public creditor, with whom their contract is in silver. In short, we do not see any way in which gold could be advantageously substituted for silver in a country where there are millions of small payments for one large one. What might be done for public convenience would be to issue a gold currency at a certain fixed rate as compared to silver, publicly announcing that the Government reserved the right to alter the proportion at certain intervals, for instance, every three or six months, should the prices of the precious metals have fluctuated in the mean time. If one of these metals were rated too high the demand for the other would show the necessity of a change. But it must never be lost sight of in India, that all large money transactions in the interior centre in Government, and that unless a coinage is receivable at the treasuries it will never have a general circulation. On the whole, we are of opinion that a properly devised issue of treasury bills, not exactly like those lately blundered over, for which this Government got a well deserved reprimand from the Home authorities, would answer the purpose of making large payments better than a gold currency, to say nothing of its greater safety as a remittance. We have heard as a reason for the proposal, that the constant demand for silver from Europe in preference to gold being occasioned by its known value as a currency, the substitution of a gold coinage would admit of the more valuable metal being preferred for remittances from England. It is obvious that the change would not affect the China market, which would require the same quantity of silver as it now does. But whatever might be the consequences, we can see no better reason for any Government interference with the trade in silver than in that in copper or iron. If a gold currency is demanded, it must be for the requirements of the country itself, without the slightest reference to foreign exchanges; and, as we have already remarked, a Government paper currency would, on the whole, be far more convenient, much cheaper, and much safer.—Englishman.

ASSISTANT SURGEONS.—We (Englishman) know of no class of officials in this country who have more reason to be dissatisfied with their position than the road-side doctors, as the assistant-surgeons in medical charge of the bullock-train resting stations are familiarly styled. Generally staff assistant surgeons of her Majesty's service, they are suddenly transported from the agremens of civilised life in England to the discomfort of a halting station, where they are completely cut off from all society save that of the officers passing up with the troops. Without any knowledge of the language or habits of the country they are thrown on their own resources, and in a country where a good house may be fairly named as essential to the preservation of health, a paternal Government supplies them with a tent, in which they are doomed to pass hot weather and rainy, on a remuneration the lowest given to the grade to which they belong. We certainly think that Government should provide quarters for those officers adjoining the resting-houses, which could be effected at a very trifling cost. Bungalows similar to those occupied by the assistant superintendents of supplies would not tax the resources of Government severely. In fact, the abolition of the useless appointment of commandant of the Grand Trunk Road would more than supply the required funds.

JEILALABAD (SHAHJEHANPORE DISTRICT), April 12.—It is curious how these stories are circulated amongst the natives, how indefatigable the evil-minded are, and how credulous the whole people are; continued disappointment neither damps their credulity, nor stays their appetite for a new edition. The last story in the Doab is, that two powerful dogs are roaming through the country, and will devour everything before them. I heard this at a place near the Ganges one day, with a commentary that the two dogs meant Russia and Persia, who were coming to invade India and swallow up everything. Yesterday a report gained ground that at Cool in the middle of the night a man paraded the town beating a tom-tom, and shouting the intelligence of the two dogs. The Kotwal reported the fact next day to the magistrate. I do not believe the tom-tom, or that the Kotwal reported, but this is the way these stories are circulated. Neither is this new; I could call up fifty stories which flew like lightning through the country for many years past, always, however, bearing something of the colour of the politics of the time. Years ago, when the arrangements were making for the increase of courts presided over by natives, the report was, that all the native judges and high officers were to be obliged to wear an English uniform; when the coin was altered in 1854, that leather money was going to be introduced. An Avatar appeared in Poona about the time of the annexation of Satara, who was to produce an army from underground, like that prophesied by Thomas the Rhymer, in Scotland.—Englishman.

OUDE.—According to the Lucknow Herald, the Chief Commissioner is showing energy in disarming his districts. The Talookdar of Khoord repeatedly denied that he had any arms in his possession, and, like other landholders, had signed a document, binding himself to the penalty of forfeiture of his estates if any were found with him. On information being given, some cannon were discovered in a nullah near his fort, situated in jungle. His estates were at once confiscated. Informers in such cases as this receive Rs. 2,000. Another talookdar had half his estates confiscated.

MILITARY ALLOWANCES.—Under Government resolution of the 8th January last it was ruled that the military allowances of retired officers in civil employ shall be merged in their civil allowances. The Governor General in Council has, however, been pleased to reconsider the orders, in "cases in which the salary of the appointment in which the invalid officer may be acting is less than his military allowances; these will always be determined on their merits, on the understanding that the remuneration to be paid to an invalid officer employed in the civil department, in addition to his military allowances, shall never exceed one-third of the salary of the office to which he may be nominated."

THE MAHARAJAH JUNG BAHADOOR is more engaged in hunting the wild beasts of the Terai than in looking after the rebels. We see from the Urdu Guide that on one occasion he brought in five wild elephants alive, and on another four panthers and three leopards, four of which, seven feet and a half long from head to tail, he shot himself.

MILITARY TRAIN.—In a Calcutta Gazette Extraordinary the Governor General remarks upon the short but brilliant career of the second battalion military train, which is under orders for immediate embarkation for England. Upon arriving at the Presidency the train was at once converted into a cavalry force, and sent into the field under the late Sir Henry Havelock. It served throughout the relief and final capture of Lucknow, in the operations about Azimgurh, and in the harassing campaign of Shahabad. The Governor General expresses his best wishes for the future honour and prosperity of the battalion, and orders a salute to be fired from the guns of Fort William on the departure of the corps.

THE 50TH N.I.—From a correspondent we learn that the last scene of the Punjab mutiny drama was acted on the 16th of April, in returning to the 50th N.I. their arms. They have been weeded of all bad men, and a large portion sent on leave. About 400 appeared on parade. This regiment never swerved for a moment during the mutiny. Brigadier Nicholson took away their arms just before the battle of Trimmoos, as a precaution, and when restored they were covered with the rust of two years. There is now, it is said, a fair force of Hindoostanees in the Punjab, all ready for work to keep the Sikhs down. All this may be quite true, but in the event of a second revolt the two races are more likely to fraternise. The empire will never be safe so long as our native army, since we must have one, knows the use of firearms. For the new era in the Punjab, as elsewhere, there is a new personnel. The exodus of the old hands on furlough is very great—Mr. Macleod, Col. Edwardes, Brigadiers Corbett and Sisted, and Majors Beecher and Browne, are all on leave.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—We (New Times) understand that a lady (Mrs. Huntley, we believe) was stopped and robbed just as she was entering Umballa by dawk, about the 14th of April. Her carriage was attacked by eleven men, who tied her hands and feet, and stopped her mouth, and carried off everything she had, even to the rings on her fingers; altogether about £2,000 worth of property. A pearl necklace alone was worth Rs. 2,000. We suspect that these highway robbers must have followed the carriage from Juggadree, which has always been a nest of thieves. Once an example was made of this village by Mr. Craigie, when magistrate of Saharunpore. It would, perhaps, be advisable to repeat the punishment, in order to stop their depredations for the future.

COST OF GUNBOATS.—A correspondent of the Englishman says the entire cost of the Government gunboats on the Ganges, Soane, and Gogra for the past two years amounts to Rs. 235,000. Their crews have been the means of killing in all 500 rebels, at a cost consequently of Rs. 470 a-head. The writer attributes their uselessness to the fact that their commanders are not allowed to move about to the necessary points of attack or defence, but are subject to the orders of the magistrates. With the exception of the Benares, which had full power on the Ganges from Buxar to Ghazepore, the gunboats have only done trifling service.

WASTE LANDS IN OUDE.—The Lucknow Herald gives the rules applicable to leases of waste lands in Oude. During the settlement the lands will be exempt from revenue; on its expiration the cultivated portion of the land will be assessed at half the rates prevailing in the adjoining villages, that is at four annas in the rupee on the rental. One-third as much waste will then be added, free of assessment, to the cultivated portion, so as to form a compact estate. Applications for less than fifty-three acres will not be received, and clearings of less extent than twenty-four acres will not entitle the occupants to engage at next settlement. The entire allotment will be liable to resumption, if one-third the extent applied for is not cleared and cultivated by the close of the second year.

the past year, owing to a special appeal to the public. The receipts amounted to Rs. 62,265, and the expenditure to Rs. 59,926. The average amount of relief given is Rs. 3,000 a-month, two-thirds of the recipients being Roman Catholics. The Committee expect a deficit during the year, and call for increased liberality on the part of the public.

MR. VICTOR.—According to the Phoenix, the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal has authorised a donation of Rs. 1,000 to a Mr. Victor, a railway employee, for his services at Arrah, where he assisted Mr. Boyle in putting his house in a state of defence during the rebellion, and also for the general assistance which he afforded to the magistrate of Shahabad during the past year. Mr. Victor is an East Indian.

A POISONING CASE, as yet unexplained, has caused a good deal of talk and conjecture in Allahabad. It appears that a Mr. and Mrs. Webb and the man's mother lived in the gaol barracks. The old lady not approving of her daughter-in-law's conduct, shifted her quarters to another part of the same building. Although living apart she still continued the time-honoured custom of preparing the morning coffee and sending it round as before. A day or two ago she made it as usual, and all partook of it. The daughter-in-law was soon after taken ill, then the husband, who had proceeded to office, also three melchers who had emptied the coffee pot, lastly, the old lady herself. Information was given, and a magistrate at once attended to inquire into the affair. The old lady acknowledged to having made the coffee, and said the servants had nothing to do with it. Dr. Irving, who called shortly after, found enough arsenic in the coffee pot to kill a dozen people. As it is, the whole thing has rather a disagreeable appearance, and will probably be investigated by the Supreme Court.

OPIUM EATING IN COTTAYAM.

It is often the case that in looking around us for existing evils we are too apt to pass over those which lie nearer to our own door, concerning which we ought to have a more intimate knowledge. The heading of this article will speak for itself. Many of our local readers will probably exclaim, "Opium eating! I never heard of it. I don't believe it!" It is, nevertheless, true, and the practice prevails to a degree which few can credit, and amongst a community least suspected.

We have little doubt that the habit is indulged in to a pernicious extent all along this Coast, but our present information as to its use and effect, so far as Cochin is concerned, is not so complete as to enable us to treat on that point just now, but we may do so at a future opportunity. We shall, however, refer to Cottayam, the centre of a Christian mission, and the nucleus of a large Christian population, where, we lament to say, the prevalence of the habit is quite fearful. The drug is habitually consumed by all castes, with the exception of slaves and Brahmins, and by both sexes; boys commencing an initiation in the practice, destructive alike of mental and physical powers, at the early age of fourteen. They generally begin with doses of from 1 to 2 fanams' weight a day, and as the effects gradually diminish by use, the quantity is increased till it amounts to 10 fanams' weight, equal to 56 grains. As the use of the stimulant grows frequent, the person is less able to resist its seductive influence, and it is a fact that, when the habit has become confirmed, it is almost impossible to break it off. From very particular inquiries we find that no less than 60 cwts. of the drug are consumed in the district of Cottayam alone during the year; which at the very lowest estimate of Rs. 504 per cwt., or say Rs. 4½ per lb., amounts to Rs. 30,240, an enormous sum, considering the population of this small district and the circumstances in life of the inhabitants. The drug is brought from Saala Vaala Talook, in the Bangalore Division, of two qualities; the ordinary sort, called in Malayalam Burnee, sold at Rs. 4½ per lb.; and the Yeshery, or superior sort, worth Rs. 14 per lb., which is only accessible to the wealthier classes. Of the entire quantity consumed annually, the proportion among the several divisions of the district, as nearly as we can ascertain, stands thus:—

Pulla Meenatchy .. ..	three-quarters.
Cottayam .. ..	one-eighth.
Pullaugadda .. ..	one-eighth.

The above statistics are sufficient to show that the use of opium is not resorted to in moderation, in exceptional cases, as a sedative to allay the sufferings caused by some painful disease; nor yet as a restorative under the fatigues of labour; but that the habit has been induced at an early age from the force of custom and example, and persevered in, in after life, through all its gradations, by purely morbid influences, which grow more and more irresistible. We have strong reason to believe that the consumption is rapidly increasing and growing more universal, while the degeneration of the people is keeping pace with the progress of the baneful indulgence. The moral evils, we fear, are already becoming sensibly felt in the enervated habits of the people, and though, perhaps, the deterioration of the physical frame, and the acceleration of mortality, inseparable from the habitual and excessive use of the drug, may not be very marked in the present generation, we cannot shut our eyes to the fact that those effects must in the next manifest themselves to a degree which all friends of humanity must shudder to contemplate.

There is another side of the question which we cannot forbear to notice. Considering the high price of the drug, still more enhanced to the consumer by almost prohibitive duties, the large quantity consumed in the place cannot possibly be introduced in the course of legitimate trade, and disposed of among a small population notoriously limited in their means. We are in possession of unquestionable evidence that the contraband traffic is in active operation; hence, independent of its own intrinsic evils, the use, or rather the abuse, of opium has indirectly engendered another source of crime and immorality.—Cochin Courier.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE TELEGRAPH LINE from Hyderabad to Nagpore is finished. The Nagpore office was opened on the 12th of April.

THE MOPLAHS OF MALABAR.—The Moplahs of Malabar were intelligent, shrewd, successful men of business, and could they only be restrained from a terrible and destructive fanaticism would stand high among the natives of India. But, strange to say, they are criminals and murderers without stint, in the carrying out of certain tenets of their religion. Prior to 1841, the attention of the British authorities had only been called to single criminals here and there among them, but since that time bands of these men have repeatedly attacked and pillaged both the houses and temples of Hindoos, murdering men, women, and even children of six months. They appear to have taken a vow of extermination against all Hindoos. From 1841 to 1852 these crimes had gone on increasing in frequency and magnitude. Repeatedly had the military been called out to defend Hindoo villages against their bloody raids. In 1852 the Government found it necessary to institute an inquiry into the matter, and passed a law for the suppression of these crimes. The inquiry developed such facts as the following, viz., in 1849 a company of Moplahs attacked a temple in a Hindoo village. The Nuwab sent his troops against them, but such was their ferocity that they successfully defended themselves for four days and beat off all assailants. European troops were then sent against them; drove them from one pagoda to another, and after a short and sharp contest put them all to the sword. On another occasion they attacked a landholder in his principal house, and dragged him out and cut his body to pieces in presence of his tenants. In 1852 two hundred Moplahs butchered fifteen Hindoos, including women and children. In another locality they assailed the premises of a large landed proprietor, and during four days killed all they could find. The attention of Government was called to sixteen cases of Moplah outrage in 1852. In one of these forty fell victims, and sixteen more were wounded. Nineteen of the murdered men were Brahmins. During that year six Hindoo temples were destroyed, and six more desecrated and injured. In no one case had a Moplah suffered injury at their hands. An unmitigated fanaticism was the only discoverable motive for it all, as in every case the slayer was a Moplah, and the slain a Hindoo. The only alleged reason for their horrible cruelties was that the inflicter of them might be sure to gain paradise surer than all if he could but die at the hand of an infidel or in the act of killing a Hindoo. No Moplah will ever inform against another Moplah; and this and other circumstances rendered special legislation necessary to check them, and bring them to punishment. Accordingly, Act XXIII. of 1854 was passed by the Court to meet their case. Then, when one of these self-styled (high caste) fanatics was taken and condemned to death for murder, his body was burned in the gaol yard. They were so eager to fall by the hands of an infidel that many had to be shot down. A fine was now imposed on Moplah villages where any one of these man-slayers had taken refuge, or out of which he had come, and on being collected, was paid over to injured Hindoos. Since the passing of that Act only one Moplah outrage has been perpetrated. That, as is well known, fell upon a British magistrate, who, in the fulfilment of his duty, had dared to lay hands upon one of their chief priests, a leader in crime, and a very devil of fanatical destructiveness. That collector and magistrate, Mr. Connolly, was well known to a wide circle of admiring friends, who had at least this consolation in parting with so dear a friend, that death could come to no man better prepared to meet it.—Englishman.

CODE OF ETIQUETTE.—Sir Charles Trevelyan has introduced into the Madras Presidency the rules which regulate honorary distinctions for Hindoos and Mahomedans in Bengal, according to the scheme prepared more than twenty-five years ago for Lord Wm. Bentinck.—The titles were—For Hindoos—Rai, Rao, Bahadur, Rai or Rao Bahadur, Raja, Raja Bahadur, Maharaja. For Mahomedans—Khan, Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, Bahadur Jung, Nawab. It was at the same time arranged that all letters from the Governor General to natives of India should be written in the English language, according to certain formulas suited to the rank of the parties,—such as “My Friend,” “My dear Friend,” &c., and ending with “Your sincere Friend,” and so on. These titles are founded on those which it was usual to grant at the Court of Delhi, and are quite in accordance with native usages and feelings.

THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS is, if rumour speaks truly, about to undergo numerous and important changes. The Athenæum indicates, on what we believe to be very good authority, the nature of these changes. “It is said,” remarks our contemporary, “that his Excellency the Governor has decided on sending the superintending engineers out to reside and itinerate in their respective circles, the more effectually to control and superintend the officers and subordinates attached to each. Their present designation, it is also reported, will be changed for that of chief engineers of the second class, but they will continue to receive their present staff allowance of Rs. 1,000, together with the pay and allowance of their military rank. The Chief Engineer is to be further styled Secretary to Government in the Department of Public Works. He will have his location in the Government Office, and will not only exercise a general control over the department, but likewise be in direct communication with Government, as the other officers of the Secretariate now are. It is understood that a separate office of Public Works expenditure and audit will be organised, and that the central office will then cease to exist; part of its different members being assigned to the Chief Engineers of Circles, part to the audit and account branch, and the remainder of the establishment to the new secretary in the department under review.”

ABOLITION OF EXTRA APPOINTMENTS.—Sir Patrick Grant, the commander-in-chief, has recommended to Government the abolition of all extra appointments created within the last two years; such, for example, as the assistant-adjudant-generalship of the Queen's forces in this presidency, and the second aide-de-camp to the lieutenant-general commanding the Mysore division. His Excellency is likewise of opinion that the appointments of deputy-quartermaster-general, Queen's forces, which cost the Government Rs. 1457-7-9 per mensem, should be cancelled, as the duty this functionary has to perform may be easily and conveniently undertaken by the department of the quartermaster-general of the army.

FORT ST. GEORGE.—The dilapidated condition of Fort St. George seems to have been one of the first things that attracted the attention of Sir Charles Trevelyan on arriving at Madras. On inquiry he found that the late Government of Lord Harris had determined to pull the Fort down and to rebuild another “on the same antiquated model,” at an expense of forty-six thousand pounds. His excellency lost no time in setting aside this absurd resolve. He called upon Col. Arthur Cotton and the Commander in Chief for their opinions, and the result is that a portion of the screen of the Fort, which intercepts the sea breeze from the barracks (in consequence of which they are most unhealthy) is to be pulled down, and the sea face of the fort is to consist of solid earthen embankments, capable of sustaining the weight of any amount of metal, 300 of Armstrong's rifled cannon are to be written for, 160 of which will be mounted in Fort St. George, the remainder to be placed in position at various points along the coast, so as to protect “this portion of the Queen's dominions from insult and injury.” Major Horsley, of the Madras engineers, has been appointed to superintend the works, and Captain Rawlins has been appointed assistant.

SALUTES TO MAJOR GENERALS.—It is stated in the accounts submitted to Parliament by the late East India Company that eighteen thousand pounds were annually expended in India on “salutes.” That sum, however, relates to a period before Major-generals became, as they are now, almost as numerous as blackberries, and consequently must be much below what has lately been expended. Sir Charles Trevelyan has determined that this waste of gunpowder shall no longer be permitted. Accordingly, he has ordered that distinguished visitors to Madras shall only have one salute on landing and not, as heretofore, one on arrival in the roads and another on landing. The poor Major-generals, unless they happen to be on duty, are to have no more gunpowder blazed away in honour of their arrivals or departures; and as their normal condition is seemingly that of unattached members of the military world, this decision condemns them to arrive and depart in silence.—Athenæum.

THE ANAMALAY HILLS.—Our (Athenæum) readers will remember that an expedition to explore the Anamalai hills, organized by the conservator of forests and the Inspector general of hospitals, started from Ootacamund on the 9th of October last. The weather was unpropitious, and the travellers were not able to ascend as high as they contemplated; but we understand that Dr. Cleg-horn's enterprising assistant (Captain Beddome) has since succeeded in reaching the highest point of the range, which we learn exceeds 9000 feet above the sea. The expedition explored regions only once before visited by Europeans, Captain Michael, of the Madras army, accompanied by Mr. Willoughby Jackson, of the Bengal Civil Service, having on a former occasion penetrated these elevated regions. We understand that the official accounts of the expedition report the existence of abundance of useful timber, and large tracts of land suitable for coffee planting, at present entirely occupied by wild beasts. Major Hamilton, 21st regiment N.I., accompanied the expedition; and we have just had an opportunity of examining a series of beautiful drawings by this officer, intended to illustrate the reports of the expedition. We understand that these views are as remarkable for their fidelity, as they certainly are for the beauty and delicacy of their execution. We hope to see them lithographed, that the public may have a glimpse at these hitherto unknown regions, destined we hope, ere long, to be the scene of successful enterprise to our countrymen.

A SEVERE STORM.—The Madras Athenæum reports the occurrence of another of those hurricanes, attended by great loss of life and property, which so frequently visit the Coromandel coast in the months of April and May. Last year, as may probably be recollected, many European-built ships and innumerable native craft were stranded on the Madras beach in consequence of one of these storms; this year Negapatam in the Tanjore district, and on the southern coast of this Presidency, has been the scene of disaster. Strong gales and heavy rains commenced on the 23rd of April, and continued up to the 26th. During that time not less than from fifteen to twenty inches of rain fell; the rivers were in full fresh, embankments were carried away, and trees and houses were blown down in all parts of the district. On the coast the hurricane raged with great violence, as the numerous wrecks between Negapatam and Calimere sufficiently show. Upwards of thirty-four vessels, chiefly square-rigged ones, have been destroyed. It is believed by the collector that all the crews have been saved. In one case, however, there has been a most lamentable loss of life. During the night of the hurricane, the British barque Monarch, which had sailed from Negapatam for Penang, with 200 coolies on board, came in collision with the British ship Ballyneich, bound from Calcutta to Glasgow. Both ships were so disabled that they immediately came ashore about eight miles to the south of Negapatam. The crews of each vessel managed to save themselves, but the unfortunate coolies, it is stated by the collector of the district, were nearly all drowned.

SELECTION OF COMMANDING OFFICERS.—It is notified in the Gazette that the Commander in Chief has been authorised to appoint, at his discretion, majors to the command of regiments other than their own. This is stated to be a carrying out of the selection principle.

REDUCTION OF THE MADRAS ARMY.—Sir Patrick Grant has stated that, in his opinion, the strength of the army may be reduced, when the police, now being organized in the Mofussil, is in thorough working order, and able to undertake the numerous heavy civil duties, such as treasure and prisoner escort parties which now devolve upon the native army. He thinks that the establishments of regiments of native infantry may be reduced prospectively (by being gradually absorbed) from 60 havildars, 60 naiks, and 1,000 privates, to 50 havildars, 50 naiks, and 800 privates. His excellency has accordingly issued orders to cease recruiting, and all recruiting parties are to be recalled to regimental head quarters; eligible recruit boys may, however, as heretofore, be transferred to the ranks agreeably to existing regulations. If this reduction is carried out, the number of men whose services will ultimately be dispensed with will amount to upwards of twelve thousand.

SANATORIUM.—We (Daily Times) are glad to learn that Government have sanctioned an experiment to test the capabilities of Galee Purvattun, as a sanatorium for troops serving in the Northern Division. Our readers will remember that the Commander in Chief, while at Waltair, appointed a committee, of which the Inspector General of Hospitals was president, to search for a spot suitable for a sanatorium in the neighbourhood. Acting on the advice of Mr. Fane, of the Civil Service, the party proceeded direct to Galee Purvattun, and there selected the position about to be the scene of this interesting experiment. The highest elevation attained by Dr. McPherson and his party exceeded 5,300 feet; at this elevation, unfortunately, no plateau suitable for the purpose was found, but at the height of 5100 feet above the sea table land of sufficient extent for a wing of a regiment, with an abundant water supply within easy reach, was discovered. Galee Purvattun is only about fifty miles from Waltair by the road, and forty, as the crow flies, from the sea, and is supposed to be the highest point of the Vindehyan mountains, a range extending between 22° and 24° N. latitude, and 74° and 80° E. longitude, separating the basins of the Ganges and Nerbudda rivers.

CINDERELLA'S GOOD GENIUS.—We (Madras Times) learn with great pleasure that the financial leading strings in which Madras has been so long kept are shortly to be loosened considerably. A recent letter from Lord Stanley to the Governor General makes provision, we are told, for the expenditure of a certain amount—exact figure we are not aware of—by the Madras Government annually, without control or reference. This sum will be distributed according to budgets sent in from the several departments at the beginning of each financial year. For amounts in excess of the authorised sum it will be necessary to go up to Calcutta. A good day is clearly dawning for Cinderella.

REDUCTION OF SALARIES.—The following telegram from Calcutta, dated Saturday 30th April, is published in Tuesday's Gazette (May 3rd). We shall notice it hereafter:—"The following notification has this day been published in the Calcutta Gazette extraordinary. Mr. Rickett's report on civil salaries being now under the consideration of H.E. the Governor General in Council, it is hereby notified that in the case of all civil appointments made after the date of this notification, the salaries of such appointments will be held to be subject to such reduction as may be determined upon by the Government of India provisionally, and permanently to such reductions as shall be ordered by the Secretary of State for India. By order of the Hon. the Governor in Council.—T. PYCROFT, Chief Secretary."

ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—The Madras Athenaeum notices the establishment of an Engineering College at Madras, on the basis of the Roorkee College.

CONSIDERATE.—The Madras papers announce that Sir Charles Trevelyan has resolved to throw open the grounds of Guindy Park to the public every Monday afternoon, when the Artillery band will play.

THE PAST AND PRESENT OF ADEN.

There are probably few places on earth in which Anglo-Indians are more interested than in Aden. The extraordinary aspect of the place, a colossal cinder projecting into the sea, leaves an indelible impression on the minds even of the most careless. Men who pass Malta unheeded, and leave Cairo with no other notion of the city than the one obtained from Shepherd's doorstep, will still risk a sunstroke to examine Aden. Usually they return from the expedition with ideas slightly less definite than they obtained at first. The place, according to all Overland travellers, is a mere cinder, with a cantonment on the top, with no town, no trade, and no population. Not one in a hundred believes that it was for three thousand years the seat of a mighty city. It is, according to Captain Playfair, a fact that the Lord of Yemen whose capital was at Aden, took Samarcand, crossed Turkistan, invaded China, and left a colony of 30,000 Arabs, a feat which, were it only true, we might pronounce unparalleled. Not one in a thousand would listen to its present statistics without an expression of incredulity. We ourselves, who have explored the place till we are as familiar with the valleys as the donkey boys and the dogs, feel it difficult to believe that it contains twenty-five thousand natives and a trade of a million sterling a year. Captain Playfair has performed an acceptable service in hunting up from every corner of some half-dozen literatures all extant notices of Aden. The result is a book, not readable indeed, but full of information, a most valuable addition to the history of the Empire. His narratives, scattered and confused as they at present are, still enable us to collect the past history of the settlement, and explain one of the least intelligible features in our own history. We are always quarrelling at Aden. The cantonment for three years in five is always expecting a siege, or recounting an attack, or speculating whence water is to be obtained, or bemoaning provisions cut off by the way. All this while the nature of the quarrel remains as obscure to civilized men as a Corsican feud, or a London street row. The explanation vouchsafed to the inquisitive seldom amounts to more than "those Arabs are at it again," or some phrase equally lucid and refined. We are grateful therefore to Captain Playfair for the first reasonable account of the motives, appliances, and remedies of this chronic hostility.

Aden is supposed to have been founded, and was, at all events, ruled by the Himyarites, a pagan dynasty, which, after ruling for centuries in Yemen, was at the birth of Christ in rapid decline. These princes, it would seem, covered it with grand buildings, mosques and baths, the relics of which were explored two hundred years ago, and erected the little forts, the ruins of which still crown the hills. Even in A.D. 527 the place was still powerful enough to require and execute the gigantic reservoirs cut in the solid rock, which it has recently tasked our strength only to clean. These reservoirs, fifty in number, will contain, it is believed, thirty million gallons of water—a most valuable supply should an attack from the sea render the new filtering machines inoperative. The place, with the rest of Yemen, was conquered in 525 by the Abyssinians, then, as now, ruled by a Christian dynasty. This dynasty lasted, however, only fifty years, being expelled in 572 by the Persians, who excavated the colossal reservoirs. The Persian satrap, who was almost independent, became one of the earliest followers of Mahomed, and from thenceforward to 1338, Yemen and its port were ruled by native Arabs. As usual, however, the Mussulman despotism destroyed civilization. Dynasty plundered dynasty till the entire province was divided amongst petty chiefs, whose sole bond of union was their love of plundering each other and the world. In 1723 the chief of the Abdali contrived, by a little well managed treachery and a few murders to secure a separate sovereignty, comprising the district of Lahej and Aden. His first care was to ruin the port by unbearable import duties, which drove away all traders, and speedily reduced the city to a village. This village again was sacked ever and anon by a hostile tribe, the Foudthelis, until the inhabitants, reduced to utter destitution, took to piracy. The change of manners saved the last remains of the population. The pirates robbed a pilgrim ship laden with Indian pilgrims, among whom were some native ladies of influence. The Bombay Government demanded immediate reparation for the outrage, and as the trade of the Red Sea was increasing, offered to purchase the Peninsula. The Sultan consented, selves, but also to the countries to which they have gone; and we trust the time is now come when it will be conducted on a larger scale than ever, and when the emigration will comprise a large number of women, and so remove one of the strong objections which have been urged against it. It has often been asserted that respectable Chinese women will never be got to emigrate; but we have not a shadow of doubt but that could easily be managed by properly-qualified parties, and will be managed in time. Already the emigration of women to California is increasing, and though there may be no first, yet a number of second, wives, and decent enough women, go there.

During the last ten years the annual value of imports increased from 13,474,544 to 32,099,226 dollars, and that of exports from 18,212,716 to 49,564,182. The principal increase has been at the port of Shanghai; and Canton, owing to the rebels and the late war, has fallen off a little from what it was ten years ago. The balance of trade was more than seventeen millions of dollars against us in 1858.

Various rumours have been going about of late in regard to the re-establishment at Canton of the old Cohong, or authorised association of merchants, having the exclusive privilege of dealing with foreign traders. By the treaty of Nankin (which is still in force, only the supplemental treaty having been abolished), it was provided that no such privilege should be allowed; and some foreign merchants are naturally indignant to hear that anything of the kind is now in course of being re-established. We cannot learn from any sufficient authority that the Cohong is about to be restored; but there is no doubt that some of the Canton merchants have attempted a combination, in order, they say, to protect themselves from the smuggling Chinese merchants of Hong Kong.

By the mail after this Sir John Bowring intends to leave for England, if relieved by that time, as there is every reason to expect, by the Hon. Mr. Bruce. We understand that his Excellency has two works in preparation, which will be published shortly after his return home; the one being a work on China, for which his long residence here and high official positions must give him great advantages; and the other on the Philippine Islands, to which he paid a recent visit, and regarding which he has collected much information, commercial and other, not accessible to English readers.

Mr. Hulme, the Chief Justice of Hong Kong, leaves this by the outgoing mail, being in very infirm health, after many years service in the colony. His place is to be supplied, pending her Majesty's approval, by Mr. Green, the Acting Attorney General, whose present place is to be filled by Mr. Kingsmill.

Expeditions continue to be sent out occasionally against the pirates of the coast, but there is no confidence in their management. In one recent case the Chinese assert that a village was punished by our gunboats under the direction of Mr. Caldwell, though the only crime it had committed was that a boat detected smuggling salt had been taken there, and fined by the salt monopolists.

Since the despatch of last mail there has been no departures for Great Britain from Canton or Fuh-chau, and from Shanghai there have been two—viz., the Earl of Windsor and Heroes of Alma, the former with 806,100 lbs. tea, and the cargo of the latter has not yet been ascertained. Our total export of tea for the season amounts to 53,701,000 lbs. To the United States the Uncle Toby, from Macao, with 212,800 lbs. tea, and the Indianan, with 20,000 lbs., from Whampoa, where she filled up in part, have been the only departures. The total export amounts to 28,786,200 lbs. Of silk, the Aden took for Southampton 1,332 bales, and the Earl of Windsor 481, making the total for this season, to date, 62,839 bales, and the outgoing steamer Cadiz takes about 1,720 bales. To Marseilles, the exports amount to 7,559 bales, and the Cadiz takes upwards of 300 bales.—Overland China Mail.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST PIRATES.

Calcutta, off Singapore, March 29.

Sir,—Having received information from Mr. Caldwell, the Registrar General at Hong Kong, that a fleet of pirates had assembled near the old haunt at Koolan, I despatched her Majesty's ship Niger, Acting Captain G. T. Colville, and the two gunboats Clown and Janus, on the 11th inst., to endeavour to effect their destruction.

2. The accompanying despatch from Acting Captain Colville, dated the 16th, will show the important service rendered by that gallant and energetic officer, and by the officers therein mentioned.

3. I beg particularly to recommend Commander Colville to their lordships' favourable notice as a most excellent officer, well worthy of promotion, and whose good services I have already brought to their lordships' notice.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your most obedient, humble servant,

M. SEYMOUR, Rear Admiral and Commander in Chief.

The Secretary of the Admiralty, London.

(Enclosure to No. 144, of 1859.)

(Copy.)

Her Majesty's ship Niger, Hong Kong,
March 16, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to lay before you the results of my late cruise after pirates, and to congratulate your excellency on the success of the undertaking.

Acting on information received at Macao, the whole of the 12th inst. was spent in searching for a fleet of piratical vessels cruising in the vicinity of the Tang Rocks, but, failing to discover them, I weighed towards evening and anchored late off Koolan, with the intention of visiting Tsoochoong, under whose batteries a formidable fleet of piratical vessels were known to be lying, the depredators of several valuable cargoes, an owner and master of the captured junks acting as pilots under the able and effective assistance of Mr. Caldwell, registrar general.

Accordingly, at seven o'clock on the morning of the 13th, I proceeded with the boats* (as per margin), in tow of the gun boats Clown and Janus, and after a run of about fourteen miles came within sight of a large flotilla of heavily armed junks and row boats hauled under the protection of what we subsequently discovered to be regular defences, consisting of a water stockade, with a double ditch and high stockaded embankment, armed with thirty-six guns, protecting the whole sea face and flanks of Tsoo-choong.

Directing Lieutenant Wells in the ten-oared cutter to examine a suspicious junk to windward, while the Janus overhauled two others to leeward, I took the remaining boats directly in towards the central force of junks, leaving the Clown to cover our movements, but with peremptory orders to fire only in case the shore batteries opened on the boats.

However, it soon became evident that the enemy were prepared for a determined resistance. The crews of the junks joined the villagers, who, with violent ejaculations and waving white flags, on which the character "Hoong-kin-Wong" (Triad-King), was prominent, invited us on. At the same time a heavy fire was opened on our advance of round and grape.

Forming behind a knoll of land insulated by 500 yards of shallow water from the left extreme of the stockade, leaving the pinnace to cover the landing, and much assisted by the very excellent shell practice of the gun boats, the storming party dashed, waist deep, at the stockade, and receiving a fire of grape, entered the embrasures of an eight-gun battery, bayoneting the defenders who crowded the inner ditch, and appeared paralysed by the vigour of our proceedings. After a short hand-to-hand encounter they retired precipitately; and now was seen the extraordinary sight of sixty blue-jackets and marines chasing fully five hundred armed men through brakes and narrow acclivities for nearly two miles in the rear of the works.

In this movement great numbers of the enemy were killed, and it had the effect of turning the sea defences, thus rendered comparatively harmless.

The storming party were now joined by the men under Lieutenants Blake and Wells, who, by a judicious detour to the right, had materially assisted to the discomfiture of the pirates.

Every house in the town was a magazine, in which large quantities of arms and munitions were stored; I consequently directed the village to be burnt. Eight large piratical junks and eleven fast boats shared a similar fate, their guns having previously been sunk in deep water. The thirty-six guns of the land defences were also destroyed.

Considerable resistance was offered by two of the junks. The boats were repeatedly hulled.

When I bring to your excellency's notice the very large force of men, consisting of at least 1,300 effectively armed, with a necessarily perfect knowledge of locale, and the determination they evinced in opposing our landing, I cannot but feel astonished at our good fortune. Not a casualty occurred; whereas the loss to the enemy could not have been under 180 men.

After communicating with a Mandarin junk force, just arrived from Macao with the information that seven pirate junks were at anchor off Sie-wan-moon, opposite Moto, the boats returned to the ship at Kolan.

14.—Having despatched the Niger to await my arrival at Macao, I proceeded with the whole boat force to examine the numerous crannies to the west of Broadway, en route to Sie-wan-moon.

In Sykee, a bay opposite Koolan, four piratical junks, with guns numerically formidable, were driven on shore and burnt by Lieutenant Villiers. In the largest an English red ensign was found.

In a deep inlet to the north of Souchan, three others were captured and destroyed.

Arriving at Sie-wan-moon, I was informed that the seven junks had slipped a few hours previously, and run higher up the creek. The villagers, in pointing out their position, were graphic in their account of the barbarities they were committing, and hailed our arrival with the most enthusiastic rejoicings. A hamlet had been sacked and a passage boat taken that very morning. Advancing until dusk I anchored, and prepared (by getting pilots) for prosecuting my search in the morning.

15th.—Weighed at daylight, and piloted by boatmen who had been robbed by those pirates on the evening of our visit, threaded the remainder of the tortuous reach connecting Broadway with a river running in a parallel direction.

The piratical squadron were shortly discovered a head, using every effort to escape.

When the sternmost one, mounting twenty-four guns, was captured, she proved to have been a rice boat captured in January last from the Hong Kong Chinese merchant who accompanied Mr. Caldwell. I caused her, therefore, having previously removed the guns, to be restored. Seven large passage boats were likewise released.

The gun boats now unfortunately taking the ground, I despatched the boats to capture the remainder, a service, I am bound to add, most ably executed, the pinnace under Mr. Blake (the senior lieutenant present), after a running fight of one hour and a quarter, driving one of nine guns on shore, her crew being immediately pounced upon by Mandarin soldiers. Another junk of twelve guns, after a vigorous resistance, in which two stinkpots were thrown into the boats of the Janus, under Lieut. Knevett, was carried by boarding; and three others—mounting respectively seven, nine, and twenty-two guns—were captured and burnt by Lieut. Villiers, with the two cutters in co-operation with the Clown.

Exclusive of the crew who fell into the hands of the mandarins, 21 pirates were killed on this occasion by the fire from the boats, and the guns, mostly 18 and 24 pounders, of American manufacture, were sunk beyond the means of recovery. I then returned to the ship at Macao, arriving at midnight, whence I proceeded this morning to join your flag. In bringing before you the important results achieved by the zeal and gallantry of the officers of the boats and their crews, I beg to record the great assistance derived from the gun boats; to Lieuts. Lee and Knevett, and the Second Masters, Messrs. Gilpin and Warsfield, so unceasing in their attention, every praise is due, yet to Mr. Caldwell the success attending this expedition is mainly owing; without his experience and adept method of gaining information I fear our endeavours would have been futile.

I have, &c.,

GEO. T. COLVILLE, Acting Captain.

His Excellency Rear Admiral Sir M. Seymour, K.C.B., Commander in Chief.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, May 10. — Only eleven days have elapsed since our last budget was made up, but the weather having been excessively hot and dry (most unusual weather for the beginning of May) the preparation and export of coffee have gone briskly on. During the period under review two vessels have sailed for London with 11,208 cwt. of plantation coffee and 2,125 cwt. of native; together 13,333 cwt. For Liverpool, one vessel has sailed with 2,826 cwt., of which 1,572 cwt. were plantation. To Falmouth for orders the Fils Unique has gone with 3,769 cwt. plantation and 2,734 cwt. native; together 6,503 cwt. The total addition to our exports has been 22,662 cwt., in the proportions of 16,549 cwt. plantation and 6,113 cwt. native. Our total exports of coffee are now actually 23,000 cwt. in excess of those to the same period last year, the figures being 440,000 against 420,000. The excess is entirely on native, however, for on plantation there is a slight decrease. Several of the vessels now in the Roadstead are about ready for sea, so that we may expect next fortnight's account not to fall far short of the present one. What with the increase on native, and the Ouvah crop yet to come, there can be no doubt now that the total export from 1st Oct., 1858 to 30th Sept., 1859 will considerably exceed 500,000 cwt. The Helena cleared yesterday for London with 7,270 cwt. of plantation coffee and 1,187 cwt. native, total 8,457;—but her cargo is not included in the Chamber of Commerce statement. Had it been, the deficiency on plantation would have been only 7,000 cwt.

WHILE THE POSITION OF THE RAILWAY and the proceedings of its chief engineer form the subjects of animated comment, Mr. Doyne and other leading scientific men of the colony—Capt. Sim, R.E., Mr. Churchill, and Mr. Poingdestre have been to the great basset to report on the possibility or otherwise of erecting a lighthouse on the sea-washed rocks. We have not heard what the resolution arrived at is.

THE SURVEY DEPARTMENT is at length in a position to do justice to the Northern Province. Mr. Noad, who arrived by the last steamer, goes with a competent staff of surveyors to Jaffna, to carry on a systematic survey. Lt. Grinlinton has already arrived at Batticaloa in the Eastern Province on a similar mission. The survey department is now strong in European assistants of various grades, and we are glad to learn that a number of burgher and native members of the department have recently established claims to promotion and higher salaries, for which Captain Sim has readily recommended them.

THE MASTER ATTENDANT OF TUTICORIN.—Mr. Robertson, of whose fate we are afraid there can be now no doubt, had taken with him 2000 oysters, which he had purchased as a sample of the Ceylon fishery. He had also obtained copies of the instructions in accordance with which the Pearl fishery is carried on at Aripoo. It is matter of deep regret, that after coming over for two fisheries, and qualifying himself to test the productiveness of the Tuticorin banks, this enterprising officer should have met with such an untimely end. We hear that he had described those banks, at our last fishery, as containing oysters of a much larger size and in much larger quantities.—Ceylon Examiner, April 27.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Our Cabul advices are from the 5th to the 11th April:—

On the 5th, a Khan, who has arrived from Candahar, mentions that Sirdar Shere Ally Khan has asked Jellaloodeen Khan to give an account of the revenue of the past year, but the latter declines in toto to give any, as he says he has rendered accounts square with the late Sirdar Gholam Hyder Khan. He is said to have fled from Candahar towards Kurrachee with thirty sowars. The Sirdar has sent some men in pursuit, but they have been unsuccessful as yet. On the 6th, a man arrived from Balkh in fifteen days, and states that the rulers of Shereghan and Indkoooyee, and the inhabitants of Mamna, have mutinied against the ruler of Balkh, Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, who has promised them to forego the revenue if they will come and pay allegiance to him, which they have refused to do. It is rumoured that they have mutinied at the instigation of the King of Bokhara. On the 8th, Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan arrived in Cabul from Lughman. On the 9th, Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan received news from Balkh, that on hearing of the departure of Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan to Tukhtabul, Meer Ataleek Beg, ruler of Koondoos, came down on a village named Arug, and, having pillaged it, made prisoners of the whole of the inhabitants. The ruler of Tash Kirghan, on receiving intelligence of the affair, went in pursuit of Meer Ataleek Beg, and succeeded in releasing about one hundred and fifty of the prisoners. On the 10th, Dost Mahomed Khan reached Cabul from Jellalabad, and on the 11th, heavy showers of rain fell in Cabul.—Lahore Chronicle.

BURMAH.

AKYAB, April 18.—The venerable Archdeacon Pratt arrived here in the Baltic on the 7th, and still continues to sojourn among us; he having been prevented from proceeding to Rangoon and Moulmein for the benefit of his health, in consequence of the machinery of the steamer having been seriously injured. His stay will be prolonged among us till the arrival of the Burmah from Calcutta, which, in all probability, will be on the 22nd. He has held Divine Service here both morning and evening, and his discourses have been as usual of a very edifying and animating nature. The Protestant community is making arrangements to secure the services of a clergyman, from the Additional Clergy Society, direct from England, and for that especial purpose an endeavour is making to raise contributions to the extent of Rs. 4,500 for his passage-money and a parsonage. The general examination of the Government school was conducted on the 7th and 8th by Captain Faithfull, Captain Leigh, and Dr. Mountjoy, in English, and by the native judge in Burmese. The result of it, so far as information could be gleaned on the subject, was considered satisfactory by the examiners, and creditable to the teachers and pupils. Mr. H. Smith, the senior assistant, attached to the Revenue Survey Department of this district, and till February last connected with the Dacca Survey, has fallen a victim to jungle fever. I am informed that two other assistants, Messrs. Pickard and Bridge are suffering seriously from jungle fever also. The Nemesis, which conveyed the mails to Rangoon and Moulmein, is expected here shortly with the commissioner from Kyouk Phyou.—Hurkarn.

THE KEONGS.—The Akyab Argus mentions that the Keongs have again commenced their raids in the plains and have committed several dacoities, in one of which five villagers were killed by spears. Seize the chiefs and keep them as hostages.

Court Martial.

LIEUT. DIGBY WILLOUGHBY GEORGE FAIRFIELD, BENGAL ARTILLERY.

Head Quarters, Camp Cawnpore, March 5.

At a General Court Martial assembled at Meerut on Feb. 8, Lieut. D. W. G. Fairfield, of the Bengal artillery, was arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge.—For behaving in a scandalous manner, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in having, at Meerut, on the 18th Nov., 1858, taken from Mohun Lull, a native jeweller, the following articles, his property, namely, four gold rings, two gold bracelets, and two gold brooches; the possession and retention of which articles he denied and concealed from the jeweller, with the dishonest intention of eventually appropriating them, or some of them, to his own use.

Finding.—Not Guilty; and the Court do honourably and fully acquit him of the charge.

Approved and confirmed.

(Signed) CLYDE, General C. in C.

Camp Lucknow, Feb. 24, 1859.

REMARKS BY THE C. IN C. IN INDIA.

The C. in C. is glad to have it in his power to record his approval of the verdict of full and honourable acquittal arrived at by the Court; and Lord Clyde trusts that the painful ordeal which Lieut. Fairfield has now gone through will be a warning to him, and the other young officers concerned, to refrain in future from taking a part in unbecoming practical jokes like those to which the native jewellers were thoughtlessly subjected.

Lieut. Fairfield is to be released from arrest, and directed to return to his duty.

Court Martial.

MAJ. ALFRED JOHN DE HAVILAND HARRIS,
1st MADRAS FUSILIERS.

Head Qrs., Camp Chowbepore, March 9.

At a General Court Martial assembled at Fort William, on Feb. 17, Maj. A. J. de H. Harris, of the 1st Madras Fusiliers, was arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge.—For conduct unbecoming the character of an officer, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in having, when at Alumbagh, on or about the 12th of Dec., 1857, he was furnished by Maj. M. Galwey, commanding the regiment, with a communication strongly impeaching his (Maj. Harris's) personal courage in the late operations against the rebels, failed to take any sufficient measures to meet and repel the imputations made against him; and in having, on or about the 20th of the same month and year, instead of taking proper steps to refute the injurious imputations, or to seek inquiry into them, forwarded to Maj. gen. Sir J. Outram, G.C.B., com. the troops in Oude, an official letter addressed to the Rt. Hon. the Gov. in Council, Fort St. George, applying to be transferred to the Veteran establishment.

Finding.—Guilty of so much of the charge as alleges "conduct unbecoming the character of an officer, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in having, when at Alumbagh, on or about the 12th Dec., 1857, he was furnished by Maj. M. Galwey, commanding the regt., with a communication strongly impeaching his (Maj. Harris's) personal courage in the late operations against the rebels, failed to take any sufficient measures to meet and repel the imputations made against him."

With regard to the remainder of the charge, the Court find that the facts are proved, but attach no criminality to them, and therefore acquit him thereof.

Sentence.—To be severely reprimanded.

Approved and confirmed.
(Signed) CLYDE, C. in C., East Indies.

Camp, Nawabgunge, March 2.

REMARKS BY THE C. IN C. IN INDIA.

Totally inadequate as, under ordinary circumstances, the sentence awarded by the Court would be for the serious offence of which the prisoner has been convicted, there are some peculiar features in the present case which have induced the C. in C. to accord his approval of the decision of the Court Martial; and as Maj. Harris himself seems now keenly sensible of the error he committed in allowing the imputations cast upon his conduct to remain for an instant unrefuted, Lord Clyde is satisfied that there can be no severer reprimand to this officer than the publication of the trial in General Orders.

Maj. Harris is to be released from arrest, and directed to return to his duty.

REPRESENTATIVE INSTITUTIONS.—We understand a public meeting is to be held in Kandy to pray for representative institutions. A movement for the same purpose is on foot at Colombo,

Court Martial.

CAPT. DOUGLAS FORTNOM FEARON,
10th BOMBAY N.I.

At a General Court Martial, assembled at Mhow, April 4, 1859, Capt. D. F. Fearon, 10th Bombay N.I., was arraigned on the following charges.

1st Charge.—For conduct highly disgraceful, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in having at Nassick, on or about the month of July, 1858, caused Setaram and Wittoba, a cart contractor's agents, to be flogged.

2nd Charge.—For conduct highly disgraceful, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in the following instance:—

1st Instance.—For having, at Chandore, on or about the 9th of Aug., 1858, when in command of a detachment of the 10th N.I., used the following grossly insulting language to Nursing Aya Sungappa Mahalkurree, the head native officer of the district, "You rascal, I'll warn your back and jacket, as well as his," or words to that effect.

2nd Instance.—In having, at the time and place specified in the first instance, struck the Mahalkurree several times with a whip, calling him "rascal and scoundrel," or words to that effect.

3rd Instance.—In having, at the time and place specified in the first instance, placed the Mahalkurree under a guard with fixed bayonets, and sent him prisoner into the town of Chandore to procure carts and bullocks for the detachment.

4th Instance.—In having, at the time and place specified in the first instance, used the following grossly insulting language to the Mahalkurree when prisoner, in front of the travellers' bungalow: "It was my intention to bind you to the cart and get you flogged by my drummers, under the military regulations, before all your people, but I now release you," or words to that effect.

3rd Charge.—For conduct highly disgraceful, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in having at Sindwa, on or about the month of August, 1858, caused Chotmull Soorunjam Marwarie to be flogged because he declined to accompany the prisoner's detachment further than he was bound by his instructions.

The above being in breach of the articles of war.

Finding:—

1st Charge.—The allegation contained in the first charge is proved, but the Court attach no culpability to the prisoner's conduct.

2nd Charge, 1st Instance.—Not guilty of the first instance of the 2nd charge.

2nd Instance.—Guilty of the second instance of the second charge, with the exception of the words "highly disgraceful conduct."

3rd Instance.—Guilty of the third instance of the second charge, with the exception of the words "highly disgraceful conduct and unbecoming the character of a gentleman."

4th Instance.—Guilty of the fourth instance of the second charge, with the exception of the words "highly disgraceful conduct."

3rd Charge.—Guilty of the third charge, with the exception of the words "conduct highly disgraceful, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline;" and the Court further finds that the punishment does not appear to have been inflicted for the reasons stated in the charge.

Sentence.—To be reprimanded.

REMARKS BY THE C. IN C.

In virtually acquitting the prisoner of the 1st and 3rd charges, the Court has evidently considered that the contractors' agents and the Banian merited the punishment they received, as their conduct was calculated to impede the march of the troops. But the prisoner's conduct to the Mahalkurree of Chandore does not admit of such extenuation; and yet the Court has acquitted him of highly disgraceful conduct, after having found him guilty of having struck the head native officer of the district several times with a whip, of having called him "rascal" and "scoundrel," of having placed him prisoner under a guard with fixed bayonets, and of having used the following insulting language to him in front of the Travellers' Bungalow at Chandore, viz.—"It was my intention to bind you to the cart, and get you flogged, under the military regulation, before all your people; but I now release you."

The conduct of the prisoner towards the Mahalkurree is totally unjustifiable: for it appears in evidence that this functionary waited upon the prisoner at the Travellers' Bungalow, stating that he had attended by desire of the magistrate to receive his orders, and to render him any assistance he might require, and that the prisoner, instead of quickly giving his orders to the Mahalkurree, attacked him in an abusive, rude, and threatening manner, flourishing his whip at him, and provoking him to anger; and, finally, that, after having struck him several times, he sent him, under an armed sentry, to collect carts, a duty the Mahalkurree had previously voluntarily offered to perform, thus lowering and disgracing the Mahalkurree in the eyes of his own people. To pronounce such conduct not to be disgraceful in an officer, and to visit it with no heavier penalty than a reprimand, is to give a result to this trial highly prejudicial to the public service, and hurtful to the interests of the army, by affording a precedent calculated to encourage officers in acts of violence towards the native officials of the country that cannot be tolerated or passed over.

I should have ordered a revision of the finding and sentence in this case, were it not that the measure would occasion considerable inconvenience to the service, by prolonging the detention of officers from their stations and regiments. Admitting the force of this consideration, I direct that the prisoner, who is hereby reprimanded, be released from arrest, and ordered to return to his duty.

The Victoria Cross.

WAR OFFICE, MAY 27.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned non-commissioned officers and privates of H.M.'s army, whose claims to the same have been submitted for H.M.'s approval, on account of acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names, viz.:—
 2nd Battalion, Military Train.—Private M. Murphy (farrier).—For daring gallantry on the 15th of April, 1858, when engaged in the pursuit of Koorer Sing's army from Azimghur, in having rescued Lieutenant Hamilton, adjutant of the 3rd Sikh cavalry, who was wounded, dismounted, and surrounded by the enemy. Farrier Murphy cut down several men, and, although himself severely wounded, he never left Lieutenant Hamilton's side until support arrived.
 42nd Regiment.—Lance corporal A. Thompson.—For daring gallantry, on the 15th of April, 1858, when at the attack of the fort of Ruhya, in having volunteered to assist Captain Groves, commanding the 4th Punjab rifles, in bringing in the body of Lieutenant Willoughby, of that corps, from the top of the glacis, in a most exposed situation, under a heavy fire.

42nd Regiment.—Quartermaster sergt. J. Simpson.—For conspicuous bravery at the attack on the fort of Ruhya, on the 15th of April, 1858, in having volunteered to go to an exposed point within forty yards of the parapet of the fort, under a heavy fire, and brought in, first, Lieut. Douglas, and afterwards a private soldier, both of whom were dangerously wounded.

42nd Regiment.—Private J. Davis.—For conspicuous gallantry at the attack on the fort of Ruhya, when, with an advanced party to point out the gate of the fort to the engineer officer, Private Davis offered to carry the body of Lieut. Bramley, who was killed at this point, to the regiment. He performed this duty of danger and affliction under the very walls of the fort.

MEMORANDUM.—Private E. Spence, 42nd regiment, would have been recommended to her Majesty for the decoration of the Victoria Cross, had he survived. He and Lance corporal Thompson, of that regiment, volunteered, at the attack of the fort of Ruhya, on the 15th April, 1858, to assist Capt. Groves, commanding 4th Punjab rifles, in bringing in the body of Lieut. Willoughby from the top of the glacis. Private Spence dauntlessly placed himself in an exposed position, so as to cover the party bearing away the body. He died on the 17th of the same month, from the effects of the wound which he received on the occasion.

MANILA, April 17.—Our last news from Cochin-China states that some skirmishes had taken place in the vicinity of the captured citadel of Saigon, in all of which the Cochin-Chinese, though ten to one in number, were invariably routed with great slaughter by the allies. It was expected that the latter would soon return to the encampment at Turon. The pretty town or village of San Miguel, near Manila, has been nearly all burnt down. The fire in this instance not confining itself to consuming the thatched native chozas, as it usually does here, but devouring also the strong stone-built residences of European Spaniards and foreigners on the side of the main river. The amount of property destroyed may be estimated at about 150,000 dols. The fire is believed to have been the act of incendiaries.

IN THE LATTER END OF APRIL a severe storm raged along the whole coast of Southern India. In the north of Ceylon considerable damage was done to the crops, and several vessels were wrecked. Amongst the rest the American ship Colorado, of 1,200 tons, was lost off Point Pedro, the captain and his wife, and two sailors perishing.

MR. M. LARKEN, Puisne Judge of the Sudder Adawlut, proceeds shortly to England, resigning his appointment. Mr. Larken has served in India for above twenty-eight years. It was on the 23rd May, 1854, that he was promoted to the higher grade of the Civil Service from which he is now retiring on pension.

ERRATUM.

In the letter from Meerut inserted in our last Summary, the artillery was stated to be 1,000 strong: it should have been 100.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THURSDAY, June 9, 1859.

LORD ELGIN AT THE MANSION-HOUSE.

HAD it not been that he was one of the guests at the Lord Mayor's dinner to the Judges of England, and that he there delivered a speech in acknowledgment of a complimentary toast, the public would scarcely have known that the Earl of Elgin had returned to these shores. The people of England are, assuredly, singularly capricious in their treatment of men who have deserved well of their country. It used to be said of them that they paid well and hanged well. That they have forgotten the latter accomplishment may, perhaps, be forgiven to them; but it is neither wise nor amiable to have abandoned the former. In all countries and in all ages it has been matter of complaint that honours are usually diverted into a wrong channel, and that the man who bears the greatest number of decorations on his breast is not necessarily the most meritorious.

"The Page slew the boar;
The King had the gloire."

It is certainly to be regretted that, while we generally disdain to model our conduct by the example of our ancestors, we should yet be so ready to adopt their lessons of ingratitude. We have here a notable instance before us of unrequited and unrecognised services of the highest order, but which cannot be allowed to pass unnoticed by the public press.

Lord Elgin's recent mission to China is one of the most important and most successful on record, and could only have been brought to a happy conclusion by a statesman of the most enlarged and comprehensive views, possessed of extraordinary resolution and self-reliance, quick in conception, prompt in action, and fearless of responsibility. At the very outset of his expedition he encountered a difficulty so novel and unexpected that it would have paralysed any man of ordinary abilities and intellectual calibre. The troops that had been sent out with him to coerce the Chinese, were suddenly demanded of him for the purpose of suppressing the most formidable mutiny that has ever occurred in modern history. Without a moment's hesitation Lord Elgin decided upon deferring, perhaps for ever, the opportunity of gathering laurels for himself, and at once hastened to the assistance of his fellow-countrymen in peril. With unrivalled disinterestedness and magnanimity he took upon himself to divert the destination of the force entrusted to him for a specific object, and proceeded in person to Calcutta to tender his counsels to the Governor-General of India in the hour of his utmost need. The nobleness of this act has never been fully appreciated in this country. It is not merely his fearlessness of responsibility which is worthy of admiration, but still more so his self-denial in renouncing his own prospects of success in order to rescue another from an overwhelming calamity. The true saviours of India were, undoubtedly, Sir John Lawrence in the west and the Earl of Elgin in the east. The incomparable services rendered by the former have, indeed, been gratefully acknowledged by all classes of men, no matter how great their difference of opinion on other questions, but the latter has not yet received the meed of praise which he so justly merits.

Though deprived of that army which Ministers deemed necessary to secure the successful issue of his mission, Lord Elgin nevertheless proceeded to China almost unattended, and set about the accomplishment of his task with as much energy and confidence as if ten thousand soldiers were at his disposal. By a series of bold movements, unflinching perseverance, and the most skilful diplomacy, he contrived to bring to their senses the most obstinate and conceited people under the sun, and finally concluded a treaty which affords every hope of opening out a vast trade for the commercial community of Great Britain.

No sooner had he completed this difficult and important business than he steered his course to Japan, and there displayed the same firmness of purpose, combined with a singularly conciliatory demeanour, which had produced such happy results in China. A similar result was again attained, and an empire hitherto inaccessible to foreigners was induced to open her ports to the shipping of all the world.

The statesman and diplomatist who has done such great things with such small means is, unquestionably, entitled to the highest honours which a gracious sovereign and a grateful country have it in their power to bestow. And yet the Earl of Elgin has been permitted to return to his native land with no more distinction than if he had been a governor of Barataria. In his own words, "the late Parliament, which died an unnatural death, although it was elected for the express purpose of looking after affairs in China, nevertheless observed, during its whole existence, so discreet a silence on that subject, as neither to have asked for, nor received, any communication whatever with respect to our proceedings in that part of the world." It is to be hoped that when the struggle for power has been decided, the new Parliament will make amends for the neglect of its predecessor, and that Lord Elgin will receive, even at the eleventh hour, a suitable recognition of his very distinguished services.

CORRESPONDENCE.

REORGANISATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SIR,—Although I quite agree with those who consider that a large native army, together with a large military police force, is or will not be necessary for the maintenance of order in, and protection of, British India from external enemies, yet a certain number of regular native infantry will, I believe, be always requisite.

I cannot, however, agree with Sir George Clerk, who "would not object to give the natives the Enfield rifle, because they are always indifferent marksmen as compared with Europeans." I am not aware what the Bengal sepoy may be in that respect, but I believe it would be found, on reference to target practice reports, that the Madras sepoy is as good, if not a better marksman than the European soldier, both being equally armed. If, therefore, the European is to be a superior shot to the native, the latter must have an inferior weapon to the former.

I have no intention of entering into the question of the strength or arming of the Indian army in general, but wish merely to say a few words regarding the Madras army. It was stated in a letter, which appeared lately in the Evening Mail, that the strength of the native army of Madras is upwards of 70,000 men, and the writer could see no necessity for so large a body of well-disciplined natives where there is merely a sea-board to defend. So far, the statement is, perhaps, about correct, but the writer, in all likelihood, is not aware how these troops are employed. 70,000 men, however, is by no means the usual strength of the Madras army. Of these 70,000 men we may take 60,000 as native infantry, and it is of these I shall now speak.

Previous to the Bengal mutiny, regiments mustered only 700 privates, instead of 1,000, as at present. The regular infantry consists of 52 regiments, and there are also four extra or local corps officered irregularly. Regiments may be easily reduced to their usual complement by adopting the plan used successfully for the same purpose in 1847, namely, dismissing all recruits who have not passed adjutant's drill, paying them batta to their native villages, and giving a bounty according to length of service to any men who wish to take their discharge; supernumeraries who remain after this, beyond the regulated complement, to be gradually absorbed.

With a complement of 700 privates the strength of the Madras infantry, including non-commissioned, rank and file would be under 45,000. The number might be still more reduced by adopting the strength of regiments previous to the Affghan war in 1838, namely, eight companies of 80 men each, equal to 720 non-commissioned, rank and file, so that the Madras infantry would then be 40,320. Forty thousand natives may still appear a large proportion for a peaceable country like Madras. If, however, the distribution of the troops be taken into account it would be found difficult, perhaps, to do with fewer, at any rate for the present. First, Burmah and the Straits take fifteen regiments, which have to be relieved every three years. There cannot with justice be allowed less than three reliefs for foreign service without the risk of creating disaffection. Here, then, is at once a call for forty-five regiments. Again, the Saugor and Nerbudda territories were given back to the Bengal army to allow for Madras troops garrisoning the whole of Burmah; but now these territories are again occupied by Madras regiments, and probably will continue to be so. The Madras army is so dispersed over the country that with the exception of Hyderabad, where a force of five native infantry corps are obliged by treaty to be kept, there is not a station in the Madras Presidency where more than two native infantry regiments are brigaded; and even when there happens to be two so stationed it is more nominal than real, for it is merely for the purpose of allowing detachments to be scattered all over the country to protect gaoles and treasuries. I know of two regiments so situated whose detachments have not even been relieved for two years! This, however, is a state of things which no doubt will cease to exist when the new Madras police force comes into play. Some expense might then be saved by concentrating the army somewhat more than it now is. Still, until the entire population be completely disarmed, regiments must necessarily be more dispersed over the country than they need otherwise be. For instance, had the Moplahs been long ago disarmed there would not have been the frequent outbreaks among them that there have been, which have cost many valuable lives, and troops would not be required to be constantly watching these districts, as at present.

The Madras Presidency, though not exposed to attack from native states, has nevertheless a large extent of undefended seaboard, on which descents might at any time be made in the event of England becoming involved in the present European war. Though, perhaps, such attack may not be very probable, it may yet be as well to be prepared for such a contingency, and therefore wiser not to reduce the number of Madras regiments, at least for the present. Were the Nizam induced to disarm his subjects, and forbid his nobles keeping bodies of armed retainers, the infantry of the Hyderabad Contingent might, no doubt, be dispensed with, which would be the saving of the pay of six regiments.

Several of the recommendations of the commissioners are simply what is the common practice of the Madras army, such as the composition of the army being of different nationalities and castes, mixed promiscuously, the men being enlisted for general service, and the promotion of native commissioned and non-commissioned being made without regard to seniority.

The recommendations to increase the power of commanding-officers, and to simplify the pay-codes, are moves decidedly in the right direction; but the commissioners appear to have done nothing towards remedying the crying evil of the great paucity of officers with regiments. They merely mention two or three schemes suggested to them, without attempting to show the practicability or otherwise of carrying them out.

A staff corps, though presenting at first difficulties and objections, and though, I think, impracticable, is nevertheless, I believe, a necessary measure; and I therefore venture to offer the following suggestions for its formation.

1. The corps to embrace the commissariat, pay, and judge advocate-general's departments, and the officers in civil employ.
2. The corps to be divided into grades, corresponding with the rank of lieutenant, captain, major, lieutenant-colonel, and colonel.
3. The several grades to draw the pay of their respective ranks in addition to the staff-pay of their appointments.
4. The period of service for each grade to be calculated from the average number of years officers are at present in attaining the several ranks of captain, major, &c.
5. Officers of the staff-corps to be entitled to all the benefits of the retiring regulations, and military fund, as enjoyed by the army.
6. Officers not to vacate their appointments on attaining a certain rank, as is the present practice, but to retain them till vacancies in their several departments permit of promotion.
7. As officers in civil employ receive a consolidated allowance, promotion from one grade to another affects them only as regards the retiring regulations and Military Fund.
8. A certain number of officers of the rank corresponding to colonel to be allowed a retiring pension of £1,000 a-year.
9. This retiring pension of £1,000 a-year not to be disbursed to an officer while on the effective list of the staff corps.
10. Should an officer permit his turn for the above pension to pass him, he must wait till the next vacancy occurs before he can avail himself of such pension, but may, in the mean time, retire on colonel's pay—viz., £450.
11. Officers at present holding staff appointments in the above departments, and in civil employ, to have the option of retaining them, giving up all further promotion regimentally, or of rejoining their regiments.
12. Hereafter, previous to admission to the staff corps, officers to pass a certain preliminary examination, and, at the end of a probation of six, or as many months as may be determined on, to pass a final examination, or, failing to do so, to be remanded to their regiments, on the strength of which they should remain till the expiration of the probation.
13. A roll of candidates for the staff corps to be kept at army head-quarters, stating the department each is desirous of entering.

14. No officer under a certain period of service to be eligible for the staff corps. Should an ensign of such service be a candidate, and pass the examination, he shall be admitted into the staff corps as a lieutenant.

A staff corps would, of course, admit of a decrease of regimental officers to the extent, certainly, of one captain, two lieutenants, and one ensign; and as Lord Stanley proposed engaging civil engineers for the Public Works Department, all officers so employed at present would, by degrees, join their regiments, as substitutes were found to take their posts. This department, therefore, has been left out of the scheme for the staff corps.

Except for irregular corps and the regular army staff, no officer should be taken away from regimental duty, unless, perhaps, temporarily to act for an officer of the staff corps absent on furlough or sick certificate.

Such is an imperfect sketch of a staff corps, which is left for others to fill up and improve on.

The plan suggested to the Commissioners of "placing European officers of each Presidency in general lists for promotion" would be exceedingly unjust, and injurious to the prospects of numbers. All those who have been what is generally considered fortunate in promotion, having, perhaps, expended considerable sums to attain their present standing in their regiments, would immediately be placed an indefinite way down the general list, and kept for years out of the promotion they would have obtained in a few months. For a senior captain of a regiment, say of the 1st Bengal Cavalry, whose major is near the top of the list, he would be placed below all those of longer standing than himself, and the promotion of his major would be the senior captain in the army to a minor instead of him. It would, moreover, cause promotion to be slower than ever. If, therefore, such a scheme were ever to be put in practice it should apply only to those hereafter entering the service. Such a plan, however, must of necessity remove entirely all chance of youthful element in the higher grades of the army.—I remain, sir, your obedient servant, M. F. O.

PATENT LAW FOR INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SIR,—The war in Europe now absorbs all attention. Let us take care that in the din of it we do not grow as apathetic as ever to the concerns of our Indian Empire. After a storm comes a calm, and too often a dead calm. It will require your occasional stimulus to keep alive public interest in and attention to Indian subjects.

You have more than once referred to the circumlocution system in connection with Indian affairs.

Let me give you another instance.

Every one now recognises the importance of attracting good healthy English enterprise to India.

What a field there is for inventive genius in connection with the almost new world opened up in India!

In 1856 the then Government of India passed an Act providing for the granting of Letters Patent in India for inventions.

The machinery it provided was simple and efficient, yet for some reason the Act which was regularly passed in India was not confirmed here.

That reason had nothing to do with the policy of the Act; it was merely some question connected with the prerogative of the Crown, which can no longer apply now.

Yet, to all the inquiries at the India House for the last two years you can get but one reply, "We are expecting the new Act by every Mail."

Now, sir, there is unpardonable delay somewhere.

I will not enter into the question of the policy of a Patent Law for India,—that has been and is conceded; although, if need be, cogent arguments are not wanting to show the great importance of the subject.

At present, inventions have no protection whatever in India.

If even Russia affords protection to inventors, shall India, capable of high civilisation, be without it?

Can you expect Englishmen to settle there, and to direct their capital and enterprise there, if a law of this kind requires, after its terms have been carefully settled, years to pass the other circumlocution offices of Indian Government?

The Act, as passed in 1856, is now before me, and seems to be a model of simple and effective legislation, and all that is really required is, that the Legislative Council should re-enact it, now that the Queen rules in India and the laws are passed in her name.—I am, sir, yours truly,

I. M.

MILITARY COLLEGE, ADDISCOMBE.

The following Memorial to the Right Hon. LORD STANLEY, Secretary of State for India in Council, is entitled to the support of all lovers of fair play.

MY LORD,—As Parents in some cases, and Guardians in others, of the Gentlemen Cadets who entered Addiscombe on the re-opening of the College in the first week of February last, and who now constitute the first term of students in that Institution, we deem it our duty to bring to the notice of your Lordship in Council the very serious injury inflicted on those young gentlemen by the rules subsequently enacted for the regulation of appointments to her Majesty's Indian Forces (22nd February and 9th March, 1859), communicated to the public in an advertisement dated India House, March 24th, 1859, and inserted by authority in the Times newspaper of the following day, and to ask on their behalf for the restitution of the position and advantages of which those rules have deprived them, and to which we are persuaded your Lordship in Council will, on a full and attentive consideration of the circumstances we now place before you, deem them to be justly entitled.

2. In aid of correct conclusions on this important subject, it is necessary that we advert as briefly as circumstances will permit, to the conditions on which the Gentlemen Cadets, whose interests we now advocate, entered Addiscombe, at the commencement of the present term.

3. They are contained in a paper delivered to all Parents and Guardians of parties about to be appointed to that establishment, endorsed "East India Company's Military College, Addiscombe, near Croydon, Surrey. Terms of admission." These terms have also been published with the permission of the ruling authorities at the India House in the "East India Register" for a long series of years; the Register for the present year, 1859, included.

4. The conditions and qualifications for a candidate are contained in the first seven (7) clauses of the paper in question, and in the eighth (8th) clause it is expressly stated that the qualifications above mentioned (to which we need not more particularly refer in this place) are all that are absolutely required for the admission of a Cadet into the Military College; though Parents and Guardians are at the same time informed that it will be of great advantage to a Cadet in his future studies if, before being admitted, he make himself well acquainted with the higher branches of knowledge therein enumerated.

5. By clause 10, "every cadet upon his admission is considered a Probationary Pupil only for the first six months, at the termination of which time the public examiner reports to the Committee on the probability of his being able to pass for the Artillery or Infantry at the close of his fourth term of residence; should this appear improbable, either from want of talent or diligence, the Cadet is then returned to his friends," and it is no doubt known to your Lordship that until the public examination in December, 1857, the general rule requiring four terms of residence was rigidly enforced, and was only then relaxed in favour of such Cadets as by more than usual amount of proficiency should be found eligible for the Engineer Branch of the Service at the expiration of their third term, all the other Cadets returning to College to complete their fourth term as usual.

6. Appended to the terms of admission to Addiscombe College, now under review, are "memoranda" printed in red type to attract general and more particular notice, the first article of which runs thus: "The Gentlemen Cadets educated at the Military College are eligible for the Corps of Engineers, Artillery, and Infantry. Admission to the two first of these Branches, viz., the Engineers and Artillery, is only to be obtained by these Cadets, none others being eligible. Those who are most distinguished are selected for the Engineers according to the vacancies in that Branch: those immediately following in order of succession to the Artillery."

7. The substance of the preceding extracts may be fairly stated in a very few words. The Gentlemen Cadets are required to undergo certain examinations, and to comply with certain other conditions, which those of the present first term at Addiscombe admitted in the first week of February last have done; and they are promised in return, certain well defined and long established advantages at the expiration of their fourth term of residence, which neither they nor their friends doubted for a moment would, as in all by-gone times, be scrupulously fulfilled.

8. But the Cadets now find, to their great mortification and disappointment, that their just expectations are not to be realised, and that under the operation of new rules, enacted subsequent to their examination and admission into Addiscombe, and to which six months retrospective effect has been assigned by the framers of them, the great prizes for which they expected eventually to contend, as usual, and to the possession of which they looked forward with earnest hope and laudable ambition, are virtually withdrawn from them.

9. We say virtually withdrawn, for although Parents and Guardians have been informed by a circular memorandum from the Lieut. gov. of Addiscombe (Sir Frederick Abbott), of later date than the new rules above referred to, "that Lord Stanley has been pleased to grant to the Cadets who entered College this term, the privilege of competing for Commissions in the Engineers and Artillery in June, 1860 (or, in other words, at the end of their third term of residence), when, if found qualified, they will be admitted into the scientific branches of the Indian service." The experience of the last three terms at Addiscombe, December 1857, December 1858, and June 1858, shows that it is only a talented few, and these we may add with uninterrupted health throughout their College career, that can expect to profit by this permission; those of less advanced attainments (deprived of the opportunity of that further study to which they had looked forward in their fourth term, and in the course of which some at all events might reasonably expect to become qualified, as in very many former instances, for the higher branches of their profession), must bow to the force of circumstances they had never contemplated and cannot control, as best they may, in possession of an infantry commission only.

10. Such is the state of things at Addiscombe at present. It was very different at Haileybury on the introduction of Competitive Examinations for appointments in the Civil Service. All existing Rules and Engagements were maintained inviolate, and it was never found, we believe—as surely we have never heard it so asserted—that the continuance of the established course of education there so long as any nomination Candidates had to be received into and pass through the College, operated in any degree to the disadvantage of the Competitive Candidates, or prejudicially to the public interests.

11. We have always understood it to be a fundamental principle of all legislature, that laws to be of any validity should be capable of practical application.

12. We refrain at present from entering into any minute Examination of the general bearing and effect of those which press injuriously on the young relatives and friends whom we represent on this occasion: but we must nevertheless respectfully ask, how is it possible that youths who have been admitted into Addiscombe under existing laws at little more than fifteen years of age, are to be denied entrance until they are sixteen, or how, having undergone the required examination in December last, and the first week in February, the Cadets of the present first term are to pass, previous to their admission, the far more advanced examination prescribed by the New Rules of the 9th March, 1859, and which, unless we are greatly misinformed, embrace nearly half the old qualifying or final examination for an Infantry Cadet on mathematical subjects?

13. It has been our object in the present Letter to show, and we trust we have succeeded in doing so, that the terms of admission to the Military College, at Addiscombe, to which we have made reference and quoted in some detail, and under which all Cadets have hitherto been received into that Institution, create mutual obligations, which, being duly carried out on the one part, must be as strictly fulfilled on the other. That these obligations have been mutually recognised, and acted on through a series of long years, and that any departure from them at this time, must, irrespective even of those higher considerations, that are not to be lost sight of under any circumstances, inflict a most serious and unmerited injury on many of the Cadets of the present junior term, which no future exertion on their part can ever overcome.

14. We trust we have said enough to induce a re-consideration of the subject, which an imperative sense of duty has impelled us thus to bring again under your Lordship's notice; and if it could be necessary to urge any further reasons for the suspension of the new Rule of the 9th March last (1859) in their favour, we might urge the not unimportant fact of some of these young gentlemen being the sons of widowed mothers, who have deprived themselves of many comforts, and made many sacrifices for the welfare of their children, for attainment of the advantages of which the enforcement of those Rules would deprive them; that others are the orphan sons of men who passed the best years of their lives and died in the faithful and honourable discharge of their several duties to the State in India; and that all are entitled to hope and to expect that their just claims to the fulfilment of the conditions on which they entered the Military College at Addiscombe will not be disregarded.—We have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient servants,

London, June, 1859.

Distribution of the Victoria Cross.

Her Majesty the Queen distributed the Victoria Cross, at eleven o'clock yesterday morning (June 8th), within the Quadrangle of Buckingham Palace.

A detachment of six companies of the Grenadier and Coldstream Regiments of Foot Guards lined three sides of the Quadrangle, and were commanded by Col. Lewis Field, Officer in Brigade Waiting. The band of the Coldstream Guards was on duty.

The Queen and Prince Consort entered the space formed by the troops. His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, General Commanding-in-Chief, and Major-General Peel, Secretary of State for War, stood on her Majesty's right.

Lieut. General Sir George Wetherall, Adjutant General to the Forces; Major General Lord Rokeby, Sir Edward Lugard, K.C.B., Secretary for Military Correspondence, War Department, were also in attendance upon her Majesty, together with the Equerries in Waiting.

The following had the honour of being presented to the Queen to receive the Cross:—

Commander Thomas James Young, Royal Navy, for gallant conduct at a 24-pounder gun at Lucknow, Nov. 16, 1857.

Commander Nowell Salmon, for conspicuous gallantry at Lucknow, Nov. 16, 1857.

Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Marham Havelock, Bart., late Lieutenant 10th Foot, now 18th Foot, for leading on the 64th Regiment to the capture of the last reserved gun, a 24-pounder, at Cawnpore, August 18, 1857.

Major James Leith, late 14th Dragoons, now of 2nd Dragoons, for conspicuous bravery at Betwah, on 1st April, 1858, in rescuing Captain Need, when surrounded by rebel infantry.

Major Frederick Miller, Royal Artillery, for personally attacking three Russians at the battle of Inkerman, and with the gunners of his division preventing the Russians from doing mischief to the guns which they had surrounded, Nov. 5, 1854.

Staff-Surgeon Anthony Dickson Home, late of 90th Regiment, now of a depot battalion, for persevering bravery and admirable conduct in charge of the wounded men left behind the column, when the troops under the late Major-General Havelock forced their way into the Residency of Lucknow on Sept. 26, 1857.

Assistant Surgeon William Bradshaw, late of 90th Regiment (now of 32nd Foot), for intrepidity and good conduct in removing the wounded men left behind the column that forced its way into the Residency of Lucknow, Sept. 26, 1857.

Thomas Hancock, late private, 9th Lancers, for excellent conduct when Brigadier Grant, commanding cavalry brigade, had his horse shot down. Delhi, June 22, 1857.

Lance Corporal Abraham Boulger, 84th Regiment, for distinguished bravery and forwardness as a skirmisher in all the twelve actions, fought between July 12 and Sept. 25, 1857.

Private David Mackay, 93rd Regiment, for great personal gallantry in capturing an enemy's colour after a most obstinate resistance at the Secundra Bagh, Lucknow, on Nov. 16, 1857.

Captain Frederick Robertson Aikman, Bengal Native Infantry, commanding 100 of the 3rd Sikh Cavalry, attacked and utterly routed 500 rebel infantry, 200 horse, and two guns, capturing two guns, March 1, 1858.

Lieutenant F. S. Roberts, Bengal Artillery, for cutting down a standard-bearer, and taking the standard at Khodagunge, Jan. 2, 1858; also cutting down another sepoy who was standing at bay.

Lieutenant Hastings Edward Harrington, Bengal Artillery, elected with others for the Cross for conspicuous gallantry at the relief of Lucknow, Nov. 14 to 22, 1857.

Lieutenant John Watson, 28th Bombay Native Infantry, for running through with his sword, and dismounting the ressalidar in command of the rebel cavalry, Nov. 14, 1857, and with his men utterly routing the party.

Lieutenant Thos. Adair Butler, 1st Bengal European Fusiliers.—“Of which success the skirmishers on the other side of the river were subsequently apprised by Lieutenant Butler, who swam across the Goomtee, and climbing the parapet, remained in that position for a considerable time, under a heavy fire of musketry, until the work was occupied.”—(Extract of memorandum from Lieut. General Sir J. Outram, 9th March, 1858.)

The Queen placed the Victoria Cross, suspended from a red riband, on the left breast of each officer and soldier.

Their Royal Highnesses Prince Arthur, Prince Leopold, the Princesses Alice, Helena, Louisa, and Beatrice, with the ladies of the Court, witnessed the ceremony.

After the investiture the Queen and Prince Consort, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, passed to the middle of the south side of the Quadrangle, the band occupying the centre of the square. The troops then marched past in slow and quick time, and afterwards quitted the Palace, the band playing “See the conquering hero comes.”

EAST INDIA HOUSE.—Yesterday (Wednesday) a special meeting of the proprietors was held at the East India House, Leadenhall-street, for the purpose of confirming the bye-laws passed at a previous meeting. Colonel Sykes, M.P., the chairman, took the chair at twelve o'clock, and before the clerk read the minutes Mr. Jones objected to there not being sufficient notice given of the meeting, and after some slight conversation Mr. Serjeant Gazelee intimated that there were not twenty proprietors present, upon which the Court was broken up without any business being transacted.

WORKS IN THE HINDUSTANI LANGUAGE,

BY

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

PROFESSOR OF ORIENTAL LANGUAGES IN KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON; MEMBER OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, &amp;c.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

The indisputable superiority of this Series of Works to all others of the same kind having created a demand very far beyond their most sanguine expectations, the Publishers take the opportunity to testify their gratitude for the public favour so unequivocally manifested, by making a considerable REDUCTION IN THEIR PRICES. They are further encouraged to take this step by the consideration of the greatly-increased number of Europeans who will henceforth be located in India, and to whom the possession of these Works may be regarded as indispensable. Serviceable to all, they will be found especially adapted to meet the requirements of Officers of her Majesty's Army serving in India.

DICTIONARY, HINDUSTANI-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-HINDUSTANI. Second Edition, greatly enlarged, and revised throughout. By D. FORBES, LL.D. In One Vol. royal 8vo, price in cloth, £2. 2s.; or, half-bound, £2. 5s. 6d.

* * * This edition of Dr. Forbes's Dictionary contains a greater number of words, with their explanations, than are to be found in any other dictionary in the language; and here, for the first time, the whole of the Hindoo words have been printed in the Devanagari as well as in the Persian characters.

THE ARMIES OF THE GREAT POWERS

(AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA, FRANCE, RUSSIA, ENGLAND).

By LASCELLES WRAXALL.

The information he (Mr. Wraxall) is able to lay before his readers comes rather opportunely at the present hour, when continental ambassadors are summoned from Paris to attend our Cabinet Councils, and every day we hear louder rumours of a general European war. The information that our author is enabled to lay before his readers, though only, perhaps, an approximation to the truth, is particularly valuable at the present time.—Leader.

No work could possibly be more opportune, or more likely to be in general request at the present moment. Mr. Wraxall does not confine himself, indeed, to a simple Homeric catalogue of the forces each State can bring into the field, although even this would be worth knowing on the brink of a general war. He goes far beyond a dull recital of figures, and comments with an air of easy authority on the peculiar characteristics of Austrians, Prussians, English, French, Sardinians, Russians, and Turks. The author appears, moreover, to speak from personal knowledge and experience. He has seen with his own eyes the troops whose good and bad qualities he impartially describes; and during the Crimean war he enjoyed many opportunities of judging from personal observation of the comparative excellence of the forces warring in the Thracian Chersonese. The result is a most useful and compendious work, at all times interesting, but especially so when the question of peace or war is trembling in the balance. No young officer's kit can be considered complete without this key to the relative homicidal properties of the European Powers.—National Standard.

He has certainly given us an apparently complete and concise analysis of the chief European armies, and so far he is entitled to our thanks and approbation.—Literary Gazette.

A very readable and instructive volume. But better than his opinions are his facts. His description of the Austrian, Russian, Prussian, French, Sardinian, and Turkish armies is exact and interesting. He is also very accurate in his delineation of the composition and details of the British and Anglo-Indian armies.—United Service Gazette.

A more reasonable contribution to current literature than Mr. Lascelles Wraxall's account of "The Armies of the Great Powers" cannot be imagined. In an octavo volume he has condensed all the information every one desires to possess on the subject of the armaments of the great military powers—and he is a most reliable guide. Their means of aggression or defence are set forth clearly and perspicuously, and almost at a glance the general reader is enabled to form a correct idea of the relative chances of success in the event of a protracted war. Not only the numerical strength of each army is given, but also the fullest details of its organisation. The different systems of discipline, the dress and accoutrements, the rewards and punishments, and the general internal economy of the European armies, are described in plain language.—Leader Times, March 6.

By Lieutenant-colonel W. HOUGH, Late Deputy Judge-advocate-general, Bengal Army, and Author of several Works on Courts-Martial.

In one thick 8vo. vol., price 25s.

"It would be impossible to over-estimate the utility of this work to members of the military profession as a comprehensive exposition of the law especially applicable to them, and to the practice of military tribunals; and it would be difficult to speak in terms of commendation too high of the manner in which it has been executed."—Morning Chronicle.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT. CONDY'S PATENT CONCENTRATED PURE MALT VINEGAR,

As supplied to her Majesty's Government, the Council of India, the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, the United States Mail Steamers, Prisoners, Poor-law Unions, Hospitals, Public Institutions, the principal Club Houses, &c., &c., is the only Pure Vinegar made or to be obtained; Vinegar, in its ordinary state, is water and poisonous acids. This Vinegar does not contain any impurity or adulterating ingredient whatever. Families, Clubs, Messes, &c., by using this delicious Vinegar, insure purity, and effect a saving of fifty per cent. See reports of Dr. Letheby, City Officer of Health, Dr. Hassall, of the "Lancet" Commission, Dr. Ure, M.D., F.R.S., and many others. Sold in bottles, labelled and capuled, by every Agent, and Wholesale at 63, KING WILLIAM-STREET, LONDON-BRIDGE, E.C.

Six Quart sample sent free to any railway for 3s. 6d. Colonial and Foreign Orders must contain a remittance or reference.

CONDY'S PATENT FLUID; OR, NATURAL DISINFECTANT.

Not only deodorizes but disinfects perfectly, and destroys for ever the cause of infection, is not poisonous, may be used to purify water, evolves no noxious or unpleasant gas, cannot be mistaken for any other fluid, thereby preventing death and disease, gives health, pure air, and fresh water, and is therefore the best, safest, cheapest, and most pleasant disinfectant ever introduced.

This fluid has been examined and reported upon by the Board of Health and all the most eminent medical men and chemists of the day, in all cases in the most satisfactory manner possible.

The public are recommended to use this fluid, properly diluted for use, frequently and habitually in the bath, and as a means of instantly lowering the temperature and purifying the air of apartments, tents, &c.; also for bilge-water, stables, musty casks, sick rooms, close places, &c., as it has numerous advantages, and can be used with certain immediate success and perfect safety.

Sold in Quart Bottles 4s., Pints 2s., Half-pints 1s., and in bulk 10s. per gallon.

Free by rail on receipt of P.O.O. Colonial and Foreign Orders must contain a remittance or reference.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord Clyde, Commander-in-Chief.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.

"Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 19, 1858."
"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

MESSRS. ADDISON and Co., EAST INDIA, ARMY, and GENERAL AGENTS, 11, WATERLOO-PLACE, PALL-MALL.

Captain C. ADDISON, late H.M.'s 59th Regiment, and Captain J. ADDISON, H.M.'s Indian Forces (retired list), beg to inform their friends in the two services, and the Army generally, that they have established the above firm, and trust, by carrying out such business transactions as may be confided to them, in a spirit of honour and plain dealing, and with strict regard to the interests of their clients, to obtain their confidence and support.

BANKING DEPARTMENT.

Investments, and sales of, British, East Indian, and Foreign Securities effected; approved Indian Bills bought and sold; dividends received; advances on property in possession or in expectancy, or on approved personal security; insurances effected, and every information on the subject given.

OUTFIT AND SHIPPING DEPARTMENT.

A list of the Articles REALLY required by Officers and Cadets proceeding to India has been carefully prepared by Messrs. ADDISON from their own long experience as Officers. The estimates of the best London outfitters have been collated; and opposite each article the price which ought to be paid for it, and the name of the tradesman by whom it is supplied of the best quality, are given. This list will be forwarded gratis on application. Parents unable to accompany their sons to town will effect a saving of 10 per cent. by confiding the care of providing their outfit to Messrs. ADDISON.

Parties proceeding to India, either by sailing vessels or the overland route, will have their passages negotiated on the most advantageous terms, and the best accommodation secured. Baggage collected, shipped, and insured. Boxes and parcels for the overland route should reach Messrs. ADDISON on the 1st and 16th of each month.

Indian orders executed, and Produce received on consignment for sale.

The purchase and sale of every description of Property conducted on behalf of parties unable to attend to the same personally.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH. New Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygienic agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygienic system of medicine introduced by James Morison, the Hygeist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.—The family medicine-chest that is furnished with these powerful remedies needs nothing more. Indigestion, general debility, liver complaints, eruptions, sores, wounds, ulcers, and tumours, are infallibly cured by them. They impart tone and vigour to the whole system; the physical powers become light and buoyant; and all fear and despondency pass away, leaving that greatest of earthly blessings—"a sound mind in a sound body." Thousands of persons who have been cured of the above complaints acknowledge this statement to be literally true, and not over-stated. Almost every spot brings well-authenticated cases of cures effected by Holloway's twin remedies, than which nothing can be more soothing, yet powerful, nothing more efficient, yet harmless.—Sold by Professor HOLLOWAY, 244, Strand, London, and by all Medicine Vendors throughout the civilised world.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

THE FOLLOWING IS AN EXTRACT

from the Second Edition (page 188) of the Translation of the Pharmacopœia of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. F. Collier, published by Longman and Co.:—"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of the Pharmacopœia) that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes; yet we know that hæmorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS, which chiefly consist of aloes, scammony, and colocynth, which, I think, are formed in a sort of compound extract, the acidity of which is obliterated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a patent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best made pill in the kingdom; a mucous purge, a mucous purge, and a hydrogogue purge combined, and their effects properly controlled by a dirigent and corrigent. That it does not commonly produce hæmorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The second number of this new candidate for public favour is unquestionably an improvement on the first. This is, in itself, a merit to be appreciated, as it augurs that the organisation on which the future of the "REVIEW" depends has within it the elements of that completeness which can alone ensure stability. We have only space to direct attention to the articles on "Philosophy as an Element of Culture," on "Realistic Novelists," and "Christianity in India;" but we venture to say that the whole number is well worthy of thoughtful consideration. In this addition to our periodical literature there is every mark of careful conduct, and there is every reason in the present number for a prediction that it is destined not merely to an existence, but to a useful and enduring life.—Illustrated London News, April 9, 1859.

The third number of the "UNIVERSAL REVIEW" may be pointed out as an excellent specimen of that which a publication should be—learned, witty, powerful, and occasionally caustic, but always devoid of pedantry, slang, ponderosity, or personality. It may be said to supply a long-existing and widely-felt want in periodical literature. Its politics are Conservative—not the rabid, blatant Toryism which roars and bellows in the pages of certain publications, from Blackwood downwards, but Conservatism of a liberal and comprehensive spirit (the terms are not misapplied), such as guides the principles of many thinking young men of the present day. In their literary likings the conductors of the new "REVIEW" are singularly catholic, welcoming every disciple of any "school" who shows originality and talent. There are ten articles in this month's number; all are readable, and most are interesting, which is saying a great deal. The first article does tardy justice to the memory of a most excellent man, the late Rev. F. W.

Robertson, of Brighton, an earnest, single-minded, clear-headed, upright clergyman, whose life was made a burden to him, and who was hunted to death by the persecutions of his religious brethren, because he pursued his own straightforward course, preaching a healthy doctrine with singular vigour and effect; and because he would not give in to the vagaries of either of the sects whose open conflicts are the disgrace of that hotbed of religious fanaticism in which Mr. Robertson's labours were cast. "Women neither Nice nor Wise" is a well-stricken blow at the noisy trumpeting of the advocates of "Woman's Cause," and comments very sensibly on many of the absurdities prevalent among that class of strong-minded foolish women of which the two ladies who have recorded their travels as "unprotected females" may be taken as types. The writer touches the whole sense of the question when, after mentioning the now-prevalent desire of women for manly employment, he says, "What we now wish our countrymen to believe is this—that it is far more important to the whole world that women should be good wives and mothers than that they should excel in any one art or science, which men can achieve as well as they. If for no other reason than this obvious one, that though men can do at least as well as women in the capacity of doctors, lawyers, &c., yet they could never do at all as wives and mothers." The other pleasant papers in the number, to my mind, are the review of M. Michelet's "L'Amour," and a most sound, judicious and clearly-written article on "French Dramatists and English Adapters." The writer is, however, mistaken, I think, in supposing that critics do not make a point of exposing the origin of any adaptation, if they happen to be acquainted with it.—Literary Lounger in the Illustrated Times, May 7, 1859.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute freedom of suction, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as fitting to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable, is and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the month exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE disaffection of the European troops formerly in the service of the East India Company forms the chief topic of comment in the papers received by the Bombay Mail of the 23rd May. The Commander in Chief appears to have acted on this lamentable occasion with praiseworthy forbearance and moderation. On the first intimation of the unsoldierly conduct of the Bengal Artillery and 2nd Light Cavalry at Meerut, his lordship instantly proceeded thither in person from Simla, and appointed a Special Court of Inquiry to investigate the alleged grievances of the mutineers. There is no doubt that the affair was really serious, and it is stated that quite 400 of the artillery and cavalry had refused to appear on parade. Nor was the spirit of disaffection confined to Meerut. At Lahore, Gwalior, Berhampore, and Allahabad, similar scenes were enacted, and it was known that H.M.'s regiments sympathised to a certain extent with their disorderly comrades of the local army. Lord Clyde himself, it is said, had more than once expressed an opinion in favour of a gratuity being presented to the Company's European troops on their transfer to the Crown. Lord Canning, however, in the true spirit of a doctrinaire, referred the matter to the law-officers of the Government, who at once pronounced the claim of the dissatisfied soldiery to be legally inadmissible. No one disputes the validity of this decision, but it was scarcely a time to enforce the strict letter of the law against men who had fought so gallantly and suffered so much. Greater consideration would assuredly have been paid to the remonstrances of native troops, whose wishes, indeed, would have sufficed to give a loose interpretation to any law.

According to rumour, the Begum and the Nana, with some three hundred followers, have surrendered themselves to two Nepaulese regiments, but this report needs confirmation.

On the Oude frontier there has been some fighting by Brigadier Horsford's force, with the usual result. On the 1st of May Lieut.-Col. Gordon, with a wing of the 1st Sikhs and two companies of H.M.'s 53rd, came up with a party of rebels in the Nanparah jungle, and routed them with considerable slaughter. Two days later another fugitive band was overtaken and severely chastised in the Sonash Valley. In other districts, also, occasional disturbances have taken place, but these have instantly been suppressed by the local police.

The outbreak in the Nuggur Parkur district appears to have been promptly put down by the vigorous action of Colonel Evans, who is now engaged in inquiring into its causes. There is some reason to believe that, but for the rapid advance of the troops, the movement would have assumed alarming dimensions.

It is stated that a conspiracy has been detected at Hyderabad, in the Deccan, having for its object the massacre of all Europeans in the city. Another European regiment is therefore to be despatched thither in all haste.

H.M.'s 78th Highlanders have at length been permitted to sail for England; but the 61st regiment has been sent back to Poona. The 14th Dragoons have also been stopped at Bombay, and despatched to Kirkee.

Since the issue of the last number of this journal, a change has come over the direction of Indian affairs, and Lord Stanley has found a successor in Sir Charles Wood. It remains to be seen whether this change is also an improvement.

BENGAL.

MR. HALLIDAY.

Before the appearance of our next number Mr. Halliday will have ceased to be Lieutenant governor of Bengal. The present seems, therefore, the fitting occasion for a glance at his character and administration. We embrace it the more readily from a feeling that Mr. Halliday has been of late treated with a neglect not usual in India. He leaves the country without even an address, and with a very obvious loss of popularity.

Some portion of this change may be deserved, but a much larger proportion is the result of a most unfortunate and unnatural position. It is quite impossible to read Mr. Halliday's Minutes without finding evidence of a really large sagacious mind, capable of views beyond the exigency of the hour, and free from prejudice to a degree which, in many cases, has impaired the public appreciation of his views. His Minutes on the Police, on Dacoity, on Education, on the Sonthal Rebellion, are masterpieces of analysis. The one on Education is something more, rising into the rank of a very beautiful exposition of a policy as large as the empire, to which, and not to Bengal, it is really addressed. The world is getting very tired of reporting governors, but Mr. Halliday, at first, at all events, strove hard to carry his views into operation. We could not support his Police scheme, but still there it was, a working, intelligible plan, infinitely better than the present one, and ready four years ago. In the two points on which he had partially his own way—the Dacoity Commission and the reorganization of the Sonthal Pergunnahs, his plans succeeded. Had a special judge as well as a special commissioner been appointed for the dacoity, dacoity in Bengal would have been a crime known only to historians. Even we, who are not among the oldest inhabitants, can remember when no man in Hooghly went to sleep without a fear of robbers—when men asked one another who was robbed last night, and the employés of Europeans begged that their wages might be paid in instalments because there was less to lose. A man may sleep on a pillow of rupees now if he pleases, and fear no one but the chowkidar, and the improvement is due mainly to Mr. Halliday. Throughout, we believe, the retiring Lieutenant governor has honestly desired and striven for the benefit of the people—has really hoped to raise them a step in civilisation and comfort.

Unfortunately for his success there is but one position possible for a Lieutenant governor of Bengal. He must be an administrative machine or nothing. Other Lieutenant governors may have views, policies, separate and personal influence. A Governor of Agra may "upset the coach," by repealing revenue laws. Mr. Colvin established an entire educational system of his own. Sir J. Lawrence has repeatedly exercised the highest legislative power. Mr. Plowden does what is right in his own eyes without troubling himself about reports. The Lieutenant governor of Bengal can do none of these things. His immediate superiors know Bengal as thoroughly as himself. They reside in the same capital. They hear all the little tattle which surrounds every petty Court, the complaints of Smith, who has not obtained an appointment; the oburgations of Brown, who has received a "wig." There are personal dislikes to endure, or, what is a great deal worse, exacting friendships to manage. It is easy to say that all this is the fault of the individual. It may be in a degree, for it is difficult to conceive circumstances some individuals cannot overcome. But it is chiefly the fault of the position, and will be as irremediable by Mr. Grant as by Mr. Halliday, by Mr. Beadon as by Mr. Grant. The two powers are too near, and the blunder, against which Mr. Halliday protested, of leaving Calcutta under the Lieutenant governor, brings them into positive collision.

In such circumstances the only course is for the Lieutenant governor to be the administrative agent of the Central Government, have no policy of his own, no energy except for the rapid development and execution of their views. This position Mr. Halliday would never accept, and the consequence has been an apparent lock of the machinery. To take a case the interior history of which is before the public in print—education. Mr. Halliday is really desirous to extend education. So is the Government of India. But so radically different are the policies of the two powers that they bring one another to a stand-still. No amount of energy could make the grants-in-aid work while the Lieutenant governor was convinced of the necessity of laxity, and the Government of India of the advantages of strictness. Energy was wasted in a sterile contest about principles. The Education Despatch has been published six years, and nobody knows yet what are the fixed principles of our State education. It was the same in most other departments; nothing could be done till principles were determined, and the contest on principles never ended. Add to this the unfortunate collision at the beginning of the administration, and its want of result may be easily explained. We do not mean that wretched affair in which envenomed partisans contrived to turn a prick into an ulcer. We allude to the public refusal to proclaim martial law in the Sonthal Pergunnahs. That refusal might or might not be wise. In either case it betrayed a want of confidence in the officer who demanded it, in the highest degree subversive of his authority. It would have been approved in Madras without a word; indeed, was approved in the case of a trumpety movement in China Kimey. The refusal in Bengal proved that the Government of India considered itself not merely a revising authority, but the only real Government of the Presidency.

This same error of position affects the remaining question, the disposal of patronage. Mr. Halliday is accused in the service, not of jobbing but of favouritism, of a disposition to attend first to the claims of two or three families. The charge will be brought against every Lieutenant governor, as long as he is chosen from civilians educated in Bengal. A Lieutenant governor may be a man without family, without connections, with the most iron determination to do his duty. Still there will always be a circle of men whom he knows thoroughly, whom he can trust, and to whom, therefore, he is certain to attend. The fault is inseparable from the position, and is the true argument against local selection, more especially in a country where every man's connection is not so much with an ordinary circle of acquaintance as with one or two clans.

In bidding farewell to Mr. Halliday, we hope yet to see him a Member of the Indian Council. There, released from an embarrassing position, his calm reflective judgment and independent thought will have the freedom impossible to them in Bengal, while his thorough knowledge of the country, and thorough contempt for most of its official traditions, will make him a valuable assistant to the Secretary.—Friend of India.

THE MEERUT AFFAIR.

The following is an official statement of the Meerut affair:—

"Private communications received from Meerut and published in the Calcutta newspapers being calculated to give the public erroneous and exaggerated views of what has occurred at that station with regard to the discontent of the men of the late East India Company's forces at their transfer to the service of the Crown, the following summary of the intelligence which has reached the Government is published for general information.

"A message of the 2nd May, from the general officer commanding the Meerut Division, informed the Government that numerous meetings had been lately held in the Bengal Artillery and Cavalry; that at parade on that morning the old soldiers of the army responded to the appeal of the General and the Commandant of Artillery, and expressed their readiness to serve without stipulation, whilst the behaviour of the whole was perfectly respectful. The message further stated that the discontented men had been relieved from duty, and precautions taken to secure the guns, without, however, removing them from the Artillery.

"This contradicts the private statement published, that 'the guns of the Bengal Artillery were removed;' while of the statement that 'they also gave up their muskets and side arms,' no information has been received.

"The tone of the messages transmitted from Meerut induces the Government to believe that the alleged declaration of her Majesty's 75th Regiment is utterly false; but it is the anxious desire of Government that no collision shall be brought about, and it is the belief of Government that no exertion of force will be requisite to put down the demonstration of misguided feeling, mainly exhibited among the younger portion of the soldiery.

"A Court of Inquiry has been ordered at Meerut, by the Commander-in-Chief, before which the men will have an opportunity of stating their grievances in a soldier-like manner. That there has been extensive combination among the late Company's troops at different stations appears to be established; but there is no indication of violence at Meerut. The latest accounts received, dated from the 4th to the 8th May, represent that matters are quiet.

"At Allahabad there was a show of violence among the young Cavalry on the evening of the 6th, and several shots were fired in the air; but the men were quieted by the efforts of their officers, and a message of the 8th informs the Government that the men remain quiet in their barracks, but declare that they will not work till the question is decided.

"No information has been received regarding the feeling of the troops at Delhi, but the Government has no reason whatever to doubt the loyalty of the 2nd Bengal fusiliers.

"By order.

"R. J. H. BIRCH, Major General,
"Secy. to the Govt. of India."

MEMORANDUM by the Chief of the Staff for the guidance of Major General Bradford, C.B., &c., &c., Commanding the Forces, Meerut Division.

Head Quarters, Kussowlee, 5th May, 1859.
The following order will be published at Meerut in Division Orders:—

1. The Commander in Chief has received a full report of the disquiet that has lately pervaded the minds of some of the men belonging to the Bengal Artillery and 2nd European Cavalry at Meerut.

2. His Excellency is happy to observe that the demeanour of the men towards their officers has been properly respectful.

3. If a soldier has a complaint to make, or considers himself in any manner aggrieved, it is his right to make a proper and respectful representation through the usual channels to superior authority and to ask for redress. But when this representation has been made, the soldier must be at his duty, and he must wait with due deference, patience, and obedience, for the ultimate decision.

4. The Commander in Chief desires that the soldiers of the Bengal Artillery and 2nd Light Cavalry, who have lately been struck off duty, may return to their duty.

5. The Major-General commanding the Division is directed to convene a special Court of Inquiry for the purpose of hearing what every man has to say. The evidence taken will be the fullest possible. Each man in the two regiments will be called upon to state whether he has any grievance, and if so, what that grievance is, and what are the grounds of it. It is only by such means that the Commander-in-Chief can arrive at the real merits of the case, as considered by the men, and in this manner the assurance will be conveyed to them that every man's sentiments will become known to the highest authority, and that due consideration will be given to them.

6. With regard to the question at issue, viz., the transfer to the Crown of the late Company's Army, which has caused the recent excitement, the men will perceive that it affects them in common with their officers, and all the services of the country, including the Civil Service. There is no distinction drawn between any ranks, and they are called on alike to obey an Act of Parliament. But if any party feels himself aggrieved by an Act of Parliament he is at liberty to petition respectfully against it. It is on this ground that His Excellency has ordered the Court of Inquiry, viz., to enable the men who consider themselves aggrieved by the late Act to give expression to their own views, or, in other words, to petition in a soldier like and regular manner, which they understand themselves, against what they consider to be a hardship.

7. The Court of Inquiry will assemble, composed as follows, immediately after the arrival of the Judge Advocate General at Meerut:—

PRESIDENT.—Brigadier Horsford, Bengal Artillery.

MEMBERS:

Col. Huyshe, Bengal Artillery.

Col. Radcliffe, H.M.'s 75th Foot.

Col. Young, the Judge Advocate General of the Army, will conduct the proceedings.

8. The above order will be entered in the Regimental and Company Orderly Books of all the European Corps at Meerut.

W. R. MANSFIELD, Major General,
Chief of the Staff.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NORTH-WESTERN BANK.—The Supreme Court at Calcutta has, on the petition of Colonel Davidson, of Hyderabad, directed the winding up of the affairs of the North-Western Bank, with a view to the dissolution of the company, above one-third of its capital having been lost.

PEACE AND PROSPERITY.—On Monday we had to report that in the first week of the new 5½ per cent. loan, only a lakh and a half had been subscribed, that there is extreme pressure in Bombay, that 4 per cents. are nominal at 72, and 5 per cents. are 83; and on Tuesday we learn for our comfort, that instead of a Financial Commission we are to have "a gentleman versed in finance to fill the office in the Legislative Council vacated by Mr. Peacock;" consolatory, very. Possibly the news of the mails of April and May, when they reach England, may make some slight change in the laudamus which Parliament is singing, in happy unconsciousness of the truth of our position. Meantime, like Mr. Micawber, we can but wait; something may turn up.—Englishman, May 11.

MR. EDWARD CURRIE.—The local press should take no slight shame to itself for having allowed Mr. Currie to depart from this country without the tribute which was due to the career of usefulness which was his. Mr. Currie's long course of public life, as an executive officer, and a legislator, was marked by ability, conscientiousness, industry, and independence. His last effort, however, was his greatest one, and should alone entitle him to the lasting gratitude of the people of this country. We allude, of course, to the Act to amend the law for the recovery of rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, which became law on the 29th April, and which was published in last Saturday's Gazette; perhaps the most important, as it undoubtedly is the most beneficial, measure, which has emanated from the Legislative Council since the establishment of that institution.—Phoenix.

MR. A. SOONCE, late of the Sudder, has been appointed to the Council Board as successor to Mr. Currie.

CLIPPINGS.—In accordance with Mr. Rickett's recommendation, the salary of the Accountant to the Government of Bengal will be reduced from Rs. 3,000 to Rs. 2,500 per mensem, at once.

MR. BEADON.—It is reported that Mr. Beadon is to take the seat in Council vacant by Mr. Grant's promotion, and that Mr. Devereux will succeed him at the Foreign Office.

PASTORAL AID WANTED.—A letter from Fyza bad says:—"You will be surprised to hear that there are close upon 1,600 Europeans here, and not a single chaplain to look after their spiritual welfare—neither Roman Catholic nor Protestant. There is no proper place for divine worship here, certainly, but I am sure we would all be most happy to contribute our mite, and, with a little help from Government, soon be able to erect a temporary edifice. I fear that if we continue much longer without having the sweets and comforts of religion administered to us, we shall be growing oblivious of our duties, alike towards our Creator and fellow-creatures. Pray bring the subject to the notice of the authorities."

THE ARTILLERY AT LAHORE.—On the evening of the 11th May, when the trumpet sounded for drill, a few of the men of the 1st troop 2nd brigade horse artillery refused to turn out. Bourchier and two or three officers were at the band, and on hearing of this they all went to the barracks. The men then immediately turned out. The men of the 4th troop 3rd brigade horse artillery turned out as usual for evening drill. The General then came down, and spoke to the men, and told them he would order a committee to assemble to take down every man's statement. The men were perfectly orderly and respectful. On the morning of the 12th, a committee composed of Brigadier Smith as president, Colonel Boileau, artill., Captain or Major MacMullen, 5th cav., members, and Captain Young, judge advocate, assembled at the artillery mess house, at 8 o'clock and took down the evidence and statements of every man, not in hospital or on duty, in the different troops of horse artillery. Thirty-two men in Bourchier's troop said they were satisfied with the state of things. Thirty-nine men said that as they were not attested to serve the Queen, they thought they were entitled to the volunteering bounty of twenty rupees, or to their discharge. Forty-four men of Blunt's troop said that they were all content to serve her Majesty. The rest, all recruits, with the exception of five young hands, said that they thought they were entitled to their discharge, or to the volunteering bounty of twenty rupees. They said they thought it was the same as exchanging from one regiment to another. Such was the opinion of all the men that objected to her Majesty's service. After this they went to their barracks and have gone through their duties ever since as usual, and as if nothing on earth had happened. Last evening the committee went to the fort to interrogate the Company of Foot Artillery in the fort. The whole of the men but two were content to serve the Queen, and these two were recent transfers. The committee were going the rounds of the "dumplings" this morning. They have been very quiet and orderly. Such is the state of affairs. It was nothing, but perhaps it may be magnified.—Delhi Gazette.

THE NAWAB OF FUERUCKABAD.—We are informed that the Nawab of Furruckabad is very ill. The Begum, one of his favourite wives, has been released by Government, and her confiscated property has been restored.

TAKING IT INTO CONSIDERATION.—We hear from Calcutta that the Council are unanimous that the Nawaub of Futtehghur should be hanged, and have confirmed the judge's sentence, but the viscount is "sitting" on the case, and there is some talk of referring it to England. These delays, for his lordship has had Sirdar Khan, the deputy collector of Banda's sentence of death under consideration since October, are incomprehensible. A friend says, "in furtherance of the official character recently assigned to you, you should order a list of unanswered references of the Gov. gen. to be computed, and issue "takeeds upon them."—Delhi Gazette.

DISAFFECTION OF EUROPEAN TROOPS.—The following is authenticated:—"We hear sad accounts of the 5th European Regiment now being formed at Berhampore. We understand that when on parade on the 4th May, they gave 'Three cheers for the East India Company' and 'Three groans for Mrs. Queen.' All that they got for this was being told, 'Do not disgrace yourselves or behave well,' at which they laughed aloud. Perhaps a change of commanding officer or adjutant might be advantageous."

SEPOY CONVERTS.—We (Lahore Chronicle) hear from Umritsur as follows:—"On Tuesday last six souls were brought to the faith, one of whom was a female, whose husband had been brought into the Christian fold two years ago, and another was a youth, the son of a Moulavee, a Mahomedan teacher and expounder of the Koran. As usual in the Punjab, all the civil authorities attended the ceremony of the baptism of these natives. Mr. Cust, the commissioner, Mr. F. Cooper, the deputy commissioner, Mr. Cordery, and Lieut. John Chalmers, from whose regiment two of these converts came. In days gone by no servants of Government dared to attend on such occasions, because of an indirect prohibition existing; but a new era has dawned over the Punjab, and our officials take heart and act the good part. All this, you will see, has taken place, too, in the great seat of the Sikh religion, and the converts have come from the ranks of the Sikh soldiery."

VINDICATIONS.—We have much pleasure in inserting the following letter:—"To the Editor of the Delhi Gazette.—Sir, I read in your issue of Thursday, May 12th, an extract from the Englishman, purporting to be an account of the late occurrence at Meerut, which is not only incorrect as to the facts, but most injurious to the character of the regiment which I have the honour to command. Instead of the 75th regiment having only 700 men, I beg to state that there are at present at head quarters 1,065, not to be surpassed in good conduct or loyalty by any regiment in Her Majesty's service, and I unhesitatingly affirm that they are ready and willing to a man to obey every order they receive, and to perform any duty that may be imposed upon them. I trust, therefore, that you will, in justice to the regiment, insert this letter in your next issue, and I have the honour to be sir, your obedient servant, W. RADCLIFF, Lieut. Col., commanding 75th regiment."

We also insert another letter from a commander, jealous, and rightly so, of his men's reputation. We are very glad to hear that we were misinformed about the behaviour of Major Light's battery; the good conduct of the men while they were stationed here made us unwilling to believe that they would do anything to cause them to forfeit the good character they have always borne hitherto. To the Editor of the Delhi Gazette. Sir,—In your paper of yesterday you say, with reference to the feeling of excitement generally prevailing among the troops of the late E.I.C., "It seems that a similar spirit has manifested itself at Gwalior, among the 3rd European Regiment, and a portion of the Artillery." As commanding the Bengal Artillery here, I must contradict your statement. The spirit which moved some of my men to petition against what they consider an infringement of their rights as British born subjects is entirely dissimilar to that which prevails in the 3rd European regiment. My men have never disobeyed an order, refused to parade, or in any way deviated from that good conduct they have ever maintained since I have had the honour to command them, and so they were told in a complimentary speech by Brigadier Sir Charles Stewart, K.C.B., after an inspection of the battery on Friday evening last. Soldiers expect their commanding officer to guard their good name as he would his own; therefore, I shall feel obliged by your publishing this letter.—Your obedient servant, ALFRED LIGHT, Major commanding No. 21 Bengal Light Field Battery. Gwalior, 15th May, 1859.—Delhi Gazette.

MR. GRAY is to receive Company's Rs. 50,000 per annum, as a consolidated salary for the secretarship and postmaster-generalship, until further orders.

CAMP SECORA, OUDE, April 30.—For some time past several small parties of rebels have been dodging about in the different jungles in this neighbourhood, having been driven this way by the approach of General Grant from Fyzabad. On the morning of the 27th, a force consisting of four squadrons of the bays, and two guns of Major Soady's battery, royal artillery, marched from here to the Bungaon jungles, about ten miles north-east of this, where the rebels, numbering from 400 to 500 men, under Ghazadar Singh, were reported to be lurking about. A force from Gonda, consisting of 400 of her Majesty's 53rd, two guns of the royal artillery, and a party of Sikh cavalry, commanded by Captain Jones, also advanced on the same place, to co-operate with the force from here—the whole under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Walker, Queen's bays. When we arrived there, we found the rebels still in the jungles, a ruined fort being their stronghold pro tem. The 53rd very soon drove the niggers out of their hiding places, while the cavalry, who were patrolling outside the jungles, were biding their time to act. Very little, however, could be done, on account of the denseness of the jungle, which favoured the flight of the rebels; but the Sikhs, headed by Captain Jones, got into the middle of some of them, and disturbed them considerably. Altogether it was a very successful little affair. About a hundred rebels were accounted for, among whom was their leader, Ghazadar Sing, whose body was found and recognised inside the fort, having evidently been struck by a piece of a shell. A very handsome tulwar was taken of him, which I believe was bought by an officer of the bays. They have now all completely dispersed from this part of the country, and are supposed to be making their way towards the hills again. I fear much there is every reason to believe that we shall be out during the hot season, as of course these rebels will have to be watched and prevented breaking across again. P.S.—Our loss, seven, of the 53rd wounded, and some nine or ten Sikhs. Some horses also hit. To this we may add that Capt. Vaughan's column, when it arrived at Hurkapore on the 28th April found that a party of rebels was not far off to the south. Capt. Vaughan, accordingly, went out and attacked them, killing some twenty, and capturing an elephant and some arms and horses, the routed rebels having, as usual, betaken themselves to the jungles about Chittoonee. A subedar of the late Oude irregular force, who had surrendered to Capt. Vaughan previously, is reported to have given that officer some important information. His name is Dowlut Ram, and he is said to have named two other native officers who were exerting their influence in inducing the rebels to surrender, and it was thought likely that they would succeed to a very large extent, especially with the sepoy of the late Oude irregular force, who all seemed anxious to give up the game. Dabee Bueens, the Raja of Gonda, was at Deoghur, but it is not said whether there was any large number of rebels with him. Bancee Madhoo is said to be in a place called Dang, with from 150 to 200 followers. There were some other chiefs along with him, whose desire to surrender had become evident. These were Jodh Singh, Kullun Khan, and Hurdutt Sahai of Bhoondee. We have lately heard of the two new leaders, Bellee and Balkurrun, as being at the head of some 500 rebels (sepoys) in some pass north of Bhingah. We also hear that Bala Rao, with some 10,000 men, of whom 300 or 400 are said to be cavalry, is encamped to the south of Bootwal, near the fort of that name. Mummoo Khan is supposed to be with this force, the sepoy portion of which is commanded by one General Joowalla Pershand. And most strange to say, the whole are fed by the Nepalese! But the most glorious piece of news, and which may be almost implicitly relied on, is, however, that the Nana and his family, with the Begum, and about 300 personal followers, are prisoners in the hands of the Nepalese regiments in the fort of Ninkote or Niakilla, a little to the north of Bootwal. A day or two before Captain Vaughan's affair, on the 20th, we believe, Major Murray, with 300 of the 7th and 20 Punjab infantry, and a squadron of the Jat horse, attacked the Nusseerabad brigade, under Gunga Singh and Dabee Singh. The rebels are said to have numbered about 1,500 infantry and 200 cavalry, and were posted in a strong position on the left bank of the Koanee nullah. They were defeated, routed and driven into the jungle across the nullah, leaving unmistakable evidence of their severe loss behind. Lucknow Herald.

EUROPEAN TROOPS AT ALLAHABAD.—The example set by the European troops of the late company at Meerut, in endeavouring to obtain a settlement of their claims for their discharge, and bounty on re-enlistment, has been followed at Allahabad, and during the past week there have been unmistakable manifestations of discontent and insubordination among the men of the light cavalry and 4th Europeans. These proceedings have been variously described in the station, and a great many exaggerated reports have naturally obtained circulation, which the "own correspondents" of the journals will probably do justice to. For those of our readers, however, who prefer to such stimulating mental food a mere record of things as they are, we offer the following, which, after a great deal of sifting of impossible and improbable statements, we may venture to recommend as reliable. On Friday evening the notification of the Governor-General, announcing the decision of the home authorities against the claims of the soldiers, was read to the 4th Europeans on parade. It was received without any manifestation of feeling, and the men quietly dispersed to their barracks. At about nine o'clock some symptoms of disturbance became manifest. A noise of voices was heard, and some shots were fired in the lines. The officers of the regiment thereupon proceeded to their respective companies, and endeavoured to ascertain the cause of such unusual proceedings. The men listened respectfully to the remonstrances made, and offered no violence, but they plainly declared that they had a grievance and would have it redressed. The cause of their discontent was, as had been suspected, the communication which had been made to them. The disorder continued for some time, and it was remarked that the most noisy of the men were under the influence of liquor. By eleven o'clock, however, the men appeared to be tired of keeping up an excitement which seemed to have no immediate object in view, and gradually retired to their cots. On the following morning everything was quiet, and the ordinary duties of the day—orderly room, &c.—were gone through as usual. The peace continued throughout the day; and at about one o'clock Sir John Inglis, to whom a summons had been sent through the telegraph, arrived in the station by train. At five o'clock a parade of the regiment was ordered, when the major-general, accompanied by the assistant adjutant general, the brigadier, and the brigade major, appeared on the ground. Sir John Inglis then delivered an address to the men, telling them that he had come from Cawnpore solely to listen to any complaints which they might have to make, and he pledged himself that he would forward such complaints to the Commander in Chief, who would see justice done, but who would never approve of any unsoldier-like way of urging their grievances. Some of the men upon this fell out, and explained the nature of their demands; but as it was considered better that they should be received in writing, it was ultimately arranged that a certain number of men from each company should attend orderly room on the following morning, and their complaints be formally taken down. The men were then dismissed, retiring peaceably, nor was there any recurrence of the disorderly scenes that night. On Sunday morning a special orderly room was held as arranged, and the statements of several men from each company were received. They were all to the same effect, and a repetition of the same arguments which have been so often heard. It did not appear that the main object of the men was to get their discharge for the purpose of leaving the service, — they were ready to serve their Queen and country many of them said, — but they claimed the option of re-enlisting or not as they pleased, and the payment of the bounty as their right. In the afternoon a parade was again ordered, and Sir John Inglis again addressed the men, expressing his high satisfaction at the manner in which he understood from their officers they had conducted themselves since the previous day, and assuring them that their representations had been despatched to the Commander-in-Chief, who was then at Kussowlie, and from whom he had just received a telegram, dated that morning, stating that the case would be submitted to Government without delay. The men again dispersed peaceably, and since then, up to the latest accounts that have reached us, seem to be waiting patiently for the decision of the Governor General, with whom, as may be supposed, a constant communication is maintained by telegraph. The regular duties of the regiment are all gone through, and the demeanour of the men is generally steady and respectful. This was sufficiently manifest at the several parades, where nothing occurred to distinguish them from ordinary occasions of the kind. In the meantime the men of the 1st European Light Cavalry had been making similar demonstrations. Indeed, it is stated that they took the lead in this respect, and that they commenced rioting on Thursday, on which day they had seen a copy of the notification. Since that time their conduct had been systematically irregular and insubordinate, so much so as to require that a careful watch should be placed over them. After leaving the 4th, Sir John Inglis proceeded to visit their lines, a parade having been previously ordered. He made an address to them similar to that delivered to the 4th, and with much the same amount of success. The men showed no disrespect, and were content to wait until the decision of the Governor General should be known. On the same evening Sir John paraded the Bengal horse artillery now in the station (half troop, 2nd troop, 2nd brigade), and his address to the men was met in a very satisfactory manner. They disclaimed any sympathy with or participation in the movement, and it is due to them to state that their general conduct has justified the assertion. We have not heard of any irregularities being laid to their charge, and now that Tomb's troop has been cleared from the aspersions cast upon it, it may be expected that the Bengal artillery will not incur the reproach of having shared in these unsoldier-like proceedings. The week has passed away, pending the decision of the Governor General, without any great excitement, though some uneasiness is of course felt, and even alarm, by foolish persons, who are to be found everywhere. There has been some disorderly conduct at night, now and then, but nothing worth particularising, except on Wednesday night, when a collision took place between a non-commissioned officer and two of the cavalry men—the former interfering in the cause of order, and it is believed in self-defence—in the course of which one of the men was killed (shot by a revolver) and the other severely wounded. The General returned to Cawnpore at the beginning of the week, and re-visited Allahabad on Thursday, when a parade was ordered of the late Company's European troops in the station, each in their own lines, for the following morning. It is due to the men who have been so ill-advised and imprudent as to take this mode of obtaining their objects, to state that they are generally among the youngest enlisted. The old soldiers generally know better, and have nothing to say to the proceedings.—New Times, May 11.

SHAJEHANPORE, April 13.—No news of importance here, but letters from Lucknow express strong hopes that the Nana will be speedily captured, and state that there is no doubt of his having with him a girl of ten years old, the daughter of a deputy collector, of whom he is very fond. There are also two European women with him.

MR. C. J. WINGFIELD has been appointed chief commissioner of the province of Oude.

FUTTEGHUR, May 10.—Mooltan Khan's case came on for trial on the 7th, and lasted until today. He is charged with being a leader and instigator of rebellion. This charge is brought home against him by the evidence of credible witnesses produced against him on the part of Government. The Special Commissioner sentenced him to nine years' imprisonment or transportation beyond the seas; but this sentence will not be executed until its confirmation by Government. Mooltan Khan's defence chiefly consists in the statement that he saved Mr. Edwards, C.S., and his companions' lives when on their way to Futteghur a few days previous to the mutiny at that place. He is a member of the Mow Nawab's family, and collected by force about two lakhs of rupees from the citizens who have now come forward to give evidence against him. It is proved that he took an active part in the rebellion. He commanded the rebels at the battle of Puttiallee, and was concerned in the murder of Chobi Ghunsam Doss, but there is no evidence to prove this charge against him. The documentary evidence is sufficient to convict him of rebellion, but the Special Commissioner for form's sake examined several witnesses. The Special Commissioner's departure is universally felt by the community at large, especially by his servants, who have experienced innumerable instances of kindness. Shah Zuman Khan, another rebel, is released. Morad Ali Khan, the late Nazim of Etawah, will be transported for life. These sentences will not be carried out till they are confirmed by Government. Mooltan Khan's defence was taken into consideration by the Special Commissioner, and therefore a mitigated sentence was passed.—Delhi Gazette.

RAJAH OF MORARMOW.—Lieut. Col. S. A. Abbott has addressed the following letter, dated Lucknow, 30th April, to the Delhi Gazette, requesting the editor to receive subscriptions up to the 1st July:—"It is known to all that a few of our countrymen, after escaping from the Cawnpore massacre, landed on the Oude territory, and were inhumanly assailed by the followers of the rebel Talookdar Rambuksh. Surrounded by them, our countrymen, about eight in number, defended themselves for some hours in a small Hindoo temple; but at last, driven out by the smoke of a fire kindled at the entrance, they desperately cut their way to the Ganges, and, as the sole means of escape left, plunged into the river. Captains Thompson and Delafosse, with Privates Murphy and Sullivan, reached the neighbourhood of Morarmow, and being beckoned to by a man on the bank, landed, when their strength was almost exhausted. To their surprise they found that the Rajah of Morarmow had expressly instructed his tenantry to look out for Europeans, and to give them every possible aid. Accordingly, they were escorted to the Rajah, who received them with respect and consideration, treated them with great kindness for several weeks, and eventually sent them in safety to the British Camp. Now it must be remembered that the Rajah of Morarmow was in those days by no means a powerful Talookdar, or a man who had in any way benefited by the British Government, and further that our rule was then believed to have passed away for ever. The Government has liberally rewarded his loyalty; but it is thought that the countrymen of those whom he succoured in their extremity would like to testify their admiration of so noble a deed. With this view this notice is circulated and subscriptions are invited. A committee will be held at Lucknow to decide on the nature of the present to be offered to the Rajah.

PHILLIBET, May 12.—The force under Colonel Smyth has broken up on account of the troops suffering so much from sickness; the detachment of the 42nd highlanders has returned to Bareilly, and the battery of horse artillery and Rohilound horse are at present encamped here. Should the rebels now try to escape across the Sirdah they will still find our patrols ready to give timely warning to the troops here. The weather in the day is very warm, but the mornings and evenings are very pleasant.

MEERUT, May 10.—Colonel Johnson, the Assistant-Adjutant General of Artillery, who has already had an interview with the Commander-in-Chief in the matter of the disputed bounty, left this on Saturday for Calcutta, to consult the Governor General. A Court of Inquiry assembled here yesterday, and was continued today, but the particulars are a perfect secret. This Court is likely to continue for some time; the details of inquiry involve so many intricate questions that only two men passed their examination yesterday. On Tuesday Colonel Johnson returned from head-quarters, having passed the chief at Kussowlie on his way down; the latter, however, retraced his steps from that place, having been assured by the daily telegraph from this that his presence was not required. The men behaved most correctly throughout, and were released from confinement to barracks on Saturday, by order from the Commander-in-Chief, who addressed a general order to the men upon their improper conduct, and ordered a Court of Inquiry to record their imaginary grievances.

MORE NICE THAN WISE.—The Englishman has heard that a civil servant, holding a lucrative appointment, has refused to accept promotion to a higher, because, in consequence of the reduction about to be effected in the salaries of persons taking offices in future, he would be a loser. The Governor General has ruled that in such cases no further promotion can be given to the recusant incumbent, who must consider his present appointment to be for the remainder of his term of service.

DEFEAT OF OUDE REBELS.—From Camp Bhirtapore via Gonda, 30th April, 1859. From Brigadier Horsford, to Calcutta, to Military Secretary to Government. "Followed the rebels to prevent their collecting boats and crossing the Kowaralla river into Khyraghur jungles. Surprised between 2,000 and 3,000 cavalry and infantry under Oomrao Singh, between Kowrialla and Gurivar river, at their junction. Dispersed rebels, with loss of upwards of 200 men. Oomrao Singh, with 200 sowars and 100 infantry, escaped towards the hills. Casualties not numerous. No European officer wounded."

JHANSI, May 13.—If this place is to become a permanent post for European troops it must acquire a better character for healthiness. The 92nd Highlanders have a large number of men in hospital with fever, and there are a number of cases of Guinea-worm. The men who had remained under canvas seemed to stand the climate better than those who are under more substantial cover. Two days ago the civil authorities hanged Gunga Dhur Marhatta, one of the choice spirits of Jhansi in the three days of the outbreak and massacre. His share in the business was the murder of Mr. T. Andrews, the P. S. Ameen. This gentleman had at dawn descended from the fort wall by a rope, disguised as a native, but being of a peculiarly spare figure, and his features being known to every inhabitant of the place, there was little chance of his avoiding discovery. This Gunga Dhur, a retainer of the Ranee's, recognised him as he approached the palace and cut him down. There are accounts of parties of rebels having appeared at three separate points of this division, but very little interest attaches to their movement.

GHOLAM MAHOMED.—The Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India has been pleased to sanction a pension of twenty-five rupees per mensem to Gholam Mahomed, late Moonshee, in the service of Captain Edward Connolly, who was killed in the Kohistan of Cabul. Gholam Mahomed served formerly in one of the irregular cavalry regiments, and subsequently accompanied Captain Todd's mission to Herat in 1839, and returned thence with Captain Connolly to Cabul. The pension will have effect from the 28th February, 1859, the date on which Lord Stanley's despatch was received in India.

MAJOR FLOWDEN, late in command of a police corps, has been appointed private secretary to Mr. Grant.

H.M.'s 73RD REGIMENT.—A letter from H.M.'s 73rd regiment, dated Camp Parah, three miles from Chillian, 11th May, states that on the march from Banssi to Chillian they met a party of Sikhs escorting about a hundred puka sepoy (sowars), who, it is said, gave themselves up at the latter-named place. A rumour is afloat that another 200 have also given themselves up at the same place. The regiment was to halt for a day, and then continue its march to Chillian; it is believed that it will go into the jungles, and it is expected that it may have a brush with the enemy. Thermometer one day rose to 102° in tents, but mornings and evenings still continue pretty cool.

CAWNPORE, May 14.—Everything is most exorbitant in price here, even Calcutta articles being dearer than at Agra, and the natives seem to have established a very pretty "nirik" of their own, which no one thinks of interfering with. Even Government coin is not excluded. Fifteen annas to the rupee is the utmost you can expect. A more insolent set of scoundrels I have never met; here, too, of all places in the world! I went the other day to visit the well here; to the disgrace of Government be it said that, although nearly two years have elapsed since the murders were committed, they have left it to a few men of the 32nd Regt. and a poor sergeant of artillery to erect the only monument that marks the spot where our countrymen and countrywomen were buried. This is a melancholy place. The Commissary general has been ordered suddenly down to Calcutta; it must be something important, or they would not send for him in this weather.

TANTIA TOPEE.—As some discussion has lately taken place with regard to the share taken by Tania Topee in the Cawnpore atrocities, we (Delhi Gazette) are enabled to clear up the point by stating that ample evidence is in the possession of the authorities to show that Tania Topee, under the order of the Nana, was one of the most conspicuous characters among the chiefs concerned in the massacre. One witness was close by him at the ghat when he gave the order for the bugle to be sounded which was the signal for the onslaught. Tania was also with the Nana in a house close to the slaughter-house. The latter with Teeka Sing, Jwala Pershad, Bala Rao, and others, gave the orders, and induced their followers to commit the murders. The worst of all, however, was Bala Rao, the Nana's brother. Our informant adds, "Don't think that I am offering any excuse for the Nana, he was bad enough, but his brother was the incarnate fiend."

THE KING OF OUDE is now permitted to correspond with his relations at Lucknow, his letters being forwarded through Government.

OODDY PERTAB BAHADOOR SING, Rajah of Nugur in Gorruckpore, has been convicted of being accessory after the fact to the murder of five British officers, and of being a leader in rebellion. Sentenced to transportation for life.

ROORKEE, April 27.—A Mr. Hoskins, one of the gentlemen belonging to the new iron works at Nynce Tal, and here on business, was knocked down yesterday as he was going to the workshops by a native fanatic, who attacked him with a club, and would have finished him had he not been seized. The rascal was evidently waiting on the bridge for the first European on whom to exercise his religious zeal. The beggar ought to be hanged. Hoskins is a little better. The prisoner pretends to be mad.

THE HON. BARNES PEACOCK has been appointed vice-president of the council of India for making laws and regulations.

MONEY GRANTS.—The policy of commuting money grants for religious purposes in Bengal and Madras has been fully carried out, and the Secretary of State for India has ordered that it shall be everywhere enforced, by giving land of equal value.

SMALL CAUSES COURTS.—The Bill before the Legislative Council for the establishment of Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts of Judicature has passed through committee, with some amendments.

MADRAS.

THE ENDOWMENTS OF MADRAS.

The question of the separation of Government from the great religious endowments has again become prominent at Madras. As to the principle at issue there exists at that Presidency a tolerably general consensus of opinion. The custody of temples and the charge of the endowments are to be left to those whom they concern. The special aid hitherto afforded will be withdrawn, and the temple properties placed like all other properties under the guardianship of the law. In practice, however, one very serious difficulty arises. The temples must be transferred to somebody, and that somebody must have a continuing existence. Some of the sacred lands and funds have always been managed by corporations, families, bodies of Brahmans, founders' kin or others. In such cases a settlement is a simple affair. They receive by law the power they now enjoy in practice, and Government retires. In many other cases, however, more especially in some of the richer foundations, Government has so directly interfered that no element of personal proprietorship remains. In such cases who are to be trustees? One party wish the point to remain unsettled, Government simply retiring, and leaving the deities to look after their own. That plan, however logical, in the present state of opinion cannot be easily accomplished. It is considered unjust even by men who utterly repudiate the propriety of official connection with idolatry. In practice there would be a grand scramble for the plunder, with no improvement either of the morals, the superstitions, or the obedience of the people. Anarchy is not an institution for Governments to create, and even if such a course were permissible, opinion in Madras would reject it. Another plan is to make the trustees elective. The city or the village, or a union of villages, or an electoral district might elect, and public opinion would keep the trustees moderately within limits. That plan however involves, among other things, a very extensive and objectionable form of bribery. Either the managers would spend part of the revenues in buying the electors, or, and much more probably, they would make themselves popular by festivals and ceremonies to which only electors would be admitted without offerings. Our business, whatever else it may be, is not to popularise Hindooism in that fashion. The true course, as it seems to us, is a modification of the "audhikaree" system, as it prevails in Bengal. Place every foundation under hereditary guardianship, and enable anyone of the same sect, or of founder's kin, or "for whose benefit the foundation may reasonably be thought to have been established," to prosecute for breach of trust. Somebody is sure to do it, or if not, then the foundation has no hold on the people which should prevent its becoming secularised. Such a scheme would be wholly in accordance with native ideas. The ancient rulers were always creating hereditary guardians. There is no injustice done, for a responsible manager is created, and a constituency able to enforce responsibility. At the same time the great end is obtained—the absolute disavowance of Christians from the ceremonies and worship of Vishnu and Seewa.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYDERABAD.—News from Hyderabad tells us that a great conspiracy has been detected in the city, to massacre all the Europeans. The popular belief is that Colonel Davidson has received instructions to the effect that he may take the Nizam and Salar Jung under his protection, and bombard the city. A better thing could not happen. A nest of greater cutthroats and villains never existed than those that reside in Hyderabad.—Delhi Gazette.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—We regret to learn from the Indian Field that Captain Young, of the Madras Rifles, has met with a severe accident in the vicinity of Shergotty. He went out shooting, a Cooly carrying a gun. They came on the fresh marks of a tiger, which they followed up; whilst doing so, the Cooly saw the tiger ahead through a small lane in the jungle; he immediately ran into another part of the jungle, leaving Captain Young to encounter the beast alone. The tiger sprang on Captain Young, and getting hold of his right arm above the elbow, broke the bone in two places with one shake. The impetus of the brute threw the Captain down, when his gun must have gone off, as it was afterwards found empty. The tiger left the Captain, when he managed to get up and walk to a village about a mile off, from whence he was taken into Shergotty, and now lies in a dangerous state. The wounds inflicted by the brute are frightful. It was fortunate that Captain Young managed to leave the spot, for it was found, by subsequent examination, that the tiger had returned, expecting, no doubt, to find his prey still there.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—It is with very deep regret that we have to announce a sad accident, attended with fatal consequences, which took place at this station on the evening of Monday last. Mr. Joseph Burghall, senior, the principal of the firm of Messrs. Burghall and Co., left his new stables now being erected beyond the Arab lines, on the evening of the above mentioned day, mounted on an Arab colt he had recently purchased from Abdoolah. He went first to Ali Askir's stables, where, finding the animal fresh and restive, he got him ridden by a native rough-rider, who advised Mr. Burghall not to ride the colt, as his mouth was not formed. But the old man, having been a splendid rider in his youth, forgot that his present advanced age of nearly seventy years made a difference in his physical powers, and persisted in riding the colt to the Promenade. On reaching the Post office, it appears the horse took fright, and ran away in the direction of the United Service Hotel. The rider was seen to keep his seat firmly till he reached Captain Pearce's house, when the excited animal rushed into the compound and dashed him against a tree. Poor Mr. Burghall fell senseless. Assistant surgeon Pearce was with him in two or three minutes, and every means was used both by the doctor and his kind hearted brother Captain Pearce to restore consciousness and alleviate suffering. As his thigh bone was found to have been entirely fractured, he was put on a sofa and carried home. Doctors Paterson, Kirkpatrick, and Pearce set the limb, but at eleven o'clock the same night he breathed his last. It was found subsequently that three ribs on the right side were broken, and it is supposed that the shock produced from the contact with the tree must have caused some serious injury internally, which, added to the other apparent causes, resulted in death.—Bangalore Herald.

DEFENCES OF MADRAS.—Fort St. George at Madras is tumbling to pieces, and has to be repaired or rebuilt. This fact seems to be taken for granted, though the way of re-edifying is the subject of discussion. The revised estimated cost of this work is above eleven lakhs of rupees, and that is a large sum to spend in these days on ancient fortifications. The sea-face, however, may be rebuilt on Colonel Cotton's plan for Rs. 1,80,000. Colonel Cotton recommends an improvement in the construction of the sea-face of the fort, which he would form of an earthen rampart, considerably lower than the present masonry parapet, and armed with a battery of eighty heavy guns. The Governor and the Commander in chief approve of Colonel Cotton's plan, which, apart from its military advantages, possesses that of admitting the sea-breeze to the interior of the fort, from which the old-fashioned masonry parapet has hitherto excluded it, greatly to the detriment of the health of the European troops in garrison. Sir Charles Trevelyan goes into the project with enthusiasm. He wants three hundred Armstrong guns from England, two hundred or so for Fort St. George, and the rest for the defence of the coast.

posed) before he gave his first deposition, and as defendant stated he only received Rs. 3, he thought it well to say Rs. 3 paid." Here were two men, the plaintiff and his witness, clearly guilty of the most flagrant perjury; and we should, under a proper state of the law and its administration, have expected to read that the judge had at once handed them up to be tried for that offence. Instead of this, we are told that "his honour observed that the case savoured much of perjury, and that the defendants, if they liked, could take legal measures against the plaintiff and his witness for perjury." We may safely predict that the defendants will not like to take legal measures. They are press-readers in a printing-office, and not likely to be able to afford such a luxury, or even to know how to set about the business. They will not prosecute the Marwarees, we may be sure. And is open, impudent perjury, committed before one of her Majesty's courts of justice, to enjoy complete impunity because two poor men cannot, or will not, prosecute the offenders? From the nonchalant way in which Mr. Manockjee Cursetjee spoke of the matter, this seems very likely. We should not judge from what he said that he had any intention to move in the matter, or even to bring it to the notice of the proper judicial authorities. Yet it would seem to be peculiarly the office of the judge to vindicate the purity and honour of his own court by taking care that such affronts offered to it should be duly avenged. Perjury is the predominant offence in this country, and the natives, so much given to it, hardly regard it as an offence at all, although it lies at the roots of innumerable social evils and poisons the springs of justice. If we find it so lightly passed over by the very judges in whose presence it is committed, how are we to expect that it will ever be eradicated?—Bombay Gazette.

OUR LAW SCHOOL.—The Law Professors have forwarded to the Director of Public Instruction a report of their classes for the year 1858-59, from which it would appear that the number of students on the rolls of the Jurisprudence and Law classes, at the close of the session, was forty-one. Of these, fourteen were "candidates," who attended the lectures in Jurisprudence only; and the remaining twenty-seven Law students, most of whom attended some of the lectures in Jurisprudence, in addition to the proper work of their respective years. Of the fourteen candidates, ten came direct from the Elphinstone College, four being of the fourth year, and six of third year standing; and four others joined as paying Students. Of the Law Students, properly so called, there are two classes; the junior, consisting of students who, after attending for at least one session the lectures of the Perry Professor in General Jurisprudence, proceed to study of the Common Law, in its three great branches of Contracts, Torts, and Crimes; and the senior, which, during the past session, consisted of two divisions, both of which attended Professor Reid's lectures in Judicial Evidence and Procedure, and the upper division only Professor Hoare's lectures on the Principles of Equity. The junior law class, while attending Professor Hoare's lectures on Contracts and Mercantile Law on Tuesdays, attended Professor Reid's on Saturdays in Delicts and Criminal Law. They also attended Professor Reid's Jurisprudence lectures on Thursdays. The other Jurisprudence lecture on Mondays, being of a more elementary character, was intended solely for the candidates. It would appear that the diligence of the law students during the session was deserving of commendation; though there is still room for improvement as regards punctuality of attendance. Ten Parsee students attended the lectures, and one Christian; the remaining thirty were Hindoos of various castes. The classes are usually examined early in June; after which the studies of the new session commence.

—Bombay Gazette.

EXPORT OF OPIUM.—The P. & O. Co.'s steamer Aden, Captain J. Bernard, which left Bombay for China on the 16th May, took 907 chests of Malwa opium.

A SWINDLER.—We learn that an individual, who lately established himself as a trader in Hummum Street, Fort, under the fictitious style of Messrs. Henry Montague, Rains, and Co., chandlers, commission and general agents, has absconded to the Mauritius, after having defrauded several traders of their goods to the extent of some Rs. 40,000. He managed to obtain the goods by giving cheques, payable at a certain date, upon several of the local banks, where he had no funds at all, and which were of course dishonoured.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS IN BOMBAY.—Four officers and 129 men of H.M.'s 61st regt., under the command of Captain Thurston, arrived here on the 12th May by the ship Perekop, from Kurrachee, which port she left on the 9th. The left wing of the 8th regt. N.I. arrived at the presidency on the 14th from Surat, in H.M.'s steamer Prince Arthur. 182 rank and file of H.M.'s different regiments arrived at the presidency on the 17th by the ship Bloomer, Capt. C. F. Smith, from Kurrachee. A detachment of 240 men of the 13th N.I., under the command of Capt. Groube, left Bombay on the 18th by train en route to Neemuch. H.M.'s 78th highlanders embarked on the 18th instant on board the ships Caroline Coventry and Mary Shepherd for England. The first division of H.M.'s 61st foot, consisting of 17 officers, 367 men, 23 women, and 38 children, left Bombay for Poona by train on Friday, the 20th; and the second division, consisting of 6 officers, 348 men, 14 women, and 18 children, with 82 followers, on Saturday. One hundred rank and file of the 8th regiment N. I. proceeded by rail on the 21st to Poona, en route to Sattara, and the remaining portion, consisting of 4 European officers, and 371 men, left for the same station on the 22nd. H. M.'s 14th light dragoons is directed to proceed to Kirkee in two divisions, the first of which will leave the Presidency by train on the 24th, and the second on the following evening. A private letter from Kurrachee states that three companies of H.M.'s 64th regiment are under orders to proceed to Hyderabad in Scinde forthwith, were they will remain for the present, with the detachment of the 1st European Bombay fusiliers on duty there. This is with the view of strengthening the place, consequent on the row connected with the formation of the telegraph line.

H.M.'s 14TH DRAGOONS.—The banquet proposed to be given to this distinguished regiment has been rendered impossible by the destruction of the decorations by a storm, and the advanced period of the season. The Committee of Management have, therefore, sent home the sum of 150 guineas to be laid out in the purchase of books for the soldiers' library.

THE NUGGUR PARKUR DISTURBANCE.—The electric telegraph has been restored as far as Nuggur Parkur, and will be speedily completed up to the portion of the Deesa line which is uninjured, and we shall then be again in uninterrupted telegraphic communication with Bombay. The total length of the line destroyed by the rebels was about twenty-four miles. Lieut. Colonel Evans telegraphed on the 12th instant that "the district was quite quiet," and the fugitive population returning fast to their homes. The leaders had fled almost without followers, and were supposed to be between Boyatra and Wadgaon. It is clear their intentions were more mischievous than was at first supposed. A native schoolmaster, who was a prisoner with them for some time, and who afterwards escaped to Cutch, states, that when consulting together after the outbreak, the leaders congratulated themselves that in consequence of the paucity of troops at Hyderabad and Deesa, and their total absence from Cutch, it would be certainly six or eight months before any force could move against them. But the rapid advance of troops from all three stations appears to have quite disconcerted their plans.

BRIGADIER HALE, has, we hear, been appointed to the command of the 1st class brigade at Kurrachee, and will be succeeded in the command of the Poona brigade and station by Colonel Sutton, of H.M.'s 31st Regiment of Foot.

DEATH OF A PARSEE MERCHANT.—We regret to record the demise of Manockjee Nusserwanjee Petty, Esq., a justice of the peace, and a distinguished member of the Parsee Punchayet. The melancholy event occurred on Sunday morning, the 22nd May, about three o'clock, at his residence in the fort, in his fifty-eighth year. The deceased had been ailing for some time; and his dissolution was not, therefore, unexpected by the members of his family. The deceased was an estimable member of the Parsee community, and his loss will not only be deplored by his countrymen who participated largely of his bounty, but also by the indigent of every class and creed, by whom he was recognised as the friend of the poor. He was a regular contributor to most of our public institutions and other charities; but unostentatious and modest in all his liberalities, he did good by stealth, and blushed to find it fame. His remains were conveyed the same morning to their last resting-place, accompanied by a large number of his sorrowing countrymen.

AURUNGABAD.—The Madras Spectator has been informed that the Commander in Chief has recommended to Government that Jaulna, as a station for Madras troops, should be abandoned, and that it should be made over to the Bombay Government. The resident at Hyderabad, on the other hand, is said to have named Aurungabad as the point at which troops should be concentrated, so as to be ready should occasion require to put down disturbances that may arise amongst the Bheels or on the Candeish frontier. This recommendation is not a bad one, Aurungabad being in a good central position, while Jaulna need not altogether be abandoned; a strong detachment for its protection might be detailed from Aurungabad—or what is more likely the present Aurungabad force would take the place of the regulars at Jaulna, which latter would in such case become a station of the Hyderabad contingent.

MERAI SACRIFICES.—We hear that the Merai human sacrifices, which were understood to have been abolished by the chiefs of the Khoonds, have recommenced, and some of the perpetrators have been apprehended and sentenced, and also the kidnappers. Some of the victims appear to have been sold by their own fathers.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—At a weekly meeting of the directors, held on the 19th May, the Bank of Bombay raised its rates of interest and discount one per cent. all round.

Governor of Bengal shall be continued to him until the period of his embarkation for Europe.

Under the authority conveyed in the 29th section of the act 21 and 22 Victoria, cap. 106, H. E. the Right Hon. the Viceroy and Governor General of India is pleased to appoint, subject to the approbation of Her Majesty, the Hon. J. P. Grant, at present a member of the council of the Governor General of India, to be Lieut. Governor of the Bengal division of the presidency of Fort William, from May 1.

Money entrusted to Pay Sergeants.

Adj. Gen's Office, Simla, April 21, 1859.—From the proceedings of court martial which have recently been laid before the C. in C., it appears that instances still occur of officers commanding troops and companies, and sections of detachments and depots, entrusting more money to their pay sergeants than the amount required for the daily issue of pay to the troops under their command.

Lord Clyde directs that the rule laid down in the concluding portion of para. 69, page 121, of H.M.'s regulations, be strictly carried out; and he calls upon commanding officers to warn officers who have public money for the payment of troops placed in their hands, of the serious consequences which must result to themselves by a disregard of the above-quoted regulation.

Action near Toolseepore.

Fort William, April 26, 1859.

H. E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the Depty. Adjt. gen. of the army, No. 75, of the 7th April, submitting a report of the particulars of an action in which a detach. of troops under Lieut. col. Gordon, commanding 1st Sikh inf., were engaged with a vastly superior body of rebels in the neighbourhood of Toolseepore.

H. E. in Council notifies his entire approval of the service rendered by Lieut. col. Gordon and by those under his command on this occasion; and participates in the regret expressed by the rt. hon. the C. in C. at the death of Lieut. Grant and of the other gallant soldiers who fell in this action. From the Depty. Adj. gen. of the army, to the Sec. to the Govt. of India, Mily. depart.

Sir,—I have the honour by desire of the C. in C., to forward, for the information of his H. E. the Gov. gen. in Council, a letter dated the 1st instant, from Brigdr. A. H. Horsford, c.b. comdg. troops Trans Gogra, detailing the particulars of an action in which a detach. of troops under Lieut. col. G. Gordon, comdg. 1st Sikh inf., were seriously engaged with a vastly superior body of the rebels, in the neighbourhood of Toolseepore.

2. Lord Clyde very highly appreciates the conduct of Lieut. col. Gordon and those under his command on this occasion; and his lordship considers that a very important service has been rendered by the troop.

3. I am to express the regret of Lord Clyde at the death of a promising officer, Lieut. R. J. Grant, and of the other gallant soldiers who fell in this action.

4. The C-in-C. would earnestly recommend the reward of the Native soldiers mentioned by Lieut. col. Gordon, in paragraph eight of his letter, and in the manner suggested.

H. W. NORMAN, Major,

Deputy Adj. gen. of the army.

Hd. Qrs.; Camp Delhi, April 7, 1859.

From Brigdr. A. Horsford, c.b., comdg. Trans Gogra, to the Depty. Asst. Adjt. Gen. Oude Force, Lucknow.

Camp near Jerwah Pass, the 1st April, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of Maj. gen. Sir Hope Grant, K.C.B., comdg. in Oude, that on the evening of the 30th March, 1859, I learned that certain bodies of the rebels having evaded the post at Dhukkuree had crossed into the Oude district, and intended to pass from east to west of it, under the hills which divide the British from the Nepaulese territory.

Toolseepore, I felt should not be abandoned, but to watch the forest under the hills, I detached a force commanded by Lieut. col. Gordon, 1st Sikh Inf., whose report I enclose. The arduous duty which this officer found himself unexpectedly called upon to perform was most ably carried out, and I trust that the Maj. gen. comdg. may deem his name worthy of being brought to the notice of H.E. Lord Clyde.

On the receipt of a report from Lieut. col. Gordon, of the strength of the approaching enemy, I instantly hastened to his support, taking with me one wing of 1st regt. Hodson's horse, the remaining wing escorting four guns Q field batt., having twenty men of the 53rd regt. on the limbers following with all possible speed. A wing of the 53rd regt. was also put in movement as a reserve.

The sudden appearance on the field of the leading portion of this force was at once felt, the enemy hesitated, and a general advance turned their hesitation into a rapid retreat, pursued by the cav. until they found refuge in the dense forest, and I learn that they did not halt until they had reached the Arrah Nuddee on the Nepal frontier, east of this.

One hundred and fifty dead, all sepoy armed with muskets, were counted on the field, and four elephants were captured.

The wounded and prisoners and one hundred and twenty cav. who subsequently surrendered, report the enemy's numbers to have been 13,000 Telingahs and seven hundred sowars.

Too much praise cannot be awarded to the officers and men of the 1st Sikh inf., who with great gallantry maintained a most unequal fight, until the arrival of the relieving force. I fully sympathize with the corps in the loss it has sustained in Lieut. Grant, a young officer whose forward conduct was remarkable.

I would bring to the Maj. gen.'s notice the officers named in Lieut. col. Gordon's report.

My thanks are due to officers comdg. corps and detachments, to Lieut. col. Gordon, 1st Sikh Inf., of whom I need make no further mention; Lieut. col. Daly, C.B., not only for his activity in the field, but also for the general assistance he has always rendered me; Capt. Johnson, R.A., Capt. Walter, 53rd regt.

I cannot speak too highly of the zeal of my Brig. maj., Maj. Dillon. My thanks are also due to Capt. Hoste, my Officg. qr. mr. gen., and to Lieut. Stainforth, mil. pol., who on this occasion acted as my Orderly officer.

From Capt. Ross, deputy commr., I have received every aid and support.

A. HORSFORD, Brigdr.

Comdg. Trans. Gogra.

From Lieut. Col. G. Gordon, comdg. advance post of Brigdr. Horsford's F.F., to Maj. Dillon, Maj. of Brig., Brigdr. Horsford's C.B. column. Camp near Jerwah, 1st April, 1859.

Sir,—Pursuant to brigade orders, of the 30th ult., I have the honour to inform you, for the information of Brigdr. Horsford, C.B., comdg., that I encamped yesterday morning at Jerwah, with a detachment as detailed below,* in such a position, as to enable me to watch that Paas and to prevent the rebels slipping westward unobserved.

2. About 9 A.M. I received information that the rebels were within a mile of my camp. I immediately got my detachment under arms, and proceeded to meet the enemy, which I did, about one thousand yards or so from my camp; and here I encountered a very severe opposition from them, but succeeded in driving their force beyond a line of hillocks, flanked on the left by a dense jungle, swarming with the enemy, and on the right by broken ground and scrubby jungle. I took possession of this position, as far as my means would allow, and held it, although hard pressed, for several determined attacks of the enemy. I kept possession of this position for about three and a half hours, when a check appeared to have taken place among the rebels on my right rear (in which direction I had been totally outflanked). This check was occasioned by the arrival of Brig. Horsford, leading an advance of Hodson's horse. Seeing this, I immediately ordered my detachment to advance on the flank of the retreating enemy.

3. I cannot say with accuracy the number of the rebels disposed of, but from the numerous dead bodies lying about, should conceive that their loss must have been severe.

4. I regret to say, that the number of casualties in my detach. is large, but this event could not be avoided, on account of the numerical disparity of my force, and that of the enemy, which is said by spies and prisoners taken, to have amounted to between seven and eight thousand men.

5. I have to deplore the loss of my off. second in command Lieut. R. J. Grant, a most promising officer, who gallantly fell at the head of his men. My best thanks are due to Lieut. col. C. D. P. Nott, off. adjt., who gave me every assistance and satisfaction. I have to regret the dangerous wounds received by Lieut. J. Beckett, "doing duty," who, with Lieut. R. J. Grant, I cannot praise too highly.

6. It affords me the greatest pleasure to bring to the notice of the Brigd. Asst. Surg. C. A. Poole's conduct on this occasion, his attentions to the numerous wounded, although exposed to a heavy fire were beyond all praise, he was also useful to me in carrying orders from one position to another in the early part of the day.

7. I cannot speak too highly of the conduct of the detach. which accompanied me, and which under very trying circumstances behaved most admirably, and displayed a courage most creditable to it.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, June 20, 1859.

CRIMINAL CODE PROCEDURE BILL

THE intelligence lately received from India is of so serious a nature that it demands the immediate and earnest attention of her Majesty's Secretary of State for that department in Council. Any unnecessary delay, or uncertainty of purpose, cannot fail to lead to the most disastrous results; in comparison with which, recent events will sink into insignificance. The policy adopted by Lord Canning towards the European residents is fraught with such great and imminent danger, that we should be wanting in our duty did we omit to bring it before the notice of the British public.

We learn from the last Calcutta Mail that the Legislative Council, under the direction of the Governor General, was pushing forward the Criminal Code Procedure Bill as rapidly as possible through all its stages. This is the Bill that was interrupted by the mutinies, and the object of which is to subject the European community to the criminal jurisdiction of the native courts presided over by native judges. The petitions and earnest remonstrances of the English settlers in 1857, when the Bill was first introduced, will still be in the memory of our readers, nor is it yet forgotten that their proffered counsel and repeated warnings were treated with contempt and ridicule. But at that time Lord Canning was compelled to pause in his course of studied slights towards his fellow-countrymen in the East, and in the common necessity of self-defence all minor questions for a season immersed. Now, however, after the lapse of two years, and notwithstanding the terrible experience that has been furnished of the hostility of Mahomedan judges to all professors of the Christian faith, this most objectionable measure is again brought forward. The corrupt nature of the native Courts has frequently been made known to the Parliament and people of this country; but lest any suspicion of partiality should attach to the individuals who have usually borne witness against them, we shall proceed to quote the evidence that was given before the Committee on the Colonization and Settlement of India by Mr. Mangles, formerly of the Bengal Civil Service, more recently a member of the Court of Directors, and at present a member of the Indian Council:—

"In a Court in India," he said, "twenty men will swear point blank to one side of the case upon a mere matter of fact, and twenty men will swear point blank to the other side; therefore it is utterly hopeless that a judge should arrive, by the mere weighing of the evidence, at any conclusion on such a case. I remember the report of a judge of circuit with respect to a gang-robbery, in which he said: 'There are plenty of eye-witnesses who depose that A, B, and C committed this gang robbery; but,' he added, 'if you were to decide the case, and condemn the men upon the mere evidence of eye-witnesses, which of course in England would be thought the best evidence you could possibly have, no man's life would be safe against whom a zemindar had a spite.' I remember another judge, speaking of a particular district he had been visiting on circuit, says, 'Of the murders charged not one, and of the gang robberies charged only one, actually took place at all; all the others were cases got up by the landowners fighting with one another through the medium of our courts of justice."

Such is the unimpeachable testimony of Mr. Mangles; and surely, we may ask, if such things take place under European judges, what may not be expected when native judges preside over the Courts? We do not hesitate to say that if this Bill be passed there will be an end to all hope of colonizing India even in the most restricted sense of that word. It is true that power of life and death is not entrusted to the native judges by the proposed measure; but they are empowered to sentence a European to two years' imprisonment in gaol, and such a punishment as this in India would be worse than the hangman's noose. It is a liability to which no English gentleman will tamely submit; and the inevitable consequence of the enactment of the Bill in question will be, the immediate withdrawal of British capital and enterprise from the interior. Besides, do the authorities imagine that the English soldiers, or the workmen upon the different railways, will permit a fellow-countryman to be dragged to prison at the mandate of a native? Lord Canning has already tested their forbearance to the last degree of tension; let him beware that he do not try it too far. Indeed, the systematic indifference, or rather the active hostility, displayed by Lord Canning towards Europeans generally, has created a painful and dangerous feeling from one extremity of the peninsula to the other. The private letters which have reached us regarding the disaffection of the European troops at Meerut, all agree in representing the soldiers as indignant at his partiality to the natives. On all occasions the latter are petted and caressed, while the services of the Europeans have been either wholly ignored, or lightly regarded. It is wise and just to treat the natives as British subjects, but it is neither wise nor just to cease to consider the British as the dominant race. Let the Home Government look to this in time. If they would preserve India as an appanage of the British Crown they must take care not to lower the prestige of the Europeans. All accounts are of accord in describing the daily increasing insolence of the natives, and their impatience of control. They have at length discovered how small was the numerical strength of the foreigners who held them in subjection. Let them not also discover how morally and intellectually small are those who rule the foreigners themselves.

REORGANISATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

LIEUT. COL. A. T. WILDE was of opinion that one European to four natives might be about the average, but doubted if a purely European force could ever hold India; would have no exclusively native artillery, but would not object to their being mixed with Europeans in equal proportions; would employ natives as drivers, and also as gunners in the reserve artillery; would assign to the Bengal Presidency, including the Punjab, 25,000 European and 100,000 native troops, including all branches; the irregular system preferable to the regular, both for horse and foot; the former more in accordance with Eastern ideas and habits, and the soldiers are taught to look more to their officers; the native officers far better in the irregular regiments; in the 4th Punjab infantry the average age of the native officers was twenty-six; the Punjab infantry were under the Civil Government, except when an officer, whether European or native, was to be tried, and then it was necessary to refer to the C. in C.; native officers promoted through recommendation of the brigadier, confirmed by the Chief Commissioner; occasionally direct commissions were given to native gentlemen; would abolish the native Articles of war, and substitute a code, simple, severe, and intelligible, giving great power to the brigadiers commanding, and to the commandants of regiments; native gentlemen receiving direct commissions were required to bring thirty or forty followers with them; these were ready to die for their leader, and he himself became much attached to the European officers; there should be six European officers, instead of four; the sepoys enlisted for general service; their pay seven rupees a month, no batia, but their baggage carried for them; enlisted for three years, and not entitled to a pension till after twenty years, and only then if disabled; the commanding officers were magistrates, with power to inflict punishment; for five years these corps were brought under the Articles of War, and discipline suffered almost immediately; on the outbreak of the mutiny the magisterial power was again given to the commandant; each regiment, 800 strong, with 20 commissioned and 100 non-commissioned native officers; a regiment consisted of 200 Afghan and 200 Punjabee Mussulmans, 200 Sikhs, and 200 promiscuous Hindoos; this was Sir Henry Lawrence's idea; never had any difficulty about caste; at Bahadoor Khail the regiment dug the foundation of the fort and carried the stone for the walls, and worked in the trenches before Delhi; Brahmans worked with the others; an intermixture of nationalities more advisable than classing them in companies.

Lieut. col. T. Leslie, C.B., would give 100 native to 400 European artillerymen; if enough Europeans can be obtained, would have no natives at all, excepting as gun lascars; would arm all alike; would not trust the natives with guns, unless in conjunction with Europeans; the infantry should be regular, the cavalry irregular; as sappers and miners would employ Europeans solely in the scientific branches, and the natives as labourers; no objection to half-castes; had known Bengal sappers set about work very reluctantly, so much so that some European horse artillery had to dismount and do the work themselves; would attach one native to two European companies in every regiment; the Bombay detachment system in the artillery better than the Bengal system, where the men ride on the limbers and off horses.

Lieut. col. John Hill, of the Bombay engineers, would esteem it sufficient for Bengal and Bombay to have one European to three natives, provided the European cavalry were better armed; would have an irregular force one-third of the amount of the other; native artillerymen indispensable for Upper Scinde; the native sappers should be far more numerous than the European; Bombay sappers are men of all castes, high and low, mingled together promiscuously; never found them hesitate to do any work; enlisted for general service; once applied to a Bengal colonel for troops for working parties, and was told that it was out of the question—the men would mutiny; applied then for the doolie bearers, but received a similar answer; at Mooltan the Bengalee sappers took their tools but did no real work; would not recognise caste, or nationality, or any such distinctions; the pay of the sappers should be increased, for it is now no more than that of the line, and the work is far harder; the pay of the commanding officer, also, should be augmented, for at present the appointment is shirked by every man of ordinary abilities; the selection system of promotion decidedly the best; a little favouritism sometimes exhibited, but on the whole it works well; in the Bombay army the native officers are usually young, active, and intelligent; once knew a Bengal cavalry regiment, only two miles from the enemy, marching along, the horses led by the horsekeepers, the arms and accoutrements carried by the chargers, camels, and horsekeepers; and the men paddling through water and plundering in the fields; not an uncommon thing; European non-commissioned officers in Bombay sappers very superior men, but not sufficiently paid; formerly native sappers received Rs. 1½ per mensem more than the line sepoys, and they deserve to have it.

Colonel James Sinclair, of the Bombay artillery, would regard it as a fair proportion for Bombay to have one European to two natives, inclusive of all branches; would have 5,000 artillerymen, exclusively European; three regiments of European cavalry, 800 each, of small active adult men; and eight regiments of European infantry, 800 strong; the sappers and miners should be mixed; the scientific departments in the arsenals should be superintended by European artillerymen, whether in the commissioned, warrant, or non-commissioned grades; of regular native infantry would have twenty regiments, 800 strong, supplemented with ten regiments of irregulars, with six regiments of irregular cavalry similar to the Scinde horse; better to risk the climate than to have native artillerymen; in the Bombay Presidency soldiers not often employed on police duties; would enlist for each presidency within the limits of that presidency, but for general service; the irregular horse should be local and named as such—Beloochees in Scinde, Cattees in Katteawan, &c.; low-caste men from Hyderabad, employed as palanquin-men in Bombay, eligible as store-lascars; would have native artificers exclusively in the artillery; the present establishment quite insufficient and underpaid; Europeans too heavy as drivers, their weight oppresses the horse; native Christians might be employed as drivers; for horse artillery there should be only European drivers; bullocks unfit for field artillery, but useful for siege ordnance; there should be a captain and four subalterns to a troop of horse artillery, and a captain and three subalterns to a horse battery; of late, batteries have very frequently been commanded by subalterns; the ordnance department has been officered from the artillery; a staff corps objectionable, because closing to every officer the hope of employment away from his regiment; that hope is the only thing that renders service in India endurable; would second the officers withdrawn from regimental duty, and let them be borne on the strength of their corps, and return to it under certain regulations, or on attaining regimental promotion; the officer removed would be replaced by promotion in the regiment, and by the nomination of another cadet to complete the duty-roll of the regiment; one regiment might thus have more officers than another, but that would not seriously affect promotion; the commanding officer of a battery should have as much power over his men as the commanding officer of a regiment; the Bengal army too large as at present constituted; there should be a C. in C. to each presidency, and the different armies kept quite distinct, but one system of artillery throughout all India.

Colonel Michael Willoughby, C.B., of the Bombay artillery, regarded the proportion of one European to three native soldiers, exclusive of artillery, as safe and expedient; would do away entirely with native regular cavalry, and substitute European cavalry in regiments 500 strong; would keep up the existing irregular cavalry—that is, three regiments of Scinde horse, one of Poonah, and two of the Southern Mahratta; a certain proportion of native artillerymen quite indispensable; if the native troops are intended ever to take the field they must be armed as well as the Europeans; the artillery must be better paid; at present they get no more than the line, though their duties are far more onerous and responsible; the Bombay artillery very inefficient; there is a battalion without any officers except what it can borrow from the other battalions; during the mutiny detachments have been sent out under non-commissioned officers because there were no others; a battery is sometimes left with only one officer and that one a subaltern; officers of artillery conduct the ordnance matters; they have been excluded from a fair share of civil and military appointments owing to their paucity of numbers; infantry officers have occasionally held temporary command of batteries at outstations; would enlist for general service; would allow commanding officers power to convene and confirm any court martial without reference to higher authority; during the mutiny power was given to inflict summary punishments, and that ought to be continued to them; would not intermingle Europeans and natives in the same regiment—the recruits would not get on well together; the division of the Bengal army a very desirable measure; appointments and allowances should be the same in all the presidencies; a staff corps would be very difficult to contrive with the present system of promotion.

Sir C. E. Trevelyan, K.C.B., was the next witness; was twelve years in India, from 1826 to 1838; if many of the duties now performed by the military were transferred to a local police, and the country properly disarmed, a European force of 30,000 to 40,000, with double that number of natives, would suffice for the Bengal Presidency, including the Punjab; the police should be strictly a civil force, localised, and commanded by a European officer for each district, with a certain proportion armed with firearms for the protection of the gaol and treasury; the model of the English county police, with the modification just mentioned, exactly suited to India; railroads would be of great service for the conveyance of troops to a disturbed district—disturbances not generally breaking out simultaneously at a great many different points; the magazines should be deposited in fortified places held by European troops; there should be as few detached posts as possible; at large stations there should be a sort of fortification, within which the treasury, the military chest, the records, stores, magazines, women, and children might be placed; there should be fewer military stations than heretofore; the native troops should bear the same relation to the European as did the light-armed auxiliaries to the Roman legion or the Grecian phalanx; they should be dressed more in the native fashion, which would also tend to preserve national distinctions; would give them good weapons, and train them efficiently; a diversity of practice advantageous in the native army, so that some corps might be armed by Government, and others compelled to find their own arms; the command of native troops should be entrusted only to first-rate officers, selected for the purpose; the highest native officer should still be inferior in rank to the lowest European officer, but they must be promoted for merit, not for age; native officers should all pass through the ranks; in Colonel Skinner's horse most of the native officers were gentlemen, and nearly all had risen from the ranks; as an abstract proposition it might be desirable to have native gentlemen in the regular army as officers, but practically it would answer better that they should rise from the ranks; better to employ natives in the civil than in the military department; the position of the native officers should be made as agreeable and respectable as possible; the European force should form an integral portion of the Royal army, subject to the regular reliefs; the Engineers should be local; the native regiments should be officered under a system of careful selection (Sir Charles here proposed an utterly impracticable system of weeding out the least eligible candidates, as if candidates could be found willing to throw away two or three years, partly in this country and partly in India, on the mere chance of being confirmed in their appointments; but we spare our readers this utopian dream of "Indophilus"); promotion from rank to rank should be regulated by the C. in C. in recompense of distinguished service; in each regiment there should be a very limited number of officers, and if any one of these exhibited great talent and industry, he should be provided with a good appointment, in preference to those above him; in regimental promotion, however, the main principle must always be seniority; the officers of the native infantry, cavalry, and staff should form one corps; there should be a general list of officers, as in the civil service; a cadet should be carefully selected, and passed through a year's course at a military college in England, and then posted to a European infantry corps in India previous to his transfer to the native service; the primary selection should not be made according to any fixed standard of qualifying examination, but by comparative superiority; purchase should be excluded from the Indian army, and therefore there would be no means of exchanging into the Queen's; besides, a Queen's officer, even if he had acquired the native languages, would have no knowledge of native troops, or of native customs, usages, and religious feelings; the artillery and all scientific departments of the army should be exclusively in the hands of Europeans; the general military staff should be open to officers of both services, but those branches of the staff which have especial reference to Indian matters, such as the commissariat, pay or audit departments, &c., &c., should be officered entirely from the officers of the native army: it might be convenient to compose companies of particular castes, as of Mairs, or Koles, or native Christians, and regiments of particular nationalities, as of Sikhs, Ghoorkas, Punjabees, &c.; very desirable to fill up vacancies in Sikh regiments with recruits from other quarters, such as the aboriginal races; the Bengal army should not be divided, because in that case Punjab men could not be employed in Oude, and vice versa; still for civil purposes it would be well to constitute Scinde and the Punjab a lieutenant governorship; head-quarters should be at Allahabad, or Agra, or some other central position, and the C. in C. should make cold weather tours of inspection; the C. in C.'s functions as military chief are of much greater importance than his functions as a member of council; appointments and allowances in the different presidencies should be harmonised as far as is consistent with the difference of responsibilities and expenses; very inexpedient to mingle Europeans and natives in the same regiment; a great mistake to dress the native horsemen in European clothes, and to set them to ride on smooth saddles.

THE ADDISCOMBE MEMORIAL. TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SIR,—Referring to the Memorial of the Parents and Guardians of the Gentlemen Cadets at Addiscombe, published in the Indian Mail of the 10th inst., and your advocacy of its contents, will you allow me to suggest to those parents and guardians to inquire whether the provisions of Clause XXXIV. of the Act of the 21st and 22nd Vict., cap. 106, declaring that, "with all convenient speed, after the commencement of this Act, regulations shall be made," &c., &c., and under which clause the new rules for Addiscombe have been enacted, convey authority to the framers of those rules, who, it must be presumed, practised all convenient speed on the occasion, to give six months' retrospective effect to their labours.

This is an important question, well deserving the consideration of those whose young relatives and friends are so seriously injured by the acts of the Secretary of State for India in Council, as set forth in the memorial in question.
June 13, 1859. FIAT JUSTITIA.

(From another Correspondent.)

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SIR,—Your unsolicited and friendly support of the Memorial of the Parents and Guardians of the junior Cadets at Addiscombe, in the Indian Mail of the 10th instant, induces me to hope that you will permit me to offer an illustration of the value of time, and of the fourth term of residence in particular, to those young gentlemen, as set forth in the 8th and 9th paragraph of that memorial, by two instances of actual occurrence, since the representation in question was placed in the hands of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Turning to the report of the gentlemen Cadets at the public examination June, 1859, it will be seen that the gentleman who passed out of college at the head of the senior or fourth term, with the Pollock Medal Sword, and other prizes, and who, if my memory is correct, had been at the head of his term throughout his Addiscombe career, was only able to retain his position on Friday last (10th inst.), by a majority of one:—viz. 512 marks against 511, the number assigned to the second competitor. And why? Because it had been his misfortune to be laid up by sickness, for a period of six weeks, incapable of study of any kind.

Again, turn to a young student of the first, or junior term, who will not attain the age of sixteen until after the re-opening of the College in August, and is, therefore, not admissible under the new regulations of the 9th March last until the resumption of study in February next, 1860, but is to be deprived by those rules of his fourth term of residence. He took a high place in his term on Friday last, but was also unfortunately in sick quarters for upwards of three weeks, and thereby, it is generally admitted, lost many additional marks that might have assisted him in his endeavours to obtain a still higher position; he is diligent as well as intelligent; and if he shall be blessed with unfailing health during the next year he may, possibly, recover this lost time, and qualify himself for the Engineers at the end of his third term. But let any untoward circumstance place him in hospital again for any time, and his fourth term of residence be still withheld from him, and his brightest prospects in life will be sacrificed to the maintenance of an ex post facto law, now held by many to be of very questionable validity. What has been this young gentleman's case in his first term may be that of others of his fellow students in their future terms.

The enclosed card will make you acquainted with the names of the young gentlemen alluded to in this letter, and enable you to satisfy yourself, if you shall think it desirable to do so, that my statements are correct.—I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

A PARENT AND A GUARDIAN.

EAST INDIA COMPANY.

A Court of this Company was held on Wednesday, the 15th, at the East India House, in pursuance of a requisition of some proprietors, for general business, Colonel Sykes, M.P., Chairman of the Court of Directors, presiding.

DIVIDEND WARRANTS.

The minutes of the last Court having been read,

The CHAIRMAN informed the proprietors that the dividend warrants, payable on the 6th of July next, would be ready to be delivered on that day.

BY-LAWS.

The report of the Committee of By-laws, which was approved by the General Court on the 4th of May, was read and confirmed.

THE SECURITY FUND.

The SECRETARY read the following statement of the amount and mode of investment of the Security Fund:—

	£	s.	d.	Cost.	£	s.	d.
Three per Cent. Consols	756,420	3	3	...	699,418	0	8
Three per Cent. Reduced	4,227,616	10	3	...	3,859,34	8	9
	24,984,036	12	6		24,559,272	9	0

The CHAIRMAN said the unclaimed dividends amounted to £14,263. 19s. 10d. As a matter of prudence the Court of Directors had invested £7,000 of it in securities. £4,000 had been invested in the Turkish loan guaranteed by England and France.

Mr. CRAWSHAY did not consider that was a description of stock which the Directors ought to invest in. He did not think the guarantee of the two Powers so safe as that of our own Government only. He accordingly moved that the sum be withdrawn from the Turkish loan, and be reinvested.

Dr. BEATTIE seconded the motion, and said all investments should be limited to purely English funds.

After some discussion the recommendation contained in the motion was acceded to without any formal resolution being passed.

REDEMPTION OF THE DIVIDEND ON THE COMPANY'S STOCK.

Mr. CRAWSHAY then rose to bring forward a motion of which he had given notice to the following effect:—

"That the Court of Directors be requested to convene a Special General Court of the East India Company, at a convenient time and place, for the purpose of taking into consideration the advisability of making application to Parliament for the redemption of the dividend on the Company's Stock before the right to claim such redemption from Parliament shall expire, on the 1st of September next; and that notice of the intention to hold such General Court be communicated by circular from the Court of Directors to every proprietor of East India Stock entitled to be present thereat."

A very common delusion prevailed that, in spite of the clearness of the law on the subject, nevertheless there might be a Parliamentary guarantee given for the sums of money which had been raised on the revenue of India. He would warn hon. proprietors that any such expectation was entirely delusive. It was specially provided that within twelve months after the governing power of the Company was abolished the proprietors should decide whether they would accept the redemption of their dividend at the rate of £200 per cent. or not. If not, then the holders of East India Stock would have to depend solely for the payment of their dividends upon the revenues of India; and first of all, there must be a surplus in India which could be remitted to England before the Company could claim payment. It was not simply because of the awful condition which had been recently revealed of the Indian finances; it was not because of the enormous increase of duty that had been imposed upon Indian commerce; but it was because he did not see that the events of the last few years in India had had the slightest effect in bringing about an amended system of government in that country, or of creating a desire on the part of England to do justice to the people of that vast empire, that he felt anxious to call the immediate attention of the Court to the subject of their securities. He could not divest himself of the belief that a severe retribution would one day befall the Company, resulting in the entire failure of remittances from India to this country. The hon. proprietor concluded by moving his resolution.

Mr. JONES said he would second the resolution, although he could not agree with the hon. mover in the view he took of the subject. He thought if that company were to avail itself of its power to call for the redemption of its dividends, it would be most injurious both to Indian and to English interests. He still retained the conviction that the East India Company even yet would be the sheet anchor of British interests in India. Lord Stanley had not realised the expectations entertained of him. He had lamentably failed in his financial, military, and commercial administration. The existence of the Company ought to be maintained, as being the only nucleus in England where Indian affairs were really understood.

Colonel EVEREST said by the 17th clause of the Act of 1834 it was enacted that the dividends on East India Stock should be payable out of the revenues of India before any other charge whatever payable thereout; with such a security it would be very hard indeed if they did not obtain their dividends. He thought, however, that the question which had been raised by the hon. proprietor should be kept open until the latest moment, in order that the proprietors might be able to act according as circumstances might, between this and September next (when their power for demanding the guarantee of the Government would expire), make it advisable to do.

Dr. FINCH thought the adoption of the resolution would be most injurious. A large holder of East India Stock had declared to him that if Mr. Crawshay's motion were carried he would immediately sell out. A sense of duty therefore obliged him to move the following amendment:—

"The proprietors of East India Stock, having been invited by an hon. proprietor to call a meeting to consider the propriety of exercising the privilege of claiming the redemption of their dividend by the Imperial Government, met and deliberated on the same, and are satisfied with the security of their funds, and see no necessity for the exercise of that right."

Dr. BEATTIE seconded the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN, while entertaining great respect for Mr. Crawshay, and for the feeling which dictated the present motion, must still express his entire dissent from it. The hon. gentleman asked the proprietors to demand of the Government £200 for that for which they could now obtain in the market from £212 up to £218. The suggestion of the hon. gentleman was that if the proprietors neglected to avail themselves of the power to demand the redemption of their dividends, the time might come when they would not be able to obtain £200 for their Stock. But the hon. gentleman overlooked certain facts. When the commercial assets of the Company were sold, they amounted to £15,000,000, and an arrangement was made that £630,000 should be annually paid out of the revenue of India. But how was it to be paid? By transferring an equivalent amount of capital that should produce the £630,000; so that, in point of fact, the Company bought of the Government an annuity of £630,000. Therefore they had an unimpeachable lien on the revenues of India for that amount. Besides which, there was a sum of £2,000,000 laid aside to accumulate at compound interest in excess of the guarantee, and which would go far towards paying off the £12,000,000 of Stock. Surely, having those two facts before them, there was no cause of alarm with regard to the security of their claim. Was there any rational cause to apprehend that India would be lost? Could anybody, after what had occurred during the last eighteen months, seriously believe it at all likely that they should lose India? If not, then their money was secure; for India had always been capable of meeting its liabilities. He had obtained returns for the last fifty years, which showed that at each decennial period there had always been a surplus revenue. Was it the debt of India that constituted the pressure on the Indian resources? Why, in the year 1809-10 the pressure of the debt was in the proportion of 18 per cent. to the amount of revenue; but now, although the debt itself had increased threefold in amount, yet the revenue had so much more greatly increased that the proportion of its pressure was 10 per cent. only. These were facts that spoke for themselves. Had India ever failed in fulfilling its obligations? India, during a hundred years, had never cost this country a single shilling; and it now provided for 6,000 families, and its trade has gone on increasing since 1832 in an extraordinary ratio. Then, with regard to its remittances to England, how were they made? Not in rupees, but in the produce of India. The demand for that produce was rapidly increasing, and must be paid for either by this or by other countries. Within the last fifty-nine years there had been imported into India no less than 175,000,000 of silver bullion, which had never gone out of that country again. Where did all this money go to? Did it not go among the people, who raised sugar, indigo, oilseeds, and other East Indian produce? The fact was, that India was getting richer year after year and day after day; therefore his views of India were not such as Mr. Crawshay entertained, nor did he consider that gentleman justified in taking such a gloomy view as he had expressed of that empire. The Indian Government was expending a vast amount of money in the promotion of public works, and he had no doubt that within a short period everything would go on right again; but it all depended upon their having confidence in the people. He should with pleasure support the amendment.

After a few words from Mr. HELPS, the question was put and the amendment carried, there being only four votes in favour of the original motion.

THE TREATIES OF PARIS AND VIENNA.

Mr. JONES said that under the treaty of Paris, made in May, 1814, Pondicherry, in Madras, and Chandernagore, on the river Hooghly, were restored to the King of France, from whom they had been previously taken by the English. By one of the articles of the treaty it was stipulated that France should not erect any fortresses or maintain any troops in either of those places. But the treaty of May, 1814, had been set at naught by Napoleon III.; therefore he considered that the East India Company had a right to demand a similar guarantee from the Emperor Napoleon to that which was required from the King of France in 1814. He concluded by moving the following resolution:—

"That the public renunciation by England of the obligations of the treaty of Paris of May, 1814, confirmed at Vienna in June, 1815, and reconfirmed at Paris in November, 1815, renders it necessary that this Company, in view of their own as well as English interests in India, should urge on the Government the necessity of negotiations for obtaining from the Emperor of the French a separate recognition of the conditions respecting India contained in the above treaties."

Mr. CRAWSHAY seconded the motion.

The CHAIRMAN said it was quite true that by the treaties referred to certain possessions in India which had been taken from France were given back to her; but they were given back upon certain conditions only, and those conditions were that the French should not erect fortresses or have any troops in those possessions. Therefore, the moment France should break either of those conditions, the obligation imposed on England by the treaty ceased, and those would immediately return to her. But there was no necessity for this resolution being adopted, because it was not true that this country had made any renunciation of the treaties. He had received from the Foreign-office a positive assurance that there had been no public renunciation by England of the obligations of the treaties with France in 1814 and 1815; consequently there was no ground for the present motion.

After a few words from Colonel EVEREST, the motion was put and negatived.

The Committee of By-laws was then reappointed. Adjourned.

REPORT OF THE PUBLIC EXAMINATION AT THE ROYAL INDIAN MILITARY COLLEGE, ADDISCOMBE, ON FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1859.

The Public Examination of the Gentlemen Cadets of Majesty's Indian forces took place this day at Addiscombe College, in the presence of a numerous assemblage. In the unavoidable absence of the Secretary of State for India, Sir Frederick Currie, Bart., Vice-President of the Council of India, presided. Mr. Baillie, M.P., Under-Secretary of State, and most of the Members of the Council were present, including Sir John L. M. Lawrence, Bart., G.C.B.; Major-General Sir R. Vivian, K.C.B.; Sir Henry C. Montgomery, Bart.; Colonel Sir Proby T. Cautley, K.C.B.; Colonel Durand, C.B.; and Messrs. Mills, Macnaghten, Willoughby, Eastwick, and Prinsep; Major-General Sir F. Smith, K.C.B.; M.P., Public Examiner and Inspector; Major-General Sir F. Abbott, C.B., Lieutenant-Governor of the College; and a considerable number of military and general visitors were also present, including General Sir G. Pollock, G.C.B., General Sir Charles Pasley, K.C.B., General Lawrence, General Dupries, C.B., Lord Strangford, Sir T. Metcalfe, Bart., Sir John Lees, Bart., Hon. and Ven. Archdeacon Yorke; Revs. J. Randolph, W. Austin, G. Coles; Generals Cameron, Portlock, Hancock; Admiral Trotter; Colonels Sir J. Jones, K.C.B., Sandham, R.E., Leslie, C.B., Forster, C.B., Tombs, C.B., V.C., E. Wilmot, R.A., Walpole, R.E., Wilford, Yorke, R.E., Melvill, Willoughby, C.B., Hicks, C.B., Baker, Stanton, C.B., Ross, Hay, &c.; Messrs. W. Vansittart, M.P. R. Crawford, &c., Twenty-seven Cadets were brought forward for examination. Of this number, ten were reported by the Public Examiner fully qualified for the Engineers; viz:—

Arthur Wilmot Elliott,
Harry Crommelin Rowcroft,
Robert Vansittart Riddell, (3rd term)
Wm. James Heavside,
Francis Prickett Spragge, (3rd term)
James Law Lushington Morant,
Ernest Lindsay Marayat,
Chas. Frederick Baldwin,
Maxwell Jas. Macartney,
Arthur Robert Edgcombe.

Robert Percival Pennefather (3rd term) was also reported qualified for Engineer service, subject to further examination hereafter.

Ten were reported qualified for the Artillery; viz:—

Thomas Walker,
John Graham Pollock,
Harry Leith Mackenzie,
George Edward Hancock,
James Waterhouse,
Richard Bazett,
John Butchart,
William Stanley Hebbert,
George Bannatyne,
John Francis Cookesley,
And Six for the Infantry; viz:—
Boyce Edward Gowan,
Henry Carter,
John Robert Lee,
Edward Hay,
Francis Hastings Toone Gordon Cumming,
Arthur Thomas Helme.

The Report of the Public Examiner and Inspector of Studies was read by Mr. Cochrane, the Clerk of the College. In this Report Sir Frederick Smith alluded in terms of regret to the approaching retirement of Captain Tate, the Professor of Military Drawing, on account of his declining health.

The Vice-President distributed the prizes to the various successful competitors as follows:—

Henry W. Clarke ..	Latin.

The Vice-President, in presenting the First Good Conduct Prize, an Engineer sword, to Mr. Elliott, congratulated him on obtaining that distinction from the Secretary of State for India, and hoped that he would long be enabled to wear it with honour to himself and benefit to his country.

In presenting him with the gold Pollock medal also, Sir Fredk. Currie said that this prize was instituted by the inhabitants of Calcutta, as a token of their admiration of the military talents and personal worth of General Sir George Pollock, and it was presented to the cadet ranking highest in the scale of general merit. He had great pleasure in presenting it to him, and congratulating him on its acquisition.

The Vice-President then addressed the Gentlemen Cadets generally as follows:—"The Secretary of State for India fully intended to have been present this day, and it was not until yesterday that he found that circumstances made it necessary for him to forego his intention. His lordship's absence has devolved upon me the duty of presiding here in his stead on the present occasion. I regret, for all our sakes, that his lordship is not present; but there is one part of the duty which attaches to-day to the representative of the Council of India, which I cannot but feel pleasure in performing; and that is the tendering to the Public Examiner, the Governor, and the Professors of the College, the expression of our gratification at the result of to-day's examination, and thanks to them for the labours which they have bestowed on the College.

"The report of the Public Examiner as to the diligence of the Gentlemen Cadets during the term, and the progress made by them in their studies, is very satisfactory; and it is most creditable to the three members of the third term, Messrs. Riddell, Spragge, and Pennefather, who have been declared qualified for the Engineers, that they have obtained this high proficiency in so short a period. The report of the Lieut. Governor of the conduct of some of the cadets during the term is not quite so satisfactory in respect to the good feeling and discipline which have, hitherto, distinguished the Addiscombe College. There was one subject upon which I know you Gentlemen Cadets, and many who are this day present, expected to have elicited from the Secretary of State for India some information upon this occasion. The subject is certainly a most important one, on which not only you who are personally interested, but all who know India and have the welfare of that vast empire at heart, must feel great anxiety. I allude, of course, to the re-organisation of the Indian army, and the resolution which the Government may come to on the report of the Royal Commissioners. I do not know even if the Secretary of State for India had been present that he could have given you any information on the subject; certain I am that I cannot. I can only tell you that it is a subject of vital importance, to which the Council of India are most anxiously alive.

"During the period which has elapsed since the last examination which was held here, the accounts from India had been very satisfactory as to the treading out the last embers of the late disastrous mutiny. But though the mutiny, or insurrection, or rebellion, call it what you may, has, we may hope, been put an end to, and the native population has been generally disarmed, yet the fabric of society in India has received a shock from which it cannot for many years entirely recover.

"You are proceeding to India as young soldiers, we may hope that as actual fighting men there will be little occupation for you for a long time to come; but in the service of the State you will find abundant employment of the most important kind for your talents and judgment, though you be not called to active service in the field against an enemy. You will find that, whether you are attached to European or native troops, in either case you will be brought into close communication with the natives of the country, upon whom your conduct and character must exercise an influence either for good or evil; and you may, very probably, if you are careful in qualifying yourselves, be placed in positions where there will be scope for the exercise of the highest administrative talents, civil and political; and where your instrumentality in the restoration of order and good government, and the introduction of an improved system of administration, may be most effective.

"Had the Secretary of State been present to-day, he would probably have addressed to you, as on the last occasion, some important and valuable advice as to your future career. The greater part of you were present, and heard the admirable address I allude to. All who are now about to leave the College and proceed to India certainly did so. I shall not attempt to add to what Lord Stanley then said, but I would exhort you to call it to your remembrance, and to retain it in your memory for your guidance in your Indian service. With these few words I will release you, wishing you heartily health, happiness, and honour."

The company then proceeded to inspect the—

SAND MODELS.—1. Model of the salient place of arms, covered way, and glacis, in front of a ravelin. With the works of attack—viz., double sap on the capital, crowning of the covered way with breaching batteries, and gallery of descent into the ditch. Scale, one inch and a half to a foot. 2. Attack of Valenciennes by the British and Austrian forces, A.D. 1793. Scale, quarter of an inch to the foot. These models were admirably executed.

CIVIL DRAWING.—The first prize was awarded to Mr. Riddell for two beautiful drawings, in water-colours, of Loch Lomond and Loch Venachar; the second prize to Mr. Rowcroft, for the same subjects; the third prize to Mr. Hutchinson; the fourth prize to Mr. Tomkins. The drawings of Messrs. Hancock, Seton, S. Clarke, Twenlow, and Broadfoot were deserving of much praise. The numerous specimens of photography attracted considerable notice, some of the plates being of a most superior description. The prize was obtained by Mr. H. Carter, but Messrs. Gowan and Hebbert displayed much ability in the arrangement of the several groups of figures.

BOOKS.

To the People of England. By an English Lady.

It was surely a work of supererogation to inform the public that this strongly-worded pamphlet was the production of a female writer. The internal evidence to that effect could not possibly be mistaken or set aside. We confess, however, that we do not exactly understand the object which this "English Lady" has in view, in pouring out the vials of her wrath upon "the double Government." We fancied that India was now under the direct control of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for that department, and that both the Board of Control and the Court of Directors had been swept away as governing powers. The language, too, is alarmingly spasmodic, but apparently intended "for the ears of the people that are on the wall." In short, it is rather the shrill cry of passion than a calm national appeal to "the people of England."

The Inam Commission Unmasked. By Robert Knight. London: Effingham Wilson.

This pamphlet consists chiefly of articles which have appeared at intervals in the Bombay Times. The question at issue has already been ventilated in these columns; but those who may wish to obtain a more complete knowledge of the subject will do well to possess themselves of a copy of Mr. Knight's brochure. If his tone and style sometimes betray the partisan, his facts are irrefragable, and his conclusions consequently unavoidable.

COMPOUND WORDS IN THE SANSKRIT.—The following ejaculation to Narayana, quoted in Yates's "Sancrit Grammar," is an amusing specimen of Hindoo sublimity, and of the mode in which words are compounded in the sacred dialect of Hindustan:—"O Narayana, whose-moon-like toe-nails are made-resplendent-by-the-intense brightness-of-the-pearls-placed-on-the-top-of-the-magnificent turbans-of-all-the-chief-durmties-making-their-suppliant prostrations, and who art the purifier-of-the-three-worlds-by-the-stream-of-Ganges-which-is-bright-as-the-rays-of-the-autumnal-moon-proceeding-through-the-hole-of-that-concave-vessel-which-was-broken-by-the-top-of-the-nail-on-the-great-toe-of-thy-energetic left foot, do thou pity me who am tossed about amidst-the-various whirlpools-of-the-tremendous-and-shoreless-ocean-of-human-life."—Asiatic Journal.

SIXTY YEARS OF SUCCESS HAVE PROVED BEYOND QUESTION THAT

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL possesses extraordinary properties for promoting the growth and improving and beautifying the human Hair. It prevents Hair from falling out or turning grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandruff, and makes it beautifully soft, pliable, and glossy. Its operation in cases of baldness is peculiarly active; and in the growth of Whiskers, the Beard, and Mustachios, it is unfailing in its stimulative operation. For CHILDREN it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR, while its introduction into the Nursery of Royalty, and the numerous Testimonials constantly received of its efficacy, afford the best and surest proofs of its merits.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.; Family Bottles (equal to four small), 10s. 6d.; and double that size, 21s.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The UNIVERSAL REVIEW is, as usual, distinguished by discussing subjects of deeper and more permanent interest than are commonly entered on in monthly publications. The first article, on a book entitled 'Man and his Dwelling Place,' affords the writer an opportunity of professing his acceptance of the Idealistic theory of Bishop Berkeley, which, though supported by reasoning that it is admitted cannot be refuted, has hitherto made so little progress with mankind in general, chiefly on account of the misapprehension that has prevailed, or, perhaps, we may say, which does prevail, respecting it—a misapprehension that, doubtless, the writer is correct in ascribing to people picking up their notions of it at second hand, instead of resorting to the exposition of Berkeley himself. The article entitled 'A Reviewer's Parcel' is a lament over the degeneracy of the present age, especially made manifest by the vast number of new books published every month. Every one has a vague desire to go behind the scenes of a theatre, and by admitting, or pretending to admit the public behind the scenes of reviewing, the writer of the article in question has produced a taking and readable paper, with which those who know little or nothing about the subject of which it treats will probably be best pleased. 'The Story of Microscopical Discovery' is an interesting article in which the progress of microscopical science is traced from its commencement to now. 'The Resources of India and its Colonization,' an article the first part of which appeared last month, is continued in the present number by a writer who has evidently devoted to the subject considerable care, pains, and research. An article on the picture exhibitions, a political article entitled 'The French in Italy,' 'The Slavonians in Austria,' with other papers, fill up the number."—Globe, June 3, 1859.

"The UNIVERSAL REVIEW for this month (June) presents us with nine articles, of which, at least, six are eminently worthy of attention. The first, a review of 'Man and his Dwelling Place,' is evidently very good, but somewhat too deep for this portion of our columns. The 'Slavonians and Austria' is an uncommonly interesting paper. The author of 'The Resources of India and its Colonization' concludes his very able observations on this subject. This is followed by an elaborate and thoughtful criticism of the 'Royal Academy and Water Colour Exhibitions.' 'Popular History' is a review of Mr. Knight's 'History of England,' from the commencement of which, and of the school to which it belongs, the writer expresses on the whole an unfavourable opinion, as founded on a narrow and erroneous conception of English history, as calculated to mislead the public and to widen rather than heal those breaches between high and low which interested persons have promoted. 'The French in Italy' is a well written and judicious summary of French policy in that quarter, but a little too severe."—Press, June 4, 1859.

"It would seem as if the conductor of this periodical has reached, even so soon as its fourth number, to a painful sense of his responsibilities. The article entitled 'A Reviewer's Parcel' is evidently a picture of an interior drawn from the life. To judge from the tone in which the writer bemoans himself, he is sinking under a monthly avalanche of modern literature, the aspect alone of which is tending not only to deprive him of the time and repose necessary for the operation of thinking, but is actually shortening his life—we hope not because he is sitting in producing a really good periodical, which, as we have before had the occasion to state, possesses the merit of improving as it goes on. The present number exhibits a judicious selection of subjects, treated with the same freshness and earnestness on which we have previously remarked, and which show that there is so much youthful verity among his contributors as to act amply as compensation for any such decay in his own energies as the book-ridden Editor seems desirous of indicating. It ought to be noticed that a speciality in this magazine is the regular attention which is paid to subjects connected with India, and the thorough knowledge of the subject with which they are treated, which the internal evidence proves to the least initiated of the readers of the articles in question."—Illustrated London News, June 11, 1859.

CONDY'S PATENT FLUID; OR, NATURAL DISINFECTANT.

Not only deodorizes but disinfects perfectly, and destroys for ever the cause of infection, is not poisonous, may be used to purify water, evolves no noxious or unpleasant gas, cannot be mistaken for any other fluid, thereby preventing death and disease, gives health, pure air, and fresh water, and is therefore the best, safest, cheapest, and most pleasant disinfectant ever introduced.

This fluid has been examined and reported upon by the Board of Health and all the most eminent medical men and chemists of the day, in all cases in the most satisfactory manner possible.

The public are recommended to use this fluid, properly diluted for use, frequently and habitually in the bath, and as a means of instantly lowering the temperature and purifying the air of apartments, tents, &c.; also for bilge-water, stables, musty casks, sick rooms, close places, &c., as it has numerous advantages and can be used with certain immediate success and perfect safety.

Sold in Quart Bottles 4s., Pints 2s., Half-pints 1s., and in bulk 10s. per gallon.

Free by rail on receipt of P.O.O. Colonial and Foreign Orders must contain a remittance or reference.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES. A SAFE and CERTAIN REMEDY for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and other Affections of the Throat and Chest. In Incipient Consumption, Asthma, &c., they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child.

Extract from a Letter recently received from New Zealand.

"Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 19, 1858.

"A lady to whom I gave some of your invaluable Cough Lozenges, and likewise several members of her family, who were troubled with severe coughs and colds (especially the youngest child, who had a hard croupy cough) have experienced great relief, and speak of them in the highest terms. One of my own children, too, who was troubled in like manner, has taken them with the greatest advantage. On account of their pleasant taste, children will readily take them, when they will not take other medicines. I may add that the lady above referred to informed me that she had frequently purchased them, when residing in India, of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Bombay."

Prepared and sold in bottles of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitation, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

MESSRS. ADDISON and Co., EAST INDIA, ARMY, and GENERAL AGENTS, 11, WATERLOO PLACE, PAUL-MAIL.

Captain C. ADDISON, late H.M.'s 59th Regiment, and Captain J. ADDISON, H.M.'s Indian Forces (retired list), beg to inform their friends in the two services, and the Army generally, that they have established the above firm, and trust, by carrying out such business transactions as may be confided to them, in a spirit of honour and plain dealing, and with strict regard to the interests of their clients, to obtain their confidence and support.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE,

PRESERVED IN TINS,
By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving). Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS
PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TEETH

WITHOUT SPRINGS.

110, REGENT-STREET, and 33, LUDGATE-HILL,
Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established
DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans.

In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots; the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, wholesome, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accepted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, and may be had gratis, for stamped envelope.
The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores decayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OBSERVE THE NUMBERS.

PREPARED WHITE GUTTA PERCHA ENAMEL, the best Stopping for Decayed Teeth or Toothache, 1s. 6d. per box, obtainable through any Chemist in town or country, or direct Twenty Stamps.

"Messrs. G.'s improvements in Dentistry are really important, and will well repay a visit to their establishments."—Sunday Times, Sept. 6th, 1858.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS
is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, sitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 18s. 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s.
A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 6d.
An Unilateral Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 10d.
Post office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c. for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive; and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each Postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

BRITISH COLLEGE of HEALTH. New Road, London.—MORISON'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE is the only medicine that strikes at the root of all disease. This has been proved by an experience of thirty years, during which time upwards of 400,000 cases of cure have been effected. The Hygienic agents throughout the world are unanimous upon the Hygienic system of medicine introduced by James Morison the Hygienist, who not only taught the public how to cure their own ailments, but also rescued the world from the dangers of false medical doctrines. The monument lately raised to his memory, by a penny subscription, sufficiently attests the importance of his discoveries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

—These remedies are unequalled in their astonishing effects in all painful and serious cases of ulceration, being as penetrating as powerful, exercising a wonderful influence over the diseased system; but one established fact is worth a thousand theories.—Chas. Croft, of Cheltenham, was afflicted with an abscess in the side, baffling all medical skill. Despairing of relief, he was persuaded to use Holloway's Ointment and Pills. He did so, and in a short time the healing process commenced, and the perfect cure rapidly followed. No abscess would form near the surface of the body if, on the first appearance of pain, swelling, and redness, Holloway's Ointment were well rubbed in, and his purifying Pills freely taken.

DR. JAMES'S POWDER for REVERSING INFLUENZA, MEASLES, RHEUMATISM, and all Inflammatory Disorders. No Medicine Chest is complete without it. So simple and certain, so mild and powerful, is its action, that it is fitted alike for domestic or professional use. The genuine has "P. NEWBERRY, No. 45, ST. PAUL'S CHURCH-YARD," London, engraved on the Government Stamp. Packets, 2s. 9d. each. Bottles, 11s. Be careful to ask for "NEWBERRY'S," the Original Preparation. Established A.D. 1746.

PROPRIETOR OF THE COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

THE FOLLOWING IS AN EXTRACT

from the Second Edition (page 189) of the Translation of the Pharmacopoeia of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. F. Collier, published by Longman and Co.:—

"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of the Pharmacopoeia) that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes; yet we know that hæmorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS, which chiefly consist of aloes, scammony, and colocynth, which, I think, are formed in a sort of compound extract, the acidity of which is obviated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a patent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best made pill in the kingdom; a muscular purge, a mucous purge, and a hydragogue purge combined; and their effects properly controlled by a detergent and corrigent. That it does not commonly produce hæmorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."

THE ARMIES OF THE GREAT POWERS.
BY LASCELLES WRAXALL.

*.* The object of this work is to furnish a correct and detailed account of the amount and nature of the forces belonging to the Great Powers. At a glance may be perceived the strength of the respective armies, and characteristics of their troops, their drill, discipline, and uniform. Although Mr. WRAXALL treats more especially of the Armies of France, Austria, England, Russia, and Prussia, he has not omitted those of Sardinia, Turkey, and Anglo-India. The value of such a Manual can hardly be over-estimated at the present moment, when three armies are already in the field, and at least two more placed on a war footing.

"A volume of both special and popular interest."—Athenæum.

"For all whose interest in the noble art of self-defence is as real as it should be, a compilation like Mr. WRAXALL's, has considerable value."—Saturday Review.

"A very readable and instructive volume. But better than his opinions are his facts. The description of the Austrian, Prussian, Russian, French, Sardinian, and Turkish Armies is exact and entertaining. He is also very accurate in his delineation of the composition of the British and Anglo-Indian Armies."—United Service Gazette.
